CATTLE SHOW TO BE ATTRACTION AT F.L.P. CONFERENCE

Henry Ford Booster One of Main Speakers

A counter move in opposition to the national farmer-labor party convention called for May 30th in St. Paul, Minn., by the Farmer Labor Party of Minnesota, The Federated Farmer Labor Party and the farm-labor parties of Washington, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, the Committee of 48 and other groups, is seen in the call sent out by the Farmer Labor Party of Colorado with the sanction of the National office of that party, for a conference of the western and southwestern states on January 26 and 27 in Denver.

A conference of the Farmer Labor Party, formerly the People's Progressive Party, of Colorado, is called for January 27th. The call is signed by W. M. Piggott, National Chairman of the Farmer Labor-Party, Jay G. Brown, National Secretary; Bert Martin, National Committeeman; G. F. Stevens, State Chairman, and Neil MacArthur, State Secretary.

Among the states included in this call are Washington, Montana, South Dakota, Nebraska and Idaho. The farmer labor parties of these states have already signified their intention to participate in the May 30 convention in Minneapolis.

May Capture Ghost

It is significant that among those invited to address the conference in Denver during the ratification is the Honorable Roy M. Harrop, president, National Ford for President Clubs. Harrop is reported to be a Republican Party lackey and was one of Henry Ford's most active boosters. Now that Ford has jumped on the Coolidge band wagon, perhaps Mr. Harrop is trying to draw this skeleton farmer-labor party along with him.

Communists or those who believe in the emblem of international brotherhood have no place in the live stock conference, declared the letter announcing the meeting. Red is supposed to have an infuriating effect on the dumb beasts on exhibition there. The idea of internationalism has much the same effect on the political adventurers who are playing with the problems of the farmers.

The conference call is as follows:

"Denver, Colorado, Jan. 1st, 1924.

"Under and by virtue of the AUTHORITY OF THE FARMER LABOR PARTY OF THE UNTED STATE OF AMERICA. We hereby call a conference of THE FARMER-LABOR PARTY of the Western and Southwestern states, to be held at Denver, Colo., Saturday, Jan. 26th and Sunday, Jan. 27th, and a conference of THE FARMER-LABOR PARTY OF COLORADO, to be held Monday, Jan. 28th, conference to be called to order at 10 A. M.

W. M. PIGGOTT, Nat'l Chairman.
JAY G. BROWN, Nat'l Secretary
BERT MARTIN Nat'l Committeeman.
G. F. STEVENS, State Chairman.
NEIL MAC ARTHUR, State Secty.

"Railroad Tickets to Stock Show may be obtained Jan. 18th to 23rd, where one and one-half rate and southwest of Missouri River return limit Jan. 29th. See your local agent all railroads.

"SEE THE NATIONAL WESTERN LIVE-STOCK SHOW AT DENVER COLO. Jan. 19th to 26th. BIGGER AND BETTER THAN EVER, and at the same time attend the Western and South-western conference of the FARMER-LABOR PARTY. Good accommodations at all hotels. Speakers of national importance will be in attendance at the conference.

"HONORABLE PARLEY PARKER CHRISTENSEN, candidate for president in 1920, will address the conference on Sunday, Jan. 27th, at 2 P. M., on "WHY A THIRD PARTY?"

"HONORABLE ROY M. HARROP, President, National Ford for President Clubs, will address the conference on the Economic question, Sunday, Jan. 27th, at 4:30 P. M.

"All forward thinking people are invited to attend this conference. NO PLACE FOR COMMUNISTS OR RED FLAG WAVERS. THE STARS AND STRIPES ARE GOOD ENOUGH FOR US."

On the communication sent out by the red baiters from Chicago the letter head of the national Farmer-Labor Party appears over that of the Farmer-Labor Party, formerly People's Progressive Party of Colorado.

This outfit does not seem to have any program that would be considered capable of drawing any number of farmers and city workers to a convention. Therefore they must offer a cattle show as an attraction.

Watch Daily Worker For Miners' Convention News

The Daily Worker will be the official organ of the United Mine Workers of America convention in January 1924.

The convention will be one of the most important in the history of the United Workers of America, will be attended by over 2,000 delegates, workers for each district, as there will be many questions of importance as a result of the present instability of the coal mining industry.

FINANCIERS OF 3 NATIONS SEE RUSS SUCCESS

Industrial Revival and Stable Budget

(Special to The Daily Worker)

It is also said on the authority of Copenhagen financial houses that Leonid Krassin, the Soviet government's foreign financial agent, has been quietly buying up the securities of the czar's government held by foreign investors and that something like two-thirds of the total bond issues have been purchased at an infinestimable fraction of their former value. New York bankers do not put the total as high as this but admit that the Soviet government has done a clever stroke of business and that in all probability the acknowledgement of the debts of the old regime now would be a purely formal proceeding involving little if any financial obligation so far as the Soviet government is concerned.

Additional encouragement for the friends of the first workers and farmers republic in the world is contained in the conclusions of cleared and unfriendly observers returned recently from Russia that the tcherwonetz (the new gold backed notes on a par with the English pound) are a success and that the Soviet government will issue before the end of this month another note series.

The new issue will consist of five, three and one gold ruble bills designed to give a more flexible medium of circulation than can be had with the ten ruble tcherwonets. The amount of the new notes to be placed in circulation will be conditioned by the value of the tcherwonets now 260,000,000 gold rubles —and will never exceed in value more than half of the tcherwonets in circulation at any date.

It is believed that the new note issue will be floated without in any way depressing the value of the tcherwonets and the experience of the Soviet government with issues of notes backed by the credit of the national railways furnishes a logical backing for this opinion. These railway notes or certificates have been accepted by the purchasing public at their face value without any adverse effect on the parity of the tcherwonets.

The lack of a stable circulating medium has been and is now one of the chief obstacles in the way of a rapid industrial recovery. With the success of the new note issue that is confidently expected by Russian and foreign experts alike industrial activity will increase at the most rapid pace since the revolution.

It must be remembered that under the strict control of credit and national industry maintained by the Soviet government the success of the new note issue and of the state loans that are contemplated means an immense expansion of the ability of the government to maintain its heavy industry and extend the educational enterprises which it attaches more importance than any government in the world today.

Enjoin Clothing Workers

ST. LOUIS.—Another judge has come to the rescue of an employer in a strike. Circuit Judge Frey here has issued a temporary injunction, with the customary drastic features, against the National Tailors Company. The strike was called in protest against the open shop when the company unreasonably cut assignment of union labels and said the union would no longer be recognized.

CAPITALIST WOLF IN SHEEPS' GARB CRIES FOR PUBLIC

N. Y. Bosses in New Anti-Labor Attack

NEW YORK.—Employers throughout this state have launched a new offensive against New York labor. The Associated Industries—the One Big Union of the bosses—have demanded of Governor Smith that he sanction a Moreland act investigation of the state labor department.

The fawning commercial press loses no time in remarking that this organization of the manufacturers represents an investment of more than $2,000,000,000 and employs 500,000 laborers. The association charges that the labor department is "dominated by politics."

The New York World candidly admits that the requested inquiry "is a crafty move to embarrass Governor Smith on the part of an organization which has fought—for years the welfare program of social legislation."

The remaining papers, almost without exception, find no words of doubt as to the employers' challenge.

The fact is that the labor department, while its record has been generally unfavorable to labor, has shown itself unwilling to knuckle under completely to the employers' dictum. It has contained a liberal minority, mostly adherents of Governor Smith, who have been digressed so far from the path of capitalist virtue as to contemplate a Workman's Compensation act and several other social reforms. These reforms scarcely touch the root causes of social and economic injustice, but they afford slight amelioration of the lot of hundreds of thousands of workers. Obviously, they involve slight inroads into the enormous profits of the Associated Industries' members. Hence the storm of indignation "on behalf of-the public" from a source which has hitherto manifested concern for that "public" only as a sponge from which profits may be wrung.

Machinist Head Flays Mexican Fascisti Chief

The International Association of Machinists has sent a letter thru its secretary to Alfred de la Huerta protesting against his treatment of trade unionists within the territory under his control. The letter also pledges the support of the Machinists organization to the Obregon government.

The International Association of Machinists acted as purchasing agent in the United States for the Obregon government several years ago.

The letter follows

"Adolfo de la Huerta Vera Cruz, Mexico: Press dispatches carry reports of the murder of Felipe Carrillo at Puerto and of labor leaders by you. I have received decree 6,020 from Merida, issued on Dec. 24, penalizing the labor unions. This action on your part and those of your followers justifies more than ever our full support and that of the government of the United States of the Obregon government. It is our purpose to use every influence possible to assist the Mexican government in obtaining arms and ammunition and every legitimate means in our power to prevent shipments of arms and ammunition to your forces from any nation in the world.

(Signed) "C. C Davidson,
"General Secretary and Treasurer of the National Association of Machinists."

POOR EQUIPMENT AND ENGINE MAINTENANCE CAUSE TWO WRECKS

Two persons were injured when two Pullmans of a Michigan Central express from Detroit went off the track on the outskirts of the city here today. The injured are John Leslie, of Jackson, Mich., conductor, and George Walker, train newsboy, from Kalmazoo.

Railroad officials said that a switch flew open after part of the express had passed. The two Pullmans struck the switch, bounced off the tracks and struck cars on the other tracks.

Leslie and Walker were taken to a hospital, suffering from cuts and bruises. Passengers were given a severe shaking.

HOUSTON, Tex.—James Bennett, engineer, was killed and another trainman was injured when the locomotive of Gulf Coast Lines freight train number 21 exploded near Greyburg early today. Six cars left the tracks following the explosion.

The foregoing letter is on exact copy of the one received from the Kentuckian, add is not the fault of the illnotype operator as you might be prompted to think. As the following reply to Mr. Dunn shows, we have published his letter to show our supporters that all miners are not in accord with our views.

1010 Altgeld St.,
Chicago, Ill.
January 9th, 1924.

Dear Sir and Brother:

Yours of December 29th received today and same has been read with much interest. In reply to same I say that I am unable to account for the apparent delay occasioned for your letter to reach me, because the date of same was 19th, going to take the liberty of publishing your letter, in verbatim form, just to show that we are not partial and that we welcome even ridicule. However, I am forced to ask, "If your letter expresses your views on Labor and Unionism, how can you reconcile such views with the action of the Kentucky miners during the 1922 strike? I will send you a copy of your letter in print, which of course, will be accompanied by my article of comment. I remain,

In the fight for Labor's Rights,
Thomas Myerscough.

It will be remembered that while the rest of the miners of the country were on strike in 1922, the Kentucky fields were working steadily, more so than ever before or since, and it is my opinion that then was the time for the secretary of the Cary, Ky., local union to state his views on Unionism and also to make practical application of them. As for the other questions he raises, comment is unnecessary, because I am convinced that the thing he says are "Parrot-typed" learnt from the Capitalist Press, and are only an innocent confession of his total ignorance of the system under which he strives to live. Capitalism thrives on this type of worker, and taking it for granted that he is an American, I cannot see much room for a boasting about a system that failed to give him even an elementery education.

Daily or Weekly?

Our mail is going to undergo a big increase in the hours just ahead. We can feel it coming. But that is what we want and expect.

We want to know from the readers of The Daily Worker whether we shall publish Daily or Weekly instalments of the already world-famous Russian novel, "A Week."

We want our readers to get the greatest possible enjoyment out of the reading of this tremendous piece of literature. Will this be secured thru the appearance of installments daily, or one installment each week in the Magazine Section.

We cannot make up our own mind in this matter. What do you say? Write your views to the Editor, The Daily Worker, 1640 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Illinois. Do it at once. We want to get the decision of the majority of the readers before the publication of this example of the new literature that is a direct result of the overthrow of the Russian Bourgeoisie and Landlords.

Britons Bore From Within

London, Jan. 4.—Charges that the Communists are trying to capture the British Labor party machinery by "boring from within" are made by leaders of the party in a statement issued today.

"The Communists have not a single member of parliament," the statement says, "but they have a number of members in the local labor parties and trades councils. They are working to capture the party machinery and to use it for their own purposes."

Asked by the Communists whether the Anglo-Saxon contempt for labor would prevent the application of their own principles in this country, the statement says: "We have been tried before, we did not bolt and would always fall because of the social-political composition of labor."

CHICAGO FIREMEN REQUEST HELP IN PAY BOOST FIGHT

Work for Forty-Six Cents an Hour

Chicago's fire fighters are working for 46 cents an hour. In all kinds of weather they protect property and guard life for a pittance. When there is a fire and often when there isn't they have no regular hours of labor.

The Firemen's Association is out to get a raise for the fire fighters. At present the fight is taking the form of a petition to the city council for a raise in pay. The petition asks for a raise of $500 a year for all firemen from new men to captains.

The lowest pay received by firemen is $1,540 a year. Most of the city's firemen are in class A and receive $2,000 a year.

The city council has had the request of the firemen for a raise in pay before them for some time. It is understood that the proposed increase is being held up in the council finance committee.

The firemen figure that they work on an average of 4296 hours a year. The class A men who get $2,000 for their work for 46 cents an hour. That is less than the wages of janitors who belong to unions.

The firemen point out that the insurance companies charge them an unusually high rate for life insurance because their work is so dangerous.

They are compelled to buy their own uniforms at a cost of $225 a year.

The petition is being circulated thruout the city and labor unions are asked to get signatures to it. Firemen say that the only way they will be able to get action from the city council on their request for a salary increase is to show that the people of Chicago are behind them in their fight for an increase in pay.

Movie Operators Vote Today on a New Wage Offer

Officials of the Motion Picture Operators' Union branded as lies statements appearing in Chicago papers that members of the union were regularly receiving as much as $112 dollars a week. It is true, they say, that men who work as extras when steadily employed, receive high wages, but they don't work steady.

The motion picture operators will vote this morning on the offer of the exhibitors of a 5% increase in wages. It is expected that the men will vote to accept the offered settlement.

The motion picture operators at one time worked from 12 to 14 hours a day for wages ranging from $16 to $18 a week.

Organizing Taxi Drivers

KANSAS CITY.—Efforts to unionize taxicab drivers are under way here. The principal opposition to organization comes from the Yellow Cab company. Yellow Cabs in St. Louis are union, since the recent victory of the drivers' union there in a two-year fight against efforts to install the open shop. Some of the local firms, however have expressed a willingness to deal with a committee of their drivers if one is formed.

ST. LOUIS.—Union funeral chauffeurs here have negotiated with the employers an increase of $2.50 a week in wages, bringing the local scale to $30 a week. The union asked for a $7.50 raise to $35 a week, but compromised rather than strike. The increase benefits about 200 men.

DONKEY PARTY CAPTURED BY PUG PROMOTER

Tex Rickard Talks Peanuts to Democrats

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Madison Square Garden, New York's meeting place of many a big show and hard faked boxing tournament will be the scene of the greatest political circus since Barnum immortalized the blue elephant when the Democratic donkey will pitch his tent under Tex Rickard's spacious roof tree on June 24th to prepare for his tussle with the Republican elephant.

Rickard's opportunity came this way. Wild bidding was on between Chicago, New York and San Francisco for the privilege of robbing the delegates to the national Democrat convention. The western city knocked down the jackass with a bid of $200,000 and almost had the thing by the ears when Rickard heard of it. "What's this", he exclaimed, "if I pay $500,000 for two prize fighters surely a Democratic convention must be worth at least half that. The way to get this thing is to put up the dough. I will give $55,000 for the peanut concession though it is not worth more than $15,000."

When the Californians heard this they fainted and while the referee was counting nine Tex jumped into the middle of the ring, raised his right hand and declared the donkey was his.

The famous fight promoter is now mentioned in wall informed political circles here as a possible candidate for the presidency as a result of the brilliant strategy used in putting over the convention for New York. The decisiveness with which he hurled his peanut proposition into the scales as the prize was about to go to San Francisco places him at once in the limelight as a rival to Calvin Coolidge as a man of few words, but with deeds. That is what the country wants at present, in the opinion of those close to Rickard.

In the event of Rickard making the White House it is rumored here that his first appointments would include Jack Dempsey and A. Piepe for Secretary of War and Navy respectively. For the Treasury job it is rumored that Leo Kovetz or Ponzi would have a good chance while Rickard is known to hold Mike McTigue of New Jersey in high esteem for his diplomatic ability, and may succeed Charles Evans Hughes as Secretary of State. He has all of Mr. Hughes' qualifications except hirsute adornment.

Trying to Pick Winner.

WASHINGTON. — Representative Upshaw, Georgia dry leader, today endorsed the candidacy of William G. McAdoo for the democratic presidential nomination.

Characterizing McAdoo as an "inspiring leader of poise, purity and proven power," Upshaw said, "I am for McAdoo because I believe he can win."

WASHINGTON.—Senator Robert M. La Follette, progressive leader, announced today he would press for immediate action by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on his resolution directing the I. C. C. to reduce freight rates on farm products to pre-war levels.

ILLINOIS PLUTES MEET, BLOW AT FARMER-LABOR

Favors Private Robbery Scorns Progress

The convention which was called by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association was described as an "industrial" attempt to head up the Farmer-Labor combination in the states, called by Benjamin Marsh, Washington managing director of the Farmers' National Alliance.

The convention went on record against the public ownership of public utilities, including the railroads, mines, factories and farms, the licensing of the powers of the United States supreme court and every other measure that would in the slightest degree clip the claws of the capitalist tiger.

For Ford's Fertilizer

The plute aggregation also went on record for: co-operative farming of market products, the development of Muscle Shoals for fertilizer production as well as for other purposes (perhaps for use in the Republican campaign), a permanent immigration policy designed to limit the number and select only the best quality of immigrants and an American merchant marine.

The convention leader was Mr. John Glenn, secretary o the association. In a set of instructions comprising thirteen conditions the capitalist government in Washington was practically warned to leave the manufacturers alone, except when the latter needed assistance.

Believe in Divine Right

The gist of the convention proceedings was that this country belonged by divine right to the capitalists and that it is sheer effrontery on the part of the workers to claim it in whole or in part.

REACTIONARIES IN FRAME-UP TO GET TOLEDO T. U. E. L.

Secret Letter Sent to Standpatters

TOLEDO, Ohio—Because the militant members of Lodge No. 105 of the International Association of Machinists here had been elected to all but two or three of the offices in the lodge, reactionary local officials with the help of grand lodge officers managed to get a rule passed making members of the Workers Party and the Trade Union Educational League ineligible for office in the lodge.

At the last regular election the militants were elected to many offices including those of Vice-President and Treasurer. All the important committees with one exception were in their hands. At the election all the usual constitutional formalities were complied with, and the right of the successful candidates to office was unquestioned. The newly elected men were installed in office in the usual manner.

The following letter was sent out by the self-styled reliable leaders to the so-called reliable members:

Dear Sir and Brother:

During the holidays while on furlough by the Grand Lodge, Brothers Griffith, Rogge and Gauthier, always being interested in the welfare of Lodge 105, learned that there was an element in Lodge 105 that was attempting to direct the activities of the Lodge in a manner that can, and only will be detrimental to the best interests and welfare of the membership.

This condition has also been called to the attention of International President Johnston, and he suggested that while the three above mentioned Brothers were in the city, that they confer with Business Agent Obright and Secretary Kondrad and others with a view of correcting this condition.

As a consequence such a conference has been held and in order to accomplish the desired results, we are calling together a number of dependable members of 105, of which we consider you one, and one that will be willing to attend a meeting at which time this entire matter will be gone into thoroughly for the purpose of enlisting your assistance in correcting the condition prevailing by working out a policy that will reflect to the benefit of Lodge 105.

This meeting will be held Thursday, January 10th, 1924, 7:30 p. m. at the Labor Temple, corner of Michigan and Jefferson, Hall "A", second floor.

Keep this letter and commit to yourself and bring the letter and envelope with you, as no one will be admitted except those to whom this letter is addressed and it must be presented at the door for admittance.

Do not treat this as an ordinary appeal but please cancel any other engagement you may have and be sure to be present, as sensation thats you are possibly unaware of will be disclosed to you and which is of the utmost importance.

Trusting that you will be sure and consider this absolutely confidential and will give us the pleasure of your attendance and cooperation, we are,

Sincerely yours,
F. W. Griffith, V. S. Gauthier,
Wm. F. Rogge, H. G. Obright,
and A. F. Kondrad.

At the regular meeting of the lodge on the following evening an unusually large number of members attended, which suggested that the meeting was being packed.

A resolution was introduced stating that inasmuch as the Workers Party and the Trade Union Educational League advocated the violent overthrow of the government and sought to use the trade union movement to further their purposes, that therefore members of those organizations be declared ineligible to office in that lodge and that offices now held by them should be declared vacant and a new election held. The resolution was very drastic in some of its constitutional provisions and only permitted the militants to pay dues.

The whole prosecution was directed by three grand lodge officers who were on vacations, assisted by H. G. Obright and A. F. Kondrad of the local lodge.

A motion to postpone action on the resolution for a week in order to notify all members of the proposed action was defeated. After considerable discussion by spokesmen for the reactionaries the debate was cut off before the militants had a chance to talk. The resolution carried by a vote of 48 to 38.

After the vote the membership was assured that the militants would not be permitted to get control of the A. F. of L.

The militant members of Lodge No. 105 are not discouraged but will try to get the resolution repealed at a meeting of the lodge where all the members can attend and take part in the discussion without the help of the reactionary grand lodge officials.

Wall Street Grabs Democratic Meet First Time Since 1868; Big Biz Will Write Platform

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After a stormy session, lasting many hours, the Democratic National Committee picked New York City as the place to hold the next party national convention.

The session was marked by confusion. The proponents of San Francisco, St. Louis and Chicago offering thousands of dollars to the National Committee to draw the convention away from New York. New York finally won out, one of the powerful factors being the offer of more than $250,000. An agreement between the Brennan forces and the Ku Klux following group is said to be back of this.

Big Parties Dodge the Issue

Observers here are of the opinion that the big financial supporters of the republican and democratic parties are responsible for holding the two conventions in large Eastern industrial centers. The bankers and brokers were unwilling to have their parties meet in or near the discontented agricultural sections of the West. They insisted, that unless the parties would hold their conventions in "safe and sane" territory and away from the baneful atmosphere of the insurgents and radicals of the Western States they would withhold support from the campaigns.

The Republicans moved to Cleveland. The Democrats whose national treasury is practically empty because of the recent lean years it has had in politics succumbed, even more easily and moved right into the very shadows of Wall Street.

First in 56 Years

This is the first Democratic convention to be held in New York City in the last 56 years. The last time that the Democrats met in New York was in 1868 when Seymour Horatio was nominated against General Ulysses S. Grant on the republican ticket. Then, as now, the Democrats had made inroads on the Republicans in the elections prior to the national campaign in the big Eastern States. The convention was than moved into New York City as it was done today in order to help consolidate these gains. The democratic leaders are confident of 1924 being what they call an "in" year for their machine. Men prominent in the ruling circles of the Democratic Party feel that if they can win or make serious progress in such big Eastern States as New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts they will win the elections in a walkover. They point out that the wind is blowing all their way.

In the 67th Congress there were 160 Republicans against 16 Democrats, but in the present Congress the Democrats have succeeded in narrowing the margin down to a ratio of 116—61. The "Solid South" is of course safer than ever for the Democrats; the West is in revolt against the Republican standpatters; in the East there is a growing vith in the field of the Democratic radicals. Hence the Democratic Best Minds feel that the holding of their convention in New York City will help them tremendously from the financial and organizational point of view.

McAdoo Forces Not Worried

The McAdoo forces are not worried. They point out that in the various ballots cast for the convention city, San Francisco and St. Louis are selling a total of 46 votes against New York's highest vote of 97. They recognize that the Smith forces will be more influential in New York than they would have been in some Western city.

But they feel that there is not even the slightest chance of Smith carrying off the nomination in view of the increasing opposition that he would face from the Solid South. No one can get the Democratic nomination with such an opposition in the field, they say.

At worst the McAdoo supporters feel that this only means that Smith and Tammany will have to be paid a bigger price for their support than they would have received if the convention were held in a Western city.

But the swelled financial support that will accrue from holding the convention in the environs of Lower Broadway more than makes up the difference in price.

Progressives Disappointed

In progressive circles the choice of New York has brought pronounced disappointment. After the Republican reactionaries picked Cleveland as the convention city, these near-progressives looked to the Democratic Party to come in the more liberal atmosphere of the West. The Democrats' moving into Wall Street has blasted the last hopes of many of these so-called progressives for relief from the dominant parties.

The concensus of opinion among the majority of progressive democrats is that no matter who is chosen to be the Democratic standard bearer the holding of the convention in New York City settles for good the Big Business character of the platform that will be adopted, and makes impotent whatever influence liberal forces might have hoped to wield if the national gathering were held in a Western city.

CHICAGO JOURNAL OF COMMERCE IS PEEVED BY 'DAILY'

Big Biz Sheet Urges Capitalists Subscribe

Interest in the DAILY WORKER is not limited to workers and rebels. The writers for the big business are watching it. These fellows are employed to watch out for the interests of their bosses. They are usually more intelligent than the business men for whom they write. They know a significant development when they see one.

Here is what the Chicago Journal of Commerce, the paper that advertises it contains all the news a busy business man has time to read, has to say about the DAILY WORKER:

A Communist Daily Newspaper.

The Workers' Party of America, a communist organization, has begun publication of a national newspaper, to be issued every day except Sunday. The place of publication is 1640 North Halsted street. The name of the paper is the Daily Worker. It sells for three cents on newsstands, $10 a year, in Chicago, and for five cents on newsstands, $6 a year, elsewhere.

"The Daily Worker contains general news and editorial articles," explains C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers' Party. "It is to be financed by a fund of $100,000, of which $92,000 already has been raised by subscriptions from communists. The paper advocates communism, and declares the function of government should be taken over by the workers and farmers. The paper does not advocate force. We favor substitution of industrial unionism for craft unionism; that is, the sixteen railroad unions should form one union, just as the miners form one union."

We pass this explanation along for the information of our readers. Establishment of a Communist daily newspaper is a distinct important advance to business men. Some of them may deem it of sufficient importance to warrant subscription to the new publication so as to note what sort of plausible exhortation is being used to arouse unrest in American industry.

WHITEWASH FALL BY APPOINTMENT TO MEXICAN POST

Hope Scandal Dies During Absence

WASHINGTON, D. C.—If the efforts of the secret service operatives of Interior Albert B. Fall, together with the Sinclair publicity bureau, are successful, Fall will leave the most influential members of the administration of President Coolidge, while secretary of the Department of the Interior, in charge of government oil lands in the Sinclair interests.

Now it is proposed to make Fall Ambassador to Mexico and thus stamp him with the official approval of President Coolidge.

If the full story of the Sinclair oil leases becomes known it will have a serious effect on the 1924 presidential campaign. By sending Fall to Mexico, it is thought that the story can be suppressed and the consequences dodged.

Members of Congress who are among the most influential members of the "administration group" will be involved if the whole story comes out.

The whole matter has created such disturbance in political circles here and threatens to cause much more.

Canadian Toilers Greet The Daily

The workers of Carmelo look with envy upon the workers of the United States who are now the proud owners of the first English-language Communist Daily.

The following telegram was received from a group of workers in Winnipeg:

"At a concert arranged for the benefit of The Canadian Worker, we members and friends of Jewish Branch of the Workers Party, and Young Communist League of Canada, send you hearty greetings and wish you all success. Your paper is going to be the greatest thing in the labor movement of North America. It will be the greatest leader of the labor movement. We call upon the workers of Canada to follow the example of the workers of the United States and establish a Daily that will be a worthy companion to the DAILY WORKER.—C. Laiman, secretary."

A Black Spot on America

The American Civil Liberties Union has compiled a list of the victims of the class war now in state prisons. It is dated in December, 1923. The list is a living indictment against the whole American working-class. No one is free until all these are freed. The list follows:

1. CALIFORNIA—Number in prison 97
   All members of the I. W. W., convicted under the criminal syndicalist law for membership in the organization or for carrying on its activities. In addition, there are 38 men indicted and held for trial.
2. WASHINGTON—Number in prison 8
   All are criminal syndicalist prisoners, members of the I. W. W., serving sentences of 1 to 10 years.
3. IDAHO—Number in prison 4
   All members of the I. W. W., serving under the criminal syndicalist law; sentences of 1 to 10 years; earliest conviction in 1917. Fourteen more men recently indicted.
4. PENNSYLVANIA—Number in prison 4
   All four of these men are serving sentences under the state anti-sedition act passed in 1919. Sentences range from 2 to 17 years. Earliest case 1919.
5. OKLAHOMA—Number in prison 2
   Members of the I. W. W., convicted under the criminal syndicalist law, serving 1 to 10 years.
6. KANSAS—Number in prison 1
   Member of the I. W. W., serving under the criminal syndicalist law, sentence of 1 to 14 years.
7. ILLINOIS—Number in prison 1
   Louis Katterfeld, convicted under the state anti-sedition law with William Bross Lloyd and others; Communist, sentence of 1 to 5 years, dating from September 1923; was not pardoned with others because he was in Russia when appeal was affirmed.

TOTAL political prisoners in state prisons serving sentences solely for expressions of opinion or membership in radical organizations 114

In addition to the persons actually in prison, there are others convicted and out on bail whose cases are on appeal in the higher courts. These are (1) Benjamin Gitlow, convicted at New York City, in February 1920, under the criminal anarchy law, appealed to the United States Supreme Court; (2) Charlotte Anita Whitney, convicted under the criminal syndicalist law at Oakland, Cal., March, 1920, appealed to the United States Supreme Court; (3) Ernst Schlaffer, convicted at New Haven, Conn., on November 15, 1923, for a speech "inciting to riot," appealed to the Superior Court.

PARTY ADDRESSES RUSS MEMBERS ON BIG PROBLEMS

Demands "Daily" Deal with Problems Here

The convention of the Russian Section of the C. P. of America, Party opened with the reading of a letter from the party's secretary, C. E. Ruthenberg, to the members of the convention and members of the federation.

The letter outlines the relation of the various federations to the Party as well, that we are reprinting it for the benefit of the whole party membership. It follows:

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 12, 1924.

To the Convention and members of the Russian section of the Workers Party of America.

Dear Comrades:

In the name of the Central Executive Committee of the Party, I extend greetings to the Convention and express the hope that the result of your work will be the upbuilding of your section of our Party and thus bring the strengthening of the revolutionary movement in this country.

As has been shown by the reports made at the Third National Convention of our Party, and is indicated in the letter of greetings to that Convention from the Communist International, our Party has made great progress during the past year, having become in this period a real force in the life of the American working class. We expect that the work of the present year will result in strengthening our Party even to a greater degree and that the work of this Convention will help to gain this result.

There are several issues which are to come before your Convention, upon which the Central Executive Committee desires to express to you its viewpoint and in several instances the viewpoint of the Communist International.

Oppose Mass Immigration

There has been raised in the discussion preceding the Convention the question of the immigration policy of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. The rules which have been laid down by the Soviet Government and which have been endorsed by the Communist International are that Soviet Russia today does not desire mass immigration from other countries but that it does desire the immigration of specially trained workers who are organized to assist in the economic reconstruction of the Soviet Republic. Soviet Russia today has plenty of workers to perform the labor necessary to the economic life of the country. A great influx of immigrants from other countries would not assist Soviet Russia in this work but would result in making the problem more difficult. It is for this reason that the Soviet Government has adopted the policy outlined above and the Communist International has endorsed this policy.

The Second National Convention of our Party adopted the same policy as far as the immigration from the United States is concerned. We feel certain that the workers of the Russian section of our Party will agree that a policy which the Soviet Government considers will strengthen it and assist it in building up the industries of the country is a policy which the members of the Russian Federation must endorse. If this policy involves any self-sacrifice on the part of these Russians in this country who would like to return to their native country now that it has the first Workers' and Peasants' Government in the world, we are sure that these Russian workers will be ready to sacrifice their desire to return in order not to complicate and make more difficult the problems of this Government which is still struggling against great difficulties to build up the economic life of Russia on a new foundation.

The Central Executive Committee therefore expects that the Convention of the Russian section will endorse the policy laid down by the Second Convention of our Party.

Abolish Anti-Semitic Agitation

It has also been brought to the attention of the Central Executive Committee that in a Communist organization such as the Russian Section is, there has arisen the question of race and anti-Semitic agitation has been conducted by some comrades. We cannot conceive of any Communists holding such views. They are entirely unworthy of men and women who desire to call themselves by the name "Communist". We trust that this Convention will adopt a resolution severely condemning those members who dare to raise such questions in administrative organs of the Party and forever end the possibility of such a question again arising in the Russian section.

The Central Executive Committee being the year was compelled to take action and give instructions in regard to the editorial policy of the "Novy Mir" and wishes to make these instructions to the Convention.

It seems there have arisen among some comrades the viewpoint that the "Novy Mir" should devote itself exclusively to the Russian questions and the Russian colony in this country, and merely incidentally discuss matters of the industrial and political life of the workers here. This is a viewpoint which the Central Executive Committee cannot tolerate as an official organ of the Party. The workers of the Russian section must participate in all the struggles of the workers of this country. In order that they may be drawn into these struggles, the "Novy Mir" must from day to day interpret facts of the life of the workers here and in place of devoting itself preponderately to the Russian colony and Russian questions, its pages must be given up, to a large degree, to the questions of American political life and the struggles of the workers here.

It is only if the "Novy Mir" follows such a policy and the members of the Russian section carry on their work in harmony with this policy, that they will prove themselves real Communists who see the struggle of the working class as an international movement and not merely as a struggle of their particular national group.

Repudiate Nationalistic Spirit

It is because the Russian Communist Party sees the struggle of the workers from an international viewpoint and knows that the movement in Russia can not permanently succeed unless the struggle is extended in victories won in other countries that we have a Communist International. For the Russian section to adopt the narrow nationalistic viewpoint expressed by a group of comrades who proposed that the "Novy Mir" should become a purely Russian paper, is to repudiate the fundamental principles of the Communist International.

We request that this Convention express itself in no uncertain terms on this question and definitely lay down that the "Novy Mir" shall be it is first the fighting organ of the American workers who are participating in the class struggle and the fight for a Soviet government in this country, and that in addition thereto, in a secondary place, it shall give its columns to the purely Russian affair and questions.

Looking forward to the success of the work of your Convention, which we hope will be conducted in the spirit of this letter, I am

Fraternally yours,
C. E. RUTHENBERG,
Executive Secretary.

COMMUNISTS GAIN IN SAXONY ELECTIONS AS YELLOW SOCIALISTS LOSE

DRESDEN, Germany.—The Socialists suffered a crushing defeat in the elections held here Sunday. The workers were disgusted with the part played by the Socialists during the recent clash with the Berlin government which resulted in the Workers' Government of Saxony being suppressed. The workers, however, expressed their anger blindly, returning a bourgeois majority to the Communists made a considerable gain and won over a large part of the Socialist following. The Social-Democratic party of Germany is rapidly losing its influence among the German workers.

RUSSIA BUYS COTTON

A delegation of the All-Russian Textile Syndicate, with headquarters in New York, has arrived in Houston, Texas, for the purpose of placing a large order for American cotton to be shipped to Russia. Comrade Victor Nogin, who recently arrived from Russia, heads the delegation.

From Houston the delegation will leave for Galveston, Texas.

The first shipment of cotton will be forwarded on the S. S. Murmansk which is leaving Russia shortly. This begins a new era in the export of cotton from America to Russia.

THE PARTY AT WORK

Russians Hold Annual Convention

By ABRAM YAKIRA

Representatives of 65 branches of the Russian Federation of the Party, with a membership of 1,131, met in Chicago for two days, Jan. 12-13, to consider important questions concerning the party.

Several issues during the last several months have been the cause of controversy with the National Bureau Federation. The question of the Editorial policy to be followed by the "Novi Mir," the Russian Daily, was the main point of dispute. The Central Executive Committee of the Party upheld the majority of the Federation Bureau's special letter addressed to the Convention. The letter which is to be found elsewhere in this paper was heartily approved by the convention, as was the general report made by the representative of the Central Executive Committee.

The Convention gave special consideration to the question of the "Novi Mir" and The Daily Worker. It was decided to continue the Drive for ten thousand new subscribers to the "Novi Mir" and to raise a fund of 5000 dollars. The District Organizers of the Federation are to be held responsible for the success of the campaign for new subscribers. The Convention adopted a resolution in support of the Daily Worker. The

Gold Diggers

While in no sense a sociological drama, "The Gold Diggers," (Thos. H. Ince, First National), contains much that is worth while for working class audiences and nothing to really kick at. It is a typical American film in the better sense of the word. Miraculous attention to detail marks the direction, and the comedy is kept on a high plane by the constant introduction of contrasting pathos. The acting is uniformly good and a really rare height is reached by the heroine as she looks the near-villian with champagne while dumping her own into an inanimate receptacle; the instantaneous, sly, subtle changes of expression from the pretended half-senseless inebriate to the crafty schemer are a delight to those fed up on the usual fare of movie stupidity.

The moral of the picture would seem to be that the gold-digging chorus girls are angels (and wizards) in comparison to the dizzy fellows who chase them. The playwrights and scenarists have taken a topic that in the hands of French dramatists might have been a decidedly risque farce, and made it into almost Sunday School entertainment. The more seamy side of the chorus life is not touched but the grim economic urge upon the "gold digger" is revealed by deft little touches. Thus a soap-peddler invades a girls' party, and she is turned down flat by practically every girl present who considers a gross. "Girls, do you know who that was? That's Cissie Gray, ten thirty years ago she was the queen of the town. When she got old, she lost her friends. I mean—her gentlemen friends."

So the specter of old age throws a black shadow over the erstwhile jolly group. Each looks at the other with the unvoiced question. "Good God, am I getting old?" One admits her fear and announces that hereafter she will grab a man, "any man, just so long as he has pants—and an income." And the justification of the "gold digger's" is voiced in the agreement: "Dig, girls, dig; while the digging is good."

The plot is simple. Nice boy with the price of first box every night in his jeans, loves nice chorus girl. Rich, crabby, not-too-bold, man-of-the-world uncle confounds purse strings and refuses consent. Mistakes sister of nephew's fiance for the guilty party, she decides to handle him so rawly that uncle will consent to nephew marrying anybody at all except this hussy, whom sister Sister Violet. Does it work? You don't know until the last quarter of the last reel and here is a real story, and real acting, and real directing every minute of the time.

Italian Consul Probes Klan Rule in Herrin County

The Italian Consulate in Chicago has not yet received reports from its investigators in Williamson County where many Italian subjects were beaten, arrested, and otherwise molested by members of the Ku Klux Klan under the direction of Glen Young, alleged member of the prohibition squad of the United States Government.

As soon as the reports have been received and gone over at the Consulate it is expected that they will be forwarded to the Italian Ambassador at Washington and he will take the matter up with the State Department.

The treatment of Italians in Williamson county may result in a situation similar to that which followed the lynching of an Italian subject in New Orleans. Following the lynching the Italian Ambassador made a protest to the State Department and was later recalled by his government when the explanation offered by the United States was not considered satisfactory.

"Young Comrade" Out

The Karl Liebknecht number of the "Young Comrade," official organ of the Junior section, Young Workers League, is out. It contains articles by Karl Liebknecht, Clara Zetkin, Comrade Wm. Weinstone, and the editor. The United Front campaign is also discussed in this issue. Comrade Ruthenberg's article on "Organization and Agitation" is also published in this issue.

GARLAND FUND GIVES $216,000 IN FIRST YEAR

Aided Daily Papers of Farmers and Workers

NEW YORK.—The trustees of the Garland Fund, incorporated in 1922 in the name of The American Fund for Public Service, has disbursed, in the first year of its existence, $216,000 divided into $127,000 of loans and $79,000 of gifts to various enterprises connected with the labor movement.

The principal, consisting of $601,645, the estate of the father of Charles Garland of South Carver, Mass., has been reduced by the gifts in the sum of $42,377. The largest sums loaned were received by daily farmers' or labor papers. The next largest amount was loaned to District No. 2, of the United Mine Workers of America, as strike relief. -

It was the general impression at the time that the American Fund for Public Service was incorporated that the entire amount of the bequest was to be disbursed within a year. The statement, of the trustees, detailing the expenditures for the past year is evidence, however, that the principal is being carefully conserved and the interest cautiously expended.

Only 57 applicants were deemed worthy of assistance out of 200 bona fide applications, the annual statement admits having received.

The Local Struggle in Chicago

Intensive concentration on Party campaigns has served as a powerful factor in developing the militancy which has helped in strengthening the Party activities in Chicago and the Workers' Party in Chicago has been able to gradually build up a power which has inspired the militants and thrown fear into the hearts of the reactionaries. Altho there is much to be desired, a comparison of our units today with those of a year ago, show the rapid progress made. The reactionary trade union leaders were not slow in taking cognizance of our development, and in many cases they levelled most terrific attack upon our members.

Those attacks have lost their punch. The rank and file workers no more will be intimidated or stirred into frenzy by them. The workers are beginning to recognize that the Communists constitute the only force within the labor movement with a concrete program for the solution of the difficulties of the workers.

In this manner the movement for amalgamation of existing craft unions, which assumed its first definite crystallization here, served not only to strengthen the ranks of the militants in Chicago, but made a grand campaign on a national scale possible.

Some of our local campaigns, which brought good results, are: our campaign for participation in Party 3-5 industrial activities during the month of May of last year. This resulted in greatly strengthening the local Trade Union Educational League and created a basis for the establishment of definite industrial groups composed of the militants with such control whose object is not only to further the campaign for amalgamation but to infuse the unions of their locality with a better fighting spirit. The T. U. E. L. activities in Chicago are now embracing a large number of militant unionists.

Our United Front campaign assumed large proportions particularly during the period prior to the July 3-5 conference. It took definite hold within many labor unions. At the local conference called by the Cook County Farmer-Labor Party to which all trade unions were invited to send delegates in the early part of June, many militants definitely voiced their sentiments in favor of a united front Labor Party. To the July 3-5 conferences not less than 55 Party members were elected delegates from their respective local unions, including an approximate membership of about 40,000. Altho the reactionary leaders, following immediately upon this conference, became particularly aggressive in their attacks upon us, our Party has been able to not only hold its own, but considerably strengthen its ranks.

Our members, during this United Front campaign, distributed a large amount of labor party literature, more than 50,000 leaflets and 500 pamphlets were disposed of within the district.

In many unions the issues of the United Front and the need of independent political action by the workers, were debated with such success that the United Front Committees were elected in the following unions: [illegible]

To "The Daily Worker".

Dear Comrades: I have followed all the time the campaign for the first Communist Daily in the English language. I have seen the response of the workers of various nationalities, and especially of the Lithuanian workers, which helped to hasten the appearance of that paper. I am sure that the paper begun by you will live and bear fruit. I wish that the workers of all nationalities of America will be for upon The Daily Worker as their organ around which they will solidify their ranks.

With proletarian greetings,

Z. ANGARIETIS.

MC ANDREW IS RAPPED HARD BY N.Y. ASSOCIATES

Renegade Liberal, Says Teachers' Union Head

Communications received by Chicago union teachers from members of the New York Teachers Federation state that William McAndrew, new superintendent of the local schools, is regarded by the union teachers of New York as a "renegade liberal."

Henry Linville, president of the New York organization, characterizes McAndrew as a "fair weather superintendent" who would support all conventional standards and frown on anything new in the teaching profession.

"Altho he is falsely credited with having fought politics in the school system," continued Linville, "the fact is, he always tagged along with the 'safe' majority. He is clever and knows the routine of school administration, but he is intellectually dishonest and lacks completely the courage of his convictions."

"Trickiness," is the word Linville employes to designate McAndrew's administrative methods. "While McAndrew was still at the head of the Washington Irving school in this city," said Linville, "he wanted to prove to an investigating committee that his school was overcrowded. And so when the committee arrived, McAndrew surreptitiously put two classes into each room visited. The committee, of course, left with a 'doctored' picture of congestion at the school.

"He is known as one of the early promoters of the Gary system, and we have good reason to believe that he has been summoned to Chicago to install the Detroit platoon system there, a twin sister of the Gary system until it was ousted from New York's schools."

OUR BOOK REVIEWS

An Informative Pamphlet.

Recent Developments in the American Labor Movement. By Harry W. Laidler. Published by the League for Industrial Democracy.

This pamphlet is a short review of recent tendencies in the labor movement, dealing with the rising sentiment for a labor party, the Plumb Plan, cooperation and labor banking, workers' education, labor journalism, research and health and a special chapter on amalgamation.

The author has been careful to avoid controversial matters, so it is not possible to pick a quarrel with his position. He affirms no position. To those thousands of trade unionists who are unfamiliar with modern tendencies in the labor movement this pamphlet is valuable and contains sufficient information to arouse a desire to know more about the movement. For this purpose there are extensive bibliographies at the end of each chapter.

The Federated Press is releasing the pamphlet for serial publication and undoubtedly many labor papers will reproduce it for the benefit of their readers.

Amalgamation means strength!

JOHN SNIDER TO SPEAK FOR GERMAN RELIEF!

WITH THE YOUNG WORKERS

CONDUCTED BY THE YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE

Support Demand for Cash Bonus

JOHN WILLIAMSON

The attitude taken by ex-service men in a Chicago meeting to protest the action of Congress in sidetracking the bonus is one of interest not only to ex-service men of the last war but to the young workers of today who will be the service men of the next war.

The names of Mellon and Coolidge were received with hisses and laughter. Resolutions and replies by the President were read amidst yells of derision. The attitude of the ex-service men who overpacked the hall was militant one. They were principally young workers who had been fooled by the hysterical cry of "Saving to World for Democracy" and ever since returning have been gradually realizing that they suffered and bled to "Save the World for Dollaracracy" instead.

The outburst in Chicago is the climax of many long months of waiting and promises by every politician who entered office. During all this time the Young Workers League has pointed out to the ex-service men that the politicians whether they be Republican or Democrat, are only the lickspittles of big capital. These swine made billions upon billions of dollars' profit during the war and should be made to pay a cash bonus out of their profits. The demand for a cash bonus should not stop at mass meeting. Four and five years ago we were told "nothing is too good for the service men." It was they who gave their lives, they who wallowed in the carnage of human flesh while the big capitalists of America were making billions exploiting the workers at home. The Young Workers League commends the action of these ex-service brothers and pledges their full support to fight for a cash bonus from the profits of these bosses represented by Mellon. The fight must be continued. If mass meetings cannot bring the results desired, other measures must be used. The fight must be won. With the support of the class conscious young workers the fight will be won.

However, one thing is obvious. Such men as Overlay, McNider, Berry or Quinn do not stand for the interests of the ex-service men. The belligerent attitude of the masses of ex-service men has forced these lickspittles to make a pretence at fighting for the interests of the rank and file. Not one of them, however, has taken any decisive attitude on his own initiative.

These men still proclaim the fake phrase that "we are all free and equal" and similar rot. The masses are now known in Washington circles as the vestal virgin of National politics.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania served as the silk glove to cover the ugly hand of Coolidge that maneuvered, manipulated, and gerrymandered the apportionment of delegates to the coming Republican convention in such a way as to increase the size of the Southern delegation who are known as hip-pocket votes for the Administration.

While the Progressives were bickering and talking, and hoping, Coolidge was driving his lieutenants to action. His appointment of E. B. Slemp, a notorious political Shylock from Virginia, was in itself a challenge to all lovers of pure politics and all honest-to-goodness progressives. Then our President set about to have the suave and slick Slemp do some more housecleaning. There are lots of Post offices to be distributed in a few months. Slemp is an expert in wholesale distribution of post offices. Support is now coming into the Blue Room of the White House from many unexpected sources.

While Lodge and Smoot were wavering as to a tax and bonus policy, Coolidge laid down the law and laid it down with a bang. "Silent Cal" didn't do much talking. He had Mellon introduce a tax program worked out to the minutest detail, a programme which of course played into the hands of Big Business, where Coolidge gets his inspiration and strength. The significance of the Mellon programme lies primarily in the fact that for the first time in the history of American politics, a revenue measure was drawn by a Cabinet member of Congress for adoption. Other Presidents have attempted to do that indirectly only. They have attempted to groom and prepare their spokesmen in the Senate and House to put over a specific revenue measure; but no one has ever before attempted to work out a complete plan for Congress to enact. Such centralized political power has never before been assumed by a President. Congress has jealously guarded its right to tax and to devise ways and means of raising revenue.

College Students Like Their Booze; Prof. Tells Drys

WASHINGTON—Drinking among college students has greatly increased since constitutional prohibition, Dr. Samuel Plantz, president of Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis., told the Anti-Saloon League today at its 30th annual convention here.

He said a large percentage of American college students favor "some modification in the prohibition law."

LODGE INJECTS NEGRO ISSUE IN RUSSIAN DEBATE

Don't Like Reception Given Claude McKay

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It has remained for the Republican Party to interject the question of Russian recognition by the United States.

In his arrest against the Soviet Government of Russia as practically identical with the Communist International, declaring its object is to overthrow all capitalist and oppressive regimes, Senator Lodge read to the Senate a letter written by Trotsky to an American Communist, Claude McKay, the poet, which was published in the Moscow Isvestia Feb. 18, 1923.

The letter was in answer to an inquiry by Mr. McKay as to Russia's attitude toward the world struggle of the Negro for true emancipation. The portion quoted by Senator Lodge is as follows:

"The training of black agitators is the most important revolutionary problem of the moment. . . . I am at a loss to say what are the most expedient organization forms for the movement among American Negroes, because I am not familiar with the concrete conditions and possibilities; but the organization form will be found as soon as sufficient will for action is displayed."

Senator Lodge also referred to the enthusiastic reception given by the Fourth Congress of the Third International to Claude McKay and another Negro from America, whose identity is shrouded in mystery," and to the message of sympathy and encouragement sent by that Congress to the Negro people of America and broadcasted last March thru the Crusader Service.

Beating the Courts of Michigan

Do you remember how we waited for the verdict in the Foster case, Comrades? Do you remember the thrill that we experienced when we learned that Foster had won out for the time being? We got a great "kick" out of the verdict. The state of Michigan, which contains the billion dollar corporation of Ford, assisted by Mr. Burns' "Department of Justice," brought all its big guns into the battle array, and the battle began. Against the State of Michigan and its allies there were just YOU comrades. And YOU won.

That is the "kick" in it all; that the party is able to command such support that it can turn aside the bombarding of the big guns of the capitalist class. They arrest comrades and place a prohibitive bond upon them. At least, they think it is prohibitive. Of course, they fail to understand that while Mashaver could not many the mountain YOU could deliver the goods when called upon. They thought the Michigan Raid would stampede the movement. And now to make their joke more silly, out comes the DAILY WORKER. The party grows and its influence widens with each attack. It is YOU, comrades, who make it possible.

Gompers succeeded in expelling the "lone" Communist delegate at the Portland Convention of the A. F. of L. Can the State of Michigan succeed in imprisoning its present "lone" Communist victim? We know that as far as financial and moral support counts, it cannot. We know that the coupons that we have circulated will sold xxy yet. We know it is because you have not had them brought to your attention. Write to the Labor Defense Council, 166 W Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

COMMUNIST CHILDREN'S COLUMN

(Note: The following is the first of a series of short articles which will give our readers an idea of the principles upon which the Junior Section (Children's organization) of the Young Workers League is founded.)

AIM AND PURPOSE OF THE JUNIOR SECTION

Article No. 1

The Junior Section of the Young Workers League is neither a Workers Party kindergarten nor a conglomeration of children's homes and Sunday Schools. It is the live organizations of the children of the workers, organizations that counteract the poison of capitalist "education" in the Public Schools.

The first essential in the work of our groups is the confidence of the children in the leaders. Without this the work would be hindered by the egotism and stubbornness which have been found in the children by the Public Schools. We educate the children to act collectively, perform responsible work to use their independent initiative—all subordinated to the common welfare—and teach them solidarity.

Therefore, our whole system of communist education is based upon the development in the children of a new and full sense of the community as a whole upon the arousing of that courage, real devotion, and genuine feeling of responsibility that once existed in the primitive communist tribes and without which no revolutionary mass organization can be established.

How do we arouse and develop this spirit of simultaneous independent initiative and communist solidarity? Not by words and not by precepts; not even by good examples, altho it is true of course, that all our work is full of this spirit. We develop a form of organization which is governed by neither individual egotism nor by the herd spirit; one that stimulates the highest form of activity and solidarity. This organization is the free, the only administered, and self legislative childrens group of the Junior Section.

The leader (teacher) of our groups is careful to avoid all demonstrations of guardianship. He does not suppress the childish wills and actions even when they contradict each other, in different individuals. It is his task to combine their contradictions into a conscious common will and aim.

It has been and is the great value of many labor organizations and especially is this true of the American Federation of Labor, that they educate their members to depend upon the leaders.

The Stalemate in Congress - - - - - - - -

By JAY LOVESTONE

In the history of American politics there has been many a do-nothing Congress. Most often the personnel of our congresses consists of that brand of congressional timber that is commonly called mawash ... representatives, might as well stay home Congressmen.

The present eighth congress is not immune from this inherent failure of our national legislative bodies. It ranks in the political ladder, several rungs above the average Congress that the country is blessed with every other year. This congress was born to be a do-nothing Congress simply because of the delicate balance between the various contending groups included in its personnel. The delicate balance of strength among the insurgents, stand-patters regulars, safe-and-sure-fellows, ordinary Democrats, independent Democrats farm-bloc's, et ad infinitum is a reflex of the economic and political conditions prevailing in our country today. The chaos and confusion arising in the ranks of the dominant parties have brought on divisions growing ever sharper, though still too vague at the present moment to express itself in the immediate organization of a new political party consisting of the so-called liberal element and totally independent of both old parties.

Reactionaries Firmly in Saddle.

Several weeks before Congress opened, the country was flooded with propaganda about the terrible crimes to be perpetrated by the still-more-terrible "progressive" senators and congressmen. Nothing has happened. Congress hasn't attempted to do anything. Neither the Senate nor the House has completed anything since it has convened. As a matter of fact, the whips and leaders of the Republican clique are not anxious to do anything at all. What they would like to see happen is this: Pass a big Pork Bill—a so-called generous appropriation bill; compromise on Mellon's taxation scheme. Then they would like to see the congressional curtain fall and the whole farce end. The Republican leaders are practical politicians. They would like to adjourn and go home as soon as possible to repair their political fences which need immediate and lots of repairing, if their machine is to be saved from ruin.

The reactionaries are not shaking in their shoes; they have more than held their own against the progressives. The key committees of the Senate and the House are controlled by them as securely as ever. They have done no buck-jumping despite the occasional attempts at fierce fireworks on the part of the handful of insurgents. The election of the Democrat Smith to the chairmanship of the Inter-State Commerce Committee, in the Senate, is the nearest the Administration machine has come to a defeat. Yet, in reality, not even this is a defeat because the decisive majority of this committee remains in the hands of the dyed-in-the-wool reactionaries.

Coolidge, The Big Boss.

When Congress was called to order, most observers in Washington as well as their followers the country over, were given to believe that "Silent Cal" would be a humble servant before the Best Minds of the Republican coterie of political pawnbrokers. Coolidge has surprised everybody. He has cleaned up the field of all possible dangerous, "irregular," opponents to his nomination at the next Party convention.

When such experienced political hounds as Lodge and Smoot whined and shrank away from battle, Coolidge resorted to the closed-fist policy, laid down the law to his henchtenants, made them do his bidding and cause them do it without delay and without question. The reactionaries are now on the offensive, in Congress as well as in the various states for two reasons. First of all, Coolidge was a good enough politician not to relinquish the offensive to his opponents, the insurgents. Secondly, the insurgents reared backwards, played dead, and didn't display the faintest sign of courage to give real battle to the conservatives.

Coolidge is a very good political driver. In political driving, like in all other driving, its not good policy to crack the whip all the time. "Silent Cal" played this game very well. The most sorry and supplant tool in his hands has been Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, who is now known in Washington circles as the vestal virgin of National politics.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania served as the silk glove to cover the ugly hand of Coolidge that manuvered, manipulated, and gerrymandered the apportionment of delegates to the coming Republican convention in such a way as to increase the size of the Southern delegation who are known as hip-pocket votes for the Administration.

While the Progressives were bickering and talking, and hoping, Coolidge was driving his lieutenants to action. His appointment of E. B. Slemp, a notorious political Shylock from Virginia, was in itself a challenge to all lovers of pure politics and all honest-to-goodness progressives. Then our President set about to have the suave and slick Slemp do some more housecleaning. There are lots of Post offices to be distributed in a few months. Slemp is an expert in wholesale distribution of post offices. Support is now coming into the Blue Room of the White House from many unexpected sources.

While Lodge and Smoot were wavering as to a tax and bonus policy, Coolidge laid down the law and laid it down with a bang. "Silent Cal" didn't do much talking. He had Mellon introduce a tax program worked out to the minutest detail, a programme which of course played into the hands of Big Business, where Coolidge gets his inspiration and strength. The significance of the Mellon programme lies primarily in the fact that for the first time in the history of American politics, a revenue measure was drawn by a Cabinet member of Congress for adoption. Other Presidents have attempted to do that indirectly only. They have attempted to groom and prepare their spokesmen in the Senate and House to put over a specific revenue measure; but no one has ever before attempted to work out a complete plan for Congress to enact. Such centralized political power has never before been assumed by a President. Congress has jealously guarded its right to tax and to devise ways and means of raising revenue.

The Poor Democrats.

Though the Democrats have considerable strength in the Senate and House, they have not been able to capitalize it. Everybody expected them to play politics. But nobody has expected them to play it as poorly as they have played it to date.

When the Democrats had the best chance, perhaps, of their career in the session of Congress to make a serious dent in the armor of their Republican opponents they failed miserably. This was the case in the setting the face of Cummins' membership on the Inter-state Commerce Committee. Had the Democratic floor leaders put up any sort of a fight to all, Cummins would likely have been deprived of his seat on this important committee and the Democrats would have been confronted by a far less formidable opponent chosen to fill his place.

When the insurgents attempted to liberalize the rules of procedure in the House, the Democrats played the role of strike-breakers and fled from the struggle. The only chance the Democrats could have of utilizing to the maximum advantage their present strength was in a sort of a near-friendly working alliance with the so-called progressives. Of course, no body would expect the Democrats to do that since they hate the insurgents as much as the hide-bound republicans. Republicans do—almost with assault and battery.

The Helpless Progressives.

The sorriest lot in the whole congressional farce to date has been the shattered group of insurgents. The fight of the progressives for more democratic rules of procedure in the House fizzled out into a thirty-day moratorium on hostilities. When the latter ended, Royal C. Johnson, a militant insurgent from the plains of South Dakota, stabbed the progressive fire, Mr. Nelson, of Wisconsin, in the back by lining up with the reactionaries in a flat refusal to modify in the least effective way the rules of the House.

Railway legislation has been the linch-pin of the progressive plans in the Senate. La Follette has always prided himself on being the king-pin of railway legislation experts in the country. According to the sacred rules of seniority La Follette was entitled to be the chairman of the Inter-state Commerce Committee. But seniority had to yield to financial necessity. Wall Street wouldn't take a chance on permitting the Senator from Wisconsin to harass and bleed them as he would be able to in the capacity of chairmanship. The bankers from tower New York, now feel very safe as they know that the Democrats and Republicans will not permit La Follette to endanger their dividends or make valuable political capital out of the repeal of their big Bonus Railway Act—the Esch-Cummins law.

Thus the progressives have actually lost ground since Congress has opened. They have lost ground simply because they have permitted their most dangerous enemy, the lordly resident of the White House, President Coolidge, to rob them of the offensive which they had stolen from Harding in his last days.

The present impasse in Congress is not disappointing to the reactionaries or to the bankers and manufacturers whose back-door-confidence they enjoy. Wall Street wants well-enough to be let alone. It does not want to see the gains it made in the first two years of Harding's Administration taken away from Big Business. The sooner Congress closes shop and the less Congress does, the more satisfied will Wall Street be.

But, what will the progressives do? There are many guessers, and more guesses. The progressives themselves know less than anybody else does what they intend to do to meet the oncoming disaster that will overwhelm them. There is only one way out for them, and that is to break and break definitely and decisively with the reactionaries. The only road to salvation now open to them is to stop shuffling, to canvas at their reactionary opponents and go out into the open before their mass of disinterested supporters as a new group to fight their old political bedfellows to a standstill. Only such tactics can end the present political stalemate in the country. Most observers doubt the readiness, or the ability of the insurgents to take such clear and vigorous action.

The Franc Flops

Victorious imperialist France is sitting on a financial volcano. The franc has, in the last week, fallen to almost 25 for a dollar. One is naturally tempted to ask why has this wretched fate befallen victorious France, the France that is now the military ruler of central and western Europe.

The cause for the collapse of the franc and the serious depression that is sure to follow in its wake, lies in the very military overlordship that imperialist France is so swaying over its puppet republics and conquered territories. The internal French debt has increased by 19,000,000,000 francs during the year. Actual expenditures in the last fiscal year were 15,000,000,000 francs above the estimates. The outlook for limiting the militarist expenses is slim in view of the low franc rates and the imperialist policies.

In the last four years, according to the Department of Commerce, the total French debt rose from 227 billion francs to 430 billions. Interest on the debt now consumes more than half the government revenues, though no interest has been paid on the foreign debt which amounts to about 126 billion francs.

It is only the huge amounts borrowed to pay pensions and to continue the reconstruction of the war devasted areas that have kept industry running in France. It is only through this artificial policy which must inevitably collapse of its own weight, that has kept unemployment down. As soon as these expensive policies of inflation are dropped, serious depression will overcome the country. When France will be hit by waves of economic difficulties which will prove insurmountable to its incompetent militarist clique. There will be serious political and industrial repercussions in Poland, Czechoslovakia and the Balkans. Thus despite all outward appearances, France, the citadel of capitalist reaction in Europe is a veritable powder magazine of revolutionary explosives. When the French subsidy ends kingdoms and republics will fall with it. The reactionary chain which has been forged around Germany will then break of its own weight. The German workers will be in a better position to strike at their political oppressors when they will be able to count on allies rather than enemies in their neighboring states. The present financial situation in France bears serious watching. It will soon be the pivotal point in the European political maelstrom.

Another emperor has fallen by the wayside. William Joseph Simmons, founder of the Ku Klux Klan, is the latest victim of militant democracy to bite the dust. The edict of banishment from the invisible empire also hit Edward Young Clarke, at one time wizard of the Klux. The whip hand in the moron aggregation is now held by H. W. Evans. It is another case of "when Klux fall out, etc."

o

The Farmers' Friends

The last few months have witnessed a remarkable increase in the number of "friends" that the farmers have gained.

Senator Capper's propaganda has won the farmers many banker-friends. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's speeches have won the farmers the "friendship" of the packing interests. The farmers are in dire need of friends. Their condition shows no signs of improvement. The countless remedies offered them by many of their self-advertised friends are only smoke screens of misrepresentation to mislead and prevent them from taking effective relief measures.

While all this noise is being made about farm relief and farm friendship, no one can fail to view with disgust the conduct of some of the so-called farm representatives in Washington. The day that the Federal Trade Commission issued its report damning the practices of the grain gamblers of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce was the very day on which Magnus Johnson, the self-proclaimed "dirt farmer" of Minnesota, was in a milking contest with the beef trust's agent, Mr. Wallace, now directing the Department of Agriculture. On the very same day that the standpat senators defeated an attempt to make this report public, Senators Frazier and Ladd are reported to have jumped on the Coolidge bandwagon.

The crowning point of this utter lack of achievement on the part of the so-called farm Senators was the wood-chopping contest between Frazier of North Dakota and Magnus of Minnesota.

The poor farmers have been long enough in trouble to develop a sense of humor. Yet, one needs to wonder how long they are going to stand for this disgraceful conduct on the part of their Washington representatives. Magnus Johnson was sent to the Senate by the workers and farmers to "chop" off reactionary heads and not to enter into wood-chopping contests with his friends. Magnus Johnson was elected by the enemies of the big interests for whom Wallace speaks and works in Washington. If Minnesota Senator should spend his time in fighting for the farmers and workers, in opposition to Wallace and his ilk and not in friendly milking contests.

All of which simply goes to prove that not until the workers and farmers have their own political party controlling their elected representatives and making them responsible servants of the poor farmers and city workers, will such intolerable conditions come to an end.

Multiplication and Poverty

The Strenarude family increased and multiplied until Strenarude was at his wits end to find ways and means to satisfy 22 appetites. 20 children with his wife and himself. His proficiency in the art of multiplication may bring him his reward in heaven but the result to date is that he is now cooling his heels in prison. This is how it happened. His son aged ten years possessed himself of a dime, with the aid of which he entered a moving picture emporium where he probably saw Theda Bara vamp the sultan of Swat, or witnessed the ambitious messenger boy, Cicero Sapp, become manager of the factory in which he worked, marry the boss' daughter leaving her father free to devote himself to art and moonshine. Whatever he saw did not make much of an impression on his father. The latter saw stars. The rascal that spent a whole dime on entertainment would not enter his house. The boy's mother bid the boy enter and had the father detained by the Juvenile Court.

To the average reader who saw this wan-faced mother's picture with four of her twenty children on the pictorial page of the Herald-Examiner, this is only an isolated case. They may revile the father as a brute for his treatment of his little son. But that father is the product of a system which looks on him only as a beast of burden and on his wife only as a breeder of profit fodder for the slave market. How can he feed twenty-two mouths on a meager wage and be a human being? How can he be a human being anyhow and bring twenty children into the world without means of providing for them? But it is a crime to inform parents of birth limitation methods. The law says so and we are told that God is in agreement.

Our moralists will sing the praises of large families and the blessings of poverty and curse the victims of the twin evils: exploitation and ignorance.

Dress Rehearsals

A few days ago confidential orders were issued to all units of the fleet to leave their home ports in the Pacific and Atlantic coasts and make for tropical waters. Now we are in the midst of joint army and navy maneuvers having among their many objectives the testing of the strength and value of the Panama Canal Zone in the whole plan of national defense.

Until the middle of March the War and Navy Departments will be busy with the numerous problems arising out of the maneuvers as though the country were actually at war with a first class power. Admiral Robert E Coontz will command this mightiest armada ever mobilized by the United States navy. The principal units of the battleship force now stationed in the Pacific, 15 battleships, 87 aircrafts, 63 destroyers, 33 train vessels, 11 submarines, five mine force, four light cruisers, four destroyer tenders, three submarine tenders, one airplane carrier, and one plane tender will participate. At the same time there is a plan afoot to hold the first military mobilization on a national scale under the National Defense Act of 1920 immediately after the coming November elections. What is more, Secretary of War Weeks and Secretary of the Navy Denby are both clamoring for millions for the army and navy.

The workers and farmers, who are having the time of their lives making ends meet, are naturally prompted to ask: Why all this pompous military rehearsal? Are we to have another preparedness campaign? Is another world slaughter brewing?

To do not know the precise, official answers to these pertinent questions. However, we are aware of the fact that while our army and navy leaders will be maneuvering around the Panama Canal, our Banker-Generals Dawes, Robinson and Young will be maneuvering in the Paris Reparations sessions in the interests of Wall Street. While the powerful fleet will be proudly steaming ahead and rehearsing to belch forth destruction, the Filipinos will be anxiously awaiting their first opportunity to strike for freedom from American capitalist-imperialist domination; the Cubans will be resisting the blessings of dollar diplomacy; and an American naval commander will lead the other imperialist powers in an attack on China.

Some may call us down for being too suspicious, and may contend that these military and naval maneuvers are merely a strange coincidence with these political events. But we know that the distance between the dollar and the flag is not big enough even for the angels of peace to pass through. Experience has taught the working masses that the prepared-ness drives and military and naval maneuvers today are only the dress rehearsals for the imperialist wars of tomorrow.

AN UNQUENCHABLE THIRST

or—The Thirst That Will Finish Him

Thou Shalt Not Kill Anyone But Communists

In a booklet by Dr. E. S. Gumbel entitled "Three Years of Murder," we find the following contrast between the political murders from the Right (murders committed by reactionaries) and those from the Left (radicals), and their consequences during the years 1919-1920 in Germany:

Total punishment:
Imprisonment...31 years 3 months and one sentence for life.
Total number of political murders from the Left..... 15

During the years 1919 and 1920, almost on every second day, there occurred an unpunished murder from the Right.

Professor Nicolai writes in the introduction to this booklet, "With regard to the dead themselves, nearly all the leaders of the extreme left have been put out of the way in this manner; however, not a single leader of the extreme Right has been killed. In general, the murders committed by the Left are very few, and those from the Right very numerous." Yet the Social Democracy pretends to consider the Communist "atrocities" as the reason for the White Terror.

Professor Nicolai continues, "With regard to the punishments meted out the relatively few attempts against reactionaries are almost all punished by very heavy sentences; however, for the numerous attempts made against men of the Left, no one is punished. When for instance as in the case of the murderer of Landauer, the criminal is punished for stealing the murdered man's watch, this is certainly no punishment for the murder."

Mellon Reduces the Taxes of Mellon

The big tax plan of Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, is now before the Senate. The plan is a very good one for the rich, and it is a miserable one for workers and poor farmers. The kept press is conducting the most extensive propaganda for Mellon's plan, trying to make the workers, small businessmen and farmers believe that they can secure some advantage from the plan.

The truth is that the Mellon tax plan is favorable only for the rich, or rather for the richest of the rich (Mellon himself is in the highest stratum of the multi-millionaires). It is not only we Communists who say that but conservative and respectable Democrats who are in the opposition also say it.

"About the time the Mellon plan was proposed, Henry Ford suddenly announced that he had come to the conclusion he ought to support the present Administration. There was a remarkable synchronization between the promulgation of the Mellon plan and Mr. Ford's conversion. As soon as the Mellon plan is announced Mr. Ford announces himself for the plan, which brings him in $1,000,000 a year.

"In politics, lately, beginning with Senator Hanna, we have adopted from the nomenclature of the poker table such phrases, as of course, Senators understand, 'stand pat' and 'full hand.' Mr. Ford was very progressive until Mr. Mellon dealt him a 'full hand.' Mr. Ford was very progressive until Mr. Mellon dealt him a full hand of $1,000,000 a year, and then he did, as all poker players do, 'stood pat.' He said, 'I will stand pat for the $1,000,000 a year reduction in my taxes.'

"Now, since we have learned from a reliable authority that Mr. Mellon's taxes will be reduced by Mr. Mellons bill by $500,000 a year or more, and Mr. Ford's taxes will be reduced by Mr. Mellon's bill, which Mr. Ford now champions, $1,000,000 a year, it will be interesting to speculate how much every year Mr. John D. Rockefeller's taxes would be reduced. I realise that when I use the name of Rockefeller visions of bald heads and oil tanks fly all around in the air."

Then in a second speech Ashurst pointed out over more sharply that Mellon's famous tax plan is only in the class interests of big capitalists. Ashurst showed that the Secretary should be making a deal by the most insidious and the most corrupt kind. I have seen many deals since I entered public life, for a reduction in the taxes of men of great wealth while at the same time he urges a disappropriate reduction in the taxes of men of modest means. His proposition is one-sided. It injures his own benefit and the benefit of those in his own class. I do not speak of him with envy or with ill feeling, but it ill becomes a man to conduct a furious propaganda when it means $500,000 a year in his own pocket and $45,000,000 additional revenues to be pocketed by others of large fortune."

Ashurst (Arizona), Jones (New Mexico), Simmons (North Carolina) and the other Democratic senators who attack the Mellon tax plan so bitterly as being the biggest gift for the biggest capitalists, the richest bankers and wealthiest manufacturers, are of course, no advocates of the common people. They hate the workers and poor farmers just as much, if not more so, than do Coolidge, Mellon, Ford or Rockefeller. The solution of the mystery is that these three senators are representatives of Southern big landowners. The big landowners in many respects have interests opposed to those of banking capital or industrial capital. Especially is it very much to the interest of the big landowners that not they but the Eastern capitalists shall pay taxes.

This fact explains why the La-Follette group forms an alliance now with these Southern Democratic senators. The LaFollette group represents the interests of the well-to-do farmers and small business men, especially in the West, so that the alliance of the Democratic Party, with the LaFollette group is the alliance of the big landowners of the South with the well-to-do farmers of the Middle West against the big bankers and manufacturers of the East.

Every class has its representatives in Congress; but the cause of the worker and poor farmers hasn't a single representative.

Millionaires Escape Taxation

The country has been flooded with propaganda in behalf of the Mellon plan to save the millionaire bankers and bosses millions of dollars. A very large portion of the Congressional Record to date is filled with greetings, testimonials, and demands of various Chambers of Commerce and Manufacturers' associations indorsing the Mellon proposals.

It is rather strange to note that while all congressmen and senators—with perhaps a half dozen exceptions at the most—have been very industrious in letting the country bear their masters' voice from the congressional rostrum, very little effort has been made to put a check to the vicious practice pursued by the big capitalists to rob the United States Treasury of hundreds of millions of dollars in unpaid taxes.

According to the latest report of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at least $64,000,000,000 was beyond the reach of the tax collector last year. Thirty-five billion dollars of this gigantic sum was exempt securities. William Rockefeller, for example, put away about 60 per cent of his wealth in Federal, State, and Municipal securities so issued as to make it impossible for the tax collector to reach it. The amount of wealth escaping taxation thru various bookkeeping and clever accounting and legal manipulations represents almost one-fifth of the total national wealth.

In view of the growing burden of taxation it is very important to the workers and farmers that the Government discontinue protecting the millionaire criminal tax dodgers.

In the last decade the total national tax has increased 217 per cent. Over seven billion dollars were paid in taxes in 1922. Every person (an average of a six months' crop of the gainfully-employed) paid at least 170 dollars in 1922 to meet taxes. But the rest of which the mighty bankers and industrialists have robbed the Treasury of hundreds of millions of dollars has kept practically the same. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue reports that in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, the income and profits tax collection fell 40 per cent.

One might ask: Why is it that the Government is so rich and vicious in its persecution of the poor and so poor and helpless in the case of the rich? The answer is that the Government is controlled by the rich, and that the rich are not willing to pay taxes. They are willing to pay for the Government, but they want the Government to pay for them.

The King of England was [illegible] on his way to the House of Commons. But the masses are [illegible]. They would cheer him just as enthusiastically tomorrow on his way to the gallows. If the king had any brains he must have thought seriously that he is very much [illegible] in Europe. Monarchy has received hard knocks since his cousin, Wilhelm, unleashed the dogs of war in 1914. George could hear the angry murmur of the unemployed who paraded with placards on their backs. As the wheels of his gilded carriage rolled on, he may have thought of the French aristocrats, as the death carts rumbled on to the guillotine during the French revolution. Not exactly pleasant thoughts.

Magnus Johnson, Minnesota farmer-senator, has an alibi for his defeat by Secretary Wallace in the now famous milking contest. "They gave me a dry cow," declared Magnus. This is taking an unfair advantage of a "dirt" farmer who has not soiled his hands with farm labor except for the benefit of the farmers for quite a long time. If the secretary of labor offered Magnus a goat and represented it as a cow perhaps the Minnesotan would not know the difference. The Senator's dry humor will not appeal very much to the matter of fact farmers who sent him to Washington to bring relief from the exactions under which they suffer. They may say to Magnus, "We asked for bread and you gave us a cow story."

The weakly local organ of the communist Workers Party of Cook County, carries a box notice on the front page. "Comrades living in parts of the county which are not yet organized, should pay their dues in the County Office." A secretary of a socialist local here in Chicago was notified recently that his branch was dissolved but he could pay his dues to the Cook County office. He is a member-at-large in Chicago. What a publication! An editorial in the same paper criticises the Workers Party for vigorously discussing the issues confronting it at its annual convention. This is of course, unseemly! The S. P did things better than that. When a difference of opinion existed the minority called in the police and expelled the majority, as was done in 1919.

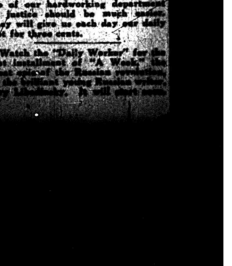
The religious civil war is still raging in the protestant church. The virgin birth entrenchment is under heavy fire with considerable casualties among the attacking party. Generals Percy Stickney Grant, John Haynes Holmes and Dr. Frances Potter declare that the enemy cannot hold out much longer, but the besieged managed to make a sortie and brought in an important prisoner from the rebel army, in the person of the Rev Leighton Parks, who renounced the rebel cause and declared that the Virgin theory was as sound as a bell. General Stratton, one of the bitter foes among the old-fashioned religionists, insists on fighting it out on these lines if it takes until doomsday. Meanwhile the communists hope that they both win.



The Poor Fish says: Now that the Communists have a daily paper the job of our hair-working department of foolish should be over. They will give us each day, and that's true for three cents.

POINCARE IS THREATENING TO QUIT JOB

French Workers Should Worry if He Goes

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS.—The present French government will not remain in office unless the deputies vote the increase of 20 per cent in taxes demanded by its program, premier Poincare declared in the chamber this afternoon.

The cabinet approved measures including repression of fiscal frauds, supression of speculation in the franc, increase of all taxes 20 per cent and authorization of a government decree which will result in budget economies of a billion francs.

A bill to decree suspension of imports not required for national needs will also be introduced.

But Premier Poincare fought a winning battle for his new fiscal program to save the franc.

Twice the chamber gave Poincare votes which amounted to expressions of confidence, the last time voting 360 to 215 to adjourn interpellations.

Previously the deputies voted 394 to 180 not to discuss immediately the subject of pensions.

Defence Council and C. L. U. Cooperate

William Z. Foster will speak in Newark, N. J., in February, he announced on his return to Chicago. Both he and Bishop Paul Jones were prevented from speaking on the streets there by the police. The street meeting was called after the police had refused a permit for a meeting in a private hall.

The meeting in February will be arranged by the Labor Defense Council with the help of the Civil Liberties Union.

Foster said that the police dodged the issue of his right to speak by breaking up the meeting and that the meeting in February will be made a test.

"We will welcome a chance to test Foster's right to speak in Newark," said Prof Harry F. Ward, chairman of the Civil Liberties Union.

Fight False Arrest

NEW YORK.—Bishop Paul Jones, J. Kaplan and William Z. Foster will enter suit for false arrest against the police of Newark, it was announced here by the American Civil Liberties Union. Foster, Jones and Kaplan were arrested by Newark police following an attempt on their part to speak on the street in Newark last week. They had applied for a permit to hold a meeting in a hall but were refused by the police. When they tried to hold a street meeting the police broke up the meeting, arrested the speakers and after a couple of hours released them.

The suit of Foster, Jones and Kaplan, which will be handled by Walter Nelles, will test the right of these or any other men to speak in Newark.

Plan to Extend Union to Outside States

Frank T. Fowler, official spokesman for the Milk Producers' Association, in a statement to The Daily Worker declared that the producers are going to make a big drive to bring every milk farmer within the territory which supplies milk to Chicago into their organization.

While they did not get everything they wanted in the strike settlement, they preserved their organization which the Milk Trust wished to destroy. If the distributors could smash the farmers' union they could then deal with them individually on the distributors' own terms.

The present agreement runs for three months. On March 10, it will have expired and by that time the producers expect to have an organization that will be able to convince the Milk Trust that those who produce the milk have a right to at least a decent living in return for the long hours and the energy they put into their labors.

LOSE PAPERS IN HIBBEN TRIAL; HEARING HALTED

Hunt in Waste Baskets for Missing Evidence

(By The Federated Press.)

NEW YORK.—Hearings before the Board of Officers, investigating charges of "holding beliefs favorable to enemies of the United States government" against Paxton Hibben, Reserve Officers' Corps, have been delayed unexpectedly.

The cause of that delay is the loss of stenographic notes of the first day's hearings. The missing papers were in possession of the corporal who acted as reporter for the Board and who went A. W. O. L. during the recent holidays.

All available waste-baskets in the Army building have been searched in vain. It is thought that the records have been stolen. Officers who testified at the previous hearing will be recalled.

Hibben has received assurance that the entire dossier of charges will be placed at his disposition. The case will probably be reopened Jan. 20.

Senator James W. Wadsworth, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs committee, has received protests against the War Department's action against Hibben from many sources, including former United States District Attorney Francis Fisher Kane, Lieut. L. Bentley Mulford, Ex Commander George Washington Post, American Legion; Mark Wiseman, Ex-Adjutant, Willard Straight Post, American Legion; J. M. Dubeh, United Cloth Hat and Cap Makers of America.

BRITAIN EYES COMMONS AS DEBATE IS ON

British Industrialists Wait Developments

"No Confidence"

LONDON. — Labor's move to overthrow the Baldwin government was made in commons at 4 P. M. today.

J. R. Clynes, Laborite M. P., moved to amendment to a motion approving the King's speech in which he called the "attention of your Majesty to the fact that your Majesty's present advisers have not the confidence of this House."

LONDON.—Supported by the Asquith wing of the Liberal party and with the assurance of the political correspondent of the Westminister Gazette that the federation of British Industries—the British Chamber of Commerce—will assist if no effort is made to establish "class rule" the British Labor Party is about to assume what power the English parliamentary system gives the reigning party.

The debate on the motion of "no confidence" in the Baldwin government will be a purely formal, proceeding, altho it will probably last until the hour on next Monday for which the vote is set. The die-hards in the Tory ranks, however, have made appeal to Winston Churchill of Dardanelles debacle fame to lead the opposition against the Labor Party. It is not believed by political wiseacres that Churchill is in the mood to lead any forlorn hopes at present. An anonymous letter published by the Daily Mail today containing a plea for action by Churchill refers to the situation as one "of peculiar and unprecedented peril for the country."

General opinion, however, is to the effect that those elements who would have most to fear from a strict application of the Labor Party program—notably, the capital levy—are disposed to await developments following the organization of a labor ministry and that so far as the landowning and business elements are concerned the Labor Party is on probation.

Much consolation is derived by these two groups from the very moderate tone of the latest utterances of the parliamentary leaders of the party.

There is more than a little hope also that this very moderation on the part of leaders like McDonald and Henderson will alienate the Clyde workers, the Communists and other left wing elements of the labor party and drive the parliamentary leaders more and more to the orthodox liberal position.

Nevertheless, there is a feeling of tension throut Great Britain because of the new channels for which the course of empire is being charted. Labor rule is a fact that the bulk of ancient ruling classes of Britain has not yet grasped.

His Anti-Russian Policy.

Clynes insisted that the opening paragraph of the king's speech, declaring that Britain's relations with foreign powers continues friendly was inaccurate.

"Are our relations with Russia friendly?" he asked. "Moreover, our influence in foreign affairs has almost disappeared. Our prestige abroad has declined because a war spirit propelled our post-war policy."

"We are making Monstrous preparations for a new war," Clynes continued. "When we treat Germany no worse than she treated France in 1870. Therefore, we cannot longer merely watch and wait.

"We do not, however, seek the downfall of the government merely for the purpose of class domination."

An Enemy of Labor

OPEN LETTER TO U. S. SENATOR JOHNSON

Hiram Johnson, candidate for the Republican nomination for president of the United States, is here tonight to tell the people of Chicago what his policies are and what he intends to do, should he succeed in being elected.

The situation facing the workers and farmers of America, the very people who have it in their power to make and unmake politicians and statesmen, was never so serious as it is at this moment. Millions of workers are facing unemployment and millions of farmers are being reduced to bankruptcy.

The Daily Worker asks you, Senator Johnson, what have you to offer as a solution of the problem that confronts the millions of industrial workers? What have you to say about the open shop campaigns, government by injunction, the laws for the persecution of the foreign-born workers, unemployment and the other vital issues that meet the workers of this country face to face?

HERE ARE THE BIG PROBLEMS

The Daily Worker would like you to say what is your solution of the problems of the farmers of this country who are facing mass bankruptcy. You have been hailed as a progressive from coast to coast. With burning words you scorched the malefactors of great wealth for keeping the "common people" under their iron heel. With bitter invective you have flayed the international bankers who have attempted to embroil this country in the imperialist ventures of Europe.

What have you to say, Senator Johnson, about the imperialism of the United States in Cuba, South America and the Philippines? What have you to say about the brutality of the U. S. marines in Haiti? Where is your righteous wrath against the money power of America, which is now weaving a net of gold around the liberties of the working masses of South America?

YOU HAVE NO SOLUTION!

The Daily Worker knows that you have no solution for the problems that confront the American workers and working farmers. You are a capitalist, Mr. Johnson, and your progressive camouflage is only for the purpose of deceiving the public. Your angry gestures and shouts of defiance at high finance and Wall Street will not fool those who have followed your crooked trail in politics. The Daily Worker will show the workers and farmers of America that you are a political false alarm and like the rest of the capitalist errand boys you are out to serve your masters; the men who put up the cash to place you in the White House so that you can better serve them.

The workers and working farmers of America know that their enemies are the bankers and the capitalists. While you, Mr. Senator, have posed as the friend of labor you have been the consistent supporter of the railroad interests and of all the tools of the railroad interests. If you are a friend of labor and humanity why did you not raise a voice in behalf of Tom Mooney and Warren Billings, two victims of the railroad interests of California, the very interests that sent you to the Governor's mansion in your native state and to the White House in Washington? One word from you and Mooney and Billings would be turned loose from the bastile in which they are wasting the best years of their lives for a crime you know well they are not guilty of. You know they are there because they are labor organizers and your first duty is to your capitalist masters.

THE PAL OF "BILL" BURNS

The Daily Worker knows your record, Mr. Johnson. When Harry M. Daugherty, head of the Department of Justice, issued his famous injunction which broke the shopmen's strike and smashed the shopmen's unions, the House appointed a sub-committee to investigate the attorney general's violation of the constitution. The stool-pigeon William J. Burns was put on the stand. It was proved that this man Burns was a jury fixer and a suborner of perjury, that he hired men to commit acts of violence in order to have an excuse to get union men into jail. It was proved that this man Burns used the power of the Federal government to illegally take sides in labor disputes and throw the forces of the government on the side of the railroad interests. And at that investigation, Mr. Johnson, you, the fake progressive, came out boldly and brazenly on the side of the railroad barons and you expressed your confidence in Mr. Jury-Fixer Burns and boasted that you were one of those who recommended him to Daugherty for his present position.

You have straddled issues when the capitalists did not need your vote very badly, but whenever they had their backs to the wall you came to the front and valiantly fought for them. You have tried to preserve the progressive camouflage as much as possible because the growing revolt among the masses requires

U. S. METHODS IN VIRGIN ISLANDS ON THE CARPET

Davis Committee Won't Disturb Imperialists

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK.—American methods of government both in the Virgin Islands and in Porto Rico are to be brought up on "the carpet" and subjected to vigorous examination.

The Federated Press is informed that the commission appointed by Secretary of Labor Davis reached New York on its way to the Virgin Islands to investigate economic conditions on this particular Caribbean possession of the United States.

Expect Display of Innocence

Especially the starvation wages and sinister working conditions of laborers on the islands will be called to the commission's attention. A cynical observer anticipates that the United States government's commission will deliver a report with an innocence appropriate to the name of the Islands.

The government body is under the chairmanship of George H. Woodman, Des Moines, Iowa. The commission leaves this week for the Virgin Islands.

Simultaneously, the Porto Rican delegation, appointed by the Legislature at San Juan to seek from President Coolidge and the American Congress a declaration as to the status of Porto Rico, arrived here yesterday.

The delegation, of which Horace M. Towner, Governor of Porto Rico, is ex-officio member, was met by representatives of the State Department, the army and navy and several congressmen.

Put Porto Wild Claims

In Washington, the delegates will be received by the President, Secretary of War and Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives.

The delegation is putting forward claims for mild concessions in autonomy to Porto Rican government institutions.

Great British Labor Party.

By FREDERICK KUH.

NEW YORK.—The working class political parties, the unions and other labor groups here are watching the political drift in England on the verge of the Labor Party's assumption of power.

Sidney Hillman, president, Alamagamated Clothing Workers, characterizes the British workers' electoral triumph as a source of hope and encouragement to the workers of the world.

Addressing the executive council, British Labor Party, the American League for Industrial Democracy states: "It is our ardent hope that the coming labor government may soon result in a revision of the Versailles treaty and reparations demands, the assumption of normal relations with Russia, drastic reduction of armaments and the stifling of imperialistic ventures. We realize the enormity of your task. We have faith in you."

The Cooperative League of America has sent a message expressing gratification at the possibility that he will of the profit making interests may be challenged by England's first labor regime. "We sincerely hope," concludes the league "that your efforts may lift the cooperative movement of England to a final and complete victory over the competitive, predatory interests which have hitherto dominated the nation's economic life."

Amalgamation means strength.

the money power to know most of your type to appear before the committee and ignore them with phrases.

THE ARTFUL DODGER

What is your record on the railroad question? Gompers has you listed as a "friend of labor." But on December 18, 1919, a motion was made in the Senate to take out from the Esch-Cummins Railway Act the clause making strikes unlawful. You dodged the issue, you took of such vital importance to the railroad workers of America.

The sixty-seventh congress gave away directly and indirectly approximately $14,000,000,000 to the financiers and manufacturers. You, Mr. Johnson, lined up with Senator Smoot, one of the Latter Day Saints of the Mormon Church and one of the angels of Big Business in the capital. And when the Mormon leader brought up his resolution for the sales tax to shift the burden from the millionaire tax dodgers of the working class you voted with Senator Smoot against the "common people" you are so fond of singing their praises.

You are the "artful dodger" of American politics, Mr. Johnson. People have an idea that you are a rough, unpolished hom-e-ty-God old-fashioned American; a typical example of shirt-sleeve diplomacy. But—when the unseating of the corruptionist Senator Newberry of Michigan came up in the senate you were conveniently absent.

CHEWING GUM CANDIDATE

Big Business is not afraid of you, Mr. Johnson. Who are your financial backers? One of them is William Wrigley, Jr., the millionaire chewing gum king of America. Powerful interests are behind you. You will make a safe and sane candidate for Wall Street if they cannot put over the Strike Breaking president from New England.

You may denounce Wall Street with all your eloquence but the bankers will laugh in their sleeves. You can serve them well in the present crisis. Between yourself and Calvin Coolidge they need have no fears. How harmless you are to the money power is well put by Mr. Charles Stetson Wheeler, a California delegate to the Republican convention in 1920, in his speech nominating you. He said in part:—

* * * *

THEY FEAR HIM NOT

"Ten years ago big business men in California and our conservative millionaires were fearful of him, they feared that his ideas were dangerous and they fought him bitterly; but when the power was in his hands he used it so sanely and the reforms for which he stood and which he put thru, were so humane and so just that today he has no supporters in the land more outspoken and enthusiastic in his praise than the bankers and the big business men of his home state. Big business, if it is honest, will have nothing to fear from him tho it measures its capital in millions and tens of millions.

"You doubtless do not know it, but in the California delegation are men who represent practically every big business interest on the Pacific Coast. Among them are men who dominate great electric light and power interests and the presidents of three of San Francisco's largest banks—banks whose deposits aggregate more than $240,000,000."

ENEMY OF PRODUCERS

Senator Johnson, you are a fake progressive. You are an enemy of the workers and farmers. Your record speaks against you with a thousand tongues. It is high time that the workers and farmers consign you to political oblivion and with you the rest of the capitalist lackeys who serve Mammon in the White House.

The workers and farmers of America are now building up a farmer-labor movement for the purpose of sending men and women to congress who will represent the interest of the masses. These representatives will be under the control of the producers as you and your kind are now under the direction of the capitalists.

12,000 MINERS, CHILDREN UNDER STRIKE IN GLACE BAY, NOVA SCOTIA

Walkout After Failure of Negotiations

Throwing Men and Women Out of Work

GLACE BAY, N. S.—Twelve thousand coal miners are on strike in district following the failure of negotiations for a renewal of the contract with the mining companies which expired Jan. 16th.

Nine thousand miners are directly involved in the controversy and 3,000 are striking in sympathy with them. Negotiations had been in progress over a period of weeks with no result and with the expiration of the contract the strike was automatically called.

The miners are anxiously awaiting word from the headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America concerning the attitude of International President John L. Lewis, towards the critical situation. It was in this district that James McLachlan, local leader of the miners, was removed from office by Lewis following the calling of a strike in protest against the use of troops by the Canadian government in behalf of the British Empire Steel Company and against striking steel workers.

McLachlan was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary on a framed up charge for his activities in this strike and the district is being administered by a provisional official-dom installed by Lewis.

The membership of the district recently polled an overwhelming majority on a vote of "no confidence" in the provisional administration and little assistance in the present difficulty is looked for by miners familiar with political maneuvering in the United Mine Workers of America.

Child labor is increasing, according to a statement issued by the Western Press Committee of the National Child Labor Committee. "Unemployment of men and women is increasing. Children are shoving men and women out of jobs."

The last Sunday in January is set aside as National Child Labor Day. There are states that have enacted and endorsed good laws against child labor, but even in those states goods produced by child labor in other states are consumed.

The Supreme Court declared unconstitutional a law imitating child labor passed by Congress. The capitalists did not like this law. They said it interfered with the liberty of the individual, so now after the seven mummies who are supposed to interpret all laws passed by Congress delivered their decision, children under six can enjoy the blessings of living in a free land where they can be peddled out to manufacturers and have their poor little bodies coined into gold.

Thousands of children less than twelve years old are employed. Child labor does not mean selling newspapers or working a few hours on holidays, but toiling long hours at machines in factories and fields, excessive tasks at low pay and no time for education, play or healthy growth.

SOLONS TO SLAM FALL AS HE GOES INTO THE DISCARD

"Benedict Arnold" Is Mildest Epithet

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Albert B. Fall will be allowed to make known the secret of Teapot Dome to the senate committee investigating Harding graft, Senator Hiram Johnson of California declared today.

Fall will follow up the assault begun yesterday by Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, who charged Fall with corruption in leasing the Teapot Dome naval oil reserves to private interests.

Hadin says he has material for "a series of speeches" regarding Fall and the naval oil leases.

Caraway also expects to follow up his first criticisms of Fall with further attacks. His speech yesterday was one of the bitterest ever heard in the Senate. He compared Fall with Benedict Arnold, and the leasing of Teapot Dome to Arnold's attempted turnover of West Point to the British.

He said Fall had confessed to corruption in his testimony to the Senate investigating committee regarding the secret of a $100,000 loan he said he got to help finance purchase of a New Mexico ranch.

"We are faced with this humiliating situation for the first time in American history—and I hope it will be the last time—a cabinet officer under a high trust imposed in him and for a corrupt consideration sold the very means by which our national defense is to be protected," said Caraway.

Fall is Silent

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Former Secretary of the Interior Albert A. Fall will probably not reply to the charges made against him in the Senate yesterday by Senator Caraway of Arkansas.

Although the former secretary was confined to his room at the Roosevelt hotel here on orders of his physicians, his wife said there was nothing strange about being attacked by Senator Caraway and there would likely be no answer to the accusations.

"Mr. Fall is suffering from bronchial trouble," Mrs. Fall said. "He is not to be interviewed. I am sure he has no statement to make in regard to the charges by Senator Caraway."

"Senator Caraway has attacked him many times in the past and Mr. Fall will probably not answer him."

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON WILL SPEAK TONIGHT

Scored Tax Plan in Detroit

Hiram Johnson will [illegible] Calvin Coolidge and the [illegible] administration tonight in two mass meetings, one in the armory at Broadway and Thorndale avenue and the other in the Wendell Phillips High school.

Opponent to Coolidge

The senator is featured as the only avowed opponent of President Coolidge in the republican camp.

Speaking in Detroit last night, Johnson attacked the Mellon tax plan, branding it as a smoke screen to hide what is happening domestically and to distract attention from a wobbling foreign policy which has for its ultimate purpose getting us into Europe's maelstrom.

Nebraska Worries Coolidge

While the "wild bull of the California Pampas" is rushing madly toward the Windy City with the intention of blowing Coolidge off the political map, the growing strength of labor in Nebraska is causing wrinkles to gather over the brows of "Silent Cal." Dissatisfied with conditions and the attitude of the administration the farmers of that state are also in a frame of mind that bodes ill to the party of big business and its political prophets.

Big Money Barons for Amalgamation Chicago 'L' Roads

Amalgamation of Chicago's four elevated railways under the name of the Chicago Rapid Transit Company, was considered here today.

The consolidation would call for a financial reorganization to include the Oak Park elevated, which was bought yesterday by interests owning the others.

A merger of the other three, the Northwestern, the Metropolitan, and the South Side Elevated companies, was affected 10 days ago.

They Want the Railroads

WASHINGTON.—After going thru the motions of a national conference on transportation, here, the organized railroad financiers, managers and their allies have announced: "The public interest requires that the railroads be privately owned and operated under a comprehensive system of government regulation."

Veteran Coal Miners Fighting Pension of Mere $7.50 Per Week

GLACE BAY, N. S.—Twelve thousand coal miners are on strike in district following the failure of negotiations for a renewal of the contract with the mining companies which expired Jan. 16th. Nine thousand miners are directly involved in the controversy and 3,000 are striking in sympathy with them. Negotiations had been in progress over a period of weeks with no result and with the expiration of the contract the strike was automatically called. The miners are anxiously awaiting word from the headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America concerning the attitude of International President John L. Lewis, towards the critical situation. ANTI-COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN TIPS FINNISH CABINET

Kallio Clique Resigns; New Elections Called

HELSINGFORS, Finland.—The continued imprisonment of communist members of the riksdag is the real cause of the resignation of the Kallio cabinet today.

Trouble has been brewing since last summer, when in an announced campaign against the communists, wholesale arrests of members of the Finish Communist Party were staged. According to the Finnish constitution there must be 200 members of the riksdag present to hold a session and with the imprisonment of the communist members compliance with this provision was impossible.

The socialist members of the riksdag, desiring an early election, made the communist prisoners a political issue, threatened a strike unless their wishes were complied with and the dissolution of the riksdag by President Ståhlberg followed.

A great increase of Communist strength in the coming election and the increased representation of the anti-bourgeois parties in the new riksdag is the prediction of political observers.

SENATOR LADD DEMANDS QUIZ OF GEN. WOOD

Son's Stock Deals Will Be Exposed

WASHINGTON.—Complete investigation of the administration of General Leonard Wood in the Philippines was demanded in a resolution introduced in the senate today by Senator Ladd, North Dakota.

Stock transactions of Lieutenant Osborne C. Wood, son of the governor general, also would come within the scope of the investigation.

A committee of five senators would be appointed to conduct the inquiry. The investigation committee would be charged to ascertain:

"The falsity of Manila cablegrams sent to American newspapers alleging that certain senators and representatives in congress received pay from the Philippine Independence Commission for espousing the cause of independence.

"Actions of General Wood in relation to the Philippine government, its legislation and its banks, and its railways, sugar centrals and efforts, if any, to exploit the islands by American commercial interests.

"Deposits of the Philippine government money in American banks.

"Stock transactions of any army or navy officers or other officials or people associated with governor general Wood; how said stock transactions were conducted and any other matters proper for a full report thereon to aid congress in preparing any necessary legislation."

Raise is Accepted

The Moving Picture Operators' Union of Chicago voted yesterday to accept the raise of 5 per cent offered them by the theater owners. The raise of 5 per cent will bring the minimum wages of the operators up to $55.50 The agreement will run for a year.

Boost the Newsstand Sales

The Daily Worker can now be secured on the news stands in the city of Chicago. It is of great importance that those who have charge of such stands should be given encouragement to display the Daily Worker in the early days of the distribution.

Our readers are therefore urged to purchase at least one copy of the Daily Worker each day until it is well advertised.

It is of special importance that our readers should ask for The Daily Worker from the news agent near their homes.

Even though you are a subscriber we nevertheless urge you to purchase an extra copy every day from a news stand. You can use this copy to interest some friend or fellow worker in the cause. We expect you to do this.

ATTEMPT TO SAVE MELLON TAX PLAN AND TAX DODGERS

Coolidge Against Move to Hurt Rich

WASHINGTON.—Details of a compromise tax plan which will not destroy the Mellon program were being worked out today by the administration leaders in the House.

Republican chiefs plan to accept the high surtax rates proposed in the Democratic plan by Representative Garner, Texas, but fix the brackets so that incomes below $200,000 will not be hit by the maximum rates.

By doing this, they believe the compromise will satisfy the democratic-progressive coalition, now in control of the House and yet be satisfactory to President Coolidge, who is opposed to any compromise on the principles of the Mellon Plan.

Instead of the Mellon 25 per cent maximum surtax on incomes over $100,000, or the Garner 44 per cent maximum on incomes in excess of $92,000, the compromise rate is understood to be between 35 and 40 per cent on $200,000 incomes.

The present maximum is 50 per cent on incomes over $200,000.

Leaders in the "No Compromise Plan" expressed the opinion today that a 35 per cent maximum on incomes of $200,000 would stop investments in tax-free securities.

Kruse Speaks to Liberal Club on Russia-Germany

Under the auspices of the "Liberal Club" of the University of Chicago, William F. Kruse motion picture director of the "Friends of Soviet Russia," lectured on Wednesday afternoon, the subject, "Russia and Germany." The meeting was held in Kent Chemical Laboratory Theater and was attended by over a hundred students and instructors.

Three reels of motion pictures taken by Kruse on his recent trip abroad were shown and in the absence of titles the pictures were explained by the lecturer as they were shown.

"You would expect from what you hear that in staid, thrifty, almost respectable capitalistic Germany the workers would be well nourished and housed, and constituting the bulwark of an able and trusted government. On the other hand you would expect to find Soviet Russia, under a Communist regime, to be suffering under the very opposite of all these good conditions.

"A trip to Europe at this time would be quick to convince you, however, that there are many things you know in theory are not so when it comes to practice. In Russia today the workers are well fed, paid in stable currency and giving enthusiastic support to their own proletarian government—the oldest and strongest in Europe today. In Germany starvation stalks the masses, and insecurity bordering on open civil war prevails from one end of the land to the other. An international workers relief organization is using German army field kitchens to dish out to German starving the food donated by the Russian workers."

The "Liberal Club" meets regularly in one or another of the university buildings and brings many noted liberals to address the students. Scott Nearing will speak there in the near future; a very successful lecture by Margaret Sanger was recently held.

Big English Orders.

MOSCOW.—The Petrograd Co-operative Society has received considerable orders from English firms for various supplies. The firms undertake to advance credits for the necessary purchases to the amount of 25 per cent of the cost of the products on condition of guarantee on the part of the State Bank.

Production Increasing.

MOSCOW.—The "Yurt" (South Mining Trust) has produced over 10 million poods of iron ore and about 6 million poods of manganese ore during the last working year, the production plan being thus wholly fulfilled. Over 3 millions in poods of manganese ore have been sent to the ports for export abroad.

FIVE THOUSAND "45" U. S. GUNS REACH OBREGON

Mexican President Is Confident of Victory

MEXICO CITY.—"A simultaneous offensive on all fronts will go forward in a few days. You will see immediately the overwhelming strength of the government," General Serrano, minister of war in the Obregon government, said today.

"Five thousand "45's" bought from the United States arrived today. By tomorrow we will have eight fighting planes ready for action. We have gas but will not use it.

"I have no fear for the outcome. We have munitions, loyal troops, all the necessary funds and a righteous cause."

The Mexican foreign ministry expressed satisfaction at the American warning to Adolfo de la Huerta that the embargo at Tampico must not interfere with legitimate commerce and added that Mexican officialdom never was so appreciative as now of the United States "constructive Mexican policy."

PANAMA CANAL IS EASY MARK FOR BIG NAVAL GUNS

But Easily Defended from Enemy Airships

WITH THE ATLANTIC FLEET, COLON, Panama.—Two main developments stood out today after the first day of maneuvers in the great naval war games now under way here to test the defenses of the Atlantic entrance to the Panama canal.

These are:

First—an enemy fleet lying 15 or 20 miles off Colon, armed with 16 inch guns would be able to bombard the vital Gatun locks which are seven miles inland, without danger from the shore defenses, the largest guns of which are 14 inch rifles, which would be outranged ten miles.

Second—enemy naval aircraft could only work at great disadvantage since they would be forced to find a base for operations and at the same time have to face the attacks of defending air squadrons.

BLOW AT POLICE THIRD DEGREE AT ST. LOUIS, MO.

Broken Ribs Help Get Prisoners' Confessions

ST. LOUIS.—Another jury in this city has delivered a knockout rebuke to police third degree methods. Five men were acquitted in a whisky robbery case despite what appeared to be convincing evidence. James A. Cloud, one of the accused, against whom a charge of burglary was pending, testified that the police fractured one of his ribs in extorting a confession. In a number of recent criminal cases the juries acquitted when it was brought out that confessions were obtained by police torture. Jurors interviewed in one of the cases said they voted not guilty as a means of emphasizing their disapproval of police brutality.

WILL U. S. WITHDRAW RECOGNITION FROM THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT?

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The French government is trying to quietly repudiate its war debt to the United States, Senator Borah charged in the Senate.

"There is every indication," he said, "that the French government is declining not only to meet the interest payments but even has made no effort to adjust the debt as a creditor acting in good faith naturally would desire to make.

"While this debt is technically due the United States government, in reality it is due to the taxpayers of the United States."

CUT LIGHT, HEAT AND POWER PRICE ONE-HALF, ORGED

(By the Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—James F. Noonan, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, now operating for the public ownership and operation of hydro-electric power and 2-cent light and power rates, power-conservation, told The Federated Press that by development of coal-burning power plants at the mouths of the mines, and by utilizing hydro-electric power in one super-power system, the cost of light, power and heat could be cut in half throout the United States.

"There is no reason why the savings effected in Ontario should not be made by the consumers in every section of this country," he said. "It is a question of public development and control, diverting the profit of improved machinery and methods to the pockets of the people at large. But unless we take definite and immediate steps to protect ourselves, the power companies will pocket all the new profits that belong to us."

Noonan is backing the proposed federal development at Great Falls, which would furnish current enough to light the capital city.

Pension Plan for Workers

TORONTO. — The Hydro-Electric Power commission of Ontario and its workers have a joint pension fund for "permanent employes," for men of 65 or 60 after 20 years' service and for women of 60 or 55 after ten years' service to those "totally disabled. The pension is ¾ of one-eightieth of the average salary, during the five years when it is greatest, multiplied by the number of years' service, the minimum is fixed at $365 a year.

The annual payment by the commission is to be 5 per cent of the total salaries of all permanent employes, while each permanent employe will pay 2 1-2 per cent of his salary. If a permanent employe leaves the staff of the commission he will receive back his contributions with interest at 4 per cent.

Ford Fights McAdoo, LaFollette

WASHINGTON.—Sentiment in favor of public ownership, development and operation of hydro-electric power at Muscle Shoals and elsewhere in the South has been rapidly promoted among Democrats in Congress by the action of Henry Ford in declaring himself for Coolidge. After investigation of the activities of the Ford staff of lobbyists, they find that Ford is fighting McAdoo on the one hand and LaFollette on the other. Hence they are not surprised at the political handsprings which have been turned by a few Ford enthusiasts since the pro-Coolidge announcement.

Staff Correspondent of The Daily Worker to Cover the United Mine Workers' Meet

A complete representation of the Daily Worker staff will be present at the convention of the United Mine Workers of America in this country, January 26 to 31.

The progress of this convention will be watched with interest by every militant in the country, by the conservatives as well as the workers. What stand will the union take on the issues that confront the miners? Will Alexander Howatt be reinstated to membership in the union? Will the reactionary elements maintain control or will the progressive forces gain?

The Daily Worker will give you the facts. Send in your bundle orders now! Subscribe now! You cannot afford to miss the story of the greatest convention of the year. Order from The Daily Worker, 1640 North Halsted Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Two Workers In Bitter Fight; Every Vacant Job In Illinois

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The bottom of the present unemployment wave is not yet reached, says the Illinois department of labor in its review of the industrial situation during December.

During the month two workers applied for every vacancy in Chicago and three for every two opportunities to work in the state as a whole. According to the report "the free employment index shows that unemployment is regularly worse in January than it is in December."

The down grade, upon which industry started six months ago, has continued. At the end of 1923 there were 4.5 per cent fewer workers in Illinois factories than there were in the middle of the year. Employment in December reached the same level going down that it reached going up in December, 1922.

Considerable importance is attached by the review to the fact that six of the largest iron and steel producers in the state laid off 7% of their employes while three other producers employing between 500 and 1000 workers cut their forces by 20%. Conditions in the steel industry are universally recognized as an important barometer of the general industrial situation.

One-sixth of the building trades workers were reported out of a job during the month as a result of the seasonal let up in construction work. But the fact that declines are also reported by some of the industries producing building materials in contrast to large increase a year ago indicates that less construction work is assured for the coming year. Glass factories report a drop of 4.3% in the number of their employes whereas in December, 1922, they increased the number on their payrolls by 8.8%.

Car building took a sharp downward turn in December. Practically every car building concern laid off some of its workers. The decline of the industry as a whole amounted to 9.3%. Car shops operated directly by the railroads also showed a falling off in the number of employes on their payrolls.

Shoe factories which normally expand in December showed a considerable drop in employment. Tanneries also laid off 5.5% of their workers. Employment was reported on the down grade generally in the food industries; automobile production was at a low point and furniture factories reported that they were laying off help.

The few lines of manufacturing activity reporting expansion include planing mills, paint factories, printing plants and clothing concerns. Expansion in the last two branches of industry is seasonal.

The Illinois free employment offices reported nearly 4000 fewer workers placed than in December, 1922. The index of the service shows 145.5 applicants for every 1000 opportunities to work which compares with 181 in November, 96 in April when employment conditions were best and 117 a year ago.

Anti-Alien Attack Is Favorable To Ku Klux Klaners

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—Agitation against the coming of immigrants to the United States becomes more desperate under the stimulus of Secretary of Labor Davis—himself an immigrant—and under cover of the mask of anonymous pamphlets, which are sent to all press correspondents and members of Congress at frequent intervals.

One of the latest of these irresponsible pamphlets is entitled, "The Foreign Language Press—America's Greatest Menace." It asserts on the cover that "Jewish and Roman Catholic efforts to seize America by gradual usurpation are being fostered in 1,400 alien newspapers, printed in 40 different languages, working for the destruction of the Protestant American institutions established by immediate legislation."

JEWISH WORKERS FIRST TO AID RUSSIAN FAMINE GIVING BEGGARS' DANCE

The Jewish Workers' Relief was the first organization to come to the assistance of the famine stricken people of Russia and the work to help built the Russian schools.

This organization is giving a Beggars' Dance, Jan. 19, at the Wicker Park Hall. The price of admission is 51 cents. All friends of Soviet Russia and readers of The Daily Worker are invited to attend.

Watch the "Daily Worker" for the first installment of "A Week," the great epic of the Russian revolution, by the brilliant young Russian writer, Jury Libedinsky. It will start soon.

Daily or Weekly?

Our mail is going to undergo a big increase in the hours just ahead. We can feel it coming. But that is what we want and expect.

We want to know from the readers of The Daily Worker whether we shall publish Daily or Weekly installments of the already world-famous Russian novel, "A Week."

We want our readers to get the greatest possible enjoyment out of the reading of this tremendous piece of literature. Will this be secured thru the appearance of installments daily, or one installment each week in the Magazine Section.

We cannot make up our own mind in this matter. What do you say? Write your views to the Editor, The Daily Worker, 1640 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Illinois. Do it at once! We want to go ahead with the publication of this example of the new literature that is a direct result of the world influencing Russian Revolution. How shall we do it?

Petite Feet Will Twinkle at Food and Metal Frolic

The Food and Metal Trades groups of the Trade Union Educational League have extended a cordial invitation to the workers of Chicago to attend the dance which will take place in Wicker Park (small) Hall, on Saturday evening, Jan. 19, for the benefit of the two bulletins which are published by the left wing elements in these industries.

Snappy music supplied by a union orchestra will satisfy the devotees of terpsichore, palatable food will be served by union food workers and soft drinks will be there aplenty.

A committee of female militants is bending every effort to make this affair a success and of course they are not going to be disappointed

Recognition Meeting In Pittsburg

Arrangements are now being made in every important industrial center of the country to hold big mass demonstrations Feb. 3, in favor of Recognition of Soviet Russia. Pittsburg was first to report to the National Office that arrangements for a big mass meeting have already been made. The meeting will be held at the Lyceum Theater at 2 P. M.

In Chicago the Committee on Mass Meeting will be held Jan. 27, instead of Feb. 3, at Ashland Auditorium, corner Ashland and Van Buren Aves.

RUSS RECOGNITION MASS MEETING AWAITS DECISION

Schenectady, N. Y. City Councilmen to Act

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—At a meeting of the English Branch of the Workers Party of this city, it was decided to arrange a mass meeting for "Recognition of Soviet Russia" to be held Feb. 3, in accordance with the instructions from the National Office.

When the arrangements committee applied to the mayor of the city for permission they were informed they must secure permission of the Commissioner of Public Safety.

The Commissioner informed the committee that it was unlawful to hold any meeting unless sanctioned by himself. He requested a written application in which the precise purposes of the organization should be stated.

This was done in the following letter sent to the Commissioner:

"Complying with your request that I submit in writing (according to our interview) the desires of our Party to hold a mass meeting, Sunday night, Feb. 3, at Turner Hall, 863 Albany Street, I am sending you this letter.

"The subject will be 'The Workers' Party Answers Secretary of State Hughes on the subject, 'Recognition of Soviet Russia.'

"The time and place are indicated above. The speaker has not yet been assigned. We expect to sell one thousand tickets of admission at ten cents.

"If permit is not allowed for a meeting at which there is no admission charge on Sunday night, permit is requested for a meeting at which admission is free."

Signed, Chairman of Mass Meeting Committee.

The Commissioner postponed decision, deeming it necessary first to consult the Corporation Council.

EUGENE V. DEBS CONTRIBUTES TO GERMAN AID FUND

[illegible] from [illegible] to help the starving workers of Germany. Following is the letter which accompanied the contribution, the money itself having been sent to Debs by Victor L. Berger, who is in Germany at present:

"Dear Comrade Debs:

"I am ill and in pain and able to do nothing for the present. But I am sending you a check for a relief fund of the starved German workers and their families.

"Capitalism, as I contemplate the conditions there, and the way the American workers had a call to tax all their resources and do it promptly and cheerfully for Debs and Ruthenberg, is responsible for every child that comes out of Germany to serve the capitalist class. This especially is true of the little children who are perishing from starvation. My mite is enclosed. I wish that I could do a thousand times more.

"Fervently wishing you all success in this most humane and dutiful undertaking, I am as ever,

Yours fraternally,
EUGENE V. DEBS."

At the same time the contribution from Debs was received a cablegram arrived from Germany saying that unemployment and misery were on the increase in that country.

The cablegram follows:

"Friends of Soviet Russia:

"Unemployment is growing. Misery is on the increase. Double your aid. We serve daily 15,000 meals. Have opened children's home. Your support urgent. Help with money and goods."

Signed,

International Workers Relief Committee.

Predicts New Quakes

ROME.—Following verification by the Japanese quake of Tuesday of Prof. Raffaele Bendandi's prediction of disturbances on that date, the Italian seismologist, who claims to have discovered the secret of earthquakes, now states that the Japanese seismic movement will extend to other portions of the globe.

There will be new quakes in the Pacific region, he says, between Jan. 18 and 20, and on the Asiatic coast on the 20th or the 21st.

BITTER WEATHER MEANS AGONY TO JOBLESS ONES

Cold Wave Adds to Misery of Hungry

The second cold wave of the winter hit Chicago yesterday. With thousands unemployed and many thousands homeless, suffering was general. Charity organizations report the usual rush of the very poor to get a bit of coal for warmth.

In the districts behind the stock yards the poor had little concern for food. Their interest and worry was confined to getting heat. Many charitable agencies not expecting the cold wave, did not have enough coal to go around. Late in the day such doles as were handed out were cut down, so that all might have something. Many of the poor said that they had received so little coal that it was hardly worth their while to take it home as it would only damp their suffering and would not relieve it.

The worst sufferers from the cold were the thousands of homeless men who make West Madison and Canal streets their headquarters. A light snow gave employment to only 400 extra snow shovelers. The Dearborn Street branch of the state free employment agency reported that scores of stiff, half frozen men were at the door waiting for the opening hour in the morning.

Many of these were suffering so from exposure that they would not have been able to go to work if work had been offered them. They were permitted to sit around the waiting room and get warm. Up to a late hour yesterday afternoon many of them had not left the place.

One Negro who had been there all day said that he had come up from the South several months ago urged by rosy promises of easy work and high wages. After working a few weeks he was laid off and had not managed to get a job since. The night before being without the price of a bed, he had been compelled to walk the streets all night in the bitter cold.

He declared his intention of going back South as soon as he could.

Old timers around the employment office said that they had not seen so many men looking for jobs for seven years.

"The tragedy of the thing is that most of these men have been out of work so long that they are not properly fed and could not do a good day's work if they got a job. A boss would fire most of them after a couple of hours."

Minority Democrat Ally of Reaction

WASHINGTON.—At the first opportunity, Floor Leader Garrett of the Democratic minority in the House has come to the rescue of reaction by a betrayal of the principle of majority rule in the national legislature. He has stood up against some of the conservative spokesmen of his own party, and argued for the retention of rules under which the House may be gagged thru a trick on the part of a single member.

Push "The Daily" in Unions.

The DAILY WORKER should be pushed in union meetings and on the job writes Willie Kern of Chicago in a letter to the editor. "On the job and in their unions the workers are interested in ideas. At home they don't do much thinking. Push the DAILY WORKER where it is easiest to get a hearing for it," he advises.

Publish It Daily

To The Daily Worker: I say that "A WEEK" should be published daily.—A. Weiss.

CANONSBURG, PA., WORKERS IN DEFY TO THEIR BOSSES

Wallop the Schemes of Business Barons

CANONSBURG, Pa.—Workers of many crafts assembled in a "Union Mass Meeting" in the Star Theatre here, and thru competent local and district speakers of known ability and tendencies, flayed the attempts of the money and business barons to remove the present chief of police.

Chief of Police J. W. Crum had evidently been "falling down" in the estimation of the bosses of Canonsburg and vicinity in that he has not been "knocking off" the active workers and the "dangerous Reds."

In this section of Washington County, Pennsylvania, which is known as the Chartiers Valley, there abides the best bunch of fighters for the rights of the workers, that have ever been gathered in one section, and the result is a forward looking Labor movement.

So it is that a "RIGHT" is needed who will see to it that the activities of such men are not only curbed but actually stopped for the Tin-Plate and Mining interests do not want to be continually shutting down their plants in order to get rid of the undesirables.

This method usually checks the flow of profits and they figure undoubtedly that inasmuch as they have to pay a chief of police anyway, they had better have one who will do their bidding.

The workers were not long in deciding that action was necessary, and this meeting which was well attended and very enthusiastic was addressed by the officers of the local tin-plate workers union, the Central Labor Union, the Business Agent of the Machinists District No 6) and by the Rev G W Williams a local colored preacher

World War Crippled 10,000,000

WASHINGTON.—Over 10,000,000 men were disabled as a result of the world war, says the rehabilitation report of the International Labor Office. Of these disabled, Germany has 1,587,000, France 1,500,000, Britain 900,000, Italy 800,000, Russia at least 775,000 and Poland 300,000.

Voluntary systems of cooperation by employers in restoring these war cripples to industrial life have been only moderately successful. Legislation compelling employers to engage a certain percentage of disabled men has been enacted in Austria, Italy, Serbia, Poland and Roumania, and has been proposed in France and Czechoslovakia.

BIG AIR SHIP BATTLES STORM BACK TO HANGAR

Was Guided to Safety by German Captain

LAKEHURST, N. J.—Another terrible disaster of the air was averted today when the giant United States dirigible Shenandoah, with 43 officers and men aboard, turned her mooring mast and swept into night by a 70-mile gale, beat its way back against the storm and was nosed into her hangar at 3 a. m.

For nine hours, the airship, partly disabled, fought the elements that threatened her destruction.

The night air was alive with wireless messages as a desperate battle followed the progress of her struggle.

Thousands, sitting safe and snug in their homes while the fury of the winter's worst storm beat outside, followed, too, with the radio receivers to their ears, the plight of the gale-driven dirigible.

Then, after being carried as far as Newark, sometimes at a speed of more than a mile a minute, the Shenandoah proved her self mistress of the storm.

Under the guidance of Captain Anton Heinen, a veteran Zeppelin expert the ship was nosed back into the teeth of the driving rainstorm.

Slowly her propellers gained headway against the diminishing winds.

Back at the aviation field, where her commander who had been at the helm since the ship was sent off into the night, officials of the naval air service waited, straining their eyes into the inky darkness.

The nose of the Shenandoah has been torn off completely and flapped from the masthead at the end of her mooring chair.

Prof. Harry Ward Brands Daugherty As An Ignoramus

Attorney General Daugherty's letter to Federal Judge Martin J. Wade of Iowa, justifying the sentences of political prisoners during the war was characterized as "ignorant alike of the issues of law and public policy" and "unworthy of the chief law officer of the government," in a statement issued by Prof Harry F. Ward, chairman of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Quoting the verdict of Senator Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania in the case of the Chicago I. W. W., Prof. Ward asserts that "if the cases had been considered on their merits the men would have been out in two years ago. The Chicago case is typical of all the others.

Daugherty's attitude, the statement says, "represents his own bitter feeling about radicals and is unworthy of the chief law officer of the government. It is understood that the Attorney General opposed the release of the political prisoners in the face of President Coolidge's determination to let them go, desiring to attach to the commutations of sentence the conditions which he knew the prisoners would be unwilling to accept."

COAL MINERS MEET IN PRE-CONVENTION COMMITTEE SESSION

INDIANAPOLIS (By Federated Press)—Members of the convention committees of the United Mine Workers of America began arriving in Indianapolis today in preparation for the opening of the International convention here next Tuesday.

The committees on resolutions and constitution are going through hundreds of resolutions and suggestions sent in by locals by way of districts and states.

THINK CRUISER TACOMA IS TOTAL LOSS AT VERA CRUZ

WASHINGTON — Navy officials fear that the cruiser Tacoma, aground near Vera Cruz, Mexico, is a total loss.

A dispatch received by the Navy Department early today said the cruiser was virtually on its side with three of its four compartments flooded with water. No information as to the crew has been received.

Hatters Victims of Disease.

DANBURY, Conn. An old method of dying hats has been revived in the Danbury hat shops. The hat dyers are compelled to dip their hands and arms in the dyes used in the hats. Many serious infections have occurred, in some cases resulting in gangrene. The Hatters' Union has sent samples of the dyes used to chemists in New York for analysis.

The hatters declare that they are the victims of enough occupational diseases without running unnecessary risks to make more profits for the bosses.

FIGHT GAG LAWS STILL ON BOOKS OF 34 STATES

Against Advocates of Unpopular Ideas

"Gag" laws against advocates of unpopular ideas, passed chiefly in the so-called period of 1918-19, are still on the statutes' books of 34 states and four dependencies, a survey just completed by the American Civil Liberties Union shows.

Twenty of these states and dependencies have used the laws, and 114 men are serving terms up to twenty years in the prisons of seven states under this legislation, with more than 30 others awaiting trial in California and Idaho, the survey indicates.

An Attack on Radicals

"Our survey reveals," said Prof. Henry L. Ward, chairman of the Civil Liberties Union, "how the machinery of the state has been used to prosecute radicals with the end of the war emergency which had served as a convenient pretext for suppression by the federal government. Altho the same federal agencies continued to make or instigate arrests the job was being handed over to the states for completion. The activities of Burns, which resulted in the arrest of William Z. Foster and 31 others by the Michigan authorities in a case in point. These laws violate the right of free speech and should be repealed. Those convicted under them should be released."

The laws are classified by the Civil Liberties Union survey under the heads of "criminal syndicalist," "sedition" and "anti-red flag," with 21, 30 and 29 statutes respectively. The syndicalism laws have been used mainly against the Industrial Workers of the World, with California taking the lead. All but five of the 114 men now in prison under this legislation as well as the men awaiting trial, are members of the Industrial Workers of the World. The arrest of 32 Communists in Michigan in August, 1922 was also made under the criminal syndicalism statute.

Laws Aimed at Communists

The so-called "sedition" laws, on the other hand are aimed chiefly against the Communists. The conviction of William Bross Lloyd and 17 others in Illinois, and the conviction of eight communists in New York were under "sedition" acts, altho the law in New York is technically known as the "criminal anarchy" statute. With the exception of one man in Illinois, the prisoners in both these states have been released by executive clemency, both Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York and Governor Len Small of Illinois declared in granting the pardons that the punishments imposed by the laws were too rigorous.

These "gag" laws have been held unconstitutional in only two states, Montana and New Mexico. The Supreme Courts of California, Illinois, the sedition law in part, the Supreme Courts of California, Illinois, Minnesota, New York and Washington sustained these laws. Appeals have been carried to the United States Supreme Court on both the California and the New York statutes in the cases of Charlotte Anita Whitney and Benjamin Gitlow respectively.

The campaign for the release of the 114 men imprisoned under this legislature has been given added impetus by the commutations of the sentences of federal political prisoners before Christmas, California tops the list with 97 political prisoners, and 35 others awaiting trial. Washington has five, Idaho four, Pennsylvania four, Oklahoma two, and Kansas and Illinois one each.

WITH THE YOUNG WORKERS

CONDUCTED BY THE YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE

The Youth of Russia

This is the second of a series of three articles on the Youth Movement of Russia and what the American workers movement can learn from it. The last article will be published in an early issue of The Daily Worker. Watch for it.

By WILLIAM F. KRUSE.

The Russian Youth Movement, the "Komsomol," is recognized as a most important unit in the Communist battalions. In number they are slightly larger than the Party, but their discipline is no less strict nor are membership demands less rigorous. Youths of working-class origin are admitted upon three months' probationary candidacy, those coming from middle-class families are put thru severe tests of loyalty during a two-year period.

The basis of their organization is the workplace and their tactics toward their non-partisan fellow-workers are the same as those of the older party members toward elder workers. The Komsomol exercises a sort of protectorate over the interests of all working youth, so effectively is this stewardship exercised that on every possible occasion the non-partisan youth express their gratitude toward the Komsomol in the form of gifts and trophies.

In must be clearly understood that this powerful organization of Communist youth in no way divorces itself from the life-currents of the young mass. Altho jealously restricting membership to those who understand and are qualified to carry out its requirements, it does not thereby wall itself off into a world of its own, as did the old YPSI of this country. This predecessor of the Young Workers League in America copied the error of its parent body, an error common to movements which, following tactics antiquated by the swift march of events, become institutionalized and make of their own mere existence an end, rather than a means toward the ultimate end for which they were organized.

The former youth movement in this country suffered from this institutionalism. It existed like a well-groomed church upon its own self-sufficient superiority to the world-at-large. The Yipsels ran better meetings, plays, debates, dances, etc, than any other young organization. On the basis of superiority they sought converts, and got some seven thousand of them. But in the main their only point of contact with the young mass was on occasions of contest with other self-sufficient and superior organizations of youth, at debates, etc., where the best result that could be hoped for was the respect of opponents for our prowess.

Young communists must work more from their fellow youth than from as opponents. We cannot tolerate that working class youth should be our opponent—respectful or otherwise. We must make him first our friend, then our member. Hence we do not organize ourselves to play or work or debate AGAINST the non-partisan youth, we set ourselves to play WITH, work alongside of our fellows so that we may take an active part in their struggles against our common foe, and eventually achieve leadership and direction of the entire youth movement.

The Russian Komsomol understands this thoroly. It has had good teachers. When the young communists of Russia wish to celebrate the birthday party of their organization the party does not send them third-rate speakers whom no one else will listen to.

I attended such a celebration in one of the finest halls in Moscow and the speakers list included Trotsky, Zinoviev, Zenkin, Kolaroff, and many other very prominent leaders. And when they ask for a study class leader or a text book or song leader or anything else, the best available is put at their disposal.

Educating Building Trade Scabs.

Building trade local unions, as well as building trade workers, would be more than unusually interested in the bosses' apprenticeship plan in the building trades exposed by Max Schachtman in the January 15th issue of The Young Worker.

In every trade in the building line the employers are taking the ground from under the feet of the unions. A large number of young workers are being put thru short courses in the bosses' carpentry, plumbing, bricklaying and other building trade schools, and it will require only a brief depression in the building industry to effectually plant these young fellows on building jobs with the resultant lowering of wages in all lines of building and allied trades.

"The danger of the young workers being used as scabs against the organized labor unions of this country is ever present and grows from day to day. The workers must awaken to this danger to the existence of the conditions for which they have organized and fought for years, and accept the program of the Young Workers League, which is not only to the interest of the youthful workers of this country, but for the adults as well.

BIG LIEBKNECHT MEMORIALS ARE TO BE HELD HERE

Foster, Bedacht, Minor, Edwards, Speakers

The Young Workers League of Chicago, will stage its biggest event of the year, Sunday evening, Jan. 20. In every large industrial center, mass meetings and demonstrations of a similar nature will be held. The occasion is International Liebknecht Day.

Five years ago, at the height of the Spartacus revolt in Germany, its leaders, Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg were murdered by Noske's White Guards. Liebknecht, a Communist, stood by the working class. During the war, he was arrested and thrown into jail because he dared to fight for his class against the rule of the German Kaiser.

Minor Among Speakers

It was during this time that Bob Minor, Editor of the Liberator, was in Germany, and his talk on his visit there will be very interesting indeed.

William Foster, who passed thru volcanic Germany, will speak on Liebknecht as a pioneer of the Revolution. Max Bedacht, now editor of the Soviet Russia Pictorial and warm friend of Karl Liebknecht, will review the Revolutionary situation in Germany today.

John Edwards, who was a delegate from the Young Workers League to the Second Congress of the Young Communist International, will describe Liebknecht's activities in the International Youth Movement. Peter Herd, organizer of the Chicago Young Workers League, is scheduled to speak on the Significance of Liebknecht to the Young Workers League.

Mass Singing Is Feature

A musical program, provided by youngsters will also help to make this the best rally of the Young Workers League. A feature will be mass singing, something never tried before in Chicago.

The demonstration opens at 7:30 P. M., at Prudential Hall, North Ave. and Halsted St., Sunday, Jan. 20.

The following are some of the cities where meetings will be held:

Boston, Mass.; Bridgeport, Conn.; Belleville, Ill.; Bethlehem, Pa.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Cleveland, Ohio; Cromwell, Minn.; Chisholm, Minn.; Collinsville, Ill.; Christopher, Ill.; Daystown, Pa.; Dillonvale, Ohio; Detroit, Mich.; Duluth, Minn.; Gary, Ind.; Hans, Wyo.; Houston, Pa.; Hammond, Ind.; Ironwood, Mich.; Kansas City, Kans.; Los Angeles., Cal.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Mass, Mich.; Monessen, Pa.; Newark, N. J.; New Haven, Conn.; Oakland, Cal.; Omaha, Neb.; O'Fallon, Ill.; Patterson, N. J.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Providence, R. I.; Rochester, N. Y.; San Francisco, Cal.; St. Paul, Minn.; St. Louis, Mo.; Superior, Wis.; South Bend, Ind., and Zeigler, Ill.

All militants, young and old, should attend these meetings.

CHICAGO PAINTERS SCORE EXPULSION OF "BILL" DUNNE

Elect Delegates to Relief Conference

Local 97, of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, in a resolution passed at a regular meeting, scored the expulsion of William F. Dunne from the American Federation of Labor convention at Portland, Oregon, criticized the Palmerite suggestion to the convention for their attitude on the expulsion and condemned the manner in which the incident was treated in the official organ of the painters' organization. The resolution follows:

Whereas, the Painters' delegation to the 43rd Convention of the A. F. of L. at Portland, Oregon, in their report as published in the December issue of the official organ of the Brotherhood of Painters, referred to the expulsion of William F. Dunne from the convention of the American Federation of Labor in the following manner: "Some of the members of the delegation had words with a delegate of the city that these they voted against the expulsion of William F. Dunne, also that they voted aye, nay"

Whereas, the expulsion of the duly elected delegate from his constituents is of serious import and is a regrettable incident but not to be underestimated.

Whereas, the suggestion made by the painters' delegation that all delegates that voted against the expulsion of William F. Dunne should be expelled is not simply mean the end of free expression and mass conversation, a threat.

Therefore, Be it resolved, that local union No. 275 of the Painters and Decorators in session assembled, do hereby condemn the position taken by the painters' delegation in regards to the expulsion of delegate William F. Dunne and especially against the manner in which this incident was treated in their report in our official journal, and

Be it further resolved, that copies of this resolution be sent to the American Federation of Labor, the Journal of the United Painters and Decorators of Lafayette, the Chicago Federation of Labor, Painters District Council No. 14, and the Labor Press, and the Daily Worker.

Signed,
Lichtenstein, President,
Friedlich, Secretary.

The union elected delegates to the conference for German Relief, and called a special meeting in two weeks. An assessment of $1 per member for German relief was voted unanimously.

BY FRITZ KREJCSI

(Staff Correspondent of the Federated Press)

AT SSIC, Czecho-Slovakia.—New tendencies were manifest at the convention of the German Social-Democratic Party of Czecho-Slovakia, just held here. The convention was attended by fraternal delegates of many European Socialist parties.

Keen interest attached to the speech of the Czech Socialist visitor, who stated that co-operation between Czech and German social-democrats is important, but that tactical forces prevent this unity today.

The German-Bohemian Socialists expressed themselves in favor of a more realistic policy than they have hitherto pursued. This is taken to indicate that they will abandon the semi-nationalist attitude which has hitherto characterized their history. This nationalistic Socialism has been evoked by the chauvinism of the bourgeois parties which has appealed widely to the workers. The German-Bohemian Socialists voted for an internationalization of the proletariat.

The party's adherence to the Hamburg International was approved, altho a strong minority insisted that this would entail a drift to the Right among the workers.

CUT FREIGHT RATES LA FOLLETTE HOPE FOR THE FARMERS

WASHINGTON.—American agriculture is faced by so grave an emergency that nothing short of an immediate reduction of freight rates on farm products to pre-war levels will save it from "appalling disaster," says La Follette, quoting statistics to support his claim.

He has offered a resolution in Congress directing the Interstate Commerce Commission to proceed to restore the freight rates that prevailed, for farmers' products and supplies, before the war.

The committee on interstate commerce, on which he holds leadership of nearly half the members, will deal with this measure.

Watch the "Daily Worker" for the first instalment of "A Week", the great epic of the Russian revolution, by the brilliant young Russian writer, Jury Libedinsky. It will start soon.

Austria Has High Hopes For Daily

From Austria, torn and ravaged by the imperialist "peace," comes a greeting to the "Daily." Because of the difficulties faced by the Communist Party of Austria, that sends the greeting thru its secretary, we feel particularly bound to do all in our power to see that their highest hopes for the "Daily" are fulfilled.

Vienna, Austria, December 19, 1923.

Dear Comrades: We greet with joy the appearance of "The Daily Worker", as a proof of the invincible spread of Communist ideas and the deepening of the class struggle. We are convinced that despite all attacks which are made against you, you will champion the interests of the working class as unflinchingly and persistently as all your sister-parties, and that in the decisive struggles against the capitalist class you will lead the American working class to victory, to Communism. The Communist Party of Austria wishes you success in your work.

With Communist Greeting
For the Communist Party of Austria,
Franz Gottlieb, Secretary.

SACCO-VANZETTI DEMONSTRATIONS IN SO. AMERICA

Strikes Also Called by Militant Workers

BOSTON, Mass.—Detailed stories of the recent demonstrations in South American cities on behalf of Nicola Sacco and Bartholameo Vanzetti have just been received by the Sacco-Vanzetti Committee.

In Montevideo, Uruguay, a huge mass meeting was called for Liberty Square. When the meeting was opened, the square which is larger than several American blocks, was crowded from edge to edge. Dozens of speakers were necessary to tell the crowd to hear the story of Sacco and Vanzetti and how they had been the victims of a frame up in the free United States.

Use of Hails Forbidden

After the demonstration a general strike lasting forty-eight hours was called.

In Buenos Aires, Argentine, a movement for a general strike was well under way when the military was called in and the use of all halls forbidden and all radical papers suppressed. Officers from American ships in the harbor asked what all the striking was about. "Who are Sacco and Vanzetti," they wanted to know. The workrs told them.

South America has been the scene of scenes of demonstrations on behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti. The workers there know the story of the prosecution of these two foreign-born workers probably better than the workers of this country do.

New Trial Flies Still Higher

Judge Webster Thayer, trial judge in the famous Sacco-Vanzetti case, refuses to give attorneys in the case any idea when he will decide motions for a new trial now pending before him.

There are five motions awaiting decision by Thayer. Four of them attack the credibility of witnesses. If, as the defense hopes, they can shake the judge's faith in their character the judge will be bound to grant a new trial.

State Witness Is Discredited

If the judge decides not to grant a new trial then the defense will appeal to the supreme court of the state charging error in the trial.

If, however Thayer does grant a new trial he will fix a date for the trial and with most of the state's witnesses discredited as acquittal is certain.

Militant Miners Chief Is Very Popular Even Behind Prison Bars

GRACE BAY, N. S.—Many messages of sympathy and encouragement to the provincial jail during the hunger strike of Tom McLachlan, the imprisoned former secretary of the United Mine Workers of District 26, have been received by the strike committee here. He was convicted of "seditious conspiracy" during the 1925 strike activity. Among the messages received was one from Jim Gr[illegible] a prominent Cleveland, O., New York gifts and assistance from all sections of Canada and the United States and some from England.

He also received a letter from Mother Jones from Colorado, in which she wrote: "You are behind the bars for a holy cause, not false. Cowards and traitors die often; and, oh God, they have some horrible deaths yet that."

Courage, my brother, and do not falter. Cowards and traitors die often; and, oh God, they have some horrible deaths yet that."

Worker Fears that Communism Will Steal His Individuality

To THE DAILY WORKER: I have been reading some of the literature issued by the Workers Party and I hope you'll excuse me if I am not going to speak about the merits or demerits of your party. But I would like to call your attention not to overlook some of the merits and good features of so-called capitalism.

As you speak in the name of the working-class you have yet that after capitalism has been overthrown, that the working-class will respond to a theoretical program.

Nobody disputes that conditions are such what we would not want them to be.

But do not overlook the fact that the despised capitalist system has given you and me a certain amount of individuality which you and I are cherishing. Will the Communist state guarantees the same? In regards to workers being exploited by the capitalists will they not also be exploited under communism to sustain its regime? As somebody will have to support the government whether it is a political or industrial.

As no matter what kind of a government you have somebody will be on top. I doubt even if a Communist would want to see a system where everybody would be levelled down. What a monotonous state of affairs we would have to would we not?

Anybody can rave against capitalism if such one exists but I prefer the present system until it can be proven that the workingman has the ability to govern himself.

ARTHUR MULLER.

OUR REPLY.—We are glad to learn that the literature you read had enough punch to it to induce you to write us judging by your grammar your acquaintance with the King's English is not very intimate, which is one grievance you should register against the capitalist system.

You fail to mention even one of the merits or good features of the capitalist system except the very doubtful individuality which it has given you. Your main argument seems to be that until the workers prove that they have the ability to govern themselves you will suik in your capitalist tent and refuse to participate in the work of developing a working class movement that will train the workers to govern themselves and run industry for the benefit of the people.

By the way are not the Russian workers governing their country fairly well, inspite of the legacy of ignorance they inherited from the Czar and the attacks of their capitalist enemies? The only way the workers can prove that they are to rule is by undertaking the job and putting the capitalists to one side, just as they did in Russia.

Communists do not "rave" against the capitalist system. They state that it fulfilled its function in developing the industrial machinery necessary to produce commodities to such a state that enough of the necessities of life can be produced in a few months to supply all human needs for the rest of the year. This tremendous productive power of our present society gluts the market with commodities which cannot be bought by the workers who receive only a small portion of the product of their toil in the form of wages. The result is unemployment and misery.

Production is now carried on for the sake of profit and not for use. Every year the few grow richer and the many grow poorer. Capitalism is no longer able to satisfy the needs of the people. In Europe it is already standing on the brink of the precipice. It is doomed.

Communists assert that the next step in the upward climb of the human race toward a higher state of existence will be a system where production will be carried on for use and not for profit. This will free mankind from the last form of class rule and will usher in the classless society. As government means the rule of one class over another by force; the abolition of capitalism and class rule would mean the elimination of government. But in the transition period from capitalism to communism a Workers' Government revolution and abolish the power of the capitalists, and until the bourgeois ideology is outgrown. This transitory government will assume the form of a dictatorship.

The workers cannot be exploited by themselves under the system of society where exploitation cannot exist. Exploitation will not be tolerated. The workers, once the secure power will no more go back to capitalism than the bourgeois revolutionists went back to Feudalism. The hands on the clock of evolution cannot be turned back.

Of course the workers will support their own government but it will be THEIR government. Why should they not? And those who will occupy the highest positions in the workers' government are those best fitted for the positions. Like Lenin, that other Children in Russia. Everybody will not be levelled down under communism. The levelling will be by the ladder—there will be plenty of full activity to break the monotony of existence under communism, in the effort to make of this world the heaven that the preachers tell us exists in the skies. I believe it will compare very favorably with the "varied" life of the wage slave under the present system of society who works at the machine when he is lucky enough to get a job only to be thrown on the scrap heap when the boss can no longer grind profits out of him.

Fear not the loss of your individuality if this glorious system should be lost to you. We will try and fit you out with a new soul under the Communist republic.

How We Lead the Junior Groups
Article No. 2.

Experience has proven the correctness of the principle on which the formation of the Junior Groups is based—that unless organization, the leadership of the children's groups is a task belonging particularly to the Young Workers League. Except for a few isolated instances, the members of the Young Workers League have proven themselves to be best fitted for the leadership of the children's groups, in the following respects:

(a) They adapt themselves more easily than the adults to the peculiar features of the children's psychology.

(b) They are not so much inclined to be "non-political and humanitarian" as are the adults.

(c) They understand better than the adults how to build up the activities of the Junior Groups so that these become a natural preliminary stage of the Young Workers League, preparing the children to enter the league.

These points are all brought out in the decisions of the First International Conference of Children's Leaders which was arranged by the Young Communist International. We now come to the question: Have our Young Workers League members the requisite ability and experience for teaching?

In reply to this we assert that the formation of the Junior Groups is not primarily a problem of pedagogics. It is a question of the class struggle, a political task, a struggle to liberate the proletarian child from the mental servitude imposed upon him by capitlism; it is the enrolment of the child into the ranks of the revolutionary working class.

The question of knowledge and of pedagogic ability is important, of course, but its importance is secondary. The first requisite is that the education shall be revolutionary and of a communist nature. We have—and we say it with pride—in the Young Workers League, communists in the best sense of the word, and being communists they are naturally better qualified to conduct this work of communist education.

There is still another matter: the pedogogics of the capitalists, even those of the most progressive elements of the capitalists, are not fitted for our purposes. Working class pedagogics has yet to be evolved.

They cannot be learned from books, but must arise from experience. Pedagogs cannot be educated, they must grow into their work. Thru their devotion to communism, thru their understanding of the importance of the coming transition to the workers' cause, thru their love for the workers' children, the Young Workers League members find their way to the minds and hearts of the children and eventually solve the problem of pedagogics which are, after all, based upon this approach.

NEW YORK MASS MEETINGS TO HIT HIGH RENTS

Crystallize Sentiment Against Landlords

(By The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—The high rents which are causing much suffering to working class districts, will be discussed at a series of mass meetings called by the United Council of Working Class Women.

The council has been working hard on the question for some time and decided the occasion was opportune for crystallising the anti-landlord sentiment into effective action. The workers of New York's congested tenement sections are up in arms against landlords who charge high rents when they do not furnish heat or hot water.

Family Incomes Reduced

The boosts in rents have cut into family incomes to such an extent that much suffering has resulted.

At a recent meeting of the council, when it was decided to call the mass meeting, it was also decided to issue a pamphlet in several languages telling the story of the workers' sufferings as a result of high rents.

Feeling against the profiteering landlords ran high at the meeting, despite the fact that it was a working committee which met and did its work surprisingly well. One woman, not a member of the committee, said she came from a woman's organization in the Bronx and that she couldn't help coming as she had to "pour her heart out" and tell those who were so deeply interested in the housing problem what a terrible time she was having.

The woman said she lived in an apartment house at 60 West 119th St., that she had moved into "six dark rooms" five months ago, paying $70 a month for her flat while the older tenants were paying only $50 and $55, and that "absolutely no heat has as yet been provided, no heat and no hot water."

Both had been solemnly promised her for the first of January, whereupon she paid this month's rent. The woman was in tears. She has a child of five at home and fears that the first sharp snap will bring pneumonia.

"My landlord," she said, "owns 2k houses but he himself lives in the finest hotel in the city. He has comfort and warmth and gets it out of the freezing bodies of our little children and the broken hearts of their parents."

MENTIONING THE MOVIES

Crystallize Sentiment Against Landlords

The story runs as follows: A poor Italian boy, Ricco Renelli, is exploited by the rich, but is rescued by the way, the boy is reported killed in the fight accepts the sponsorship of a wealthy politician and finally and despite the fact that the wealthy world-wise Baron buys up her "masterpieces" and pays her board bill, remains poor and undefiled to her young lover who wasn't killed after all.

On this innocent frame has been hung one of the most vicious anti-working class propaganda attacks ever presented. The rich art-patron, Baron Berselli, is made into a war profiteering capitalist, who seeks to become Dictator of Italy by the road of his profligate extravagance. The wickedness of "red strikers" is pictured by putting sixes into the hands of a crowd of revolting dressed "extras" and setting them to making kindling out of a railroad coach. Mussolini "Fascism" is covered in the Italian ward-heeler type (named "Schirnoff") who, while not engaged in holding small soapbox meetings on pulling sheets off a tiny flat bed press, goes around in person bribing noble young Fascists with oodles of the Baron's money. If the Baron could not hand out subsidies big enough to buy a better printing press, he certainly deserved to be beaten. Two and a half counter-revolutions could be run off at slow speed by the time this dirty opus printed the first "Proletarian Dictatorship Proclamation."

The brave youths return from the war, and find that their medals and banners are not properly respected. So they organize into mobs, and fling stilletos and anti-strike warnings at darkened doorways. When the reds organize to counter-attack, they are disarmed by the police, but the title writer explains that Italy was fortunate in having a King with enough sense to turn the government over to Mussolini, the "man of the people." Mussolini and the King appear in person of course.

Boringness seems ill at ease in this obviously impossible character presentation. Except for his attempt to capture the Fascist leader, there is not single action of the rich benefactor that can be called even unkind. His connection with the Reds is exactly the opposite of the first Lord Fauntleroy. The star could have made much of a sympathetic presentation of the character.

Barbara LaMarr plays the beautiful Italian girl to perfection. She is 100 per cent convincing in all times, the distorted story permits.

But Bert Lytell has a hard time trying to make a heroic character out of negligible material. He is a street waif who kills his aged benefactor by his sudden repudiation of the old man's principles. He rebuffs his childhood sweet heart of father happiness and home, and later at the head of a gang of scoundrels, murders a policeman, made by her in his own memory. Her society friends run from her like frightened rabbits after the public "rebuke" of the leader of the mob, her career is ruined. She goes boldly to the "hero" and confronts him with the knowledge in striking with most violence at a defenceless and blameless woman. For a moment he feels the pangs of remorse, only to viciously assault her a moment later on suspicion of intimacy with the Baron. She comes through his trial by strangulation successfully, so far a brief time he believes in her and she loves him more than ever. To square herself with the Baron, she holds an auction sale of the stuff bought with his money. She asks to warn the brave Fascist of a plot against his life, is suspected of treachery for her pains, and only "wins out" by going to jail for one of his killings. Movie heroines are gluttons for punishment.

Except for the gorgeous natural settings and good camera work, the picture is poor even from a purely artistic standpoint. The mechanism of propaganda making is so obvious that it creaks. Every bit of hackneyed hoakum known and generally discarded in Hollywood is trotted out in this film. The boy vagabond who afterward becomes the Fascist leader is shown parading a ragged Italian flag from a crowd of other urchins—and the village priest blesses his patriotism. Were the relations between Palace and Vatican so friendly forty odd years ago?

The book was written in 1901, about characters then in their teens. It was contemporaneous when Fascism was undreamed of and when Mussolini had achieved no fame even as a ranting Socialist. This alone shows that book and author are only used camouflage for a hideous Fascisti propaganda stunt which merits the enmity of America's workers.

Organizing the Discontented.

NEW YORK.—What may be termed a Bok consolation tournament is being organized by the Women's Peace Union. The Union has requested contestants who are dissatisfied with the Bok award to send copies of their projects to the headquarters of the peace group. The Union mentions that it has no money for a prize, and unsuccessful competitors in the $20,000 contest any offer a fair hearing and a chance to vent their disappointment. Free publicity is promised to candidates in the Bok "semi-finals."

"Broom" Disturbs P. O. Chiefs With Minds of Eight

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK — "Broom" which terms itself an international magazine of the arts, has felt the unmistakable fist of the Post Office Department. The January issue of that periodical has been declared unfit for circulation by the postal authorities. The Solicitor General of that Department has communicated to this effect to Maxiew Josephson, editor—or is it wielder?—of "Broom".

The Post Office Department gave no reason for its action, apparently assuming that wielders of Providence are inscrutable—and thereupon calling it a day.

They Can't Understand

Josephson asserts that he and his colleagues are at a loss to understand what calls for this act of suppression.

"We have studied the issue carefully," he said, "and we see nothing pornographic in it."

Josephson adds that the magazine is a publication of literature and the arts and pleads for freedom of expression in artistic matters. He does not consider this to be a just ground for suppression.

"Well, well," was the only comment made by a New York artist today, when informed of Josephson's opinion.

$3 to Sinclair Lewis

The suppressed issue contains four poems by E. E. Cummings, author of "The Enormous Room"; stories by Philipe Soupault and Kenneth Burke and the announcement of a $3 prize to Sinclair Lewis for his work in advancing the American novel. The latter is a jibe at "The Dial" which recently awarded $2,000 to Van Wyck Brooks.

"Broom" enjoys a reputation for literary and artistic expression and its suppression is generally regarded as fixing the mental age of postal chiefs at 8.

Blaming It On God

ST. LOUIS.—Society is saved again. A day and night guard is to be maintained over civilization to protect it from the "labor agitator." This is to be done by the self-styled offi. Louis Association for Better Citizenship," organized few know whom, where or how but seemingly with an unlimited flow of coin at its disposal. This good citizen factory is buying large chunks of newspaper advertising space for its propaganda of which the following is a sample:

"Employers are not hard as a class. . . . It is the agitator the trouble maker who incites jealousy, envy and lust, and the square Deal is forgotten. Labor should not forget that the agitator owes his living to the false circumstances he can bring about. His is a business of trouble making—the more trouble he stirs up, the greater his pay.

"It is good to remember that we are all men created in the image of God. To some a rough, unfed more of abuse than to others, more skill than to others, more thrift than to others. Inequalities can be provided for to the end that all are adequately remunerated for the labor they perform.

GERMAN LABOR LEADERS RUIN TRADE UNIONS

Year	Membership	Unions	Loss
1900	680,427	62	3,220
1905	2,017,039	57	5,230
1910	2,573,000	48	11,500
1911	2,865,000	50	10,500
1912	3,100,000	50	12,000
1920	7,980,000	52	22,000
1921	8,000,000	62	27,271
1922 (2nd quarter)	7,737,000
1923 (2nd quarter)	7,727,200

In 1922, 180,000 workers organized in the trade unions were affiliated with the Red International of Labor Unions and the number of sympathizers was estimated at two millions.

The figures of this year show a regrettable decrease of members." This is partly due to the bad economic situation, but mainly to the disillusion and disappointment of the rank and file. The present new decrease of the trade unions membership in the fourth quarter is really fatal. The General Trade Union Federation today—altho it is greatly regrettable that the trade unions are thus weakened—no longer has the right to speak in behalf of eight million workers organized in the trade unions. However, it still does so, and of course in favor of the employers. What is more, it actively helped to establish the military dictatorship and the overthrow of the Saxon and Thuringian workers.

The collapse of the trade unions becomes especially evident in their financial aspect. The treasuries are empty. This is so serious that the membership dues are no longer sufficient to pay the employees. Naturally under such circumstances—if one judges from the only too well known trade union point of view—one cannot carry on struggles, one can only sabotage and stop such struggles by means of the bureaucratic apparatus and with the assistance of the unjustified authority that goes with it.

NEW PROPAGANDA BY PLEADER FOR THE FOOD TRUST

Boost Scheme for Chain of Meat Stores

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Charles J Brand, former protege of Joe Cannon and Herbert Hoover in the days when Heney and the Federal Trade Commission were on trail of the Chicago meat packers has breaking has now bobbed up again as a special pleader for the packing trust.

In a press release from the office of Secretary Wallace, dated at Omaha Jan 17, where the American National Livestock Association is in session, Brand is quoted as arguing that the big packers ought to be permitted to operate chain stores for retail meat. This is now prohibited by the "consent decree" under which the Big Five evaded the prosecution which the federal administration was forced to institute against them in 1919.

Retaining meat thru large organizations operating chain stores would tend to cut down food costs at the greatest single point of expense," says Brand, and would benefit both producers and consumers."

Secretary Wallace describes Brand as "consulting specialist in marketing for the United States Department of Agriculture." When the packers' secret correspondence files were captured by the Trade Commission some years ago, it was found that Brand was considered one of the safest friends among the packer lobbyist corps—and the beef trust itself. The committee was not efficient except in oppression and robbery.

Where the Fur Flies

Many people are getting excited over Senator Wheeler's resolution to investigate the recent sealskin contract which has, to date, robbed the government of from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. We see no case for even getting warmed up over this scandal.

The wives and daughters of the American workers and farmers are not burdened with the problem of buying sealskin coats. Most of them are having the time of their lives making ends meet.

But this controversy in the sumptuous chambers of the United States Senate has another angle to it which is of considerable interest to those who work for a living. The company accused of having defrauded the government of these many millions, is a St. Louis concern. The items of the contract enabling these millionaire fur dealers to plunder the country's treasury have been kept a secret. When the sanctity of this contract was first questioned in the Senate, United States Senator Selden P. Spencer of Missouri leaped to his feet and made an eloquent defense of the International Fur Exchange and Fouke Fur Company. Now it turns out to be that the gentleman from Missouri has been for some time, and still is, the legal representative of the firm which has put over this contract.

Nine days after the Honorable Spencer made his speech in the Senate in defense of these fur interests the latter sent a $30,000 check to his firm, Spencer and Donnell.

To some this incident may appear as a shocking perversion of American democracy. We are not at all surprised at it. We would be surprised if Senator Spencer's conduct had been otherwise. The experiences of our workers and poor farmers abound with overwhelming, indisputable evidence proving that the government and its various subdivisions are owned body and soul by the employing class. Senator Spencer was sent by the big interests of Missouri to work for them in the Senate. He is doing his job well. The only point for the working masses to take cognizance of in this little scandal is that they must take a leaf out of the book of their exploiters and oppressors. The workers should send their own representative to the Senate and House and then do what the employers are now doing, hold these representatives strictly accountable for the services they render.

And as far as this little scandal itself is concerned it will prove to be, at most, only a tempest in a teapot. The investigation will die of atrophy. No congressional fur will fly. Senator Spencer is too powerful a figure in the reactionary Republican machine and too loyal a servant to the capitalists even to be molested by senatorial investigators.

Relief Without Conditions

The presence of three German Relief organizations in this country seems to have puzzled many workers as to the difference between the three. They are the committees organized by Hellman-Maria Dawes, the banker, Samuel Gompers and his reactionary labor lieutenants, and that organized by the Friends of Soviet Russia and Workers' Germany. There is a vast difference between them.

Dawes, the banker, who represents the big business, is interested in keeping the German workers alive so they may be exploited for his benefit. The bankers are making big loans to the German industrialists. But starving workers cannot toil ten or twelve hours a day. And without workers the German industrialists could not guarantee Dawes and his friends the large returns on their money which these charitable gentlemen demand. The Dawes relief means feeding the worker in order to make him fit for ruthless exploitation. It is relief with conditions.

Gompers is raising funds to maintain the German Trade Union bureaucracy which has been in open alliance with the German industrialists and is today the strongest bulwark against the emancipation of the German workers from capitalism. The money will be distributed through the Ebert, Scheidemann Socialists, among the select workers who remain loyal to the renegade labor leaders who betrayed the German workers. It will be used to divide the workers. It means relief with conditions.

The Friends of Workers' Germany are opposed to such relief. They believe in famine relief without conditions and they call on all fairminded American workers and farmers to protest against the Dawes and Gompers form of relief. They call on all fairminded Americans to insist on famine relief without conditions or political discrimination.

The Flight of Capital

Despite the continued assurance given British Big Business by Ramsay MacDonald that he will be nice to the capitalists when he becomes Premier, many English bankers and manufacturers are transferring their investments to what they deem safer fields.

Because of their fear of increased taxes and the approaching collapse of the franc many French capitalists are also beginning to follow their English brothers' example.

Naturally the safest field for such British and French investors is the United States. This country has been least undermined by the World War. Our capitalist political edifice has been least rocked by the revolutionary volcanic eruptions that have shaken the European capitalist governments. Thus many European men of wealth are buying up steel and railway securities on the New York Exchange.

Prior to the war European capitalists controlled a good deal of these stocks. In 1915 close to three billion dollars of American railway securities were in the hands of European investors. More than one-fourth of the stock of the United States Steel Corporation was then in the hands of Europeans. When America entered the war and the European capitalists had to foot some bills they transferred many of their best securities to American hands. By 1917 half of the railway stocks came into American hands. The proportion of United States steel stock owned in Europe fell to less than one-tenth in two years.

The total significance of this flight of European capital to the haven of Wall Street cannot be estimated yet. It is obvious, however, that these European capitalists are not helping capitalism much in their own countries when they ship their capital across the Atlantic. This hegira of capital to our shores is bound to have an enervating and disastrous effect on the capitalist system of production and exchange in Europe. To the United States the influx of European capital may mean a temporary rise in the prices of securities. But this rise will prove only an inflated bubble and burst with deadly effect when the market collapses afterwards.

The Profit-Sharing Hoax

The employers are making a desperate effort to interest their workers in co-partnership schemes.

These are not new steps that the capitalists are taking to allay the growing industrial discontent. The United States Corporation has been the pacemaker in peddling this discredited patent medicine to its overworked and underpaid mass of employees.

The Endicott-Johnson Shoe Corporation, one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world, has been practicing this game for some time.

Various Standard Oil companies, the New York Central Railroad Company, the Ford interests, Eastman Kodak Co., and the Guarantee Trust Company are among the other leaders in instituting profit-sharing schemes.

The object of these fake attempts is obvious. The capitalists believe that by interesting the workers financially in the enterprises, strikes will be prevented, discontent scotched, and the undisputed rule of the boss in the shop assured. Once the workers are afflicted with the notion that they have an economic, tangible interest in the company they will not want to do anything which might decrease the profits of the firm. This is the faulty reasoning of the employers. It is no surprise, therefore, to see that profit-sharing and trade unionism don't mix. Profit-sharing schemes are in vogue in those industries where unionism is taboo, where the workers have been crushed in their attempts to organize.

Profit-sharing is only another artificial, fraudulent attempt to bolster up a crumbling, evermore historically useless system of economic and social relationships.

Our Union Bankers

Many "friends of labor" are hailing with glee the spread of banking institutions conducted by trade union leaders and labor organizations. Liberals are greeting these ventures as the heralds of a new era of peace in industry and the end of all class strife between the owners and those who work for them.

Banking is not a trade or an art the cultivation of which is limited to some divinely appointed group or class of the population. When business is brisk and the economic conditions are good it is not a difficult matter for trade union leaders to engage in banking. But we realize that the economic today will give way to an economic to-morrow of serious depression. We are convinced that this to-morrow is not distant. What will happen to the labor bank when panic seizes the New York Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade? Will these banks weather the storm then?

One might answer that the labor banks will pull through if they invest in gilt-edged securities. That is more easily said than done. Besides, labor banks will become a menace to workers out of jobs and hungry if their deposits are tied up in gilt-edged securities but are not fluid and moveable. Big banks like the National City of New York and the Continental and Commercial of Chicago can very well afford to invest in safe fields that do not permit wholesale withdrawal of funds in times of stress, because their depositors will, as a class, not be compelled to fly to cover when the winds of depression blow hard. [With banks having workingmen depositors in the main the story is quite different.

Unite World's Militant Farmers

"Izyestia," of Dec. 19, publishes an interesting interview with Comrade Dumbal, the political secretary of the International Farmer's Council. This Council came into existence immediately after the International Farmer's Conference held in Moscow last October. The council is now taking active steps to organize an international of the revolutionary farmers of the world.

The farmers movement is especially strong in Germany, where a number of farmers' conferences were held during the last several months. The work of all of these conferences was based on the theses of the first International Farmers' Conference held in Moscow. The conferences decided to carry on a campaign for the establishment of workers' and farmers' governments. In order to facilitate their work the various farmers' organizations of Germany with a total membership of 1,200,000 have united into one organization. This union of poor and tenant farmers has established a secretariat in Berlin and publishes an official organ. The secretariat devotes most of its attention to Bavaria and Prussia, where the farmers are most backward.

Similar movements for uniting the peasants are noticed in other countries with very good results. In Czecho-Slovakia and Roumania a strong opposition movement was started between the existing agrarian parties. The opposition stands on the platform of the theses of the International Farmers' Council.

In Poland a peasants' conference was held in November in the city of Warsaw. At this conference the appeal of the International Farmers' Council was read. As a result of this a split almost occurred as part of the delegation was in favor of the theses.

In Canada the "Farmers' League of Canada" has joined the International Farmers' Council. In France a part of the Peasant Syndicate is for affiliating with the International Farmers' Council and is now endeavoring to unite all the syndicates into one organization.

The Peasants' League of Mexico is now conducting a vigorous campaign all over Mexico for affiliation with the Council. In Brazil and Argentine the peasants' unions have already informed the council of their affiliation. A campaign for affiliation is now carried on between the various peasants' organizations of Soviet Russia.

The International Peasants' Council is spreading its work all over the world. It is intended to begin the publication of an official organ to be issued in four languages. The Council also plans to establish an international agrarian institute consisting of scientists of various countries. The purpose of this institute is to study the conditions existing among the farmers in various parts of the world and to devise ways and means to have these conditions improved.

What Was Back of Hughes Fabrication?

"Pravda," official organ of the Russian Communist Party, of Dec. 23, publishes the following interesting editorial dealing with Secretary of State Hughes' statement regarding the instructions alleged to have been sent by the Communist International to the Workers Party.

"Why did Mr. Hughes, the State Secretary of the United States, have to publish a knowingly false, evidently composed by provocateurs, "instructions" supposedly sent by the Comintern to the Workers Party of America? ONLY in order to gain time. ONLY in order to prolong the moment when the American Government, under the pressure of such important factors as are the interests of the country, will be compelled seriously to consider the question of relations with Soviet Russia.

"The falsity of the public documents is so evident that they cannot serve even as an external reason for the excuse of the uncompromised position of Hughes, who represents the interests of industrial capital. The American are too sane a nation to fall for such a rough lie as the legend of Zinoviev's instructions to the Workers Party of America; to "Receive some instructions in pioneer work (sapper work)." But at the same time they have no basis to deny the fact that the Comintern is also sane enough to make realistic analyses of the relative forces and to suppose that the Comintern will urge the Workers Party of America —whose main efforts at the present time are directed to the gathering of the communist forces and to the formation of a strong left-wing in the labor movement—to raise the red flag over the White House.'

"It is plain that all this is absurd. So absurd that it would not last even a few days. It is at once met with a killing laughter. The Washington falsifiers failed last spring in quoting an article of the "Pravda" of April 16, which falls on a Monday. It happens so that on Monday the "Pravda" does not appear at all. This time the fabrication was composed so carefully that the date of the documents was not mentioned. But this stupid cleverness naturally exposes them from top to bottom, as the absence of the date under such conditions is in itself an undisputed proof against those who are making use of this document.

"But if this forgery—which is not the first of this kind—cannot free the American Government from the necessity to seriously give an answer to the offer of the Soviet Government to open negotiations, it can at least postpone the amount of a serious consideration of this question. Compelled to be satisfied with such a postponement, Mr. Hughes expects to make use of the paper jam of the Commissions of the American Congress. The investigation of the question in the Commission, where piles of paper will be written up, where many witnesses will be questioned, where many voluminous stenographic reports will be gathered, gives the forgers a chance meanwhile to pose with knowingly false documents. MEANWHILE it is possible to make an attempt to cover up the importance of the offer of the Soviet Government, MEANWHILE it is possible to strengthen the repressions against the working class, to disrupt the Convention of the Workers Party, which is expected to be held shortly,—in a word, it opens the possibility for the hired bourgeois henchmen to untie their hands.

"But there is every reason to believe that those social circles of America, which are interested in reopening commercial relations with our Union, not mentioning already the Workers Party, will take all measures possible not to allow this speculation on evidently false documents. The investigation of the documents must not be permitted to be buried in the parliamentary commission. It must be turned over for investigation to an arbitration court. This demand of Comrade Chicherin must put an end to the provocative work of the forgers."

The Communists in Greece

By M. RODINOS (Athens)

(Note.—M. Rodinos is the leader of the Greek Communist Party.)

The terror exercised by the "revolutionary" government of Colonel Plastiras now ruling Greece is of a nature to rouse the masses and to call for vehement protests on their part.

Our party never fails to voice this dissatisfaction. By placing itself at the head of all manifestations of protest, it shows to the masses that it is their true protector against bourgeois oppressors who exploit them either under the royalist or the Venizelist cloak.

The masses see in our party the only organization which stands up for their interests. It is for this reason that, in spite of their opposition to the "revolutionary" Director of Col. Plastiras, they refused to be drawn into the recent royalist coup d'etat of General Metaxas who, together with the royalist generals, wanted to subjugate the working masses of Greece by pretending to free them from the yoke of Plastiras.

The discontent of the masses caused by the high cost of living, unemployment and the war peril, has increased considerably the influence of our party.

It is owing to this discontent that the "revolutionary" directory has decided to hold the parliamentary election towards the end of December, 1923, with the object of handing over its power to a constitutional government and thus free itself of responsibilities.

In order that no account need be rendered by the Directory and the Venizelist party (which brought it into being and manipulates it in its own interests), no reference is to be made to the elections made in council in the future, whether in the Venizelist parliamentary majority. All sorts of tricks are being resorted to. Even proposed to bring, on ships (at the expense of the government), thousands of refugees from Asia Minor to constituencies where Venizelists are in a minority, in order to ensure the latter's success at the election. The ministers have sent secret circulars to the prefects, instructing them to favor Venizelist candidates at the forthcoming election.

Under such circumstances, one can well imagine what the election results will be. The royalist and the bloc will abstain from voting as a protest against such tricks. Our party, for which these results do not count, will take part in the election. The communist party is putting up its own candidates and is conducting its own campaign. The candidates are to be judges by the audiences attending the election and other meetings of our Party in the various provinces, several of our candidates have a chance to be elected in spite of government tricks and corruption of all kinds.

The democrats who recently raised the question of the proclamation of a Greek Republic, having been telegraphically warned by M. Venezelos not to raise this question before the election, are "lying low." According to reliable information, this telegram and the instructions sent by Venizelos in a letter, contained information to the effect that Great Britain would not view favorably the dismissal of the Dynasty and has even signified that it would use force to prevent this. This is only one more proof that the bourgeois politicians of Greece are nothing but blind tools in the hands of foreign capitalists. Our Party, divulges all these facts to the masses and calls upon them to organize themselves and to prepare for the establishment of the workers' and peasants' government. This slogan, brought forward by the Communist International, which has been adopted by our Party, is forwarded to and by the masses and will bring shortly considerable revolutionary advantages to our Party.

Frank Bennett, the coal magnate of Louisville, who posed as the nephew of Judge Gary, and got arrested for his impudence, should learn that petty larceny does not pay. He went into high finance to the extent of $21,000. Nobody but a piker would risk his reputation in so small a venture. What must his Wall Street competitors think of such petty financing?

Governor Len Small, flayed, clawlegged, excoriated, denounced and condemned his enemies who have accused him of diverting to his own use money earned on state funds. The only point at issue between Small and the gang who are after his scalp is the privilege of using the power of the state government to bring home the spoils. Those who are for want to be in. Graft is inherent in the capitalist system and will not be eliminated until that system goes and with it the selfish psychology which it breeds.

The Russian communists are about to enter another orgy of mutual arrests, assasinations and other crimes too numerous to mention in the columns of the capitalist press. Trotsky within the past two weeks has gone on a two months vacation to the Crimea, has been arrested, was sick in bed and again was leading the Red Army against the Central Committee of the Communist Party. We may expect him to be kept quite busy between now and the Communist Party convention.

Even Japan is feeling the tremors of social revolt. One of the strongest cabinets in the history of the Island Empire has resigned as a result of fear of the growing restlessness of the masses. This cabinet which was in power at the time of the great earthquake was guilty of the execution of thousands of socialists in the early days of the calamity. How many were murdered will never be known. But the cabinet feared the consequences of its acts and in order to mollify the anger of the masses came out in favor of a movement to grant universal suffrage to all male subjects over 25 years.

Socialism is becoming a real menace to the ruling classes of Japan. The infiltration of communist ideas has brought uneasiness to the breast of capitalist powers. At present socialism in Japan is like an untrained giant just waking out of its slumber, but it is awakening and will join hands with the rest of the world's workers in overthrowing the system that is the cause of all the woes of mankind.

The Tribune columnist who evidently has a sense of humor had the following comment to make on this: Now how in the world did that story get in Wednesday's paper? Bolshevism only faces the worst crisis in its history on Monday, Thursday and Saturdays. On Sundays, Tuesdays, and Fridays bolshevism has successfully surmounted all its difficulties and is making treaties with France, England and America. On Wednesdays German specialists refuse to operate on Lenin.

CHURCHILL ASKS WAR ON BRITISH LABOR PARTY

SOVIET FOE TAKES STAND WITH TORIES

Charges Workers' Rule Will Bring Disaster

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON—The split in the ranks of the Liberal party, caused by the inevitability of a Labor government, is best shown by statements of the leaders of the two wings.

Winston Churchill, aggressive foe of Soviet Rule in Russia, in definitely aligning himself and following with the Tories, said:

"The enthronement in office of a Socialist government will be a serious national misfortune, such as has usually befallen great states only on the morrow of defeat in war."

Lord Asquith, on the other hand, announces that "it is impossible for any member to withhold his support from the Labor Party's amendment to the King's address. (The no confidence motion.)

Churchill Bitter

Churchill's statement is taken to mean that from his section of the Liberal porty, the Laborites, will encounter unrelenting opposition, not only to their amendment, but for their entire program after they are in office.

The foreign policy of the Labor party is the subject of much speculation on the part of all classes. This with the impending railway strike, divides public attention. The Labor party leaders are attempting to settle or postpone the strike, but there is as yet little prospect that their efforts will be successful. Failure to avert the walkout of the railwaymen would mean that the Labor party would take office, while a national crisis of major importance was in existence.

J. H. Thomas, speaking for the Labor party on the question of its foreign policy, particularly as relating to France, said that his party desired to maintain friendly relations with the French government. "We have been asked how we are going to deal with France," said Thomas. "We do not desire a break with France nor do we desire any talk of war with France."

Russ Recognition Soon

J. R. Clynes has reiterated his previous statement that one of the first acts of the Labor government will be to recognize Soviet Russia and its immediate proposal following the organization of a government will occasion no surprise.

There is some consolation being derived by the Tories from the belief, that in the event of war with France, the Labor party could be depended upon to rally the workers for military service better than it could be done either by a Liberal or Tory government.

J. R. Clynes moved the Labor amendment to the king's speech. It was couched in simple terms and he followed it with a speech outlining the failures of the Baldwin government.

Indicts Baldwin Regime

He charged the Baldwin government with having antagonized Russia, France and America; of having failed to relieve the unemployment situation or to attempt to do so. He intimated that the Labor party would advocate a policy of "transfer of population" from one part of the country to another, but carefully avoided mention of the word emigration.

The Labor party amendment was

RICH IN CANADA ALSO IN FAVOR OF TAX SLASH

Use Same Arguments as American Plutes

OTTAWA.—The Dominion government is getting lots of advice from the moneyed people these days to reduce the taxes on income. One of the arguments being used is that Canada cannot afford to have higher taxes on income than has the United States, otherwise capital will leave Canada for the United States.

This argument was used by Sir Edmund Walker, president, Canadian Bank of Commerce, one of the three largest banks in Canada. He referred to the tax on income as "the most burdensome of all the new war taxes," and asserted that heavy income taxes on the "few" was injuring the country by checking investment in industrial enterprise.

A similar plea has been put forward by Sir Joseph Flavelle, formerly a big figure in the packing industry. He admitted that there was a certain amount of justice that those who came thru the war and retained their holdings should pay on what they hold. "But," he added, "the gifts and initiative and qualifications to set enterprise in motion are centered in a comparatively small section of the people," and this "small section" should, he urged, be given real encouragement to go on.

Open Shop Spouter Spoke in Museum; Was Handed Hat

MILWAUKEE.—Open shop propaganda in this city has over-reached its mark in at least one direction. One Frederick Monsen of California came here to speak last year under the auspices of the public museum.

The booked to lecture on science his theme was hundredpercentism. His attack upon socialism so pleased the reactionaries that he was slipped into the list of speakers again this year. On Jan. 6 he held forth on the menace of labor unions.

Now the public museum board, by unanimous vote, has served notice on lecturers appearing under museum auspices that they will be dropped from the public lecture course if they continue to inject political and economic propaganda into their lectures on science. Monsen has been the only offender in a long list of speakers.

CHALLENGE RIGHT OF DAVIS TO DEPORT WORKERS

Fight Is Carried to Highest Court

(By Defense News Service)

WASHINGTON.—Efforts to quash deportation warrants against five discharged political prisoners will be made before the United States Supreme Court next Tuesday by Attorney Walter Nelles, representing the General Defense Committee. All have served five year sentences imposed by Judge Landis in Chicago under the Espionage Law and each came originally from a different country. Pietro Nigra, Italy; John Avila, Portugal; William Moran, Australia; Joseph Oates, England and Herbert Mahler, Canada. The men have been out on $1,000 bonds each since the United States Circuit Court at Chicago sustained the deportation warrants.

Emphatic denial of the constitutionality of the act of congress giving the secretary of labor authority to issue deportation warrants at his own whim is made by the Defense Committee. And the Committee strenuously denies that conviction under the Espionage act for expression of opinion involved a crime of "moral turpitude."

The release of the last three political prisoners at Leavenworth detained after the rest, on deportation writs,—has just been effected on $2,500 bonds each. They are Jacob Tori, an Italian, and Harry Lloyd and Bert Lorton whom the department of labor seeks to deport to England. Their sentences were unconditionally commuted by President Coolidge and the Committee believes they can be completely discharged. Deportation cases are also pending against six other wartime politicals: Richard Brazier, England; Donald Sheridan, Scotland; Peter Green, Czecho-Slovakia; James Slovick, Russia; Vincent Santilli, Italy, and Joseph Graber, Poland.

BIG STORM IN OILY TEAPOT STIRS SENATE

Probe Sends Grafter To Bed; Fall Gets Ill

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—The ugliest scandal in years lurks among the hidden facts about the teapot dome naval oil reserve lease.

There is no longer any doubt of this in the minds of Senator Walsh, and others who have been trying to break thru a wall of secrecy and misinformation given the Senate Committee about the leasing and other transactions which occurred about the same time.

But how to bring out fully the facts which constitute what many Senators declare is "a national disgrace," is baffling the investigators who believe the American people, for their own future protection, are entitled to the whole truth, no matter who is hurt.

Will Erect Graft Barriers.

Walsh has enough to satisfy him that the strongest possible barriers must be erected to prevent anything like the teapot dome lease ever occurring again.

Walsh will try to accomplish two things:

1.—Break the teapot dome lease.

2.—Get legislation preventing future leases of naval oil reserves without the specific approval of Congress.

The Senate investigation has already provided adequate legal grounds to break the lease which Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, gave to the Sinclair interests, Walsh said.

First, there was no authority for the transfer by President Harding of the naval oil reserves to the Interior Department," said Walsh.

Second, the Teapot Dome contract, provided the Government should build oil tanks in return for royalty oil. This called for an expenditure of money without congressional appropriations and was illegal.

The people involved in the oil leases are: Fall, Edward Denby, secretary of the navy; Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy; Harry Daugherty, attorney-general, Sinclair and Doheny.

Fall brought about the transfer of the oil lands from the navy to the interior department of which he was head. Then he leased them.

Denby Takes a Hand.

Edward Denby, secretary of the navy, recommended the transfer of the oil lands over the protest of the men in his department who were supposed to be in charge of the lands. Denby was one of the signers of the leases together with Fall.

Theodore Roosevelt raised no protest to the leasing of the oil lands. He was formerly a director of the Sinclair company and his brother Archie is an officer in the Sinclair company now.

Harry Daugherty is a personal friend of Sinclair. He held up the legal action which would have stopped the Standard Oil from pumping out the oil. Fall used as an excuse for the leasing of the oil lands. Daugherty also approved, informally, the leases.

Harry Sinclair made Fall his attorney after Fall resigned as secretary of the interior.

Edward L. Doheny is one of the biggest oil operators in the world and he has extensive holdings in Mexico.

Shortly after Fall leased the oil lands he resigned and left Washington with $100,000, in cash in a suit case. He said that he wanted to attend to his private business.

The Suit Case Mystery.

Much is being made of the use of a suit case to haul around the money in. That, expert politicians point out, is the correct way to carry corrupt funds.

Now the whole matter is in the hands of God and the president. Will Coolidge demand some resignations? Or will he make Fall an ambassador to Mexico?

Doheny, who denied that he had added Fall to his staff, would not be sore if Fall was sent to Mexico. Doheny owns a lot of oil lands there. He could do with more.

TROTSKY MERELY ILL, NOT ARRESTED, SAYS REPLY OF MOSCOW

Conflicting reports as to the whereabouts of Leon Trotsky, Soviet War Minister, are the basis of the rumors of his arrest. Trotsky is in bad health and a two months leave of absence has been granted him. Attempts of foreign correspondents to locate him have resulted in his being reported as being at his home near Moscow, in the Caucasus and at Juge in the Crimea.

Some of the rumors state that he has resigned all of his posts including that of war minister to which he has been succeeded by Leo Kamenev, his brother-in-law with General Budenny occupying the position of commander-in-chief of the Red Army.

The conflicting reports recall the dozens of damards circulated at various times during the past six years in which Trotsky had arrested Lenin or Lenin arrested Trotsky as the case might be.

WAGE QUESTION BIG PROBLEM FOR THE MINERS

Committees Meeting in Indianapolis, Ind.

INDIANAPOLIS.—The committee on resolutions and the committee on constitutional revisions for the International Convention of the United Mine Workers of America met today with John L. Lewis, president of the miners, to start preliminary work for the convention, which meets here Jan. 22.

The resolutions committee has hundreds of petitions from local unions and individual miners to sift thru before the convention opens.

Resolutions and petitions dealing with the wage question will be turned over directly to the scales committee, which will begin its work in the middle of next week.

Senator Johnson Is Not Available To Our Reporter

Hiram Johnson rested in the sumptuous Drake Hotel last evening before attending the two mass meetings arranged for him in this city.

The Daily Worker was anxious to give Senator Johnson an opportunity to answer the questions put to him in Friday's issue, so a reporter was sent to interview him.

He called Mr. Johnson's room and was informed that the senator would be available in fifteen minutes. He was there on the dot, but was told Johnson would see newspapermen in half an hour.

"Who are you from?" came the query from the senator's room.

"I am from the Daily Worker, a working class paper," was the reply.

Half an hour later our reporter was back, but the only thing he got was this: "Sorry as the devil, old man, but Mr. Johnson is not seeing anybody today. I would suggest that you call tomorrow morning." So that's that.

MAGNUS NOT VERY BASHFUL GIVING VIEWS

Bankers' Hisses Rile Farmer Senator of Minnesota

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor senator from Minnesota, assures The Federated Press that there is no possibility of any support for Coolidge among progressive forces in the Northwest in 1924. Senator Shipstead, Senator Frazier, of North Dakota, and Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, take the same position.

Magnus Johnson says that it did not require the hissing he received from the Pennsylvania bankers when he attacked the Mellon tax plan at their Philadelphia banquet, to make him feel that the standpatters are losing all popular sympathy.

"American farmers are in desperate need," he said, "and they are on the road to political and economic self-defense."

He wants to have the Esch-Cummins act repealed, the water squeezed out of railroad valuations in order that lower freight rates may be honestly and permanently established, and government ownership of railroads achieved through purchase of the roads at this honest valuation. Surtaxes on large incomes should be high, he argues, while no income tax should be paid by persons having only $3,500 income.

Hydro-electric power development, with super-power produced by steam plants at the mouth of the mines, he declares, should be publicly owned and administered. Ontario's public-ownership plan should be adopted in the United States. This would cut the cost of electric light, heat and power in half and would add greatly to the comfort of people everywhere.

Wants Russ Recognition.

Johnson of Minnesota, stands with Borah for recognition of Russia, driving of the French from the Ruhr thru pressure for payment of their debt to the American people, and finally for cooperation with the Labor cabinet in Britain for restoring peace and trade in Europe and thruout the world.

As one of the first steps toward restoring foreign markets for American farm products, he urges the enactment of the Norris-Sinclair bill. Under this measure, farmers would get a fair price for their grain, and the government corporation would store or export the surplus according to world needs. Loans of grain to foreign nations would enable them the sooner to resume industrial production and so become able to buy our crops.

BORAH PROBE TO FIGHT ATTACK ON CIVIL LIBERTIES

Idaho Senator to Hear About Pittsburgh

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—As soon as the senate ends its investigation of the Russian question it will be confronted with a demand for an investigation of the extent to which civil liberties are violated thruout the country.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, has introduced a resolution aimed at putting a stop to the present orgy of the violation of constitutional rights by officers of the government. The bill provides that any officer of the United States government or any of its subdivisions found guilty of violating the civil rights or aiding in the violation of the constitutional rights shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment not exceeding ten years or both.

This bill is of particular importance now because of the continued outrages of the civil rights of the workers of Western Pennsylvania, where the Labor Defense and Free Speech Council is engaged in a desperate struggle against the Steel and Coal Trust attempts to railroad Workers Party members to jail. Senator Borah is interested in getting to the bottom of the Pittsburgh-McKeesport situations, where Workers Party members have been arrested and are facing trial.

Monday, Jan. 2, Andrew T. McNamara, Pittsburgh District Council President of the International Association of Machinists and Chairman of the American Federation of Labor Section of the Labor Defense and Free Speech Council of Western Pennsylvania, Fred H. Merrick, one of the indicted workers, and District Organizer of the Workers Party in Pittsburgh, and Jay Lovestone, who was arrested along with Merrick, Robert W. Dunn of the Civil Liberties Union, and others in the recent free speech fights in McKeesport will see Senator Borah and lay before him all the evidence of the gross violations of the rights of the workers in this state.

Plan Conference on Toilers' Education at Katonah, N. Y.

KATONAH, N. Y.—Plans have been completed by the local committee in charge of Brookwood Labor college for the conference on workers' education here authorized by the last convention of the American Federation of Teachers.

The committee recommends that the conference be held Feb. 23-24, and that attendance be limited to delegates who are members of the American Federation of Teachers, or in a few cases to non-members who are known to have contributed to the building up of the technique of teaching in workers' education. The discussion is to be confined to the subject of the problems of teaching, including teaching in the night school type of classes, teaching in resident schools, including summer school, and correspondence courses.

Brookwood is planning to have a short training course for experienced teachers this summer. It hopes to have each year two or three teachers in residence for the eight months of the winter course. At present there is but one student at Brookwood studying to be a teacher.

Klan Foes Make New Drive to Put Quietus on Masks

By The Federated Press

NEW YORK.—Opponents of the K. Klux Klan are manifesting renewed activity. A report from Iowa were described how a Klan meeting was broken up at the point of revolvers.

Meanwhile the campaign surreptitiously backed by the Klan, against the C. W. W. members in the state of Washington has been abandoned, the prosecutor at Walla Walla rebuking the arresting officer.

More significant is the bill introduced into the New York state legislature by Julius S. Berg, Bronx Klansman, aimed at secret societies and particularly at the Klan. The bill disappears the appointment of a commission consisting of three senators to study assemblymen and five members of the various public men entrusted with the powers of the Klan and similar organizations and investigate what action, if any, the state should take against them.

Within this state and Berg's secret society is sowing the seeds of religious discord and bigotry. I believe this organization, should it overstep the bounds of current reports, are true its activities should be stopped," Berg's bill suggests a $5,000 appropriations for the expenses of the proposed commission.

WASHINGTON.—According to the instructions sent out by the administration of Nicholas Lenine, the Soviet Union representatives abroad, in connection with the approaching world economic conference, particularly at the Hague, have been ordered for their guidance in the matter of executing contracts, to deal with no worlds involving the export of 6,000 tons annually and a minimum specified number of days in open water.

The ships must be equipped for radio-telegraphy and must communicate each day with the office of the ice-breaker which constantly maintains a course in the water.

In accordance with the soviet campaign just launched for the port of Petrograd is ready to receive from abroad 164 loaded ships and bear an equal number for distribution.

LEWIS WIRERS FLYZIK HE'S ON CONVENTION RESOLUTION COMMITTEE

SEATTLE.—For the first time in 10 years the Roslyn-Cle Elum coal fields, employing 1500 miners, have worked a year's work without having to record a single fatal accident, says Martin J. Flyzik, Dist. 10, U. M. W. A., reports. Flyzik, who has investigated the mines in that field ascribes this record to safety co-operation between the men, the union, the state inspector and the company management.

A strike vote at the Patrick mine has been rescinded as the result of an amicable settlement of differences between the men and the company, Flyzik reports.

A telegram to Flyzik from John L. Lewis, international president, places him on the resolutions committee of the United Mine Workers convention, which will start at Indianapolis Jan. 22.

CLEVELAND, O.—Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War under the Wilson administration, today received donations from Florida that he would be a presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket.

FIREMEN PROMISE CHICAGO SOLONS DIZZY FEELING

Will Fight for $500 Pay Raise

Firemen who are petitioning the city council for a raise of $500 a year met an obstacle in the report of the city budget staff which recommends that no increase in wages be granted policemen and firemen.

D. J. Sullivan, Secretary of the Firemen's Association, said that unless council grants the increase asked, the Firemen's Association would put up such a campaign for it that the councilmen would be compelled to pay attention to their demands.

"Efficiency is all right, but we are asking this raise out of necessity. Living costs are going up. We must get the raise if our standard of living is not going to drop. The response we have gotten from the public whom we asked to sign our petitions for a raise shows that they are with us.

"We will put up a campaign that will make the politicians' heads swim if we are refused a raise," he said. "Last year we had enough councilmen lined up to assure us a raise. Just before a vote on the question certain councilmen who were supposed to be with us went out so that when the vote was taken our request for a raise was defeated.

"If that happens again we will start our campaign all over again and make the council realize we mean business."

Imperialists of Little Entente Fear Labor Rule

Special to The Daily Worker

BELGRADE.—The Little Entente conference here, attended by Jugoslavian, Czechoslovakian and Rumanian delegates was dominated by a discussion of the Russian question. Italy's recent approach to Moscow is leading the Jugoslavian government, the other great Adriatic power to exercise pressure towards the East. A Serbian plenipotentiary has been negotiating with a Russian spokesman at Berlin.

Besides the military treaty just concluded between Czechoslovakia and France, a political alliance the terms of which are secret, is said to exist between these countries. It is known, however that the primary purpose of all three agreements is to maintain the status quo territorially and politically among the new states. In view of the strong sentiment for a revision of the peace treaties the Franco-Czech committee are generally branded as reactionary.

Propaganda from the Little Entente capitals is now directed to-ward the Balkans. Bulgaria is the Party of the harmlessness of the existing treaties.

Livestock Ass'n In Omaha Meet Raps Esch, Cummin Law

OMAHA, Neb.—The American National Livestock Association convention here last night adopted resolutions condemning the Armour Morris packing merger and urging the attorney general to invoke the anti-trust laws to prevent future mergers of packing houses. The packers control was also approved.

The resolutions also called for an inter-allied agreement on funding of debts owed the United States and on payment of reparations.

Other resolutions declared charges for grazing on national forests should be reasonable cost of administration only demanded repeal of section 5-A of the Esch-Cummins act, adjustment of freight rates for live stock by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and condemned the farmers' bloc in Congress.

Coolidge Orders Fleet to Tampico For Oil Interests

WASHINGTON.—The defeat of a large force of de la Huerta's army by federal troops near El Carmen, between Esperanza and Tehuacan is announced by the Mexican war office. The rebels lost 200 killed and wounded. Permission to move 5,000 troops thru Texas for use on the gulf has been refused by Governor Davidson.

Tampico is still blockaded by the de la Huerta forces, but it is reported that government batteries have driven their gunboats outside the harbor. It is still impossible for merchant vessels to enter and the United States government has decided to send a number of light cruisers to "relieve the situation."

It is believed that this action was hastened by the seizure by de la Huerta forces of the Panuco oil field, the rich field in which the Standard Oil and Royal Dutch Shell are large producers.

Public Ownership Conference Wants U.S. Power Control

WASHINGTON.—Fred Hewitt, editor of the Machinists' Journal, and Jas. F. Noonan, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, were among the speakers at the national conference on super-power held here, Jan. 18 and 17 by the Public Ownership League of America. Senator Norris of Nebraska and other progressives also took part in the discussion.

The conference endorsed a bill providing for national development and operation of a public super-power system, to be operated by a Federal Public Service Commission, and to cover power development reclamation, flood control and stream navigation.

McCarthy Will Speak Sunday

When Terence MacSwiney was dying in Brixton prison, England, in 1920, as a result of a hunger strike which he declared in his fierce fight against British Imperialism, the longshoremen of Boston, New York and other ports went on strike to prevent the British government from sending arms for the sabotage of the Irish politicians, but that is a long story. Comrade MacCarthy, who has just arrived here from Butte, Montana, where he was associated with William J. Dunne on the Butte Bulletin, will speak tomorrow evening at 8 p. m. in Emmet Memorial Hall, corner Ogden Ave. and Taylor St. His subject will be "The Irish Question."

The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Irish Social and Educational Society. No admission will be charged.

Music, Song and Soft Drinks

Snappy music and good dancing not to mention pretty girl rebels will be the main attractions at the dance to be given tonight at Wicker Park Hall by the Food and Metal Trades groups of the Trade Union Educational League. The dance is being given for the benefit of the left wing papers of the food and metal industries.

The entire staff of the DAILY WORKER has been invited to attend as guests of the T. U. E. L.—paying guests.

The Jewish Workers Relief was one of the first organizations to come to the aid of the famine victims of Russia. All friends of Soviet Russia are asked to come to the Beggar's Ball and enjoy themselves.

Daily or Weekly?

Our mail is going to undergo a big increase in the hours just ahead. We can feel it coming. But that is what we want and expect.

We want to know from the readers of The Daily Worker whether we shall publish Daily or Weekly installments of the already world-famous Russian novel, "A Week."

We want our readers to get the greatest possible enjoyment out of the reading of this tremendous piece of literature. Will this be secured thru the appearance of installments daily, or one installment each week in the Magazine Section.

We cannot make up our own mind in this matter. What do you say? Write your views to the Editor, The Daily Worker, 1640 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Illinois. Do it at once! We want to go ahead with the publication of this example of the new literature that is a direct result of the world-influencing Russian Revolution. How shall we do it?

It is just another blind in which the workers are beginning to take interest.

Delegate McVey of the Chicago Federation of Labor reporting on the Portland convention told of the contempt the officials have for the lone delegates from central bodies who have only one vote. They call them "one hangers."

Ah, Brother McVey, that's quite understandable! They are so called because they are the poor suckers who can do nothing but "cough up."

Fewer Jobs and Higher Prices

LONDON.—With unemployment increasing British labor is confronted by a steady rise in the cost of living. Official figures of the ministry of labor, which labor statisticians criticise as being too low, give the cost of living index for December as 77 per cent above July, 1914, compared with 75 per cent for the preceding month and 69 per cent for June and July.

The official Labor Gazette's report of the percentage of trade union members unemployed at the beginning of December was 10.5 per cent, which was the lowest since the beginning of April, 1921.

MRS. JOHNSON WARNS SPOUSE MILKING HAZARD

Lacteal Fluid Misses the Pail; Not Magnus

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—Mrs. Magnus Johnson put her foot down today on any more milking contests for the senator from Minnesota, when word came from Maryland that Miss Mary Risteau, member of the Maryland House of delegates threw her hat in the ring and called on Johnson to milk or quit.

Johnson was on the point of accepting the challenge provided his antagonist agreed to furnish a cow that was not listed among the antique furniture of some Washington byre, when Mrs. Johnson who is more of a cow specialist than her husband raised the ban on the newest form of campaigning known to politics.

Mrs. Johnson had reasons of a personal nature for her attitude. It seems she does not mind a milking contest as such provided the Senator keeps his eyes on the pail. But she discovered that after his milking debate with Secretary Wallace that more of the cow's product went on Magnus' clothes than into the bucket. Hence the verboten sign over the Johnson desk.

20 PER CENT CUT NON-UNION MINES IS NEW THREAT

War to the Knife to Crush Union

A 20 per cent cut in the wages of non-union miners in the Eastern Kentucky fields was announced today and brings into bolder relief the danger of non-union-competition and unemployment in the unionized fields of Indiana, Ohio and Illinois. More than 40,000 union miners are now jobless in Indiana and Illinois alone; in Illinois 85 mines were permanently closed past year.

Spokesmen of the United Mine Workers look upon the cut as notice served upon the union by the coal operators association that a strike will be forced on the expiration of existing contracts the end of March and believe that the reduction was timed to coincide with the coming convention of the United Mine Workers of America, which opens in Indianapolis next Tuesday. With the expectation that it would have a strong influence upon the deliberations of the 1,500 delegates who will attend.

The ever keener competition between non-union and union mined coal, the extension of the non-union fields, their securing of markets normally supplied by unionised mines, the evidence of the war of attrition launched against the union by the coal operators association, will in the opinion of both officials and rank and file members of the United Mine Workers, be the most important question dealt with, barring the policy for April 1 by the Indianapolis convention.

EXHAUST SOUVENIR EDITION

Because of the tremendous number of new subscriptions, THE DAILY WORKER mailing department has up until now been unable to enter all the new names as promptly as desired. As a result some of the new subscribers have not received their paper on time. This condition has now been remedied and the business office claims that it can now absorb all the punishment in the way of subscriptions that the five wires of the country send in.

In answer to the many requests for the first souvenir issue of THE DAILY WORKER the business office wishes it to be announced that the supply has been exhausted. Some of the Workers Party city central committees have small supplies on hand and those who want to have this historic birthday issue are advised to get in touch with the Workers Party headquarters in their city.

Watch the "Daily Worker" for the first installment of "A Week" the great epic of the Russian revolution, by the brilliant young Russian writer, Jury Libedinsky. It will start soon.

High Rents Great Burden of Growing Jobless Army; Negroes Lured Here Suffer

How bad is unemployment? Statistics say that Chicago is the center of unemployment in Illinois. Statistics don't tell the human story.

Trying to get the human story of a typical family that had suffered from unemployment, a reporter for The Daily Worker went down into the West-Side.

It was found that most of the unemployed struggle along for weeks, and even months, before they will bring themselves to ask charity, or help in other form.

The real first aid that is meeting the unemployment crisis is being done by people who have very little to help those who have less. "Working people help their relatives first, then their friends and neighbors. Without the help of friends and relatives we would have hundreds of people public charges. Rent is the greatest burden the unemployed have to meet. Without help from others many families would be homeless.

"Many families manage to meet unemployment by sending children who should be in school to work.

"I had a case this morning, where the father, a building laborer was out of work for two months. Before that he had been working only occasionally. The son was taken out of school and he got a job at the Western Electric plant. Until he got paid they were in need of help. Unless they got help he might lose his job because he was unable to work steadily."

"A growing boy can't work without enough to eat."

"Time and again we are appealed to for help to tide a family over till pay day when some one in the family has gotten a job following a period of unemployment."

"Just a little while ago there was a young woman in here asking for help. She had been the bread winner of the family. Her father was dead and she had managed to support her mother and two small children. She had been employed in a department store. During the Christmas rush she was not well and after the holidays, she was laid off because she had not been efficient when most needed. Her wages had been so small that she could save nothing. It was a wonder, in fact, how she had managed to provide for four people with them."

"Today she is unable to get work in a store because she does not have the clothes necessary to make herself neat looking. She has been unable to get factory work so far."

"And the people who have come to Chicago, from the south, are really pitiful. They are without friends or relatives on whom they can call for help. And usually they are the first to be laid off when a lay off is decided on. It is a shame and an outrage."

"Every cold snap makes the condition of the poor just that much worse. There is hardly a family where more than one person works that does not have one person out of work just now."

"In such families the wages of everybody are so low that they suffer, unless all the workers are employed. They and the families where there is one bread winner who is not working some here for coal at every cold snap."

KEARST MISSION MEMBER TO SPEAK AT MASS MEETING

Campaign for German Relief Gathering

Seventy delegates representing labor unions and other working class organizations attended a conference called by the Friends of Soviet Russia and Workers' Germany at the Morrison Lyceum, on Thursday evening and voted to support the mass meeting which will be held in the auditorium on January 27th for the recognition of Soviet Russia and aid to Workers' Germany.

Great enthusiasm was created at the conference when a letter was read from the Friends of Soviet Russia stating that the money would be sent to Germany but that the money would be used here to purchase food for shipment over there. This removes all doubts created in the minds of the workers that the funds contributed to German relief would be used for propaganda or to support any particular group in that country.

In contrast to this action is the policy of the Gompers relief committee in sending funds to preserve the power of the counter revolutionary trade union bureaucracy and the bankers relief which goes to the Fascisti.

Among the unions represented were the following:

Local 637, Brotherhood of Painters and Paperhangers; Carpenters Local 1; Painters Local 275; Metal Polishers Local 6; Machinists Local 830; Woodcarvers Chicago Branch and Machinists Local 287.

The local organization of the Friends of Soviet Russia and Workers' Germany is arranging a house to house canvas to begin on Feb. 24. Thousands of workers are expected to take part in this drive.

The January 27th meeting promises to be the largest in the history of working-class meetings in Chicago. Among the speakers already secured are Robert Morse Lovett, Max Shlinsky of the Journeymen Tailors Union of America and candidate for Secretary-Treasurer of that organization, Albert Johnson, member of the Hearst mission to Russia, Max Bedacht, editor of the Soviet Russia Pictorial and James P. Cannon, Chairman of the Workers Party of America.

With the campaign for German relief getting under way the executive national office of the Friends of Soviet Russia are on the increase, running now between $250 and $350 a day. A large shipment of food for Germany is planned for next week. The purchasing of food is already under way.

Plans are being made to call conferences of different languages in order to more effectively carry on the work of bringing aid to the German workers. "The story of the suffering of the workers in Germany will be told in dozens of mass meetings all over the country", declared Rose Karsner, national secretary of F. S. R. and W. G.

Daily Worker Fastest Growing Daily in America

Million All Out Campaign Campaigning for Subs.

Reports from all over the country are adding to the enthusiasm daily. Reports are adding more subscribers to their roll daily to THE DAILY WORKER. There is no question but that the goal of 50,000 circulation as we would rate. The business office has been swamped with orders for subscription for the past two weeks. Morris J. Loeb, business manager, says that at the present rate, THE DAILY WORKER will double its circulation every four weeks.

In every section of the United States and Canada, militant workers are busily adding to the list of DAILY WORKER readers. To recite the details of the activity of all of the loyal DAILY WORKER boosters would require a page of the paper every day. THE DAILY WORKER will, however, publish from time to time accounts of how some of the live wires are making their daily into a success.

Chicago Organizes "Booster Club"

One of the most effective methods of boosting the circulation of the militant labor paper has been developed by Edgar Owens, district organizer of the Workers Party in Detroit. The Workers Party in Detroit has organized a "Scout One Press Club" to carry on a drive to gain new readers for the militant press in general and for THE DAILY WORKER in particular.

Beginning Jan. 9, and winding up with a "Press Banquet and Ball" on January 16, the drive will be conducted with the concerted effort of every member of the Workers Party in Detroit. Prizes will be given to the individuals who secure the greatest number of subs and to the Workers Party branch which secures the best record. In connection with the DAILY WORKER at the present country subscription price of $6 per year the other militant publications are being sold in combination at reduced rates. The Party in Detroit is using the commissions thus paid to Branch DAILY WORKER agents to finance the drive.

How successful this method of work has been is indicated by the dozens of DAILY WORKER agents which come pouring in from Detroit every day.

VIOLENCE UNDER SOCIAL ORDER OF PROFITEERS

Negroes Among Victims Under Bosses' Rule

1. Delaware. Ku Klux Klan opponents attacked Dr. J. W. Hawkins, Klan organizer, at a meeting he was addressing at West Chester, Pa., on Dec. 19, and chased him and his wife out of the town at the point of revolvers.

2. Oklahoma. Eight men are held in connection with the shooting of A. Berch, proprietor of a hotel at Marlow, and his Negro porter, Robt. Journegan, on Dec. 19. Marlow is one of the Oklahoma towns in which Negroes are not allowed to remain over night. When Berch disregarded the warning to dismiss the porter a mob went to the hotel threatening to lynch the Negro. Berch attempted to intercede and was killed.

3. Alabama. In order to avoid a lynching, the authorities at Tuscumbia have spirited away Sam Greenhill and Dave Dewberry, two negroes arrested in connection with the murder of a white man on Dec. 16th.

4. New York. According to a statement just issued by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People there were 26 lynchings in the United States during 1923 against 61 in 1922. The decline is said to the agitation for a Federal anti-lynching law and the northward migration of Negroes.

5. Washington. All of the I. W. W. literature, membership cards and other papers of 4 I. W. W.'s arrested at Walla Walla recently have been ordered returned by Prosecuting Attorney A. J. Gillis who rebuked the arresting officer and declared that membership in the I. W. W. is legal.

6. Kansas. Bert Lofton, an Englishman, Jacob Torie, an Italian and Harry Lloyd, born in Ireland, all of the political prisoners recently released by President Coolidge were immediately rearrested and will be held for deportation. The men will make a legal fight to prevent deportation.

7. California. Patrick D. Ryan and Sam Peterson, I. W. W.'s arrested at Loyalton on Nov. 8 have been released and the criminal syndicalism charges against them have been dismissed.

8. Missouri. At the request of the Southern Manganese Steel Co., the circuit court of St. Louis County has granted a temporary anti-picketing injunction against the International Molders' Union. This company is one of the few which refused to renew the wage contract with the union.

9. Pennsylvania. Twenty Negroes arrested in a raid on a pool-room at Johnstown on Dec. 24 were fined $50 and ordered to leave the city by Mayor Joseph Cauffiel. "Go back south and don't show your face again above the Mason-Dixon line", the Mayor ordered in disposing of the cases.

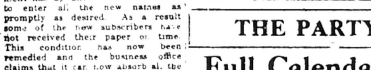
COMMUNIST CHILDREN'S COLUMN



HOW WE START TO ORGANIZE A CHILDREN'S GROUP

ARTICLE No. 3

Nothing in the world is easier than to attract children. Youths, boys and girls of the Young Workers League, go in a group to the place where children are—to the evenings, in parks, public playgrounds, or at some other recreation. They watch the children, join in and gradually and tactfully join in their games, perhaps teaching them a new circle game. Soon the leaders of the children are attracted, an approach to pass to the game. After a time when the leaders are attracted they "Shall we start a group?" At first the children will be suspicious of the [illegible] but will eventually they will [illegible] different suggestions [illegible] other revolutionary song.

[illegible] will [illegible] against [illegible] without [illegible] children [illegible] when we [illegible] a [illegible] and [illegible] these [illegible] we distribute [illegible] Young Comrade [illegible] the children [illegible] are children, meetings [illegible] Would you like to come.

Or else we go during the working class parties in the trade union hall, or that the house or some other room or park or garden we meet these days. Let the children come. The children after beg their parents for permission to attend and they bring their friends and playmates. Children are natural agitators.

Of course there are cases where the parents refuse to permit the children to come. The mass of the adult working class is extremely petty bourgeois in its home life. These parents are made the subjects of special attention of the Junior Leaders. Special parents evenings and conferences are organized in public recreation rooms, whatever be created a closer bond between the adults and the children. Incidentally, by this means many a working class father or mother previously antagonistic or indifferent, is won to our cause. There are instances where the adults are coercive, but not for long. If the child is determined and energetic it opposes the will of reactionary or backward parents and attends the meetings despite the prohibition of the parents. More sensitive children endure great inner conflicts and only these especially need great understanding and patience is used. The active measures which are used by our leaders depend upon whether the parents are merely backward workers or conscious reactionaries and social patriots.

Youth Views

By HARRY GANNES

Liebknecht Day—Day of New Tasks.

International Liebknecht Day will soon be celebrated in this country. Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, leaders of the German Spartacists (Communists) were brutally murdered Jan. 15, 1919, by the Kaiser's officers, with the connivance of the German Socialist ministers. These same Social-Democrats have since betrayed the German workers in more ways than one.

All over the world, on Liebknecht Day, the enlightened working youth pay homage to the work of Karl Liebknecht in behalf of the young toilers. It is not a day for mourning; but rather it is a day of activities in setting new and more difficult tasks before the young.

In the United States, Liebknecht Day is celebrated under the auspices of the Young Workers League of America. The new tasks to be stressed is the widening and the intensifying of the "Hands off Workers' Germany" campaign and the gathering of funds for the relief of the starving German workers and their families. Then, too, the anti-military activities in this country receive a push on Liebknecht Day.

Shop Unit Contest On

Organization on the basis of shop units (also known as shop nuclei) is proving to be the direct road to a mass revolutionary organization of adult and youth in Germany. Of course, conditions play their very important part.

From England we get the news that a large number of shop units are being formed by the young British toilers in the steel mills, ship yards and coal mines.

At the fourth bureau session of the Young Communist International, held last summer, there arose a verbal contest as to which country was more suitable for the immediate organization of shop units, the United States or Great Britain.

In practice Great Britain is winning out. The Young Communist League there has by actual count more shop units than there exist in the United States. By no trick of explanation can the members of the Young Workers League be said to be asleep, tho, the work of shop unit organization is progressing fast over a very wide territory. Our field being larger we will undoubtedly produce a bigger crop than the British Y. C. L.—tho we might need more time for cultivation.

Religionists Admit They're Bad Eggs

Anti-religious offensives take up a goodly share of the time of the Young Communist League of Russia. Seeped in superstition, the Russian peasant makes a difficult pupil, and the youth in Russia are the educators.

Religion is a problem that is not peculiar to the Russians. All revolutionary organizations must constantly let down the cudgel with a smart tap on the head of this ally [illegible]. Especially the youth should perform this function.

In speaking of religion it brings a smile to the face of "unbelievers," when they hear their religionist enemies admit (this is from "The Vineyard of the East," a paper for the devout), that "The Christian people do not live Christ-like lives. In fact their lives are no better than those of the Pagans and unbelievers, and, [illegible] sometimes even worse." Only the cloak of religion is supposed to excuse their missteps

Military Efficiency

The superhuman efficiency of military and naval men and, of course, of the departments that supervise and direct their all-important activities in this imperialistic period is one of the favorite themes of the publicity agents of capitalism.

Recently, however, a succession of severe shocks has been sustained by the gullible ones who swallow this bunk. To persons of a gentle disposition who, like ourselves, suffer keenly by reason of such unfortunate occurrences, it seems that since seven of our colony-grabbing destroyers tried to climb the mountain ranges lying just east of the Pacific coast, not a day has passed that does not bring similar tidings.

Just at present one of our warships—the Tacoma—sent to southern waters to convey a message of light and hope to the natives of those parts who were growing restive under the exactions of American bankers—is aground. The shore, unbeknownst to the efficient commander, was too close to the water.

The Shenandoah, built for us by German mechanics and the pride of our air-fleet despite its Hunnish origin, also slipped its moorings recently and, if we are to believe Secretary of the Navy Denby, all because it was stabled hastily and some inexperienced cowhand tied it up with a bow-knot which the wind blew loose.

Numerous other examples of the efficiency of military and naval experts occur to us, but space is scarce. We have not the slightest doubt that nothing like the machine-like precision of our gallant defenders of profit, interest and rent has ever been seen by man, but a little more knowledge of common things like the weather and the inertia of matter would apparently reduce the casualty list.

Seriously, we venture to say that no more incompetent and conceited gang of parasites ever lived upon the underlying population than these same exponents of an efficiency that exists only in the minds of "drum and trumpet" historians—ancient and modern.

Is there any connection between the publication of the Bok peace plan and the midnight flight of the Shenandoah?

False Friends

The attempt made by the industrial magnates who met in Chicago recently under the auspices of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association to pass themselves off as friends of the farmers.

It was an obvious effort to throw a monkey wrench into the machinery that is now being developed with the object of bringing together politically the forces of the two great producing elements in American life, the working farmers and industrial workers. But the capitalists and financiers have so discredited themselves with the farmers that more than soft phrases or flattery are necessary to convince the exploited farmers that their interests and those of the mortgage sharps are identical.

Benjamin W. Marsh, Managing Director of the Farmers' National Council and a conservative, saw in the Chicago manufacturers' conference "an ill disguised effort to break up the farmer-labor combination." He goes on to say: "This is shown by the vicious attacks made by speakers upon labor and the farmer combination with labor. It will strengthen the farmer-labor combination as most of the spokesmen there for the farmer have been kicked out of farmer organizations. The resolutions and actions of the packed convention mean nothing. It is simply an alibi for the labor-baiters of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association."

The alleged farmers who represented themselves as friends of labor at the plute gathering are merely decoy ducks sent out to catch the unwary. They are false friends and the farmers will treat them as such. The growing spirit of solidarity between exploited farmer and industrial worker is causing the American ruling classes anxious moments and they frantically try to save the situation with bluff.

Mr. F. A. Pattison, of the Committee of Forty-eight, a political party in itself the now considerably reduced in number, sent a letter to Robert M. LaFollette, calling on the Wisconsin Senator to place himself at the head of a third party. Perhaps Mr. LaFollette is hard of hearing, but he has not replied, yet.

The Hibben Case

Because Captain Paxton Hibben, of the Officers' Reserve Corps, refuses to act in harmony with the reactionary capitalist class ruled by the class-conscious Administration, he is threatened by the Chicago Hun from the army as a dangerous person.

He is now undergoing trial before a military board and the charge against him is that he is in favor of recognizing the Russian Soviet Republic contrary to the policy of Charles Evans Hughes and the Department of Justice.

This attack on the freedom of expression of Captain Hibben for taking the side of the progressive forces in American public life is in striking contrast to the attitude of the government toward Admiral Sims, the Anglophile and jingo who committed this government in advance to war on the side of England and openly expressed his regard for reaction everywhere. The Admiral was not even slapped on the wrist the his Pro-Imperial vaporings caused several storms of disapproval to beat against the White House doors.

But Hibben is guilty of a real crime in the eyes of the capitalist class whose faithful servant the United States government is. He has committed the unforgivable sin of sympathising with the Russian workers and peasants who are trying to establish a real democracy on the ruins of Czarism. Had he spent his time glorifying Mussolini or some other capitalist dictator not court martial but high honors would be his portion. The trial of this officer only serves to emphasize our contention that this spurious democracy of ours is only a dictatorship in disguise. It depends on its armed forces to maintain itself and the least indication of liberalism among the army or navy causes the dictators to tremble with fear.

Unless LaFollette gets down to business pretty soon, Calvin Coolidge will have Magnus Johnson milked of all his radicalism, Senator Ladd consigned to the lumberyard and Senator Frazier completely at sea. At this rate it should not take Coolidge long to reduce his enemies to their native element.

Coal, Union and Non-Union

The growth in productive capacity of the non-union coal fields and the prospects of a strike in the bituminous coal industry beginning the first of April are intimately related.

There has been a well-planned campaign engaged in by the coal operators' association, backed by the steel trust, to increase production in those fields where the United Mine Workers of America are either entirely unorganized or have but little foothold.

The center of the efforts in this direction has been West Virginia and it is in this that is found the explanation of the bitter and bloody struggle waged in that state to exterminate the union. West Virginia coal fields are among the richest, if not the richest, in the nation. No mine started in West Virginia has ever failed nor has a mine ever failed to pay from the time the first ton was mined. In this fabulously rich coal belt, where thousands of acres of undeveloped coal lands, owned by individuals who never saw their property, is being conducted a program of expansion designed to flood the eastern and middle-western markets with coal produced so cheaply by underpaid labor that unionized fields cannot compete.

Agreements between the United Mine Workers of America and the coal operators have always taken into consideration certain special conditions in what is known as the "competitive field"—Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and part of Pennsylvania. The influx of nonunion coal is rapidly rendering these special conditions non-existent and the United Mine Workers of America have but two alternatives—to lower their wages approximately to the level of the competitive non-union districts like West Virginia which means surrender to the bosses; or to mobilize the full strength of the organization behind an organization campaign in West Virginia, Kentucky and other southern states.

The life of the coal miners organization depends upon the rapid unionization of these districts just as the success of the offensive of the coal operators depends upon the rapidity with which the output of non-union coal can be increased and unionized mines forced to close.

What fighting spirit and stamina is left in the United Mine Workers after the deliberate bounding of the left wing elements, the expulsion of Alex Howatt, the revocation of the charters of district after district that did not line up with the Lewis machine, the policy of collaboration with the blackest agencies of American capitalism, will be shown at the convention of the organization that meets next Tuesday in Indianapolis.

We do not believe that the United Mine Workers of America can stand two years more of the united front of officials and employers against those members of the union who want a clear-cut policy of organization, a class party to fight the battles of labor on the parliamentary field, protection of foreign-born workers and a general policy of amalgamation for the American labor movement of which they are part.

Samuel Insull, the Chicago traction magnate, can subsidize the local Civic Opera Company but he cannot afford to give the unfortunate victims of antiquated transportation, who pay seven cents to ride in his street cars, a little heat during the zero weather.

AS WE SEE IT

By A. J. CHYZ

The Russian army is now 1,500,000 strong. The Russian people number 140,000,000. The Russian army therefore is 1.07 per cent of the population. Compare this with the army of Wrangel. The army is supported by the people. It enjoys their confidence. It is supported by the peasants and workers. That is why the Soviet government is so strong. Wrangel's army is supported by the French, English and American governments. Von Wrangel. The boy is in New York, getting a kick into the game. He is one of the good-looking "of dese city's four hundred.

Wrangel's army and navy are now actively engaged in overthrowing some workers' government. They are simply going as scabs and helping to lower the wages of the workers of Yugo-Slavia and Bulgaria. They work for six dollars a month, live in huts built by themselves and are ready to be shipped anywhere at short notice. They have won the reputation of being excellent workmen, says the Baltimore Sun. When the Bulgarian Fascisti overthrow the Peasant government of that country, Wrangel's troops will be used against the peasants. They are ready for any kind, the dirty work, the dirtier the better.

We are informed that when Mr. Asquith, the Liberal leader, finished his speech supporting the no confidence vote of the Polish Labor party, two English princess leaned over from their seats in the gallery and smiled at the thought of the king being surrounded by labor advisors. The king may not be overburdened with intelligence but the British ruling class whose puppet the king is, have no fear that the lackey Ramsay Mac Donald is going to give his Majesty any advice that would injure the safety of his realm.

King Tut-ankh-Amen has a rival. Another king by the name of Ay-he made it snappy—appears to have made himself a tomb and now "Tut" is playing second fiddle to Ay. It is always thus. The public mind is fickle. So long as "Tut" was the only mummy in the valley, he had the front page but he is now pushed off the boards by his more easily pronounced competitor. King "Tut" was born in a place where there was nothing in the name, but vowels and consonants.

Judge Landis, the $50,000 per year baseball purist, friend of Samuel Gompers and enemy of human progress is wroth over the release of the war prisoners by President Coolidge. This judicial ignorsmus is fond of making threats of physical violence against any American citizen who is gifted with at least ordinary intelligence. Speaking to a gang of railroad officers he urged them to go to the polls and vote against all those aspirants to public office who showed even the slightest leaning toward common decency during the war. "Paste them one for me" was the final exhortation of Landis.

In the early edition of the Jan. 18, sue of the Chicago Tribune, the Tea Pot scandal claimed the eight column headline. But in the meantime news of the latest amorous adventure of a clergyman hit the editor's eye and the love pirate's escapade crowded Daugherty, Fall and Company into a corner. It gives the clergyman credit, they make good newspaper copy. They give women whose time hangs heavily on their hands an opportunity to live dangerously.

What's the mater with the Riga correspondent of the Chicago Tribune? Trotsky has not killed himself, arrested Lenin, married a Bulgarian Princess, or made a trillion rubles on the Bourse, for over twenty-four hours. Perhaps the lips of Riga's principal liars are frozen by a below-zero wave.

Another new record was established in the growth of democracy in Europe when King Albert of Belgium, on his way from the hunt, hopped on a street car and paid his fare. The only surprising thing about it is that he paid his fare. He generally "bums" his ride.

The American Legion "patriot" who was obviously commissioned to violate the laws the German Republic in an endeavor to kidnap the wealthy draft evader, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll and drew a fifteen month prison sentence for his failure is now the object of tender solicitude from the American capitalist press and the idle matrons of Chicago's Gold Coast. It is significant that camparatively little interest was manifested in this thug's welfare until a few days ago. It is rumored that the cause of this sudden flurry of excitement is a threat on the part of Griffis to tell the whole truth of the episode which resulted in the killing of one man and the wounding of another. If Griffis were allowed to tell his story it is the general opinion that the names of several prominent American citizens would be mentioned. Hence the hurry to turn Griffis loose.

RIGHTS SCOUTED AT $100 PER IN COPELAND LAW

Employers' Rights Not Infringed as Usual

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special]—The child labor amendment, passed by Senator Copeland because a federal law such is not voted by the Supreme Court, does will be a tax of $100 on every article produced or imported into the United States. This bill is greeted with the idea of putting down the gun man's death toll, which at present distinguishes our country as the most murderous on earth. Any child knows that such a law would do nothing of the kind, as increase in price of the instruments of a profession must be made up by increased revenue and activity thereof.

May will such a law put an end to the worst form of gun-toting, the arming of private guards by manufacturers for the purpose of intimidating workers. The gunman is essential to the maintenance of the capitalist order, and the bosses' private armies will have their guns whether the tax is paid or evaded.

The effect and the real purpose of this law is by disarming the workers to make more secure the terrorists, official and unofficial, whose life function it is to turn gun muzzles against the workers. A maxim of class warfare is to disarm your opponents, do it legally and constitutionally if you can, but if as in this case you must forget the constitution—do it anyway. Senator Copeland writes a plain lesson of the kind that workers need to read—and understand.

Copeland would change the constitutional "Bill of Rights" to read "The right of the people to bear arms (in the interests of their employers) shall not be questioned—(otherwise it is verboten)."

TREASURES ON THE WORKERS' BOOKSHELF

THREE days of Secretary of State Hughes' effort to create a good name in order to cover up the reality of his attitude toward Mexico, this book of the former Assistant Secretary of Labor Post is a most timely thing. The [illegible] procedure of Attorney General Palmer and his [illegible] are described.

Following his striking picture of the nation-wide raid, Mr. Post takes up typical cases of those arrested and shows over and over again the ability of the charges against the victims of the raid. He deals in detail with his own action on many cases, namely those which were given unusual publicity by the [illegible] against him. The [illegible] findings are described.

[illegible] is a timely and valuable book for Mr. Post has had [illegible] experience and is a keen student of [illegible] character. It is an [illegible] of the Communist Movement in the United States, [illegible] an attack [illegible] which has [illegible] the reactionaries directed against it by the [illegible] government [illegible] the workers of this [illegible] principles and [illegible] leadership, [illegible] a movement which [illegible] destroyed. In its [illegible] victory over Palmer's minions there is determination and spirit which promises future [illegible]

Anyone who want to know what is [illegible] in the struggle between Obregon and De La Huerta cannot do better than to turn to this book by Carleton Beals. In it one finds the key to the maze of revolutions and counter-revolutions which have shaken Mexico during the past ten years.

The impression gained from reading Mr. Beals is that the struggle which was begun when Cortes invaded Mexico four hundred years ago is still going on. Eighty-five per cent of the population of Mexico he tells us is still Indian or of a mixed racial group. There still exists in Mexico the racial antagonism between the Aztec rulers of the land of the time of Cortes and the more peaceable Mayan and these antagonisms are played upon by the rulers of today in their name to maintain their position as a privileged class and to support the various groups of foreign capitalists who are exploiting Mexico.

In his analysis of the social frabric of Mexico, which composes part three of the book, Mr. Beals presents a picture of an exploited class sunk into poverty and degradation and a prosperous ruling class such as is hardly equalled anywhere on the face of the earth today. It is any wonder that Mexicans are ready to take up arms, and fight at the slightest provocation of anything better for themselves when it is known that millions of workers are forced to live on "kidneys, intestines, stomach linings" and to eke out this diet with "rats, squirrels, ditch-eels and maguey worms?"

American capitalists, according to the figures given, own about half of the wealth of Mexico, which is a sufficient explanation of the intervention and threats of intervention in Mexican affairs by the government of this country. Mexico is shown, in the facts cited by Mr. Beals in regard to the economic interests of the American capitalists and the activities of the American government, as a classic example of the working of imperialism.

OUR PARTY--THREE TENDENCIES

By C. E. RUTHENBERG

Executive Secretary, Workers Party

The discussions in the Workers Party before the last convention and the alignments in the convention itself have brought out the fact clearly that there are at the present time three tendencies developing within the party. It is important that the members of the party understand what these tendencies are.

It is only thru frank discussion of these tendencies and rejection of false policies that the party can be kept on the road, which during the past year, enabled it to make the great progress which was so signally recognized in the greetings of the Communist International to the third convention.

The First Tendency

The majority of the members of our party came into the Communist Movement from the Socialist Party. It is not at all surprising that some of these members carried with them into the Workers Party some of the ideas which dominated their thinking while in the Socialist Party.

It was from the Left Wing of the Socialist Party that we inherited our membership and this Left Wing sprang up in part from the former "impossibilist" group of the Socialist Party. This group was, quite correctly, opposed to the "immediate demands" of the Socialist Party. It argued that it was impossible to achieve anything for the workers under the capitalist system and therefore the role of party should be to carry on propaganda and education for the revolution. It offered no program of revolutionary struggles in opposition to the reformist campaign of the dominant faction of the Socialist Party. Its viewpoint was well characterized as "impossibilist," for in effect its attitude was: Nothing can be achieved before the revolution, so our task is merely the educational work of preparing as many workers as possible for the revolution thru educational work along the line of Marxian science.

Actually this group was afraid of struggle in any form. Even the reformist struggles of the Socialist Party were an indication of life. The "impossibilists" preferred to attend branch meetings and discuss the fine points of the theory of surplus value or the materialist conception of history than to mix into the actually fighting. In the worst form this "impossibilist" viewpoint manifested itself in the "spittoon philosophers" who infested most Socialist headquarters discussing the coming revolution but never turn their hand to help build up the force which would bring that revolution.

It is this same tendency which manifests itself today in our party in the group which argues that we are in the period of educational and propaganda work and that our most important task is to build up our party, not thru participating in the actual class struggles in this country, but by winning workers for our party thru the method of propaganda and education.

This group was or is opposed to the united front policy. It was, or is, opposed to the labor party policy of the party. It made up the opposition to the Third Party policy proposed by the C. E. C. It is afraid of policies which mean actual participation in the rough and tumble fighting of the class struggle. It is so much nicer to have a party with educational forums and lectures, with stupid papers discussing the fine points of Marxian science and branch meetings which are taked up with similar discussions.

This group is afraid of venturing out into the stormy sea of reality. On that sea there are great waves dashing here and there. One is apt to get knocked about a bit if one cannot steer a straight course, if one is not entirely certain of the way one is going and does not have a firm hand on the rudder. Why venture upon that stormy sea when one can have a nice self-admiration society in the form of a party of propaganda and education! It calls policies which take the party out into the stormy seas of the class struggle "adventurism".

This is the tendency of the Lore group on the right of our party. This tendency also has its expression in that pseudo leftism which wanted to stay underground. These "leftists" were for the underground for the same reason that the "right" is for a party or education and propaganda. They are afraid of actual fighting of the class struggle and the underground was the best hiding place from such fighting. It is therefore not at all surprising that Wegenknecht and Lindgren are the allies of Lore in this new group in the party.

Salutsky, outside of the party, represents this same tendency. Salutsky was expelled from the party for his betrayal in refusing to fight for the party in the Cleveland Conference for Progressive Political Action. We are in the period when our party must be a party of propaganda and education, he argued in his defense. Therefore we had no business to be knocking at the door of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, and why should I fight for the party when it is where it has no business to be!

The Second Tendency

The members of the party who represent the second tendency have quite different antecedents. They come into the party from industrial organizations, from the trade unions and from the I. W. W. They have been in the actual fighting of the class struggle on the industrial field and they do not shrink from that fighting.

Because of their origin and their past experiences the members of this group are, however, apt to look at the party policies from a biased viewpoint. They are apt to overstress the industrial side of the party work and to judge of the correctness of party policies from the standpoint exclusively, or if not exclusively at least give the greatest weight to effect of those policies upon the standing of the party in the trade unions.

The party as a whole has helped to strengthen this tendency because of the emphasis placed upon the work in the trade unions by the party during the last year or two. It required heroic efforts to induce the members of the party who were infected by dual union ideas and almost completely divorced from the trade unions to go to work in the trade unions. In pounding away so steadily and emphasizing the need of every member becoming a member of a trade union and carrying on party work there, we have pounded into the heads of some of our members the equally wrong idea that the work in the trade unions is the only thing of importance for a Communist party.

Thru our emphasis upon the industrial work we have actually made some of our members believe that the slogan of "Amalgamation" and the formation of industrial unions is an end in itself!

As a result of these factors we have the industrial tendency in the party.

It was the party members of this tendency who were strongly opposed to the policy of the C. E. C. after the July 3rd convention, in setting down as the party policy that we must aid in the work of the organizing the Federated Farmer-Labor as an actual party. The opposition engendered thru the organization of the Federated Farmer-Labor Party made itself felt most strongly on the industrial field. The political struggle for the Federated interfered with the progress of purely industrial policies, and for those who overemphasized the industrial policies this was a condemnation of the policy of aiding in the organization of the Federated Farmer-Labor Party.

This tendency was expressed by Comrade Foster in his speech in the New York District Convention, in which he said that the main reason he was for the Third Party policy of the C. E. C. was not because the formation of a petty bourgeois Third Party would weaken the capitalized capitalist power, but because a LaFollette split from the old parties and the formation of a Third Party would split the bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor and help to smash the power of Gompers.

This tendency is also apt to look askance upon campaigns to win the support of the exploited farmers and to neglect the great mass of unorganized workers.

The danger of this tendency, unless it has its counterpoise in the party, is that the party will become the instrument for achieving certain transformations in the trade union movement, in place of the trade union movement becoming, thru the work of the party there, its instrument in achieving the political ends which a communist party exists to achieve. And this is the conquering of political power for the workers and farmers.

The Third Tendency

It is the third tendency which dominated the policies of the party during the past year, and which, with the help and co-operation of the second group, achieved the progress which our party made during that year.

This group is for the trade union work of the party. It helped to initiate this work and has given the struggle to force our members into the unions and into the work there its complete support. It is whole-heartedly for the party policies in this field and has never wavered in developing the industrial work of the party further and farther.

The trade union work means to the third group the means of strengthening the influence and building up the party. It is free from the tendency of thinking of our program in the unions as a goal in itself.

While thus, and for the purposes stated, supporting the industrial work, it lays at least equal emphasis upon the political campaigns of the party. It sees in political campaigns the means of gaining influence and building up the party as well as in the industrial policies of the party. It seeks to throw the party into actions which will win for it the support of the wide masses of unorganized as well as the organized workers. It is for policies which will win for the party influence among the masses of exploited farmers.

This group is for throwing the party into every political or industrial struggle which affects the lives of the workers and farmers of the country. It has no fear of the stormy seas of actual struggle. It has confidence in its fundamental communist principles will enable it to hold the rudder firmly and steer our party safely thru the storm-vext seas. It may make minor errors of judgment, but not major errors of policy.

To the group which desires to make of our party an organization of education and propaganda, this group says: You will never build up a party thru your methods. Your party of propaganda and education will be a lifeless spineless sectarian self-admiration society, but not a living force in the lives of the workers of this country. To the industrial group, this third tendency says: You must subordinate your industrial program to the political struggles of the party. The political policies of the party must dominate over the industrial work.

The third tendency, of which I count myself in the matter of policies, which Comrade Pepper has strongly expressed in his work in the party, represents those policies which if put into effect will continue the upbuilding and strengthening of party which we have achieved during the past year and make it a revolutionary power in this country.

The Convention Result

The abnormal result of the last convention is in the fact that the alliance between the second and third group, the industrial group and political was broken and a majority formed in the convention by an alliance of the first, sectarian group and the industrial group. Such an alliance does not make for the health and progress of the party. It is an alliance and co-operation between the second and third tendencies which brought the progress of the last year. The renewal of that alliance and co-operation will assure the future progress of the party.

"A Week," by Iury Libedinsky, translated from the Russian by Ivy Litvinov. 12mo. Pp. 256. New York: Brentano's. $2.00.

A book by a young Russian who understands the revolution because he lived thru it, and he tells you counter-revolutionist Repin, who disguises himself as a Red Army officer to carry out his treachery surely is no hero. His treachery stands out dark, sinister, against the heroism, the forgetfulness of self of the Communists.

Lisa, the non-partisan school-teacher, the naive, shy, simple Lisa who teaches the Red Soldiers and is timid in their presence, sees the treachery of Repin, his cruelty to the communistic Rokitko, she lives thru the harrowing events of that murderous attack by bandits, counter-revolutionists, revolting peasants upon the defenseless town, and when she comes out of it all, she joins the Communist Party. She is no longer non-partisan after what she has seen.

The writer, Iury Libedinsky, may not be as accomplished a stylist as some of his other young writers in Soviet Russia, but he does possess the art of narration. He is not of the modernist school, as for instance the great young Russian writer, Boris Pilniak, but he cannot escape his individual shadow. The book is dynamic, swift-moving, not too long drawn out, dramatic. It lights up the revolutionary period, or rather the period when the gains of the Revolution have to be conserved and extended. The revolution is no longer a matter of political tracts, but is dramatized, visualized. It becomes vivid and real.

The Farmers and the American Revolution

By JOHN PEPPER.

IT was a characteristic and interesting scene in our Party Convention. The chairman announced that Joseph Manley would make the report on the agricultural question. Comrade Manley walked up from his place to the front of the hall. He was received by giggles from many delegates. Many comrades and good comrades and good trade unionists at that, found it funny that Manley, the typical city worker, for twenty years a member of the Structural Iron Workers' Union, should appear before the Convention of the Workers Party to picture the bankruptcy and misery of the farmers, to describe the political revolt of the modern American "peasants."

The giggling comrades could not understand the fundamentally revolutionary significance of the fact of leading a city workers, a typical trade unionist, appearing as an ardent advocate of the idea of the solidarity of workers and Farmers and of the revolutionary resolution of the Central Executive Committee on agriculture, as a fervent opponent of the idea that the Communists shall attempt to assume leadership of the rebellious farmers.

Not a Temporary Bankruptcy.

Our Party must understand that the most important revolutionary fact of our last Party Convention was our stand on the agricultural crisis in the United States and our bold attempt to place ourselves at the head of the farmers' revolt.

I know there is a big opposition in our Party to that idea. Many comrades think that we overemphasize the importance of the farmers, that through our agricultural work we divert precious forces from the work in the labor movement, in the trade unions, or from direct Communist propaganda. Many comrades maintain the opinion that the farmers are a born counter-revolutionary class, inseparably bound to private property, and that therefore, an alliance between Communists and farmers will only sell our revolutionary virginity. Many comrades think that the bankruptcy of the farmers is something temporary. They say that one or two good crops, and the farmers who are discontented today will be again conservative citizens.

We must state emphatically that these comrades do not understand how to analyze the most elemental facts of American social and political life. The bankruptcy of the farmers is not something temporary. The last crop was one of the best in the history of the United States. The deepest cause of the bankruptcy of the farmers is the unbridgeable internal conflicts of capitalism itself. The final, the imperialist, phase of capitalism has created, thru the trusts, an absolute monopoly on industrial products. The farmers must pay for industrial products, the prices dictated to them by the trusts, and they are forced to sell their products at less than the cost of production. And ruling capitalism has no remedy for the farmers. President Coolidge declared that the farmers must help themselves. At the same time, the government power, which is in the hands of the trusts, concentrates its gigantic and ever growing force, for the deliberate ruination of millions of farmers.

The Department of Agriculture reported that no less than 30 per cent of the farmers' income goes for taxes.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace reported that "Investigation has disclosed that, of the owner farmers in fifteen corn and wheat-producing states, on an average over 5 per cent had lost their farms through foreclosure or bankruptcy, while nearly 4 per cent had turned over their farms to creditors without legal process, making a total of about 8¼ per cent. In addition, more than 15 per cent were in fact bankrupt, but were holding on through the leniency of their creditors."

The government itself has to admit that not less than 23¼ per cent of the owner farmers are bankrupt.

In 1922 no less than two million farmers and their families left the farms. In 1923 it is estimated that not less than three million farmers and their families were forced to abandon their land. And millions more are only tolerated by the mortgage-holding bankers because the bankers can do nothing with the land, because the cultivation of the land by farm-laborers would cost more than the products which can be produced.

At the same time that the owner-farmers are being ruined by the millions, the trend of tenancy is dangerously and rapidly growing.

A Part of the World Crisis

We see before us the madness of capitalism grown to imperialism in its final development. Great Britain and Germany are faced with the problem of reducing their industrial working class by many millions. Unemployment as a mass phenomenon is menacing them ever more. There is no hope for selling industrial products to an impoverished world, and there is no hope, therefore, of feeding the British and German industrial population. And at the same time there is the enormous agricultural crisis in the United States. Millions of farmers are unemployed, the acreage of cultivated land is shrinking more and more, simply because the farmers cannot sell their products at such prices as will make it possible for them at least to receive wages for their labor. We must understand that the reduction of the farming class in the United States is one side of that same process, the other side of which is the reduction of the industrial working class in Great Britain and Germany.

Many comrades do not realize the tremendous revolutionary significance of the agricultural crisis in the United States. Many comrades see only the proud industrial structure of the trusts, the lofty financial edifice of the banks, and they think that American capitalism is basically sound and does not feel a particle of the convulsion caused by the world war.

The world crisis of capitalism does not follow a fixed pattern. It started on the industrial side in Germany and Great Britain, but it attacks the agricultural state then the new and ruthless capitalism.

Many comrades have accused me of exaggerating, not only the revolutionary importance of the farmers, but the significance and tempo of the agricultural crisis. But the picture which Secretary Wallace gives of the effect of the economic laws of capitalism bears out the analysis of the Central Executive and political situation of the United States, and the analysis of the agricultural resolution adopted by our last Convention.

On the contrary, if we make a mistake, it is in not emphasizing enough the agricultural crisis, and the revolutionary import of the farming crisis. We must understand that the economic bankruptcy of the farmers goes on rapidly forward that our work among the farmers cannot keep pace with it. And we must understand further that the political revolt of the farmers, the entering of the farmers into the various the economic laws of capitalism drive the farmers inevitably into bankruptcy, that they lower the standard of living of the farmers to that of the Russian peasants of Czarist times, and lead to inevitable and complete expropriation of the farming masses. A process of the greatest historical import is taking place before our eyes. A process which finds its counterpart only in the expropriation of foreign countries, and renders the monopoly of the trusts impenetrable.

The Third Party and Labor Party movements represents nothing else than the political expression of the terrible bankruptcy and misery of farmers under these circumstances, considered persist in declaring that we must sit comfortably "on our fences" and patiently prescribe (as they imagine) that the crisis of the industrial side of capitalism must soon "end," forgetting seeing the existing agricultural crisis, it shows that these comrades do not understand the most elementary duty of revolutionary Marxists, namely, to analyze, and reckon with, facts as they are.

The Farmers and the Proletarian Revolution.

We can arrive at the correct estimation of the importance of the farmers for the communist movement only if we connect it with the question of the proletarian revolution. That is long as the capitalist class can maintain its rule, there is no possibility or even hope of seeing into power.

That is true for every nation, but especially for the United States. We should not forget that the United States is not Russia, not even Germany or Great Britain. Industry in the United States is the most highly centralized and concentrated in the world. It controls only certain parts of our country. The United States is at the same time the greatest agricultural country of the world. The United States has a tremendous agricultural population. In this respect the United States resembles Russia more than it does Great Britain which has no agricultural population to speak of. And we ought to bear in mind that the overwhelming majority of industrial workers in our country are foreign-born, who, just because of this reason are greatly handicapped in their role of a political factor. The Workers Party, as a class party, is of the composition of the American working class, with its 25,000 members would play a seventeen fold greater political role if it had not contained by necessity seventeen foreign language federations. The bulk of the native-born workers are skilled workers and foremen, and belong to the labor aristocracy. It is of vital interest to our party to win over and influence as great a mass as possible of native-born English-speaking workers. But it is highly improbable that we can win over in the near future the majority of this labor aristocracy corrupted by imperialism. The farmers as a class represent a different picture than the working class. We have many first-and-fourth farmers, especially (Germans and Scandinavians) the bulk of the farmers are native-born Americans.

A revolutionary movement in the United States which embraces only the foreign-born proletarian workers of the basic industries, and only a narrow stratum of the native-born workers, has no real hope of gaining power without the support of the millions of native-born workingmen. Nor should we forget this fact, that in no country (with the exception of Russia) have the farmers such an old political tradition, or have made so many attempts at political upheaval against capitalist leadership (Greenback Party, Populist Party, Non-Partisan League) as in the United States. It is an unontested fact that (with the exception of Russia) in no other country is there such an old and deep-rooted tradition of political co-operation between farmers and city workers as in the United States. It would be political blindness not to grasp the gigantic importance of the fact that all these numerous farmer-labor parties, spontaneously sprung up, are everywhere the expression of a political alliance between city workers and farmer.

Guild Interests or Revolution?

It is not revolutionary Marxism, but on the contrary, a caricature of Marxism for communists to reject the alliance with the farmers in the name of proletarian purity. Marxism does not mean the representation of the interests of the working class narrowed to a guild basis. It means the representation of the general interests of the proletariat as a revolutionary class. We communists must conduct all our campaigns and actions in such a way as not to lose sight of the proletarian revolution

Who fell so hard for Walton. "The Oklahoma Leader" group were the ones who made him governor, and apparently he was the one who had the opportunity to expose his shortcomings. The followers of Wilson, who have repeatedly betrayed the labor movement, and then deposed by their own kind, are another in their critics. Those whom he has persisted to offend and have been let out, constitute another faction. Most of them know a lot of dirt about this fallen hero, and they tell it wherever they go. A few of these, however, feel that, altho Walton fell short of expectation and that he must take some responsibility to his own account, still he is an angel, besides his instincts and therefore should get back into office. Even some of the Klan and all who uphold the deposing of the Governor. Still another group are the workers in the Oklahoma State Federation of Labor officials who were not even invited when Walton took office.

The Anti-Klan movement has drifted into a distinct political party to wage a fight on the democratic and republican primaries with the Klan as the sole issue to defeat the candidates of the Ku Klux Klan. This political movement has little virtue, so far as labor is concerned. It does, however, have a decided effect on the labor struggle, for almost the entire state is divided Klan and Anti-Klan. In hotel lobbies, on trains, on the streets, in business houses and homes of Oklahoma, Jack Walton, the Klan and the Anti-Klan are the eternal topic.

Our elders ask, as we travel away from the scene of battle, if things are very exciting down there and we ask a score of editors and they say that everything, so far as action is concerned, is very quiet and only the editors and politicians are busy laying late are fanning the flames of hate.

The deplorable thing is that men and women, who should be devoting their time to the much neglected labor movement, in Oklahoma, are hating and bewitching each other, accusing each other of high crimes and misdemeanors.

The indictment of officials goes on. Those who started the action against Walton could not stop when once started and so some of the big capitalist officials have been dragged into the meshes of the law and stupid indicted along side the man they put in. Walton may become the next United States Senator because the Oklahoma farmer feels more than he thinks. So much does he despise the Klan, that he is swept by the flame of discontent which "Jack Walton's Paper" carriers in headlines that can be read a block away. Every Klan atrocity that has happened for years is played up as lurid as were the atrocities of the Germans during the war, while on the other hand, the "Flaming Cross" shines a brilliant red from many a high building or hill and the newsboys cry the sales of the Anti-Klan papers which shout to the nation of "red," Catholic, Jew, and negro domination which is but a smoke screen to hide the attack on labor.

In the midst of this muddle and mess the Workers Party is attempting to get a hearing for the farmer-labor movement. The "Daily Oklahoma," thanks to the kindly editor, is helping by giving eight column headlines with five column write ups of our coming into the state, and how we are going to "Capture the state of Oklahoma for Red Russia and to overthrow our sacred democratic institutions, and establish the Soviet."

We took little part in the Walton controversy and paid little heed to the "Oklahoman's" silly drivel; but we found that Walton had signed a text book law that contained an amendment ordering the school authorities to purchase no school books that advocate "The materialistic conception of history; i. e. Darwinian Evolution." Not Walton alone is guilty of this silly act of commanding the law of nature to stop in their orderly course, but most every one of the legislators voted for the bill, as amended, and it became a law with the sanction of the "reformers" of Oklahoma. Mentally and physically Oklahoma is fertile for cultivation, and the discontent that capitalism and its "black-hundred" are stirring to the boiling point, is helping us wonderfully along.

VANDERLIP SEES FASCIST MOVE IN ENGLAND

THE DAY FOR BRITISH TOIL TO WIN POWER

But It Is Still Long Way To Real Workers' Rule

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—British labor, insofar as it is represented by the British Labor Party, will take power today, unless Winston Churchill is able to lead enough liberals back into the Tory camp to make a Liberal-Labor majority impossible. This is believed here to be beyond the bounds of probability.

Experience in Other Lands.

Now that Labor rule with a socialistic tinge seems inevitable the experience of other countries and of British colonies under similar forms of government is giving a great deal of consolation to the vested interests. It is pointed out that France under the Briand—a former socialist-government, Australia under labor rule and Germany with a social-democratic regime, were the subject of no striking experiments in property ownership and control. It is believed that Ramsay MacDonald, who will be the Labor Party premier, will frown on any drastic changes; he is depended upon to discourage any outbreak of the group of Scottish and Welsh members with Communist tendencies and it is thought that he will deal in a more uncompromising manner with them than did the Baldwin government. As a matter of fact, while the Labor Party will be the government, this is only nominally so. Without the support of the Liberal Party led by Herbert Asquith, the Labor Party would be a minority in the House of Commons. This will exercise a restraining influence that will probably result in a compromise between the Liberal and Labor Party program with the Labor Party making the bulk of the concessions. This, at least, is the view of influential landholders and manufacturers who would have the most to lose by an unrestricted application of the capital levy plank of the Labor Party platform.

This Is the Worst.

Revision of the mothers pension law, increased old age pensions, extension of the free public school system and the sale of the large estates to farmers at nominal prices, is the worst that the economic rulers of Great Britain expect from the Labor Party government.

The foreign policy of the Labor Party as enunciated by Ramsay MacDonald differs but little from that of the Liberals. An attempt will be made to conciliate France and to arrive at an understanding on the question of German reparations. If France continues in her present recalcitrant mood, however, the collection of the French debt to Great Britain will be the next order of business. There is little doubt that pressure would be exerted by the placing of British-owned French government and commercial securities on the world markets; the demoralization of French finance that would result would create a serious situation that might lead to war but the Labor Party is firmer in its determination to do this than to institute a capital levy if the public utterances of Ram-

American Banker Says Dictator To Come from Labor-Liberal Ranks

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—In an interview today on the formation of a Labor Party government in Great Britain, Frank A. Vanderlip, noted financier and a recognized authority on international affairs, stated that unless British labor rises to its responsibilities there is a very considerable probability of the formation of a fascist movement in England similar to that which swept Benito Mussolini and his blackshirts into power in Italy.

"I was told by an Englishman whose position entitles him to speak with the utmost authority," Vanderlip said, "that a fascist movement is not at all improbable."

The danger, if any, in a British Labor government, the financier believes, would not be in its leaders. Vanderlip knows personally most of the men at the head of the party scheduled to go into power next week.

"British labor's problem is not in its leaders," according to Vanderlip, "but in those who are led. There is a radical element in the British Labor ite ranks that creates serious difficulties for the leaders.

"I hardly believe a labor government would attempt the much talked of "Capital Levy," he said. "The responsibility of government always exercises a sobering influence on parties and men. The Labor Party should not prove an exception."

"Who would be the Mussolini of Great Britain?" was asked.

"It might be Lloyd George," he replied, "if he were younger. But he is no longer a young man and he has personal relations which militate against him."

"MacDonald, possibly?"

"Well," the banker answered, "it would seem probable that the British men of the hour would come from the combination of labor and liberal groups which seems to be forming. MacDonald is not a man of great personal magnetism, but nobody knows what qualities he may show as Prime Minister."

Mellon Tax Plan Draws Farm Labor Fire In Capital

WASHINGTON.—Labor and farmer organizations entered upon an informal coalition to oppose the Mellon tax program.

Working from different angles, but intent upon the same purpose, organized labor and farmers have joined forces to increase surtaxes above those provided by the Mellon plan and to reduce the normal tax on small incomes.

The farmers thru the National Federation of Farm Bureaus and the National Grange, have already begun the presentation of their case to Congress and the American Federation of Labor was scheduled to appear before the House Ways and Means Committee today.

The Labor Tax Plan, it was learned, authoritatively, would keep surtaxes at approximately their present level and would extinguish entirely all levies on incomes of less than $5,000.

NEW ORLEANS.—The Central Trades and Labor council at an indignation meeting in Lafayette square denounced the city administration for maintaining armed police at the plants of the New Orleans Public Service, Inc., where members of the electrical brotherhood are on strike.

William Pollard, representing the international union, said "the present strike is not a violation of the contract by the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers."

Prominent labor men addressed the gathering of over 3000 who braved inclement weather to attend. Brass check newspapers devoted little or no space to the meeting.

LEFT DRIFT IN MEXICO IS ANALYZED

Fascisti Counter-Revolution Is Forcing Workers' Unity

By BERTRAM D. WOLFE

MEXICO CITY.—The appeal of the reaction to armed force has resulted in a veering to the left on the part of the government officials here. Arming of workers and peasants has given the armed forces, that most essential section of the mechanism of government, a more pronouncedly revolutionary character.

Cheer for the Workers.

It is a daily sight now to see peasant bodies, clad in their enormous and decorative straw sombreros, flaming serapes or blankets and costumes resembling a suit of white pajamas, come trudging along the city streets in little groups, bearing rifles of every description and degree of modernity, little rag sacks in place of knapsacks, and often a heavy saddle apparatus as well.

Similar groups of workers, often have bands on their hats bearing on a red background the black letters, Viva los Trabajodores (long live the workers.)

The more immediate political effect is the distinct change in governmental machinery. The Callistas, who control the executive, have controlled the upper house of the chamber of deputies, now control both houses.

They have carried the municipal election for the control of the city of Mexico, formerly in the hands of a Cooperatista government, have strengthened their control on the executive departments of the national government and have had their leaders named governors of many of the states.

Callistas Victorious.

In Puebla, where the governor joined the fascists, Lombardo Tolendano, former college president and intellectual with socialistic tendencies, has been appointed provisional governor. In Zacatecas, where there were rival legislatures and governors, Ezequiel Salcedo of the Mexican Federation of Labor has been named provisional governor. San Luis Potosi, claimed by two "legally elected" governors, Prieto Laurens, a fascist leader, and the agrarian candidate Aurelio Manrique has been awarded to the latter.

Carrillo May Be Alive.

The cry of grief that welled up from the depths of the lower classes of the republic on hearing of the execution of Felipe Carrillo, is slowly changing to a grimmer cry for retaliation and vengeance.

The conciliatory tone that marked governmental statements to the effect that once the rebellion was put down the government would be generous and merciful, has disappeared, and in its place one notes burning indignation in all official pronouncements. Calles, Cedillo, de Negri and other leaders of the agrarian and labor forces have issued statements with resentment. "Red" and "yellow" workers alike are clamoring for arms that they may march upon the fascisti. If the execution be a fact and the fascisti lose, the death of Felipe Carrillo is likely to cost them dear.

Excelsior, reactionary organ, throws doubt upon the fact of the death of Carrillo, however, in its editorial two days after the presidential communique.

It points out that the only warrant for believing it consists of a cable from the monetary commissioner of Yucatan who claims to have gotten the information from this country while he was in New York.

Excelsior points out that newspaper correspondents from the territory occupied by the fascisti do not confirm it but on the contrary seem to indicate that he is hiding somewhere in the Yucatan peninsula, after a successful escape from prison.

In that connection it is interesting to note that owing to broken communication, I have not yet been able at this late date definitely to verify the long officially-confirmed report of the execution of Heron Proal, leader of the striking tenants of Vera Cruz.

COMPLETE TEXT OF ZINOVIEV'S FAMOUS LETTER

Senator Lodge Read It Into Record of Congress

The DAILY WORKER this morning publishes the complete text of the now world-famous letter written by Gregory Zinoviev, Chairman of the Communist International, on the birth of The DAILY WORKER in the United States. This is the letter that was presented, in a garbled form, to the United States Senate by Senator Henry Cabob Lodge, of Massachusetts, head of the Committee on Foreign affairs, and published in the Congressional Record. Various interpretations have been given of it in the kept press. The accompanying translation was made from the original. The publication of the true translation is important, at this time, in view of the congressional investigation of the question of the Recognition of Soviet Russia to be started today by an investigating branch by Senator Borah, of Idaho. Zinoviev's letter follows:

By GREGORY ZINOVIEV

Chairman, Communist International

The appearance of a daily Communist newspaper in the English language in America, is a great event, not only for the American labor movement, but for the whole Communist International; and that is so particularly because the appearance of this newspaper was preceded by long and serious work of preparation by American Communists among the masses, the collection of funds among the workers, and considerable agitation in the trade unions, etc. The American workers whose spirits were dominated for many years at a stretch by the Gomperses and Hillquits are now beginning to bestir themselves and rally around the young Communist Party. To collect among the workers the funds necessary for the launching of a great daily newspaper in the English language in America is no easy matter. The American comrades worked at this task with perseverance, energy and success. We congratulate them warmly on this first success.

We still remember vividly how, approximately ten or eleven years ago, under the leadership of Comrade Lenin, we began just such an undertaking in Russia, how the vanguard of the Russian workers collected the necessary funds in Kopeks and half-Kopeks, in order to issue in Petrograd the first Bolshevist daily newspaper, the "Pravda." We remember, how Comrade Lenin gave his whole spirit to this thing, how he personally counted over the number of workers' groups which had responded to the appeal of the Bolsheviki and had

BURNS' DICKS ADMIT SERIES OF STICK-UPS

Arrest Head of Burns Agency; Confesses Crimes

Arrest of Hugh Engle, assistant chief of the local Burns detective agency, and J. Gleason Walker, employed by the Burns and other agencies, and their admission of a long series of hold-ups and robberies that have had the Chicago police guessing for weeks, is believed will hasten the senate investigation of private detective agencies demanded by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana. The two Burns sleuths were identified by Mrs. Ida Jacobson, of North Kimball Ave., whom they choked into submission and robbed.

The connection of the William J. Burns agency with the series of crimes has caused a sensation and is taken as conclusive proof of charges heretofore made by radical and labor spokesmen—that the federal department of justice bureau of investigation directed by William J. Burns is little more than an adjunct of the William J. Burns private detective agency and that department of justice agents, private detectives, and the underworld element are practically indistinguishable.

Engle and Gleason claim that they have been working with "higher-ups" who gave them tips on the wearers of expensive jewelry. The victims would then be followed and held up on the street or in their homes after entrance had been gained by flashing their detective badges.

Engle says that when the names of the "higher-ups" are made public it "will rock the town".

The employes of the municipal court bailiff's office have also been arrested in connection with the crimes confessed to by the former Burn's sides. Two of them, Paul Mercier and Harry Baker, are deputy sheriffs and the third member of the trios, Bennie Galliano, is custodian of a bailiff's office.

A broach found in the possession of Mercier, said to be worth $1,000, was identified by Mrs. Ida Jacobson, as taken from her following the assault made upon her by Engle and Gleason. The three bailiff office attaches claim to have purchased jewelry from Engle and Gleason, who they say believed honestly in spite of the fact that they knew Engle had been employed by the William J. Burns agency in an executive capacity and Gleason by this and other agencies.

WASHINGTON.—Fifty thousand lawyers, hired by rich men, are "hunting holes in the income tax laws," under-secretary of the treasury Winston told the House ways and means committee.

Winston testified at hearings on the Mellon tax plan. He said the wealthy not only seek to evade taxation by investing into tax-free securities but "by many other ways."

British Enginemen To Strike

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—Seventy thousand members of the Locomotive Engineers' and Firemen's Union were scheduled to strike at 12 o'clock last night. This action was made certain, barring the capitulation of the railway executives, by the unanimous vote of the executive committee of the union not to withdraw the strike call. The vote was taken following an all-night conference with Margaret Bonfield, head of the British Trade Union Congress. The final offer of the railway companies was announced as insufficient to comply with the demands of the men and not a single member of the executive committee of the union was willing to take responsibility for postponing the strike under the circumstances.

BRITISH LABOR FACES RULE IN GREAT BRITAIN

say MacDonald and other spokesmen are so he believed. There is little to differentiate the men who will take office in the Labor Party government from the Liberal crowd —either in training or viewpoint with one or two exceptions.

Himself, was first a school-teacher before he became private secretary to Sir Campbell-Bannerman, premier in the Liberal government that preceded the Lloyd George coalition. He is considered one of the best parliamentarians in England and only his pacifism during the war contrasts him with men of the Asquith type.

Webb As Sociologist.

Sydney Webb, is a university lecturer, a voluminous writer on sociology and welfare work. His recent book, "The Decay of Capitalist Civilization," has attracted much attention. It is a scathing analysis of modern capitalism but its conclusions are not such as to alarm the beneficiaries of special privilege.

Phillip Snowden, who is to have the portfolio of chancellor of the exchequer, is a former employe of the revenue department and conceded to be an authority of financial questions. Lord Ponsonby and Colonel Wedgewood are typical liberals. Ponsonby was formerly a page at St. James's, his place in the new cabinet will probably be that of secretary for Indian affairs. The post that Colonel Wedgewood will fill has not been specified, but his appointment is certain. Lord Parmour will be lord chancellor. He is a brother-in-law of Sydney Webb, a theological authority and solicitor for the Church of England.

Of the trades union wing of the Labor Party there will be in the government, J. H. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen; Arthur Henderson, first an iron molder, then a local Wesleyan preacher, trade union secretary and with the rise of the British Labor Party, one of its foremost parliamentarians. J. R. Clynes, a weaver from Lancashire, secretary of his trade union, is the floor leader of the Labor Party and a resourceful parliamentarian.

All Are Conservatives.

All of these trade unionists belong to the conservative wing of the British labor movement. Henderson and Thomas were in the Coalition government, Henderson resigned his post in protest against some of the measures designed to hamstring the trade unions, but Thomas took the Privy Council oath and a sensation resulted from the discovery that in fact together with the oath itself by the British Communist press. Thomas visited this country in 1919 but was prevented from delivering some dozen scheduled adresses by the activities of Irish Republican sympathizers who resented his support of the Black and Tan policy of the Lloyd George government.

Two great problems confront the Labor government: unemployment and relations with France. Upon the solution of these questions depends the life of the Labor as the present ruling party. More than one keen observer believes that Labor Party pacifists like MacDonald and Snowden will find it necessary to shoulder the responsibility of rallying their supporters for a war against France—the late ally, whose destruction of German industry has wiped out British capitalism's most profitable market.

New British Compensation Law

LONDON.—The British workmen's compensation act, which became effective Jan. 1, the an improvement over the old law, was opposed as inadequate by the Labor party and will probably be amended when the Laborites assume the reins of government. The act, which applies almost solely to persons injured after 1926, provides weekly compensation of half wages (not exceeding 1 pound 10 shillings) for total incapacity of men earning more than 2 pounds 10 shillings (maximum 3 pounds 15 shillings). A man earning less than 1 pound 5 shillings will receive three-fourths of his wages.

For partial incapacity the payment is a proportionate part between the pre-accident wages and the wages that the workman is earning or is able to earn, after the accident.

Where there are no children under 15, or where children under 15 are the only dependents of the deceased workman, the compensation is three years' wages, not less than 300 pounds and not less than 200 pounds. The old minimum figure was 150 pounds.

A workman who is injured while breaking rules or regulations or acting without orders, was generally not entitled to compensation. In future such a man or his dependents will be entitled to compensation if he is killed or seriously and permanently disabled, and if he was at the time acting for the purpose of the employer's business.

Tremendous Welcome Given the Daily Worker at Great Mass Meeting in New York

THE DAILY WORKER started a tremendous welcome in New York upon the appearance of the first number of the paper at the celebration in New Star Casino.

The biggest mass meeting of workers ever held to greet the debut organ of the Communist Party, the first Communist daily to appear in the English language in this country, the daily newspaper which will wage an agressive fight against capitalism and the capitalist government in behalf of the working class of America.

The speakers were William Z. Foster, Benjamin Gitlow, editor of the Freiheit, our Communist Jewish newspaper, Ludwig Lore, editor of the New Yorker Volkszeitung our Communist German newspaper, and Julia Stuart Poyntz, who was chairman.

The celebration had a festive air about it from the beginning. It included music, supplied by Frances Dedda, soprano singer; Joseph Finchy, violinist, and Austin Gordon, pianist.

Benjamin Gitlow auctioned off the first copy of the Daily Worker which was sold to the highest bidder for $25. The second copy brought $15, the third $10 and the fourth $8. Then copies were sold at $3 and at $1 each, which raised the sale to several hundred dollars for the benefit of the DAILY WORKER. In addition, bonds for the paper were bought by various unions and other organizations: $100 by the Labor Union No. 8, Amalgamated Food Workers, and $50 each from the Williamsport and Bronx branches.

Altogether the meeting was one of the most enthusiastic ever held. Those present at the celebration showed that they realized what great significance a daily organ of the Workers Party in the English language has for the class conscious labor movement of America, and they received with great enthusiasm the remarks of the speakers who spoke about this.

William Z. Foster was received with the greatest ovation and with a strong applause. The crowd rose spontaneously and sang the International.

Comrade Foster said that the persecution of radicals by the Department of Justice does not weaken but strengthens the Workers Party and the radical labor movement. He then spoke very impressively of the power of the press here and in all other countries, and showed how the Soviet government carried on the work of educating the masses through the spoken and written word.

"The youth," said Foster, "was brought up on harmful spiritual nourishment here, as well as everywhere else, with the exception of Russia, and it is no easy task to drive out the false ideas from the heads of the mass when it is grown up. The mass is always, by and large, a product of its bringing up. It is the duty of all the comrades to take part in the work of education to the best of their ability, to do so by speech and writing, and by energetically spreading our press. We must see to it that in every workers' home a real workers' paper shall be received as a constant guest, as is the case with the daily newspapers of the foreign-born class-conscious workers. We must be active especially now for the advancement and the spreading of the Daily Worker."

Ludwig Lore in his speech said that the "New Yorker Volkszeitung" of the German class conscious workers done its duty for the class-conscious working class and that this holds so much the more now that the Volkszeitung is a Communist newspaper. The leaders of the Volkszeitung, the German comrades, must help to build up the Daily Worker. They must realize that to do so, for they must realize that a daily revolutionary newspaper in the language of the country is more than necessary in the class struggle of this country.

"We must," the speaker said, "have the American wage workers on our side before we can carry out successfully the fight for liberation of the working class." Comrade Lore went on to speak of the relief work for the suffering workers of Germany. He spoke of the measures that must be taken to combat the government in its plans to pass exception laws against foreigners. He also denounced Secretary of State Hughes for blocking the recognition of Soviet Russia.

Benjamin Gitlow aroused great enthusiasm in the audience when he said he hoped that soon we will have Communist daily newspapers in the English language in every large city of the United States.

The meeting closed with appropriate remarks of the chairman, Julia Stuart Poyntz, as appropriate as the remarks with which she started the meeting by saying that the DAILY WORKER was the birth of a child and that we must work hard now for the growth, the development and the strengthening of the new child.

BROMLEY BALKS AT HALTING BIG RAILROAD STRIKE

Union Official Is Not Interested in Politics

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—Only in the last minute surrender by the railway companies will avert the strike of the firemen and enginemen called to prevent proposed wage reductions being enforced. The union executive committee has delivered its final answer to the railway companies thru the officials of the British Trades Union Congress and it promises a withdrawal of the strike order only if the wage-cuts are postponed.

J. H. Thomas, representative of the National Union of Railwaymen, which includes about 20 per cent of the enginemen and firemen, involved by the threatened strike, took part in the discussions. His union has voted not to strike and there is bitter feeling between Thomas and Bromley, secretary of the Enginemen and Firemen's Union.

Appealed to by Labor Party representatives to consider the gravity of the situation, Bromley stated that he expected nothing from the Labor Party and was not interested in the parliamentary success.

Swedish Consul To Make Charge Against Police

The credentials of the chancellor of the Swedish consulate does not mean anything in the life of Lieutenant Michael Grady of the Detective Bureau, according to the story told to Hugo Oberg who was arrested on Friday morning at 2 o'clock while visiting a south side cafe and held in one of the packed cells of the detective bureau with 75 other victims until late Saturday night.

Mr. Oberg might have told, according to a statement made by Mr. Bernard Anderson, Swedish vice-consul today, for the release on bond of one of the detective force who had been who notified the Swedish consul of Mr. Oberg's plight.

Mr. Hugo Oberg's arrest and treatment will be taken up with Mayor Dever and Chief Collins by the Swedish consul, it was stated Mr. Anderson to the DAILY WORKER yesterday. Aside from the fact that no citizen should expect such treatment from the police International Law grants certain privileges to representatives of foreign governments which were entirely ignored by Lt. Grady.

The story told by Mr. Anderson is as follows: "Mr. Oberg after leaving the Drink Hotel on Thursday evening, where he attended a banquet visited several South Side cafes on sight-seeing trips Lieutenant Michael Grady arrested him tho there was no raid, and asked him who he was.

Mr. Oberg showed his credentials as Swedish chancellor This caused Mr. Grady to indulge in loud guffaws and made facetious retorts. When asked what he was arrested for Grady said "for murder," and laughed. Mr. Oberg was not in a hilarious mood.

He was then taken to the detective bureau and packed in with 75 other prisoners in the filthiest police basement in the United States. There are five cells in this place, each one with an all smelling toilet, and two planks to sleep on. The capacity of each cell is about eight feet square. As 20 or 30 are packed in like sardines at times.

Mr. Oberg was taken out for "show up" with every roll call and asked the usual pumilliating questions that are put to suspected criminals. He was not allowed to telephone or send any message to the outside world.

His friends inquired at the Irving Park police station but did not get much satisfaction there. Finally one of his fellow prisoners was released, who telephoned the Swedish consulate.

CONDEMNED BY CHICAGO LABOR

Painters Flay Gompers' Portland Friend

"We are told that William F. Dunne was expelled from the Portland convention of the American Federation of Labor because he was a Communist. If that be so, we most protest his expulsion and follow the example of Delegate Julius Hannessen, member of the Executive Board of the Chicago Federation of Labor, during the discussion on a resolution introduced by Palmisano of the Coal Union, No. 275, condemning the action of the Portland convention in expelling Dunne.

Local 275 passed a resolution which was published in the DAILY WORKER, censuring the action of their international delegates in voting for the unseating of Dunne and the latter recorded the subject in the union journal.

Edward N. Nockels, secretary of the federation, immediately on the reading of the resolution and communication that accompanied it, moved that the request contained in the communication be complied with.

Delegate Christian M. Madsen, of the painters, stated that he was a delegate from the painters to the Portland convention and that his name was signed to the report of the delegates published in the union journal, which condemned the expulsion of Dunne and said that all delegates who had voted against his expulsion should have been expelled themselves. He said this was published without his knowledge or consent and that he had written to the Painters' Journal a letter intended for publication in which he said his name had not been used.

Delegate Emil Arnold and Arne Swaback, of the painters' union, also spoke condemning the expulsion of Dunne.

Delegate Johannsen made a speech that seemed to express the sentiments of the majority of the delegates.

"Either we are with the present ruling family of the American Federation of Labor, or we are not. If we are we should do the same. All local unions should do the same as we do; either protest the expulsion of a man because of his political views or expel all the members of that would happen to the labor their locals who are Communists. It would at least be interesting to see what would happen to the labor movement if this were done," declared Johannsen.

"Had Dunne not had an Irish name and a reputation as a fighter he would have received quite different treatment. Because the delegates knew that Dunne was a good speaker and willing to fight his opponents intellectually, and with his fists if necessary, he would have gotten a lot worse than he did."

President Fitzpatrick then put the question on the resolution of the painters' union to a vote. Fitzpatrick asked for a vote on a motion to lay the matter file, and after a few minutes the communication from the painters' union. Altho that was not the motion made by Nockels it was voted on and carried without protest.

J. J. Green, representing the Amalgamated Iron and Steel Workers, spoke on behalf of the striking steel workers in Wheeling, W. Va. He said the strike of workers there against the Wheeling Iron and Steel Co., which has been on since July 1921. He was given credentials from the Federation authorizing him to go before local unions to solicit funds for the strikers.

A letter of thanks was read from the Milk Producers' Association commending it for their help in winning their strike against the milk distributors.

The aid of the Federation was promised the postal clerks in their fight for better wages and working conditions.

New Farm Bank Failures Alarm Coolidge Aides

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Continued bank failures in formerly prosperous agricultural sections is alarming, federal reserve bank officials said here, and has necessitated emergency measures on the part of the War Finance corporation.

A flood of telegrams and letters to members of congress and senators sent by enraged farmers victimized by bank failures, has resulted in a hasty conference being called for Chicago in which the controller of the currency, two members of the federal reserve board, the head of middle western bankers will participate.

The immediate cause of the feverish activity of the former devotes of deflation, which is expected to result in several millions of currency being shipped to the wheat belt, is the failure of two Sioux Falls, S. D., banks and the failure of a Grand Island, Neb., bank. The Grand Island institution was the oldest in that section of the country.

Free for the Bosses.

TORONTO.—A "free labor market" to bring down wages to "a sound level" was advocated by E. W. Beatty, president, Canadian Pacific railway, in a speech here. Beatty wants to let down the immigration bars to allow a big influx of labor for this purpose. He opposed limiting immigration to agricultural labor.

Daily or Weekly?

To the Daily Worker: As for your serial "A Week" vote for weekly installments if you make them big ones. Daily installments are too short and too easily missed.—Will Herberg, Brooklyn, N. Y.

To the Daily Worker: I say "A Week" should be published daily.—A. Weiss, Chicago, Ill.

To the Daily Worker: About "A Week" I should like to see it published twice a week. Then we would have time to read it and study it at the same time.

To the Daily Worker: I am in favor of having the installments of "A Week" printed daily. Then there will be greater eagerness to get the paper every day.

There are many very good short stories that can be printed complete —one each week in the Saturday Supplement.

How about a little corner for the letters of the readers? We need more news as against the workers' activities in the different cities. Where is Chicago, Ill.

To the Daily Worker: My opinion is that "A Week" should be published one installment each week in the magazine section. We need more news as against the workers' activities in the different cities. Where is Chicago, Ill.

To the Daily Worker: I think that the novel "A Week" ought to be published daily in our paper. The miles and souls of the workers are so attached to the daily problems that they need something to lift them out of the rut. Reading daily an installment of a fine novel like "A Week" would do that. Then our paper needs a larger number of readers. It would not be able to get them if it contained only serious matter.

Interesting features like "A Week" will satisfy readers and attract more of them.—Jack Sanick, New York.

To the Daily Worker: For my part I would like to see "A Week" published in daily installments. That is the way it will be published under this head on day of meeting free of charge for the first month, afterwards our rate will be as follows:

Monthly meeting—$3 a year one line once a month, each additional line, $1 a month.

Semi-monthly meetings — $5 a year one line published two times a month, each additional line 1$c an issue.

Weekly meetings—$7.50 a year one line a week, each additional line 10c an issue.

COUZENS BRANDS ANDY MELLON AS TWO-TIME LIAR

Hints Secretary Has Dough Invested in Stills

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—Senator Couzens, Michigan, today challenged secretary of the Treasury Mellon to tell the country how much the Mellon tax reduction program will benefit Mellon personally.

Couzens shot another letter at Mellon, repeating his challenge to a public tax debate which Mellon ignored in replying to a provision letter.

"So long as you have entered into the record of my securities," said Couzens, "will you please tell us what your securities are, how much you own of each and how much you will benefit by the reduction of the surtaxes as proposed by you?"

He said Mellon stated so untruth when he said all Cousens' money was in tax free securities.

"I wish to point out to you that such a statement is absolutely untrue—that I have millions of dollars invested in buildings, real estate and other securities and I ask if this is more productive than money invested in distilleries and breweries."

Couzens attacked Mellon's arguments on the following points:

"Mr. William Rockefeller would not invest in tax exempt securities if he could get any more standard oil stock at the original price," said Couzens. "Neither would I invest in tax exempt securities if I could get it at the original price per stock at the price I paid originally."

Mellon, Couzens said, made repeated misstatements in a recent letter to him.

"I do not know why it is necessary to tell absolute untruths in saying that my wealth is all in tax exempt securities and that I pay no tax," said Cousens. "I have already pointed out some of the taxes I have paid and there are, of course, some years when my losses have exceeded my taxable income.

"In addition, I gave to hospitals and crippled children in 1919, nearly 400 shares of Ford Motor Stock of a market value of nearly $2,000,000, which I was receiving $5 per cent dividends on par value of $400,000 or $140,000 per year on which I could readily have paid 50 per cent income tax and had a comfortable income besides.

"You make another misstatement when you say, 'You say you paid several million dollars on the sale of your stock of the Ford Motor Company.' I made no such statement and I challenge you to point out where I made such a statement."

More Difficult; Not Impossible.

ST. LOUIS.—A proposed amendment to the state constitution is designed to make it more difficult for legislators to peddle their votes. The amendment would add the words, "have not and" to the oath required of senators and representatives, making it read:

"I have not and will not knowingly receive, directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing, for the performance or non-performance of any act or duty pertaining to my office, other than the compensation allowed by law."

Poor Suffer In Cold.

Chicago's fourth dose of sub-zero weather was marked by more than seventy fires which drove hundreds of families into cold. Suffering was intense. More than 50 fire companies fought fire at the plant of the Sherwin-Williams paint company on Twenty-fourth Street. Dozens of working class families were driven out of their homes nearby when fire threatened to engulf their houses.

GIRLS DIDN'T EVEN GET PARTY IN MOVIE SCHOOL

They Paid Big Fees But Learned Very Little

How the dreams and ambitions of working girls who want to become movie actresses are exploited by unscrupulous agencies and schools was told to a DAILY WORKER reporter by Marcella Bates, 455 W. Wrightwood Ave., Chicago, who is a clerk and attended a "school" run by the Popular Motion Picture Producing Company which, she says, went to the school in answer to an ad she saw in one of the Chicago papers.

"Scores and scores of girls attended classes there," she said, "I paid $10 registration fee. Other girls paid more. The cost of a course of acting was $40 or $50. The instruction consisted of reading from a book in the presence of the class. The instructor would tell us how we should express what we read. Then we were given long talks on acting and the pupils were told to discuss them. The class would break up and talk.

"Some of the girls were given parts as extras in productions. To get a part it seemed necessary to pay at least $200. After going to the classes for several weeks and learning nothing I quit. There seemed to be a constant flow of people in and out of the classes. Old students would drop out and new ones come in. All of them must have paid at least $10. We were told all sorts of things about what was going to be done. Most of the girls were girls like myself who worked for a living and out of their wages managed to get the instruction that didn't amount to anything.

"We wanted to do something beside work in our lives and this school took our money and gave us nothing. During the day there were other classes attended by girls from poor families. They were sent by their parents, who wanted them to amount to something. All these movie schools are the same.

"There were supposed to be wild parties given by the instructors. I didn't see any. The girls who attended didn't even get that much from the school. Not even a party."

U. S. Imperialists Urge Arctic Grab By Big Dirigible

WASHINGTON — "Hell's bells! What are we going to do with the Shenandoah, put it on the mantlepiece? Let's hang the stars and stripes on the North Pole."

With this introduction, Lieut. Commander Robert Bartlett today told the House Naval committee what he thought should be done with the giant airship.

The proposed flight, Denby said, is a serious expedition and not "aeronautical acrobatics," the objects are:

1—To discover and claim for America for all time that unexplored area believed by scientists to be in the arctic circle.

3—To hang up a new aerial record for America by making around the world flight.

Denby revealed for the first time that it is the plan to have the Shenandoah start out across the world flight immediately after completing the mapping of Alaska. From Spitsbergen the dirigible would fly to England and on around the globe, Denby said.

Denby said the Polar flight should be undertaken this year because next year will be "too late."

"Some other progressive power with the facilities may beat America to it and add to its possession an unexplored area of one million square miles that scientists believe lies just north of Alaska," he said.

"Whether that land is habitable or not, it would be the possession of the United States," he said.

the State and Justice departments, who take the opposite view.

The Borah resolution, if adopted, will put the Senate on record in favor of American recognition of the soviet government, which Secretary of State Hughes so vigorously opposes.

Secretary of State Hughes' present intentions are not to appeal himself. Borah won't present his own case for recognition till all departments are there. Major question unquestionably why Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, chose this particular moment for his vacation in Panama, is one this investigation would afford him excellent chance to give committee his much advertised damaging evidence against American Communists and Soviet Rule in Russia.

Instead of utilizing this opportunity the American Federation of Labor officially arranges public anti-soviet rally to be addressed by one traveling under the name of M Sensinoff, a prominent Russian Socialist enemy of soviets.

CANADIAN LABOR URGES RELEASE OF McLACHLAN

Deputation Speaks for Dominion Congress

BY JOHN ROBUR

(Staff Correspondent of the Federated Press)

OTTAWA.—A plea for the release of James McLachlan, deposed secretary District 26, United Mine Workers of America, from Dorchester penitentiary has been made to the dominion government by a deputation of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress. Tom Moore, president of the congress, headed the deputation and with him were P. M. Draper, secretary-treasurer, and three vice-presidents.

The subject of releasing McLachlan was before the cabinet prior to the hearing of the Trades and Labor congress deputation. Many petitions for his release protest that civil rights have been abrogated, others charge unfairness at the trial.

Solicitor-General E. J. McMurray, who was counsel for some of those prosecuted in connection with the Winnipeg strike, has frequently advocated repeal of the hysterical legislation passed at the time of the Winnipeg strike, which removes protection previously given advocates of radical change by constitutional means. There has been some expectation that McMurray may bring in legislation this year to restore this protection.

A bill of this nature was introduced at a previous session by Jas. Woodsworth, labor member for Center Winnipeg. It was stopped by a special committee of the house of commons but never got to the point of being voted on by the whole house.

BRITISH COLUMBIA LOGGERS STRIKE FOR 8-HOUR DAY

Also Ask Release of the Class War Prisoners

Thousands of loggers are on strike for the eight-hour day in the eastern district of British Columbia, according to reports to the headquarters of Lumber Workers' Industrial union here. District officials say they are confident of success. The strike was called during zero weather when the roads were ideally hard for the sleighhaul's without which the work of the loggers during the year would be valueless.

Thousands of dollars are being raised from local business men and sympathizers to feed and house the strikers. J. A. MacDonald, former U. S. political prisoner who was deported to Canada last summer, wires he is touring the province as a member of the provincial legislature in behalf of the strikers.

Following regular procedure in western logging camps the "release of class war prisoners" is included in demands. Other demands are for the $4 day minimum, no censoring of mail coming into camps and no discrimination against the I. W. W.

Daily Worker Gets Good Reception at Johnson Meeting

If United States Senator Hiram Johnson did not see Friday's issue of the DAILY WORKER it was not the fault of members of the Young Workers League who distributed several thousand copies at each of Johnson's two meetings in Chicago.

At both the Broadway Armory meeting and the meeting called for Negro workers on the South Side the papers were eagerly accepted by people attending. None were thrown away.

Everybody who was given a copy of the DAILY WORKER seemed glad to get it and gave indication of intending to read it well. During all the speeches at both meetings many copies of the DAILY WORKER were being read.

Johnson did not touch on any of the points raised in Friday's DAILY WORKER in either of his speeches.

Fall Steal Indicates White House Could be Sold With No Risk, Says Sen. Caraway

By LAURENCE TODD.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON.—At last the charge of corruption has been brought in the Senate against Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior in the Harding cabinet, in connection with the sale of oil reserves. Senator Caraway of Arkansas, whose resolution calling for cancellation of the Teapot Dome lease, was shelved by Chairman Smoot of the Finance committee, on July 2 charged that the corruptly selling supply of the navy, but he said that so long as Attorney-General Daugherty has control of the Department of Justice "they may sell the White House" and remain immune from any indictment or prosecution. He suggested that the treason of Benedict Arnold, in selling a fort on the Hudson river to the British, was a mere trifle in comparison with Fall's sale of the motive fuel of the navy—the first line of the nation's military defense.

To such a level has the sense of shame descended, in the present administration at Washington, that the Harding-Coolidge administration senators made no attempt to reply to Caraway's indictment. Smoot sat silent, listening to the charges made against his friend Fall, and did not even rise to defend or explain a single item of the recital. The Senate proceeded to other business.

Fall's Record

Caraway told the story of President Harding's order transferring the naval oil reserves to the care of Fall, and of the prompt disposal of the oil, to the very last gallon, to Doheny on the one hand and Harry Sinclair on the other. Fall then left office, "to attend to his prosperous and ever increasing business" of running a ranch. He negotiated the purchase of more lands and he left Washington with $100,000 in a suitcase. There was a mystery surrounding the source of that $100,000.

Orgy of Lying

But when Walsh went to Florida to find McLean, who likewise was "ill," McLean's other lawyer, Lambert, went along and was promptly able to induce McLean to remember that he never had loaned Fall a dollar. There was no check stub or bank record to prove that any loan had been made. And strangely enough, living in the same Palm Beach hotel, under and assumed name and at McLean's expense, was Fall himself! Fall, who had been too "ill" in New York to come to Washington to testify, had fled to Florida to hide his friend, who now discovered that financial story. Fall then admitted thru a letter, while resting there, that himself he was confronted by Senator Walsh for examination, that his story of the McLean loan had been false.

Needed to Lie

"Men of this character do not deliberately lie unless they need to," remarked Caraway. He had called attention to the suitcase as the means of conveying corruption funds employed by "Gas" Aldricks in Delaware in buying legislature, and by the grafters in San Francisco in purchasing franchises for public utility corporations.

"Why did Albert B. Fall tell a deliberate and willful falsehood to Senate committee?" Caraway asked. "I know there is something wrong here. I knew that there is something behind this falsehood as to the source of the $100,000; something wrong in the sale of the navy's supply of fuel to two speculators, one of whom has boasted that he will make $100,000,000 by the deal."

Daugherty Aids Rich Criminals

He said that if it were not for the present attorney general, "all of these men would be indicted," but he was aware that so long as that official holds his job there will be absolute immunity, even tho they should sell the White House.

"We see here for the first time, and I hope the last time," he concluded, "a cabinet officer for a corrupt consideration, selling to private individuals the public property he was supposed to protect."

Great for the Bootleggers.

NEW YORK.—Hotel and railroad owners, restaurateurs and amusement proprietors are jubilant at the news that this city has been chosen for the impending Democratic National Convention. Large stores are restocking their shelves and bootleggers are smiling in anticipation. Tex Richard, pugilist entrepreneur and manager of Madison Square Garden, where the Democrats will foregather, is being besieged by newspaper reporters. He is reported to have forecasted that the selection of the presidential candidate will not be as good a drawing card as a Jack Dempsey bout.

"HOMESTEADING" DESERTED FARMS IN FERTILE DIXIE

Negro Exodus Leaves Great Tracts Vacant

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—In the Dixieland of song and story to become the land of opportunity for the land hungry American industrial workers and the peasant immigrant?

Hundreds of thousands of Negro farmers have left the south in the last seven years because they fear and resent the persecution of their race by the dominant white element and because of the openings in industry due to war expansion. Thousands of acres of the most fertile soil in the United States lie untilled and in many cases the agricultural population of whole settlements has left enmasse.

The large landowners are panic stricken. In the warm moist climate of the southland the soil is not cultivated rapidly becomes jungle and already the expense of reclearing abandoned acres has, in many instances, eaten up the market price of the land. Agricultural labor in sufficient quantities cannot be obtained and the wealthiest landlords are now "land poor."

The belief that a large portion of the colored population would return after a brief disillusioning experience in industry, a belief to which the landowners clung tenaciously for several years—has now been abandoned. Not the living conditions may be in modern industrial centers of the north, they enjoy a freedom from the petty tyrannies of overseer and landlord unknown to them before. The Negroes are not coming back to till the soil for white task masters; neither are they likely to take advantage of the concessions that their exodus has forced the whites to make. Millions of acres of it—and if white settlers are not secured will quickly become in the expanse of canebrake it was before the settlement of the south.

Reluctantly the landlords have been forced to the conclusion that a new type of farmer is the only solution—a farmer owning his land and becoming a unit in the social, economic and political life of the south. Only under the threat of speedy bankruptcy have the landowners arrived at the conclusion that they must break up their enormous holdings, sell them to new settlers for what they can get and watch the development of a new agricultural south that will have none of the traditions of the prewar southland—an agricultural south that will be much like the Middle West.

Here in Memphis has been formed an association of landowners for the purpose of inducing immigration—from the northern states and from Europe. It proposes to sell the big estates to settlers on the easiest possible terms—terms as low as the rent formerly paid. It is still attempting to exercise a sort of leadership of prospective settlers but the necessity of populating the deserted section with all possible speed makes this very difficult, impossible in fact. An indication of the critical nature of the agricultural situation here is that the association proposes to advance transportation funds "to desirable immigrants."

A family that can and will farm can have land almost on its own terms and if bonafide farmers, their maintenance will be furnished for a year or so pending a good crop.

In North and South Carolina similar efforts to secure settlers are being made and as the knowledge that the Negro is never going back to his former peonage spreads throughout the South larger and larger will be the acreage open to settlement.

Interesting as is this situation in that it opens up new opportunities for escape from the tread-mills of industry for hundreds of thousands of wage earners, its real importance lies in the fact that the old South has gone—the new settlers will take from the old landholding aristocracy their hold over the communities and will change the entire political complexion of the most backward section of the United States.

LABOR BANK SHOWS SUCCESS

Over a Million Dollars Sent to Russia

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK.—A gainful increase within the past nine months in deposits in the Amalgamated Bank of New York is reported by Dr. L. Leidheffer, the president. Redheffer's statement was made at the bank's first annual meeting.

Deposits in the labor-owned institution rose from $244,070 on April 14, 1923, to $2,302,276 today. It was also stated that the number of savings depositors had increased from 1,065 to 4,943, with a corresponding gain in commercial depositors from 408 to 1,700, during the same period. The bank, moreover, sent $8,000 money orders to Russia, comprising $1,552,666.

Leo Wehman and Frederick MacCauley were elected as directors, while the former officers were authorized to continue at their posts.

Sentiment among labor men here is that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, in establishing the first labor bank of New York, have already assured themselves of an historic success.

Labor Bank Earns 13%

There is a labor bank in Chicago which is earning 13% net on its capital. This record for the year 1923 was reported to the annual meeting by officials of the local Amalgamated Trust & Savings bank, operated by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' union.

Deposits during the year increased on the rate of $50,000 a month. Ten thousand dollars of the year's net earnings of $26,746 was set aside to take care of any contingencies. The foreign exchange department sent $1,524,209 in the form of 44,000 remittances to Russia. First mortgages amounting to $668,650 were made to union members on their homes.

Pres. R. L. Redheffer and the other officials were re-elected for the coming year.

Scabs Stab Striker

NEW ORLEANS.—Joseph Manning, one of the linemen on strike against the New Orleans Public Service, Inc., is in a local hospital suffering from wounds inflicted by scabs employed by the contract breaking corporation.

Manning approached a group of men on a service wagon and asked them "why do you want to take a union man's job?" Two of those addressed stabbed him in the head and chest, inflicting eight wounds.

The police, as usual, have been "unable to find clues."

Lovestone in New York.

NEW YORK.—Jay Lovestone, associate editor of the DAILY WORKER will tell "Who Owns Congress" at a meeting to be held at Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Ave., Wednesday evening, Jan. 23rd. The lecture which Lovestone has prepared after a long investigation of the methods of big business in politics promises to be a startling revelation.

Standard Oil Interests Financing New Wars for Great American Empire

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK.—Another sequel is being written in the great serial story entitled "The American Empire" the opening of that story is told in terms of the Standard Oil interests in the Near East.

The dramatic climax is being worked in the United States war and navy departments and in the secret chancelleries, where scientists are at work on the problems of submarines, airplanes and destruction.

And the prologue to the story will somehow be written with the blood of thousands of Private Henry Dukes, taken upon the "field of honor" in defense of American financial and industrial ventures abroad.

The interlocking directorates of our imperialists, that the Persian government has entered into negotiations with American construction and banking interests for the rehabilitation of railway lines and bridges in that country.

What this means, shorn of all diplomatic twists, is that American capital has accepted the challenge of British capital for domination of Persia, while both American and British interests will henceforth do their utmost to "protect" Persia from the influence of Russia. In fact, more than a year ago Persia concluded a treaty with Moscow, designed to shield that country from the predatory capital from the west.

The corporations now engaged in negotiations with the Persian government are the Ulen Contracting Co. of New York and the American International Corporation, both of which have representatives at Teheran, the Persian capital.

Inquiries in reliable Wall Street quarters brought The Federated Press information that these private dealings are being carried on with full knowledge of the government at Washington.

It is stated that the construction work, if undertaken by American corporations, will be financed by American bankers, after getting away with the Teapot Dome steal, has just sailed for parts unknown in Europe or Asia. He could tell us more of the activities of these pioneers of American empire if he cared to.

This much we know already: While our solemn government institutions are busily debating whether America should commit herself to foreign entanglements, enterprising capitalists, such as Ulen and Sinclair have long since decided this debate in the affirmative. It is the function of the American government and the American people to say "aye" to these accomplished facts. And if these entanglements mean future war, Americans must say "aye" to that, too, until Labor asserts itself with the same determination as the Ulens and Sinclairs.

FRISCO LABOR IN BIG PLANS FOR ITS OWN THEATRE

Well Known Workers Going to Turn Actors

(By The Federated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO.—An interesting development in labor and art circles here is the organization of a new "little theater" company, to be known as the Telegraph Hill Players. Several well known labor men and women are among the company, which is organized on a cooperative basis. The director, Ben Legere, is an organizer for the O. B. U. and was leader of the 1922 Lawrence strike. He has been for many years a professional actor. The secretary is Miriam Allen deFord, Federated Press staff correspondent.

The plays to be presented are being chosen largely for their social messages, the first bill consisting of Shaw's The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet, indictment of puritanism and hypocrisy, and Strindberg's Countess Julia, with its exposition of the class conflict. Later other modern classics will be given, as well as two interesting plays which will have their first performances on any stage.

Special opportunities will be given to labor and defense organizations to stage benefits. Anyone interested should address the secretary at Box 573, San Francisco.

Other labor men actively connected with the new organization are Arthur Howe and Robert L. Hartford of the Typographical union, and Maynard Shipley, labor editor and organizer.

DEMAND POWER BE TAKEN OUT OF PRIVATE HANDS

Electrical Workers Back Bill in Congress

By LAURENCE TODD.

(Staff Correspondent of the Federated Press)

WASHINGTON—Starting off a statewide campaign on behalf of public super-power legislation, endorsed at the conference of the Public Ownership League of America, here after the bill drafted by the labor committee during the past year has been analyzed and compared with that of Ontario and California and other legislation on power ownership and control.

The committee selected to conduct the campaign includes Rev. John A. Ryan, National Catholic university; James P. Noonan, president, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; Charles Edward Russell, magazine writer; Benjamin C. Marsh, managing director, Farmers' National Council; Miss Jennie Boal, Michigan State Grange, and Charles K. Mohler, engineer of Chicago.

The bill was indorsed after Noonan, Ryan and Senator Norris, among others, had outlined the dangers of private power monopoly in the immediate future, and the need for prompt federal legislation to place the ownership of super-power in the hands of the nation.

Noonan read the resolution adopted by his own union and by the last convention of the American Federation of Labor, and declared that organized labor was to be counted upon in the battle against the private power interests and in favor of federal government ownership and government administration of the power industry.

Dr. Ryan said that the development of super-power would cut in half the present cost of electric service, and would make electricity cheaper than gas, oil or wood; it would make possible the redistribution of population from the crowded cities to small towns, since small factories could be located anywhere when electric power could be delivered anywhere.

After reviewing the extortion practiced by the railroads and the anthracite mine operators upon the public, Ryan declared that the only way to avoid the evils "is through government ownership of the sources and instrumentalities of electric energy and government distribution of the product, so the public would get better service, lower rates and less interference when served by its own organization."

Senator Norris will have charge of the public super-power bill in congress. It provides that not only Muscle Shoals but all other available public sites be turned over to the non-political government power commission which would be created by the measure, for development of these sites and for the linking up of the power produced at these plants with power to be produced by burning coal at the mouths of mines. The current would be sold in competition with the privately owned power, until the private interests should give up the fight and sell out, as was the case in Ontario.

DEMONSTRATE IN FIGHT TO FREE THE FILIPINOS

First of Many Meetings Planned for Nation

The first of a series of many meetings the country over against American imperialism organized by the Workers Party will be held in Chicago, Feb. 1st.

Pedro Guevara, the Resident Commissioner of the Philippines to the United States, will be one of the speakers. Mr. Guevara is one of the few men in the fight now being waged by the Filipino people for freedom from the tyrannical regime of Wall Street instituted by the notorious enemy of organized labor, General Leonard Wood.

C. E. Ruthenberg, Executive Secretary of the Workers Party, a prominent representative of the Hindu national independence movement, and Jay Lovestone, who has been making a special investigation of the Philippine crisis, will also speak. James P. Cannon, National Chairman of the Workers Party, will preside.

The situation in the Philippines is becoming critical. The recent sensational exposures of General Wood's family oil transactions have brought the whole Filipino question to the front. Startling revelations about the high-handed treatment accorded the Filipino workers and farmers by the agents of American imperialism will be disclosed at the meeting which will be held at the Schoenhofer Hall, Ashland and Fifteenth Aves. The meeting will be public and all workers are urged to attend.

Wood Fears Investigation

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Governor General Leonard Wood is trying to dodge the promised investigation of his administration of the Philippines, members of the Philippine independence mission said here today.

He is "backing down" from his autocratic attitude toward the Filipino House of Representatives, His "about face" shows that he has something to fear from an investigation, the independence mission said here today. Wood is reversing all his policies in dealing with the native government.

Cenaita Cabinet for First Time

Two instances showing his change of front are cited. Last Monday General Wood for the first time consulted members of the Cabinet on measures he wanted to recommend to the legislature. On Thursday he gave the secretaries of departments permission to send direct to the legislature proposed bills instead of thru the executive. It has been the practice to send all such bills thru Wood's office since he became Governor General.

"General Wood has seen the handwriting on the wall," Manuel Roxas, speaker of the Philippine House of Representatives and head of the independence mission in this country, said. "Nothing can stop the investigation of autocratic rule.

"Two resolutions now pending before Congress—introduced by Representative Frear of Wisconsin and Senator Ladd of North Dakota—are going to bring about an inquiry into the Wood administration that will be a revelation to the United States.

"I have been informed that General Wood has been advised of the inevitability of an investigation and told to 'cover up.'"

Put Ban on Tikhon.

MOSCOW.—Bishop Jacob, the representative of the Constantinople Patriarch in Moscow, has declared to Archbishop Endoeemia, President of the Russian Synod (head organ of the Russian Orthodox Church), that the Patriarchate of Constantinople recognizes the Synod as the only ruling organ of the Russian Orthodox Church, and considers that Tikhon must abandon altogther his activities in the life of the Russian Church.

UKIAH, Cal.—After being held four weeks incommunicado with no charge against him, C. R. Dalton, I. W. W. member, has been sentenced to 60 days for "defrauding the railroad company out of fare." The customary sentence for this offence is 30 days, but in 60 days the lumber camps around here will be shut down, and no further organization work can be done in them.

THE FARTY AT WORK

Support Campaign for German Relief

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party has issued in connection with this the following appeal to all District Organizers and City Central Committees of the Party:

The Committee for Relief in Germany (to be known in the future as the Friends of Soviet Russia) are undertaking a campaign in the interests of relief for the German workers and will be known in the future as the Friends of Workers Germany as the Committee for Relief has been changed.

As a means of organizing the German relief campaign, conferences are being called in all the cities of the country to which all organizations interested in the work are being invited to send delegates.

The success of these conferences are of the utmost importance in the campaign now under way and you are instructed to see to it that the Party organization in your District and cities gives full support to these conferences.

The CCCs should in every instance have delegates at the conferences as well as the branches of the Party. Certain comrades who are familiar with relief work should be appointed to represent the Party in these conferences and it will be their duty to mobilize the Party organization in support of the relief campaign.

You should send the necessary instructions to all the branches of the Party in your territory.

Signed:
C. E. RUTHENBERG, Executive Secretary.

Italian Section of Party Shows Progress

By ABRAM JAKIRA.

The Italian workers are perhaps the most exploited in this country where fascism is being given a foothold at present. It is the Italian worker who is to be found slaving everywhere that real hard physical labor is required. No wonder one can always find among the Italian workers a spirit of dissatisfaction and rebellion.

Disappointed by the opportunism of the late Socialist Party, the revolutionary Italian workers have developed an anti-political and anti-parliamentary point of view and followed the path of anarcho-syndicalism.

For the last two years the Italian Section of the Workers Party had to carry on a vigorous struggle against these syndicalist tendencies which were deeply rooted among the Italian revolutionists.

These struggles have brought results. During this period, and especially so during the last year, Communism has been gaining more and more strength among the Italian workers.

The "Alba Nuova", the Italian Communist weekly, for instance, has for the last year increased its circulation from less than 4,000 to about 10,000 with new subscribers coming in every week, mainly from the ranks of the coal diggers. The paper has succeeded in putting itself on a self sustaining basis. Plans are now being made by the Italian Section of the Party to publish a Daily.

The actual Italian membership in the Party is now about 800, consisting of workers who formerly followed the Socialist and Syndicalist position and who are engaged mainly in the Needle Trades, Textile and Mining industries. At this moment five field organizers are being toured by the Italian comrades and with good results. New branches are being organized in various parts of the country. Twenty-four new branches have been organized since last October.

The Italian comrades have a hard task before them in order to combat the syndicalist tendencies followed by the Italian rebels of this country and to win them to the Communist position. The Communist Party's realistic, tactics followed by the Workers Party both on the industrial and political field are the best guarantees for the success of their work.

Armenians Must Unite.

The "Daily Worker," of Jan. 14, carried an appeal issued by the Central Executive Committee of the Party to the Armenian Communists of this country calling upon them to unite and discontinue their factional controversies. The position of the Central Executive Committee has since been upheld by the Comintern. Comrade Sumarian, who is leading one of the factions, appealed to the Comintern against the decision of the Party. The Comintern, acting upon this appeal, replied by cable—"Sumarian must return to Party work and await resolutions of the Comintern."

The Central Executive Committee of the Party has therefore instructed Comrade Sumarian to immediately take his place in the Bureau of Armenian Federation of the Workers Party and informed him that should he persist in his activities in endeavoring to split the organization of the Armenian workers in this country he will not only be violating discipline of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party but also the discipline of the Communist International.

All branches of the Armenian workers which are for the Communist International will immediately follow the instructions given to their place as branches of the Workers Party.

Ward University Gift Monument of Labor's Patience

Mrs. A. Montgomery Ward, widow of the mail order king, will give $1,000,000.00 to Northwestern University for the endowment of a hospital. The gift, she said, would be an appropriate memorial to her late husband, Montgomery Ward. It is the fourth million given by Mrs. Ward within a year.

Employers of the Montgomery Ward Co. believe that the gift should be a memorial to their patience and never failing industry. They point out that they are compelled to work overtime whenever the bosses consider overtime necessary. They do not get paid for overtime work. Especially during the Christmas season overtime is demanded. If they work long enough they are given 50 cents as supper money. If, however, they only work an hour and a half or two hours overtime they get nothing.

"If overtime were paid, it might cost the company a million a year. Since they don't pay it they can afford to be generous," was the way one worker put it.

AUSTRIAN LABOR SHOWS SPIRIT, WINS STRIKES

Hand and Brain Workers Unite Against Bosses

(By The Federated Press)

VIENNA.—Two great strikes in private industry in Austria—that of the metal workers and that of the hotel workers in industry—have ended with victories to the workers.

Acting under the intuition they got from Hindenburg and other German industrials in matching one workers' right after another away from labor, the industrials of Austria no doubt think the time had come for them to "show labor its place." When therefore, the workers in the metal trades and the "white collar" workers in factories came forward with demands for wage increases in accordance with the index figures of the cost of living, the bosses declared they were willing to make individual raises, but not to deal co collectively.

This was so obviously a blow to the principle of collective bargaining that the workers declined these terms. They were then locked out. But hand and brain workers joined hands, and a "wild" strike of the electrical workers breaking out just then was also sanctioned by the military jurisdiction. In Cracow, where the striking railroaders openly sabotaged the state-of-siege order, martial law was declared.

A mighty unrest seized upon the whole working class. Even the reformist clique of leaders who carried on secret negotiations with Korfanty all the time, could no longer remain silent without losing the rest of their influence upon the workers. Under the pressure of the masses the Polish Socialist Party, and the Trade Union Commission decided to call out the whole working class to a general strike of sympathy with the railroad workers, to begin on November 5.

Monday, Nov. 5, the general strike started in almost all the labor centers of Poland. Even in those districts where big strikes had been fought out only a short while ago and which did not learn in time of the decision for a general strike, even in such places it was decided at workers' meetings to join in the strike in a few days, as for instance in Lodz and Upper Silesia. In the latter district the strike was carried which gave the whole fight a new turn.

The scene of this event was Cracow. The strike here was complete; the anger of the masses which was constantly being stirred by police provocations, reached new heights. Already on Monday there had been bloody clashes with the police on the streets, which were stormed by the crowd of workers gathered in the neighboring streets. After the police had tried in vain to disperse the crowd, a company of infantry was summoned. But the workers received the soldiers in a friendly manner, fraternized with them and went into lively conversation with them. When shortly after that, two squad. cars of police had been made, the workers, the infantrymen were immediately disarmed, and a regular battle ensued with the cavalry.

The commander of the Uhlans was the first to fall from his horse; seriously wounded; two captains and one lieutenant died on the spot, and almost all the other officers came out of the fight badly wounded. The workers captured most of the two armored cars which had been brought, and directed it at once against the enemy.

The battle lasted for about two hours. The victory was unquestionably on the side of the workers. Of the 30 dead and 70 wounded, the great majority were of the attacking cavalry; 10 horses were dead, and about 100 ran wounded into the city.

After the governor and district commander had capitulated and a militia to preserve order. The disarmed soldiers were held prisoners in the Workmen's Home. The rest of the garrison, which was of considerable strength was kept shut up in the barracks by the intimidated military authorities.

The reformist "leaders"—two Social-Democratic deputies—who observed the course of battle far from the shooting, were even more frightened by the victory of the workers than the government authorities. From first of all informed their Central Executive Committee in Warsaw by telephone, and the Central Executive Committee hurriedly locked up the prime minister and offered him with trembling to call off the general strike and end the whole fight, in the name of the party union and. The very afternoon the Central Executive Committee of the Polish Socialist Party and the Trade Union Commission already published their orders to the workers to break off the general strike immediately.

To replace the recalled District Commander, they sent, to Cracow, General Uhlenberg, a union member of Vilna, who was greeted with jubilation by the Social Democratic leaders, and not by the rank and file, disarmed the workers and restored "order."

But the order to break off the strike was not obeyed everywhere. In the first place it was not communicated with in Cracow for the reason that the railroad workers refused to transmit such orders. Secondly, there were districts in Warsaw in the suburb of Pruszkow, where the workers, under the leadership of Communists, voted for the Communists' proposal to persist in the struggle. The same was true of the Boryslaw-Drohobycz mines, where there were serious clashes with the soldiery, costing three lives of workers.

The full utilization of the Cracow victory thru the sharpening of the general strike which was just beginning to develop and which would have undoubtedly led to the overthrow of the tottering reactionary government, was thwarted by the most ignominious betrayal by the Social Democrats. Nevertheless the occurrences which have been described remain an experience of the very highest significance for the further struggles of the Polish working class.

The most important thing, and which is obvious, is the spontaneous outbreak of the mass will to fight and fighting initiative of the laboring masses, even of those who until a short time ago were passive and indifferent. In particular, the Cracow episode has presented a model for an armed struggle, which will call for imitation in all future struggles.

The Communist Party, of course, was always in the first ranks thru-out of all the struggles of the past weeks. It will be their task now to utilize the lessons of the struggles for preparing the coming ones, not only the political lessons, but also the organizational and technical-military ones.

The Polish revolution is on the march. For the Polish comrades it means that they must arm, without losing a single hour.

New Invention.

Petrograd.—Professor Kuznetsoff, of the Mining Institute, in Petrograd, has discovered a new method of mechanically enriching coal. By the application of this method, coal of very low quality acquires such superior quality as makes it equal to the Cardiff species. Big Strike Movement in Poland Indicates New Workers' Struggles Against World Counter-Revolution

WARSAW.—The events of the past week in Poland, which until now have received but little attention in the world press, are of the greatest importance for the development of the revolutionary movement in Europe.

In the middle of October there was a strike movement in Upper Silesia, which in a few days developed into a general strike of the miners, which, in spite of the state of siege and the raging terror of the government authorities, ended in a victory for the workers.

The full utilization of the Cracow victory thru the sharpening of the general strike which was just beginning to develop and which would have undoubtedly led to the overthrow of the tottering reactionary government, was thwarted by the most ignominious betrayal by the Social Democrats. Nevertheless the occurrences which have been described remain an experience of the very highest significance for the further struggles of the Polish working class.

Women Voters in N. Y. Plan Fight on Child Labor

(By The Federated Press)

UTICA, N. Y.—Vigorous demand for advanced labor legislation was made at the convention of the State League of Women Voters here. More than 14,000 women were represented at the convention, while the Federal league, of which this is a branch, claims 2,000,000 members.

The league indorsed a drastic child labor amendment to the constitution. Altho no single suggested amendment was cited, sentiment is most favorable to the proposed amendment of Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania. This plan would enable the federal government to prohibit employment of persons under the age of 18 and would also determine conditions of labor in all industrial spheres.

Further labor demands put forward by the convention were: Immediate appointment of a minimum wage commission; legal establishment of the 48-hour week for women and minors; a shortening of the period for compensation in case of illness or injury. (The state now requires no compensation until a period of two weeks has elapsed.)

The Federated Press understands that the organization of women voters has been consulting the Women's Trade Union league with regard to issues of social and labor legislation, and that the foregoing demands were made in collaboration with trade unions.

A lively debate was evoked at the convention upon the proposal of a resolution favoring amendment of the law "which prohibits the giving of birth control information" and which results in keeping scientific information on this subject from a large portion of the population." A substantial majority voted in its favor.

Ask Carpenters to Stay Away from Sedalia, Missouri

SEDALIA, Mo.—Union carpenters here are concerned over the large influx of carpenters from other cities. Commercial bodies have been broadcasting reports of an alleged building boom in Sedalia, in response to which hundreds of carpenters have come here from a distance, only to find they have been fooled. Practically 60 per cent of the membership of the carpenters' district council have been idle during the late summer and fall, and the situation grows worse during the winter.

"For every job in Sedalia there are five carpenters here now," says a circular letter sent out by the carpenter's council. "A further influx of carpenters at this time would hamper the effectiveness of our organization in maintaining present union conditions. Carpenters, stay way from Sedalia."

K. C. Carpenters In New Home.

KANSAS CITY.—A large crowd attended the dedicatory ceremonies of the local carpenters' union when its magnificent new home was formally opened. The local union has a membership of 1,800. The new structure is a completely equipped labor headquarters and includes a spacious auditorium for mass meetings. E. T. Wood, president, Missouri State Federation of Labor, was the principal speaker. An entertainment program was given.

The Industries for the workers!

NEW YORK.—Discontented tenants, protesting against high rents and miserable housing conditions, met here last night under the auspices of the United Council of Working Class Women. Yesterday's meeting is the second in a series of protest meetings against exorbitant rents.

VARIED PROGRAM ON CHICAGO SYMPHONY BILL

Cecilia Hansen Plays Saint-Saens

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN

Frederick Stock, director of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, was not at his accustomed desk at the orchestra concert Friday and Saturday. He is directing in Philadelphia this week end, and Eric Delamarter, assistant conductor, directed. There are vague and unauthenticated rumors that Mr. Stock there will be no more Symphony—but that is another story.

The concert opened with Weber's overture to "Oberon," a fairy opera, with an overture consisting of tranquil, noctural movements contrasting with brilliant, vigorous, themes. Mr. Lindemann played the clarinet solo in it superbly.

The first symphony of Georges Enesco, the modern Roumanian composer, followed. The first movement of the symphony contains exciting, agitated music, contrasted with musical suggestions of the peace of great landscapes at dusk. The second movement is tragic, like the slow march of silent, shrouded figures thru darkness. The third and last movement is like the first, contrasts of calmness, and complex emotional confusion. The movement suggests Wagner.

The soloist was that glorious Valkyr of the violin, Cecilia Hansen. She played the Saint-Saens third concerto. This is one of the great masterpieces of musical art. Like the fifth piano concerto, played last week, Saint-Saens has introduced a folk song into the second movement, this time one of the Sicilian peasants. The whole concerto is one long ecstacy of pre beauty and, at the end of the second movement, touches the highest altitude that music can carry the human soul.

The orchestra closed with three Slavonic dances by Dvrak, which are weak and tame imitations of the Hungarian dances by Brahms.

Next week there will be no soloist; the orchestra will play Ceasre Franck's symphony, and five short numbers, by Beethoven, Wagner, Strauss and Paniza.

Russia's Favorable Trade Balance

The attempt of our Standard Oil Secretary of State Hughes to isolate Soviet Russia and tie her up the whole world in an economic and political boycott against the first Workers' and Farmers' Republic is meeting with failure. The best proof of the complete disaster that has overwhelmed the efforts of Hughes to overthrow the Soviet Government is established by the latest trade figures of the Russian Republic.

For the first time in many years Russian exports have become really an important factor. With the good harvest of 1922 grain exports have resumed. Butter, eggs, sugar, matches, flax, barley are also being exported in increasing quantities. The increase in the main branches of export has been as follows in the past year over 1921: Grain, 131 per cent; oil, 116 per cent; flax, 115 per cent; sugar, 109 per cent; cotton, 140 per cent; linen, 178 per cent; and silk, 134 per cent.

We could go on and on to cite proof that Soviet Russia is succeeding in rebuilding her country despite the efforts of her enemies of the Hughes-Harding-Hoover type to isolate her. About twenty countries already recognized Russia various degrees of recognition. England and Italy, France and Czecho-Slovakia are in the midst of arrangements for complete recognition. After the American economic blockade of Russia, which Hughes represents it took the United States at least eleven years before the Red Czar of stability was evident in the country. In view of the silliest inconsistencies thrown in the path of Russian reconstruction by Hughes, business and farmers are manifesting their fastened anger at Hughes' policies.

JOHNSON SPEAKS AT RECOGNITION MEETING HERE

Also Moving Pictures at Big Demonstration

Albert A. Johnson, who has made four trips to Russia as a member of the unofficial American International Commission sent there by the Hearst newspapers, will be the speaker at a mammoth mass meeting to urge recognition of Russia at Ashland Auditorium, Sunday evening, Jan. 27.

Robert Morse Lovett, a professor at the University of Chicago will also be a speaker. Upton Sinclair, internationally known novelist has also been asked to speak. His reply to the invitation has not been received yet.

In addition to the list of speakers who will tell why Russia should be recognized by the United States government there will be a musical program and moving pictures of both Russia and Germany. These pictures were taken by representatives of the International Workers Relief Committee of which the Friends of Soviet Russia and Workers Germany is the American branch.

The meeting is being arranged by the Friends of Soviet Russia and Workers Germany and the entire proceeds will be devoted to German relief.

During Johnson's four visits to Russia he became personally acquainted with most of the government officials there and is an expert on agriculture. Johnson will speak with authority on Russia and her problems.

Wave of Firemen Are Worst Sufferers Under 24-Hour-Day And No Time For Home Life

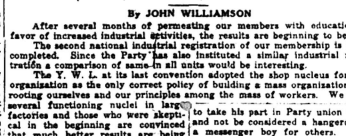
A fireman's life is a dog's life. That is a interesting and exciting one, that is if you like excitement. That is spent in drudgery, even at work. If it is not a dog's life, it is a mighty hard one. Try to be a fireman's wife. Try to be a fireman's child. Try to be a fireman's friend. Try to be a fireman's anything. Then you will understand why firemen are wanted to know why they are striking.

Chicago has the worst paying system which means firemen have to work at the engine house 24 hours at a time. Then they eat, sleep for 24 hours, but they are still on duty subject to call.

"It's no life for a man with a family. Being away from home every other day busts up a man's family life. The nervous strain of being married is that your wife is continually worrying. I've been on the department for seven years and every time the phone or door bell rings when I'm away from home, my wife thinks I'm going to get hurt. If something had happened to me. And I know that the same thing is true of other firemen's wives. I am one of a thousand," they told me.

"In time it is bound to tell on a woman's health. My wife is as nervous as a cat. Every time I leave home for work she knows it may be the last.

"It's the hunk, this life. If you don't get killed you stand a fine chance of getting seriously hurt in a fire or fires. If you escape you won't get hurt there is always a chance that you will get hot as all hell right up against the fire and then have to go out in the cold and



The YWL on the Industrial Field

By JOHN WILLIAMSON

After several months of permeating our members with education in favor of increased industrial activities, the results are beginning to be felt.

The second national industrial registration of our membership is being completed. Since the Party has also instituted a similar industrial registration a comparison of same-in all units would be interesting.

The Y. W. L. at its last convention adopted the shop nucleus form of organization as the only correct policy of building a mass organization and concentrating ourselves and our principles among the mass of workers. We have several functioning nuclei in large factories and those who were skeptical in the beginning are convinced that much better results are being realised and all look forward to the day when our League and Party will be based entirely on shop units.

Early in the summer we had an acceptance of our demand for a conference regarding the working youth with Gompers. As expected he promised to consider our proposals but never as much as acknowledged future communications. Since then the Michigan Federation of Labor passed a resolution demanding that the A. F. of L. organize and educate the working class youth. We expect thru our efforts that other resolutions will be passed in the near future. In this work the Party members can be of unlimited value. However, our work must not stop at passing resolutions. With over six million workers under 20 years of age, 2 million of these being mere children between 10 and 15, a fertile field lies before us. The work of the Y. W. L. is to reach these millions of young workers, utilising their everyday struggles and miseries in furthering our program and rallying them into shop units of our organization.

Our members have taken a larger part in union and TUEL activity since this campaign has started. We expect to accomplish still further results in this work. However, our Party members should always realize that a member of the Y. W. L. is a Young Communist and is a future party member. As such he wishes to take his part in Party union work and not be considered a bungaron or a messenger boy for others. We need to rally every available member in the league and work for the industrial department of the Y. W. L. has that aim.

The Y. W. L. has made a good start knitting the American working class youth into a mass organization, and the results in all fields of activity are encouraging.

A "Soft-Hearted" General

A recent survey showed that 2,000,000 undernourished German children are in immediate need of feed many more before the comwinter, which promises to be the worst in Germany's history, is over."—American Relief Report.

Oddly enough, General Henry T. Allen former commander of the American forces in Germany is again starving the German children, and writes an article to that effect in The Locomotive Engineers Journal. His article is entitled "Shall Two Million Children Suffer?" What a peculiar question to ask, especially when American farmers don't know what to do with their produce.

But the most tragical part of the General's article is his statement that "America never waggd war on children," he refers feelingly to the 2,000,000 undernourished German children, but entirely overlooked the fact that right here in the United States of America, in the year A. D. 1924, 2,500,000 between the ages of 2 and 15 are forced to work in order to supply themselves with food, and that every investigation of the school children reveals savage undernourishment. But what can you expect from the head of a butchering force?

We are for immediate relief of the starving German children, and have gone a little farther than merely the writing of articles. The Young Workers' League is solidly behind the workers' relief campaign to aid the starving workers of Germany. At the same time we do not wear blinkers and can see that right here in the United States children go hungry every day; that children are bitterly exploited; that young people are reduced to the lowest sort of degradation because of low wages or no work at all.

Capitalist generals whose cannons tear up ripening fields, whose bullets end the life of fathers and mothers, in the interest of world markets shouldn't talk about the starving children. It doesn't sound just right.

WITH THE YOUNG WORKERS

CONDUCTED BY THE YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE

GENERAL REMARKS ON THE ACTIVITIES OF CHILREN'S GROUPS

Article No. 4.

First we want to deal with the ages of our children. We do not ignore the fact that very tiny children often want to visit our meetings, and that while we do not want to make our Junior Groups homes for babies we must not roughly or carelessly reject these. Our principle endeavor is to collect children between the ages of 10 and 14. And then—?

Above all, the children are not divided according to their public school classes. Now and then the oldest members of a group are united in a circle for a special purpose—for instance, to read a certain book or something similar. In open air games the children divide themselves naturally. The older boys usually prefer competitive games of some sort, younger children usually play ring games. But as often as possible, on Sundays, on free afternoons, summer evenings, after school hours, general play hours are arranged, these, and evenings of reading of fairy tales, or short excursions are attended by everyone—even by teachers with babies in their arms.

Among the older children committees are formed to attend to the details of the hikes, to give plays, or to prepare for the celebration of revolutionary anniversaries. But most important of all is our frequent and regular combining of children of all ages in special meetings, demonstrations, recruiting work and games. On such occasions the older children look after the little ones and the little ones imitate the older ones.

Care is taken to prevent the childrens groups from becoming an exclusive sect. We arrange regular public meetings in order to maintain contact with the masses of working class children. Children of different schools and classes, and from different localities, are assembled for the joint discussion of school affairs or for excursions, dramatic performances, play evenings and other occasions.

It is not as difficult to begin with this work as it is to continue it, perseveringly and persistently. Since our Junior Groups are not exclusive clubs but remain in contact with daily practical life they become most important factors in our movement.

AGENT PULLS GOLD STORAGE EGG GAG

Even Dickie Scott Stale Has Fruit

"The Communists have been accused of putting bad eggs in cold storage warehouses," said Dickie Scott, Chief Investigator of the Lusk Committee, "but we have found that the real scandal is of much greater importance that as yet it is shrouded in mystery.

"Our reporters have discovered that the Communists have started their campaign to raise funds for the defense of the Communist leaders who are now on trial in Chicago. Our efforts have been directed to ascertain the methods which will be used. Right O'Brien's Ten Hundred Soldiers (these men have been given a reputation for cleanliness by the Lusk Committee) will be employed in this drive. Chicago's underworld is reported as having entered the campaign with a generous contribution. It is expected, however, that the drive will be financed largely by the rank and file of the Communist party.

"We have also been informed that a conference has been held between Chicago's underworld leaders and Communist leaders at which it was decided to raise funds by the sale of eggs. Several carloads of eggs have been purchased by the Communists and placed in cold storage warehouses. Just how many eggs have been purchased and how much money has been raised by the sale of eggs is not known at present. Our investigators have not been able to get any information on this point. We do not even know whether the eggs have been sold or not. We do not know whether the Communists have made a profit or a loss on the deal. We do not know whether the eggs are good or bad. We do not know whether the Communists have been able to get rid of the eggs without losing money.

"You know we are not allowed to go on the street anything without our uniform on. Our actions are at the command of the chief of the department. Anytime he desires he issues an order that all free time is cut off.

"We have to buy our uniforms, pay for bedding at the fire station, the department buys only rubber fire clothes. There isn't another job of any kind that is as hard on clothes as firemen's jobs. Some times have to mend the regulation. If a fellow goes to a fire in his uniform pants and they are in bad condition he is out of luck, means $5 or $10 for a new pair. It has happened to me a dozen times. The city gives us a hose and axes for fires. All the other stuff we have to buy. Our boots have to be the best and in new condition all the time. Yeh, we're the heroes all right.

"Then the bunk, this life. If you don't get killed you stand a fine chance of getting seriously hurt in a fire or fires. If you escape you won't get hurt there is always a chance that you will get hot as all hell right up against the fire and then have to go out in the cold and

Industrial Bank In Moscow Shows Excellent Results

MOSCOW.—Attention has been drawn here to perfectly groundless reports, that have appeared lately in the foreign preps, and, in particular, in American papers, alleging that the Industrial Bank had closed down in view of the would-be fifteen million rouble deficit which it was supposed to have incurred under the directorship of Krasnostchekoff (now under arrest).

With reference to these totally false rumors, Mr. Xandroff, the president chairman of the board of directors of the Industrial Bank, states that not only has the Bank had no deficit during the last working year, but, in spite of the huge expenses involved during this period by the organization on most of forty branches of the Bank thruout all the Republics of the Soviet Union—it has cleared a net profit for the year of one million gold roubles.

The active operations of the Industrial Bank totalled 85 millions in the current year, and the paid-up capital of the Bank will soon be increased 100%.

The Bank, concludes its chairman, keeps up correspondent relations with the largest banking institutions in all the European capitals, and, far from closing, it is energetically pursuing its activities, with results that have surpassed the expectations of its founders.

Repatriate Russian Soldiers.

MOSCOW.—Raymond Poincare, French Premier, has written George Chicherin, Russian People's Commissar of Foreign Affairs, informing him that, in accordance with the respective remarks made by the Soviet Government, the French Government has decided to give an opportunity to the former Russian soldiers who came to Marseilles too late for the last party of Russian soldier repatriates which left from there, to return to their homes.

Millionaire's Son at Home Among the Kitchen Pans

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Laurence Adlon, 18 year old son of a German millionaire, is starting at the bottom in the trade for the job of succeeding his father to the management of a string of hotels owned by the latter in Germany by working in a hotel kitchen.

"The hotel magnate's son does not intend to return to Germany until his education is complete. He has already learned to clean a chicken and expects by the end of three months to have mastered the art of cleaning up everything in the hotel from the cuspidors to the guests.

There is only one fly in the young fellow's cream and that is the fear that on his return to Germany the workers of that country may have seized power and that his higher training may not be of any more use to him provided he insists on following in his father's footsteps with robbery as a career.

The German workers are getting tired of being robbed tho it must be confessed they have lots of patience.

Get unity thru the Labor Party!

Plutes Buy Dem. Meet and McAdoo Must "Line Up"

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON. — McAdoo supporters in Democratic circles here, claim that Wall Street has dealt him a heavy blow by buying at auction the national convention of their party. It goes to New York City to the price of $255,000. But, they say, the people will resent this attempt to influence the nomination, and McAdoo will win by a two-thirds majority next summer.

At the same time, they admit that the reactionary forces in the Democratic convention will dictate a reactionary platform, and that Mr. McAdoo, if nominated, will have to run on a platform that would equally fit Underwood or Ralston. Gone is McAdoo's faith in government ownership of railroads, which he expressed in a signed statement to the Natl. Board of Farm Organizations in 1920. He must please the Murphy-Brennan-Taggart interests if he is to have their support at any stage of the game.

The Locomotive Engineers' Journal now calls attention to the lack of assurance that McAdoo agrees with the railroad workers as to their industry, and a painful political pause ensues.

Boost the News Stand Sales

The Daily Worker can now be secured on the news stands in the city of Chicago. It is of great importance that those who have signed up such stands should be given encouragement to display the Daily Worker in the early days of its existence.

Our readers are therefore urged to purchase at least one copy of the Daily Worker each day until it is well advertised.

It is of special importance that our readers should ask for The Daily Worker from the news agents sent in their names.

Even though you are a subscriber we nevertheless urge you to purchase an extra copy each day from a news stand. You can use that copy to interest another worker in the paper and its message. We expect our subscribers and readers to boost the Daily Worker.

Sing and Dance for Pittsburgh Victims on February 27

The time in nearing when the capitalist courts will sentence to the fate of our comrades arrested in Pittsburgh, Pa., on Feb. 27, 1923. Their crime consisted in belonging to the Workers Party. This is a high crime in the eyes of the capitalists and they insist on putting our comrades behind the bars, thinking that they are thus preventing the progress of our movement.

The working women of Pittsburgh and vicinity, realising the necessity of co-operation have organized the Women's Progressive Circle. They meet every second and fourth Wednesday at the International Socialist Lyceum, 805 James Street, N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa. They have study classes and are at present arranging a huge Entertainment and Dance to be held on February 9, 1924, at the International Socialist Lyceum. There will be singing, recitations, speaking and dancing. An excellent lunch is being prepared.

We especially appeal to the working women to join with us in this work to help in the struggle against the tyranny of American capitalism.

Amalgamation means strength!

Organizers of the Amalgamated at Work in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS.—Determined to unionize the 7,000 men and women employed in the St. Louis garment industry, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers has five organizers here.

The organizers say local wages are from 35 to 50 per cent below Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Rochester, and other organized cities.

Miss Hortense Powermaker, an organizer, says going into a St. Louis clothing factory is like "stepping backward ten years."

Large plants here pay 10 cents a dozen for operations for which small contractors pay 25 cents, while Chicago agreements pay 55 cents an hour.

The union maintains two offices here, one for women and one for men. Meetings are well attended and the membership is increasing rapidly.

How About the Boycott?

ST. LOUIS.—Information comes to the Trades Union Promotional league that the local branch, Merchants and Manufacturers association, has appealed to business men thru a circular letter, whenever possible not to handle union labeled goods or employ union labor. When it becomes necessary to carry union made goods, the open shoppers ask that such articles be not featured.

Youth International Greets Daily

Moscow, Dec. 10th, 1923.

To "The Daily Worker"

Dear Comrades: The Young Communist International has watched with special interest your campaign for the creation of an English daily organ. We consider the establishment of The Daily Worker of great importance for the further development of the revolutionary movement in the United States. We record with special satisfaction the fact that the youth organization participates energetically and actively in this compaign.

We are firmly convinced that the interest which the League shows for the campaign of the Party will be appreciated by the Party and will be followed by an even closer co-operation between League and Party. We furthermore hope that this appreciation of the Party will also be shown in the columns of the daily organ.

The education of a young revolutionary generation is of greatest significance for the Workers Party. If the Party understands how to pay due attention to the youth problem, it will itself harvest the fruits of this policy.

We wish the Daily Worker the best success and hope that, equipped with this weapon, the Workers Party will succeed in carrying ever more effectively the struggle for the liberation of the American proletariat. In the country of child labor the daily organ has even a particular significance and we express our wish, that the Workers Party will now be able, together with the League, to make an advance on the field of struggle against child labor, a part of the capitalist system.

Hail to the Workers' Daily, the most important weapon in the struggle against American capitalism!

With communist greetings,

Danger Signals for Miners

The miners are about to gather in a national convention. There is strike talk in the air. It is a practical certainty that the bituminous miners will demand an increase in pay and improvement in their conditions of work.

The situation is a serious one and the capitalists are preparing for all eventualities. They are preparing for a fight to the finish. Already, the multi-millionaire mining engineer, John Hays Hammond, who headed Harding's Coal Fact Fixing Commission, is sounding the alarm. Mr. Hammond is yelling vociferously that quick action is needed to prevent a strike. He is now demanding that the Government forthwith establish a permanent Board of Inquisy as a division of the Interstate Commerce Commission. This Board should get to work at once. Should it fail then the Government is to step in and run the mines under "emergency."

An even more open hint to the miners that everything will be done to stop them from striking for higher wages and better working conditions is thrown out by the well-known news agency of Wall-Street, the Boston News Bureau. Analyzing the likelihood of a coal strike it says:

"If this were not the quadrennial year of balloting, there would be a serious strike beyond much doubt. But enormous pressure will be brought to bear upon the miners, especially in the Central Competitive field, for amicable adjustments of all differences and moderation in demands, and, above all, for avoidance of any organized effort to unionize the West Virginia fields."

This is the plainest sort of talk from the highest oracles of Big Business on the eve of a strike. The miners' convention would do well to heed these warnings. Two of their most powerful leaders, John L. Lewis and Frank Farrington, are prominent republicans. Farrington was once a member of the Republican National Committee. The need for action is urgent. The danger of a surrender to the coal magnates is great. Only the miners' convention can save the situation.

Thru the Backdoor

"Hell-and-Maria" General Dawes is trying to make a strong impression on Europe. Tottering capitalist Europe needs lots of blood and iron just now and our Holy Trinity of Banker-Generals can be counted upon to do some vital instilling.

The job assigned to Dawes, Young and Robinson is much bigger than the task of looking into German finances, tho that in itself is a herculean attempt. As a matter of fact victorious France needs about as much diagnosis and perhaps as major an operation as vanquished Germany does. The French Government is face to face with bankruptcy. This desperate condition can no longer be hidden from the world. Poincare's government is paying out in interest a huge proportion of its revenues. At the present rate it will take only about six years for the French Government to spend all of its revenues on interest payments.

Needless to say the European capitalists are seeing the handwriting on the wall unless America's mighty financial and industrial overlords again run to their rescue. In order to get the United States to step in as their savior, European capitalists are resorting to front and back-door methods. They are not only making outright appeals for Wall Street's help, but they are also sending over much of their own capital to invest in American industries.

The British capitalists are experienced at this game. They know that heavy investments in our industries will enable them to wield a tremendous influence on American foreign policy and politics. It was the great extent to which English capitalists had their capital invested in American industries along side of our own capitalists that helped them precipitate America's entry into the World War. The recent offer of serveral big Southern Power Corporations, having large British capital invested in them, for Muscle Shoals indicates clearly that Great Britain has definitely launched a campaign to draw America into the European maelstrom. Much additional capital would be needed by these Southern Power interests to utilize the Muscle Shoals grant and British capital is undoubtedly at hand to help realize the deal. Thus this backdoor inroad on American economic power is a political event of international import.

Mrs. A. Montgomery Ward, wife of the mail order king, had the pleasure of giving a check for a million dollars to North Western University. How many underfed girl-slaves of the mail order baron went to an early grave, in order to give the millionaire's wife the pleasure of appearing in the guise of a public benefactress?

Our Revolting Children

[illegible] Chicago Dental Society [illegible] convention. The statement issued by the dentists claims that most of the ills of the body are traceable to infected teeth and gums.

Faith in the pronouncements of those whose profession it is to tinker with broken down human machinery is rather shaky in an age when even the medical profession is so commercialized as at present. While we do not minimize the dangers contributing to ill-health, should the scanty chin fraternity grow in numbers, we are frank to confess that we are still more afraid of the type with the receding forehead and the protuding paunch.

If the brain cavity of the average American was capable of housing a more liberal supply of gray matter it is quite likely that those who produce the wealth which enables parasites to thrive in comparative ease, would be in a position to look after their bodies and organize a society so that the preservation of health would be considered of greater importance than the accumulation of wealth.

We learn that here in our Chicago public schools with 372,191 pupils there are only five full time dental hygiene teachers, tho the recommendation is for 236.

Our capitalist masters will willingly spend millions for war and destruction but while they like to boast and heave out their civic chests with pride over their public spirit; while they endow operas and other institutions that bring them renown and publicity, they leave the children without proper care and their parents without the necessary means to properly provide for them.

The trumpet blast of the dentists may send potential Andy Gumps scurrying to dental torture chambers and it may bring home to parents the necessity for more attention to child hygiene, but under the social system that sends little children under six into the mills and the sweatshop hells of the great cities it is utopian to expect that a dentist's warning will halt the chin in its retreat toward Adam's apple.

The French Impasse

President Poincare, in urging postponement of the economic measures until Tuesday, said in the Chamber of Deputies that no new charges of taxation could be imposed "except by preventing anyone from defrauding the state, which is committing criminal sacrilege."

If all new expenditures are abandoned, the premier continued, the financial crisis can be overcome and the franc stabilized.

"Criminal sacrilege" and "defrauding the state" are phrases which Premier Poincare should use sparingly for under this head might, with the change in sentiment which is taking place among the French population, come the military loans to Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and other vassal states.

The admission of the spokesman of French imperialism that all new expenditures must be abandoned is deeply significant. It means that French finance has at last come to an impasse. The French hegemony of Europe depends upon ever larger and larger advances for military purposes, for subsidizing such adventures as the separatist movements in the Rhineland and Palatinate and for maintaining intact the propaganda bureaus and semi-official organizations of French imperialism.

These constant drains on the treasury can be met only by increased taxation and an increased taxation and an increase in taxation means the end of the Poincare government. German reparations and the Russian debt have not materialized and disillusionment is spreading rapidly thruout France.

From now until the April elections both the French political and financial crisis will become more critical as the consequences of the imperialistic debauch become more and more apparent.

These be tough days for governments.

Brotherly Co-Operation

The twin brother of "Al" Woods, specialist in the production of bedroom and bathroom farces, has made so much money in the manufacture of handkerchiefs that he has retired and presented his factory to two of the hired help.

This incident will be used by the capitalist press to show that wonderful opportunities are ahead of every American boy and that faithful service is sure of reward.

Outside of the fact that the factory was not given to those who served by making handkerchiefs but to a couple of salesmen the interesting thing is the fact that so much money could be made in the handkerchief business.

Having witnessed a couple of performances of the Woods productions while temporarily demented we are able to come forward with an explanation. "Al's" twin brother merely sold handkerchiefs to all the people who had to hold them to their noses while watching a performance of "The Demi-Virgin" or "Getting Gertie's Garter."

The storm in the Teapot Dome may halt Calvin Coolidge in his race for the Presidency. At least Hiram Johnson hopes so. Now that Hiram's friend, Harry Daugherty, is involved we wonder what will the California Senator think of it?

Zinoviev to the Farmers of America

British Civilization in Ireland.

Just such an attitude you will frequently find in other parties as well. The work among the workers, in the trade unions, is a habitual thing to us; in this work we feel at home. But as for work among the farmers, we forget that. That is the situation in rich countries as Italy, where the farmer population preponderates. Owing to the same attitude, the mistakes of the Bulgarian Communists were in a considerable degree brought to light in due course of time.

The first international farmer conference which took place a short time back in Moscow has produced the greater echo than any of us could have expected, especially in Germany (because the situation in general is most revolutionary there) and, as we hear, in America also. It is quite probable now that this first international farmer conference will have tremendous significance gained in this respect in America deserves serious study by and serious attention from the whole international movement.

The under-estimation of the role of the farmers is the fundamental original sin of international Menshevism. The essence of Bolshevism consists just in this, that it has clothed with flesh and blood the idea of dictatorship of the proletariat, that it has begun to transform into actuality the hegemony of the working class in the revolution, and precisely for that very reason it seeks an ally in the propertyless farmers who, with correct tactics on our part, will aid the proletariat to fulfill its historical mission.

The chief differences between the Russian Bolshevik and Menshevik could, in the final analysis, be brought down to the question of the farmers. Even the "left" Menshevik, in 1905, although they imagined that they were more left than the Bolshevik, did not understand the significance of this farmer movement and in fact spoke an opportunist language. Almost all the conflicts among the Russian Bolshevik during the same Roumanian comrades it became clearly apparent that our comrades did not understand the tasks of revolutionary work among the farmers. And this in a country like Roumania where the majority of the population consists of farmers!

The first international farmers' conference will be followed attentively by every Communist in Europe and in the whole world. Every success of yours fills us all with pride.

"We know that the European proletarian revolution will, perhaps, not develop as yet in the next few weeks, however quickly it may have ripened of late. We stake on the inevitability of the world revolution, but that does not mean that we, the fools, stake on the inevitability of the revolutions in our country, 1905 and 1917, and we know that revolutions are not made to order, nor by agreement. . . . Notwithstanding that, we know that we are invincible . . . for the world proletarian revolution is invincible.

So wrote Comrade Lenin in the letter mentioned but a few days before. You will undoubtedly agree with us, comrades, that these words of the teacher remain fully and entirely in force.

Germany Reaches the Bottom of Misery

In the course of the last month, Germany was shaken by an unheard of economic crisis. Like an iron wedge the ruin of the mark separates Germany from the foreign countries and separates proletarians and possessing classes within Germany. The refusal of many small and big businessmen to accept paper marks as payment, completely suffocates the working masses, the unemployed, and workers on part time. The continuous fall of the mark did not only destroy the fundamentals of a future stable mark, but brought about the complete collapse of the provisionment of the big cities with food. Starvation took on gigantic dimensions. Unemployed marched in closed ranks to the markets and shops. The so-called unemployment dole is so small that in many cases the unemployed refused to accept it. Thus, for instance, recently in Dusseldorf, 132,000 unemployed jointly refused the starvation dole. They were to receive 164 billion marks, while one liter of milk costs 144 billion. Unemployment has increased immensely in the course of the last weeks. Two million eight hundred thousand are unemployed out of these, a million and a half are in the occupied territory, besides, there are at least the same number of part-time workers with two or three days' work a week. In all parts of the country there are every day most serious collisions with the police. In one single day in Berlin over 1,000 bakeries were plundered. As the government stopped the control on the price of bread, the bread became unpurchasable for the masses.

The price of a bread of four pounds on cards, that cost in the beginning of October 58 millions, jumped after the abolition of the bread became unpurchasable for the next day and had reached to over 150 billion by the beginning of November.

At the same time the weekly wage of a young worker of the age of 16 in Berlin was about 200 billion marks, is, the price of two loaves of bread or one pound of margarine. A carpenter's apprentice earned in the beginning of November on the average of 50 billion a week, that is, two whole eggs.

The cost of living for a family of four people increased from two million two hundred thousand fold of the pre-war time to 423 billion six hundred million fold from the beginning of September to November 10th. According to a statement of the chairman of the timber workers' union, the timber workers of the province of Brandenburg received on the 19th of October, a weekly wage of one billion, that is, the price of two loaves of bread. The wages of the full-time workers are at the highest, 10 to 15 per cent of the pre-war wages. The millions of unemployed and part-time workers receive sums which are only 50 to 70 per cent of these miserable wages.

One gets a picture of the chaos of prices if one compares the prices of Berlin and England. One ton of English coal cost in the beginning of October, 24.54 gold marks, while Westphalian coal could not be purchased for less than 52 gold marks, including the transport expenses, the English coal was 50 per cent cheaper than the German.

The pauperization of the broadest masses of the former so-called middle class has also progressed considerably. Ninety per cent of the middle class are today proletarianized. It recruits itself from all people of the so-called free professions, officials, traders and businessmen, small pensioners, etc. Driven to despair by starvation and misery, every day members of the middle class commit suicide. News, like the following can be found in the press almost daily:

"Yesterday evening about half past 8 o'clock, the 60 year old Professor Kurt Fink of Wustermark, committed suicide in the laboratory in the house at Bluecherstrass 67, by poisoning himself with gas. Need has driven the scientist to this desperate step. His whole fortune consisted of net quite 1,000 marks."

One can frequently find that penniless scientists sell papers on the street, are bank couriers or shop walkers in department stores. From the more than 10,000 Berlin students more than 60 per cent are compelled to earn their living as factory workers, clerks, bank couriers or very frequently as waiters.

The standard of living of the middle class is depressed to one-fifth of the pre-war standard. Actually a skilled worker, in spite of his miserable situation, earns considerably more than these proletarianized "better circles."

The cases, in which people from these circles become insane as a consequence of economic need, became more and more frequent. In one month alone the Berlin police announce more than 77 insane, "mostly victims of the serious economic need." In the same time there were 151 suicides.

The housing need among the broadest masses of the working population is indescribable. In July (in summer month) the Municipal Lodging House in Berlin, was visited by 69,777 male and 5,070 female persons as against 40,463 and 3,296 in the year before, in the same month.

The state of health of the working class youth is appalling. Rickets has spread in a horrible degree. According to the report of the Health Insurance in Dortmund, 27.8% of the children under six months, 41.1% of those from six months to one year, 40.2% of those from one to one year and a half, 32.1% of those up to two years and 89% of those over two years have rickets. In other towns the situation is similar. According to reports of the National Health Bureau, of the children in the elementary schools of 20 industrial towns, 42.5% were seriously undernourished and 10 per cent. were very seriously undernourished.

Of 100 pupils of the elementary schools in Hamburg, 43 had no ordinary shoes, 31 no ordinary shirt, 33 no ordinary socks, 44 no ordinary handkerchief. The lack of teaching material in the schools has become so serious on account of the continuous depreciation of money, that up to 60% of the pupils can no longer buy the necessary text books.

Lumber Workers' Union Grows.

Nearly 2,000 timber workers in Maine and New Hampshire have joined the organization since last July, according to a statement from the headquarters of Lumber Workers' Industrial union here. The men are employed by contractors operating for pulp mills. Mifine leads the country in pulpwood production.

"The Poor Fish says: Under communism we would have no peace of which to expend charity. The milk of human kindness would run dry in the channels of equality.

Government Chemists Make Big Discovery

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press Industrial Editor.)

Who says that public ownership stifles individual initiative and that the grab-it-all motive is necessary to bring out inventive ability? Just ask such a person to step upstairs and examine the record of the U. S. department of agriculture. If don't get much advertising in the metropolitan press. Of course not. The big papers aren't in business to furnish free space to opponents of profiteering with ammunition.

Just now come the department of agriculture chemists with a discovery for obtaining nitrogen from the air which will make large scale production in such plants as the U. S. government nitrate plant at Sheffield, Ala., possible to furnish how what that will mean to the farmers. Nitrogen is one of the most important elements in fertilizer. Hitherto it has been necessary to import a very large proportion of our nitrates from Chile. Germany, France, Italy, the Netherlands and Norway have also developed processes which equal any known elsewhere, but they have also perfected methods of monopolizing.

Where these chemists differ from farmers over to the side of the workers. At the first opportunity the American comrades must establish a special mass Communist newspaper designed for hundreds and hundreds of thousands of small farmers. The experience which we are going thru is having helped to create the Federated Farmer-Labor Party is being

Twelve years ago she had to import 65 per cent of the nitrogen she consumed. Last year Germany operated fixation plants on such a scale that she became almost free of the need for importation and it is predicted she will soon be exporting large quantities.

Present consumption of nitrogen in fertilizers in the United States is about 200,000 tons a year. Production of cheap fertilizer would largely increase this amount and would stop the steady deterioration of our farms which is one of the causes of the farmers' present distress. The annual loss of nitrogen from our soil is figured at from 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 tons.

So the discovery made by mere government chemists actuated by scientific interest and a desire to perform a necessary service is of immense importance for they have not only developed a process which equals any known elsewhere, but they have also perfected methods of manufacture.

Where then does private initiative and the profit motive come in? It will come in all right. Some big capitalist or capitalist combine will wheedle the government into leasing or selling the people's nitrogen plants and the chemists' formula along with them, on the vague promise that the government will get the use of them in time of war. Then the profit motive will begin to show its real results. The production of nitrogen will be kept down enough to keep prices and profits up. And the farmers' hope of cheap fertilizer will fade.

Perhaps the government chemists who have made the greatest progress in discovering the process without need of the grab-it-all motive would also be the best bet when it comes to choosing the men to supervise and operate the people's nitrogen fixation plants at Muscle Shoals and elsewhere. It would certainly relieve the government record of a great deal of futile debate to let the ghosts of Henry Ford and the other capitalists who long for the gilt edged monopoly go by.

60,000 STRIKE IN ENGLAND'S RAIL SERVICE

Enginemen and Firemen Fight Wage Reductions

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—Railwaymen, members of the Society of Enginemen and Firemen, to the number of 59,000 are on strike. They were joined by 11,000 members of the National Union of Railwaymen, whose national secretary, J. H. Thomas, is slated for a post in the new Labor Party ministry.

The Society of Enginemen and Firemen have issued the following statement:

"It is a battle against the capitalists, who from 1913 to 1922 amassed a surplus of £9,000,000.

"We have no intention of starving the public and will not interfere with any legitimate emergency measures to insure a supply of foodstuffs. We do not mind what the government does so long as it does not run the railways during the strike and by such an act become a blacking government. Our strike will prevent, for a period at least, the use of the great system. Private trading thinks more of itself than of its servants."

Fight Wage Reductions.

The strike is the result of wage-reductions for enginemen of £3.00 to £3.00 and £2.00 to £4.00 per week for firemen which became effective after midnight Monday. All efforts of the leaders of the British Labor Party to settle the strike failed to avert the walkout and the sympathetic strike of a section of the National Union of Railwaymen was contrary to assurances given the government by J. H. Thomas.

J. Bromley, secretary of the Society of Engineers and Firemen states that the strike is a complete success. That his view is correct is evidenced by the fact that train service in Great Britain is practically at a standstill.

Strike in Full Swing.

An early morning countywide survey showed the strike in full swing. Engineers and firemen who are members of the Associated Society which ordered the walk-out after strenuous efforts on the part of England's most prominent labor leaders failed, did not show up for work.

Some of those on strike lounged about the shops in their Sunday clothes and jibed at those who remained loyal to the orders of J. H. Thomas and ran the few trains that got away.

There was no reports of sabotage. Efforts of the strikers to interfere were confined to verbal persuasion.

Hyde Park on War Basis.

London's great network of subways was not affected by the present strike. Street cars and buses here and in the provinces continued to run, carrying many thousands of suburbanites who ordinarily depend upon local train service. In the great strike of 1919, these transportation facilities were completely disrupted. This strike is confined entirely to engineers and firemen and their helpers.

Last night trains were leaving London terminals on schedule, but their crews ran them to certain prearranged points and then abandoned them.

Hyde Park was on a "war basis," with fleets of motor lorries mobilis-

Ellis Island Rule Blamed for Death of Young Woman

NEW YORK.—A boy born on Ellis Island, whose immigrant mother, Ruth Grahn, died there, has been given into custody of his aunt, Mrs. Minnie Hester, of Moline, Ill.

Mrs. Hester, sister of the dead woman, blames the death of her sister on Ellis Island authorities. The girl had been detained since before Christmas.

Before an order for her deportation could be carried out a son was born. A special board ruled that the child was of Swedish nationality, altho born on American soil. There was no quota hindrance and the boy was admitted on the promise of his aunt to educate him.

All this fuss over Russia by our state department is due to one thing—the fact that labor rules in Russia thru its own form of government.

"Bill" Burns May Visit Chicago to Hush Robbery Scandal, Says Police

William J. Burns, arch-communist ferret, is planning a hasty visit to Chicago to buck up the morale of his subordinates who are confessing here to wholesale robberies and assaults, say reports current in Chicago police circles.

The sensational disclosures of "stick-up" activity by the Burns' dicks in the Windy City come at a moment when United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana is pressing congress for a searching probe of the private detective agencies which have one leg in the department of justice and another in the investigation bureaus of the big open shop enterprise of America.

The revelations or underworld activity as well put the leading sleuth corporation into such an ugly light that the Wheeler proposal cannot be halted unless Burns can get the Chicago confessions repudiated.

Mrs. Ida Jacopson, of North Kimball avenue, appeared in South Clark street court yesterday against Hugh Engel, former assistant chief of the Chicago Burns agency, and J. Gleason Walker, a subordinate, whom she has identified as the men who choked her and robbed her of a $1,000 brooch and other jewelry. Her testimony was awaited with keen interest by a dozen private detectives of various agencies who sat in the courtroom but the Burns' attorneys succeeded in securing a postponement till January 29, by which time it is believed that William J. Burns will have completed whatever preparations are possible for a whitewashing of his agency should the two dicks look like losers.

Meanwhile the Chicago police force which has a professional jealousy against private agencies, though it has worked with the Burns agency in "red" hunts, is following up the confessions regarding other robberies which the Burns men are charged with. Paul Mezner, a deputy sheriff, who is said to have purchased Mrs. Jacopson's $1,000 brooch, is held by the police while the investigations are being conducted and Harry Baker, another deputy and Bennie

LABOR'S REGIME TAKES HELM AS STORM BREAKS

Transportation Tied Up on Eve of Vote

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—Great Britain's new ship of state was scheduled to embark at 11 o'clock last night for an unknown address.

Its tortuous course, thru troubled seas, is strewn with submerged rocks while overhead rages the storm which, after brewing for a fortnight, broke with full force today.

Had the departing Tories deliberately set about to devise a plan which would be most embarrassing to the new Labor government, they could not have done better than what a large section of that government's own adherents accomplished thru the strike weapon, aimed at the fort, of course, was not the purpose of the walkout at midnight.

Ramsay MacDonald and his prospective colleagues of the new government, after failing in every possible argument to persuade officials of the Associated Society of Engineers and Firemen to accept a com-

Balloting Shows Complete Unity Within Russian Communist Party

(By Radio to the Daily Worker)

MOSCOW.—At the national conference of the Communist Party of Russia, held here just prior to the All-Russian Conference of Soviets, all resolutions proposed by the General Executive Committee were adopted by a vote of 125 to 3.

The resolutions of the minority on the program for economic reconstruction were criticised as impractical and their thesis on party organization and policy was condemned as showing menshevik tendencies. It showed much loose thinking as well as a pronounced petty bourgeois viewpoint that seemed very little separate from the delegation.

The conference expanded the program of democratic centralization for the party but caucuses within the party are absolutely forbidden. The unity of the party following the conference is more complete than ever.

In the elections held the first day of the session of the All-Russian Soviets the highest votes polled were for Lenin, Kamenoff, Zinoviff, Stalin and Bucharin.

COAL MINERS' CONVENTION OPENS TODAY

Indianapolis Scene of Great Workers' Gathering

(By Our Staff Correspondent)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Delegates representing approximately half a million coal miners from every mining section of the United States and Canada are here, for the opening day of the 29th successive constitutional and 46th biennial convention of the United Mine Workers of America.

The main work of the convention will be the drawing up of a new wage scale and working conditions demand for the next contract with the operators. The present bituminous agreement expires March 31, except where there is an overlapping condition as in Kentucky.

Much Unemployment.

A meeting of coal operators and miners in the central competitive field (Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and western Pennsylvania) is already scheduled to meet at Jacksonville, Fla., on Feb. 11 "for the purpose of negotiating a new wage agreement to become effective on April 1, 1924" according to a call sent out for the meeting by the chairman of a joint committee from the organizations involved.

Never before has the bituminous miners been faced with a more serious condition than that which exists in the industry now. The unemployment is unprecedented—nearly one-third of the mines are closed and one-half-time operations prevail in most of the working fields.

The Howat Case.

Altho the administration forces predict harmony, a number of internal problems will come before the delegates. Alexander Howat expects to be reinstated to his former union status by this convention, and the grievance of the Nova Scotia (Canada) miners will also be introduced.

The trouble there centers around the revocation of the district charter by the national administration during a steel strike in July. The miners who were employed by the British Empire Steel Corp., the steel trust, struck in violation of their agreement in protest against the employment of soldiers against the steel strikers.

A provisional government was set up by the international organization after it had deposed the elected officials. James MacLachlan, ousted secretary of the district, is now in Dorchester penitentiary (Canada) because of his activities during the sympathetic strike. Other internal questions of less importance as, the Coke region strike, nationalization, progressive miners, etc., also appear in resolution form.

Ohio Miners for 6-Hour Day.

INDIANAPOLIS.—Delegates from the Ohio district, U. M. W. A., have arrived here under unanimous instructions from their district convention to present to the miners' national convention demands for a six-hour day and the unionization of the big nonunion fields in West Virginia and Kentucky "as a matter of self-protection."

The Ohio convention, which closed in Columbus Jan. 16, placed itself on record for a substantial wage increase to meet advancing living costs. The scale demanded fixes a 25% advance in pay for tonnage, yardage, and dead work, with time and a half for overtime and double time for Sundays and holidays.

Under the existing contract, overtime and Sunday work is paid solely on a straight-time basis. The day wage scale demanded gives equal rates of pay for both inside and outside mine laborers. Miners' compensation under the new scale would be $1.17½ per ton and $1.25 per hour, as against 94 cents and 93¾ cents respectively under the old contract. The convention further asks that the national executives of the United Mine Workers negotiate the new agreement on a two-year basis, to become effective April 1, 1924.

Daily Worker Greets Coal Miners' Convention

THE DAILY WORKER, America's only English-language Communist daily, extends its best wishes to the Sixth Biennial Convention of the United Mine Workers of America.

Meeting at a time when the American capitalist class is at the height of its power, when that section of it whose profits are drawn from the coal mining industry has forced widespread unemployment to be used as a club to compel acceptance of wage-reductions, THE DAILY WORKER hopes that out of the deliberations of the miners will come a program around which the whole organized labor movement of the United States can rally.

If the miners and other wage-earners can be whipped on the industrial field, then the first step has been taken towards a campaign of suppression of all privileges.

THE DAILY WORKER stands for an uncompromising struggle against the capitalists on the industrial field—as well as for the protection of foreign-born workers, for amalgamation for a class party of the workers and farmers, for Recognition of Soviet Russia.

THE DAILY WORKER will carry full reports of the convention proceedings and of the progress made toward their program by the militant miners.

May the Sixth Biennial Convention of the United Mine Workers of America mark a turning-point in the American labor movement—the point which will mark the beginning of the control of the labor movement by the men and women of labor who have a clear-cut policy, and the will to fight for it.

No Economic Reason Why French Franc Should Not Follow Mark

DOHENY OIL PLEA BRINGS WARSHIP DASH TO TAMPICO

Intervention Days of Wilson Are Recalled

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—If, as many progressive senators and congressmen suspect, the Coolidge administration is getting ready to present congress and the senate with a fait accompli, so far as the Mexican policy is concerned, in the shape of a force of occupation in Mexico, the preparations are being openly made. Naval forces sufficient to blockade the entire eastern Mexican seaboard are being rushed to Vera Cruz and the light cruiser Richmond, one of the best equipped fighting ships of the navy, is already at Tampico.

Her sister ship Omaha, accompanied by six destroyers, are expected to arrive at Vera Cruz tomorrow.

The American interests that are to be protected by the fleet consist largely of refineries and other properties of the Doheny oil group upon whom de la Huerta has made a demand for $400,000 in gold.

It is believed here that the United States is closer to a drastic policy of intervention in Mexican affairs than at any time since the advance of forces into Mexico under the Wilson administration.

ing for service in bringing milk and fresh vegetables to the capital.

Fleet street, heart of the newspaper world of England, was a roar with motor trucks rushing in a constant stream thru the narrow thoroughfare, loaded with newspapers for points outside London where final effects of the strike was to interrupt train service.

There was little excitement connected with the initial stages of the strike, for England's workmen are traditionally law-abiding and orderly and anything savoring of sabotage or violence was discounted by union leaders.

Unless the strike lasts over two weeks it will not embarrass the Labor Party government, as it is estimated that length of time will be required for the Baldwin government to wind up its affairs and turn the governmental machinery over to J. Ramsay MacDonald and his cabinet.

Unemployment Is on Increase Says U. S. Report

A surplus of both skilled and unskilled labor thruout the country during December is reported by the U. S. employment service. This surplus of labor appeared especially in the larger cities. The trend of employment, according to the report, was definitely downward with some curtailment felt in most all branches of trade.

The railroads especially laid off large numbers of workers while the metal industries, machinery, foundry and repair shops employing the same class of labor were also reported as marking time.

In New York City, the report says "Basic industries are still employing a full complement of workers and there is virtually no unemployment among highly skilled mechanics athe there still exists a surplus of unskilled labor."

The employment service notes a continued unfilled demand for skilled and semiskilled workmen in the building trades with little interruption in building activities apparent.

Work Daily for "The Daily"

NOTHING IS CERTAIN ABOUT C. P. P. A. AT ST. LOUIS, MO.

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Representatives of most of the railroad labor organizations, as well as state and local labor bodies, farm organizations, the Socialists, and other groups have notified the national committee of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, here, that they will take part in the progressive conference to be held Feb. 11-12 in St. Louis. Among the Socialists who will attend are Victor L. Mauvey of Pennsylvania, and Morris Hillquit of New York.

While it is not certain that this conference will outline a plan of political campaign for 1924, it is likely that the question of endorsing the holding of a third-party convention immediately following the Democratic national convention will be brought up by delegates from Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana.

United States War on Mexico Looming Big

By JOHN PEPPER

Greedy American imperialism is preparing a new crusades It wants to conquer Mexico.

The United States government first sold arms to the Obregon government and now it has sent warships to Tampico.

The Coolidge administration declared at first that it is selling weapons to Obregon because that it is the "constitutional" government in Mexico, and because the United States is interested in the maintaining of order and peace in Mexico.

The Coolidge government declares now that it must send warships to break the blockade established by the government of Adolfo De la Huerta at Vera Cruz, "to prevent interference with legitimate American commerce."

We must arouse the workers and farmers of our country. The greatest menace is facing us. The United States, the youngest, greediest, and mightiest imperialist country of the world, now aims openly to conquer Mexico, after it had undermined it economically. But the conquest of Mexico is not only the greatest danger for the workers and farmers of Mexico, but is the greatest menace to the workers and farmers of the United States as well. The costs of the great world war were paid in blood, money and sweat by the workers and farmers of the United States. The workers still pay thru the increased cost of living. The farmers still pay thru the frightful bankruptcy of millions and millions of toilers of the soil. A new war against Mexico would mean the sharpening of the world crisis, it would mean the increase of the army and navy, the growth of centralized government, new, and ever new burdens upon the working population.

This is the most cunning and most unscrupulous game played by American imperialism. United States imperialism first forced the Obregon government to its knees. The Obregon government was recognized by the United States, but only after Obregon recognized all the prerogatives and privileges of American capitalists in Mexico, after Obregon, the representative of young Mexican capitalism, had not only betrayed the interests of Mexican native capital, but had begun to oppress the workers and disarm the peasants who had supported him until then.

The United States government recognized the Obregon government after Obregon had capitulated, but the Obregon government is still too radical for the United States, and American imperialism, at the same moment that it recognized Obregon, was stirring up a counter-revolution in Mexico against Obregon. Behind the Adolfo De la Huerta counter-revolution stand not only the big land-owners who had to give up a part of their land to the armed peons, not only dissatisfied army officers and their reactionary Cath lic church, but also powerful American oil interests.

Wall Street recognized Obregon, and Coolidge sells him weapons, while at the same time the De la Huerta counter-revolution is financed by Wall Street, and simultaneously with that Coolidge sends warships to break the sea blockade made by the De la Huerta government.

It all seems nothing but contradictions. It appears to be madness. But there is a frightful and bloody method and logic in this madness. This method and logic is the logic and method of imperialism.

The seemingly contradictory acts of the United States are explained by the plans of Wall Street and the White House to conquer Mexico. The United States supports Obregon and supports Huerta, in order thereby to render any government impossible in Mexico. American capitalists want to invade Mexico. The Chicago Daily Tribune has betrayed the plans of the imperialists. Says the Chicago Tribune, which represents that tendency of American imperialism which does not want to have anything to do with Europe but wants to conquer Latin America:

"We have guarded and backed the right man, but if he is friendly and wants to develop a peaceful Mexico it is highly moral to give him arms and ammunition. If that method will not succeed, THE UNITED STATES EVENTUALLY WILL BE DRIVEN TO MORE DIRECT INTERVENTION, AS IT HAS BEEN DRIVEN IN HAITI AND ELSEWHERE.

"In that case the wise thing for AMERICA to do would be to ENLIST AND DIRECT THE RURALES, WELL PAID MEXICANS, TO KEEP THE COUNTRY IN ORDER, just as the Filipino constabulary does in the islands. That naturally would cause an uproar, but it would be justified. It may be avoided by supporting a Mexican administration in the way our government is now doing."

It is our duty to arouse the workers and farmers of the whole country, to expose the plans of American imperialism, to fight against the new war. The workers and farmers must see that one step will follow the other. First came the sale of arms. The second step was the sending of warships. The third step will be the landing of troops. The fourth step will be the complete mobilization of army and navy. And then it will end with the new conscription of the man-power of the nation.

And there is a possibility that the Mexican War will not remain isolated. Already there is a conflict between United States and British oil interests in Mexico. Today the United States sends warships to protect "legitimate American commerce." Tomorrow Great Britain will send warships to protect "legitimate British commerce."

In the imperialist period of capitalism there is always the possibility and even the probability that no local war remains isolated and localized. In 1914 the insignificant local conflict between Austria-Hungary and Serbia led to the explosion of the world war. Who can guarantee that the local conflict between the United States and Mexico in 1924 cannot bring on a new world conflagration? We must realize that war danger and war is not an accident in the period of imperialism, but that it follows with iron inevitability from the very nature and inner structure of this period of imperialism. What is being done today by the United States government in Mexico was already explained theoretically on November 8, 1923, in the speech of Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, before the American Marine Congress:

"It seems worth repeating at times that our international trade is one of the very foundations of our standards of living; that our whole fabric of living and comfort are dependent upon the import of commodities which we do not and can not ourselves produce—tin, rubber, coffee, sugar, and a score of others; further, in the main, the amount of these commodities we can import will depend upon the volume we export. Moreover we need a CONSTANT EXPANSION OF OUR EXPORT MARKETS to give stability to our internal production by a wider range of customers."

KLANSMEN RIDE AGAIN IN HERRIN RAIDING HOMES

Glenn Young, Gunman, Heads Nightshirts

HERRIN, Ill.—The Klan, under the leadership of S. Glenn Young, is again in the saddle in Williamson county, after having flaunted the authority of Major McMacklin of the Illinois National Guard, who recently left here, after the state troops were withdrawn, to prevent a recurrence of the raiding activities.

Homes of union miners were singled out by the raiders who seemed well organized. They met at 2 A. M. in West Frankfort and after receiving lists of names and addresses from S. Glenn Young, moved on Weaver, a small mining camp near here.

Homes of klansmen were marked by a white cloth tied to the doorknob and these places were not molested. Wine was the overwhelming proportion of liquor found and this was sold in homes of miners not identified intended for their own use. It was spilled out without ceremony.

From Weaver the raiding parties proceeded to Spillertown, Paulton and Carbondale. Seven arrests were made in these three mining camps.

A smaller party of klansmen descended upon Ziegler, in Franklin county, searched 125 houses and made twenty-five arrests. Earlier in the evening Chief of Police Ford had made a raid here. He is an acknowledged klansmen.

Young, after stating the raids were part of a new series that would complete the "cleanup" of Williamson county, left for Chicago, where it is said he will confer with special prosecutors who will have charge of the cases in the federal court at Danville.

The Williamson County Ministerial association has evently decided upon a policy towards the raids, as yesterday every minister delivered a sermon upon the good points of Williamson county and denounced the reports of conditions carried by the daily press.

Among the miners the belief continues to grow that these arbitrary raids are merely an attack upon union miners and especially upon foreign-born members of the locals and the fact that the raids were conducted mostly upon private dwellings of miners lends color to this theory.

Pistols Crack As Gangsters Gather To Settle Feud

Pistols were unlimbered in Chicago's underworld today following the shooting of Darcy and Mazie Miller, west side politicians, as they left a downtown theater last night.

Darcy died this morning, physicians said. His brother received a flesh wound. In a statement to police, Miller accused three alleged beer runners and gangsters.

Authorities fearing the shooting marks a renewal of Chicago gang wars, patrolled the west side today to quiet expected disorders.

The Millers were accosted by three men as they emerged from the theater. Hundreds of late theater-goers were thrown into a panic when six shots rang out. A heated argument preceded the shooting.

OKLAHOMA'S EX-GOVERNOR LOSES IN SUPREME COURT TILT

WASHINGTON.—The petition of former Governor Walton of Oklahoma for a review of his impeachment and removal from office by the Oklahoma legislature was denied today by the United States Supreme Court.

The decision of the Supreme Court to refuse to take under consideration the proceedings by which Walton was impeached and removed has to direct bearing on the merits of the case.

Walton appealed to the Supreme Court for a review on the grounds his trial had not been constitutional. The court decided today it has no jurisdiction or reasonable cause to interfere. Walton has another appeal still pending before the court, but the ruling of the court today was regarded as final.

In opposing the petition, the attorney general of Oklahoma and the managers of the assembly argued that the matter involved was purely a state question and not within the scope of the United States constitution or the jurisdiction of federal courts.

In reply to Walton's assertion that the majority of the members of the legislature had not been qualified to sit as judges upon him because of their alleged Ku Klux Klan affiliations, counsel for the state quoted the section of the Oklahoma constitution which provides:

"Each House will be the judge of the election and qualification of its own members."

On this score it was argued that whatever Walton's allegations, he had no right to challenge the qualifications of the members of the Court of Impeachment.

Bok Peace Plans and Sinclair War Schemes Hold Capitol's Eye

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—While Bok is being dragged before the special senate committee appointed to investigate foreign policy propaganda in the United States, to explain its motive in offering a prize for a peace plan, the Washington Post, organ of the administration and friendly to the Sinclair oil group, prints an appeal for American capital to take charge of vast developments in Persia—with the usual concessions, political involvements and dangers of future war over the fruits of the venture.

The Persian legation confirms the accuracy of the editorial "Opportunities for Americans," wherein the Post declares that an oil concession has been granted to an American (Sinclair) concern, in the region of the Caspian sea, and that Persia is now anxious for the coming of American capital to construct railways, tramways, electric lights, power plants, factories, sawmills, roads, etc.

"A new spirit, resembling that which has transformed Italy and Spain, has manifested itself in Persian affairs," says this inspired statement. "Consequently the advent of Americans is welcomed, and inducements to capital are offered which will doubtless greatly accelerate the development of the country. The mineral wealth of Persia is now under inquiry by several American syndicates."

Having indicated that American investors would be turned over to British trade routes, the Persian-Sinclair propaganda goes on to say that the Persians are "deeply resentful of the influences which have been exerted against them by British and Russian policy, and that Americans will therefore get much better concessions than would ordinarily be the case.

As the trumpet card in the prospective stock-selling campaign, the American public is assured that the Persians have recently made a treaty with the Russian neighbor, whom they are said to resent), "are proud of the record they have made in assisting Dr. Millspaugh, the American financial adviser who is now on the recommendation of the Department of State, undertaking the economic regeneration of Persia."

There is one touch of industrial realism in the prospectus: "The natives are good workers when properly coached."

Negotiations between the American International Corp. and the Ulen Contracting Co. of New York, on the one hand, and the Persian Government on the other as to railroad construction, have begun. Reports from Europe that the Sinclair oil concession has been cancelled are not confirmed.

Burns May Come to Chicago to Help Hush Disclosures

Galliano, custodian of the bailiff's office, are similarly held on evidence connecting them with purchases of other booty stolen by the dicks.

The exposure of the Burns' agency will have a damaging effect on the prosecutor's case against the communists arrested at Bridgman, Michigan, two years ago, is the opinion of Chicago radicals. The Bridgman case, though ostensibly a local affair, under a state law, was initiated and prosecuted by Department of Justice agents.

Immediately after our arrest the New York chief of the Burns agency "passing himself off as a Department of Justice man—quizzed each of us in the St. Joseph's county prison," said C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers' Party of a representative of the DAILY WORKER. "The Burns' lieutenant kept this leading role right thru the case and we used to joke about the conspicuous part the local district attorney was playing. It would be interesting to find out whether our friends are doing a business in burglaries and robberies on the side."

Earl K. Browder, another Bridgman defendant and associate editor of the Labor Herald, which has been waging an untiring war on labor spies and agents provocateurs of the Burns strife, made this comment:

"The exposure made by the DAILY WORKER of the part played by employes of the Burns Detective agency in a long period of crime in Chicago merely confirms what is generally known in the labor movement that the Burns Agency is a manufacturer of crime rather than a detector of it.

"While it is interesting to know that the Burns agency is connected with robberies, holdups and other ordinary crimes, it would be still more interesting to know what connection it has with acts of violence which it attempts to fasten upon the labor movement. Let us hope that in the developments of this exposure we will even get some light thrown upon this side of the infamous Burns agency."

They Have Not Changed.

Nineteen years ago, the Iron Workers' Organ, the official organ of the Ironworkers' Union of that time issued a warning to local unions not to send any Socialists as delegates to central bodies or conventions. They were charged with being disruptionists. Today the Socialists are eating out of the fakers' hand and the abuse that was formerly levelled against the Socialists is now hurrled at the Communists.

Who Is Libedinsky?

Author of "A WEEK"

Quoted from letter by Arthur Ransome, famous British writer, dated Christmas day, 1923.

"I saw Libedinsky this last week in Moscow. He is now aged 25. He was born in Chelyabinsk in the Urals, the son of a Doctor. He was finishing school when the revolution started. When the Czecho-Slovak troops revolted and made the way easy for the Siberian Counter-Revolution and Allied intervention he had joined the Red Guard. During the Kolchak regime in Siberia he went into Siberia and there, "underground" and, of course, hunted for his life, remained until the collapse of the Kolchak regime and the department of the Intervention-ist troops. His wife, who writes under the name of Valeria Gerasimova, has been hotly attacked for too outspoken criticism of present-day phenomena. As I mentioned in my preface he has been attacked for the same reason himself. He showed me translations of his book in German and Hungarian, and was most delighted with the English and American editions, saying, "It will be a long time before here in Russia we shall be able to put books out as well as that."

"Unfortunately I could get no portrait of him, but he has promised to have one ready for me next time I see him."

This is the author of "A WEEK," soon to appear serially in The Daily Worker.

HUGHES LOSES IN FIRST ROUND OF RUSSIAN PROBE

Agent Kelly Fails to Give First Aid

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Secretary Hughes' arguments against Soviet recognition were riddled by Senator Borah before the senate foreign relations subcommittee yesterday afternoon when Robert P. Kelly, of the Eastern European division of the state department, appeared with copies of Pravda, official Soviet newspaper.

Kelly was challenged by Borah to prove a single case where Communist party members were exempted from the punishments of the civil courts where wrong doing had been proved. Kelly was unable to offer any evidence to support his contention that the administrative party was above the law.

"Is it not a fact that Communist Party members have been shot?" asked Borah. Kelly had no proof to the contrary.

Borah asserted that there was no evidence that Communists duly convicted by the courts had in any case been saved by the law's penalties by any outside influence.

Borah likewise challenged the state department's expert to show any communist party machinery intended to influence courts in Russia. Again Kelly failed to offer any evidence.

The Idaho senator then went further and stated that the Soviet constitution had no provision granting party such authority This was denied by Kelly who said that there was such machinery but he did not offer to submit the vague section referred to.

Kelly was then asked whether the Communist Party had ever exerted political pressure or court decisions in any other way than Republicans and Democrats in America had often done, but he failed to reply.

The clinching argument by Senator Borah was that Communist Party members had been compelled to face the firing squad for capital crimes as non party Russians had done, with no intervention from their organization.

Whether the soviet government controlled the party instead of the party controlling the government, was a question that Borah offered for consideration by his questioner and the committee. The head of the state's argument turned on the matter of party control. Mr. Hughes' contention being that the soviet government should not be recognised because it is controlled by the Communist party which in turn is seeking to effect revolutionary changes in America thru the American branch of the Communist International.

Bear E. Young, chief of the state department's eastern European division was another pinch hitter before the committee. His big stick, Hoover's was a sheaf of Izvestia documents.

promise some new wording to circumscribe the strike and minimize its effects by inducing all other railway employes to refuse to work.

With the exception of the Labor Herald, which has taken an attitude of neutrality, the strike is condemned by practically the whole British daily press.

Meantime the Baldwin government is preparing for tonight's debates in the House of Commons. Labor's amendment, reply to the king's speech declaring "Your Majesty's present advisers have not the confidence of this House," will be passed by some 60 to 70 majority, including the unanimous Labor membership and most of the Liberals after the debate, in which MacDonald and Lloyd George will participate, comes to an end.

Baldwin, accepting his defeat, will hand his resignation to the king tomorrow, who will request MacDonald to form a government.

Preliminary arrangements already have been made for a meeting of the privy council tomorrow to swear in MacDonald and the privy councillor.

Correction in Zinoviev Letter

There was a mistake in the letter by Gregory Zinoviev, chairman of the Communist International, to the Communist Labor Party in which it is stated "Zinoviev is the correct text for the part in which the mistake occurred."

"... even in a few Sections of the International, the traditional Social Democratic attitude toward the farmers is still very strong. The Communist International was born from the womb of the Second International. It is no wonder that individual Communist parties still pay heavy tribute to the Social Democratic tradition, especially in the question of the attitude towards the farmers. The Social Democratic parties of the Second International even in their best days were in essence guild socialist, and have not themselves the task of the real overthrow of capitalist rule, but confined themselves to the fight for the partial improvement of the condition of the working class within the framework of capitalism. This guild Menshevist tradition can still be perceived mostly in the question of the attitude towards the farmers."

Strikebreaker Says He Is for the Golden Rule

ST. LOUIS.—Organized labor here is up in arms against the recent appointment of C. H. Howard to the St. Louis board of police commissioners by Governor Hyde. Howard is president, Commonwealth Steel Co., Granite City, Ill., whose workers have been on strike for several months for union recognition. Howard is notoriously hostile to union labor and maintains what he calls "The Commonwealth Plan" of company union scheme. Union pickets at the struck plant have on numerous occasions been intimidated and mistreated.

Howard says his labor policy is based on the Golden Rule and that he will insist on the same in the police department.

Representatives of the striking steel men warned the last meeting of the Central Trades and Labor union here to beware of a possible force to enforce his conception of the Golden Rule on striking workmen of St. Louis. The Central body adopted unanimously resolutions protesting the appointment. Governor Hyde was elected as a "friend" of labor.

Think of a series of 6000 distributing depots furnishing consumers annually with, 75,000,000 pounds of butter, 37,500,000 dozen eggs, 225,000,000 pounds of flour and 470,000,000 pounds of potatoes and you get a picture of the new economic order which is brutally crowding out the world of little businesses. Such a mammoth organization sounds as the it ought to be a co-operative, a sort of co-operative arrangement between consumers in the cities. But it isn't yet, altho it may be some day. Today it is in the familiar Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., organized for private profit.

A. & P. sales for the year ending Feb. 28, 1923, totaled $246,940,873. For the current year they will undoubtedly climb to $300,000,000. In addition to the quantities of food noted above this chain of stores distributed 60,000,000 pounds of coffee, 90,000,000 cans of milk, 150,000,000 loaves of bread, 90,000,000 cakes of soap, and 54,354,000 cans of vegetable.

The company has 21 huge warehouses and a fleet of 315 five-ton trucks and 78 two-ton trucks to handle its distribution. It operates the chain of seven bakeries producing 1,000,000 loaves of bread a week and is about to add another for the Boston district with an initial production of 500,000 loaves a week. The A. & P. coffee roasteries can factory which turns out 22,000,000 cans and covers each year.

This huge public enterprise operated for private profit, employs 17,000 workers to distribute daily rations to a quarter of a million wage earners' families. The distribution of food is rapidly becoming a highly organized public utility

School Reports Success

NEW YORK.—The second term of the Workers' School at 127 University Place, opens Feb. 14. Marxian economics, American and international labor history and English and European literature are taught. The school reports a successful term. The school aims to develop the spirit of intellectual inquiry and to train students for leadership in the labor movement.

Cora Mayes, national secretary, invites friends and sympathizers to send birthday cards and letters to these political prisoners. Money is advisable for gifts. Books and publications to be sent directly from the publishers.

A West Virginia state political prisoner writes: "My birthday met with big success. From the depth of my heart I extend my thanks for the kindness. Each and every greeting from all over the United States was truly appreciated."

SENATE PROBE TO DECIDE WHO LIED, FALL OR McLEAN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The senate committee charged with investigating the Teapot Dome lease has been called together to hear the report of Senator Walsh, who made a trip to Florida to get the deposition of Edward McLean, publisher of the Washington Post and personal friend of the late President Harding.

Walsh questioned McLean as to the source of funds used by Fall, while secretary of the interior, in developing his New Mexico oil-rich properties.

McLean stated that he had given Fall checks totalling $100,000, but that they had been returned to him unc ashed. Senator Fall had told the committee previously that he had used this money obtained from McLean.

The committee will try to discover which of these two individuals, connected with the Teapot Dome grab, has had a change of heart.

Archie Roosevelt, who, it was testified, was a vice president of one of sinclair's companies, will appear before the committee this afternoon. Senator Walsh said. Roosevelt has not been subpoenaed but will appear voluntarily. He is a brother of Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy.

The Senate Committee was notified today by Gavin McNab, California attorney, that he was enroute to Washington from New Orleans with "my client" to give the committee further information regarding Teapot Dome. McNab did not say who the client is.

It was reported in private dispatches received here today that McNab arrived in New Orleans with Edward Doheny, oil man, in his private car. For this reason members of the committee assumed McNab was Doheny's attorney.

Weeks said the plan contained "many excellent features" and should be given consideration by Congress in disposing of Muscle Shoals.

WASHINGTON IS WORRIED OVER ST. PAUL MEET

Coming Conference Has Politicians Guessing

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In more than one discussion here of the probable outcome of the 1924 elections the Conference for Progressive Political Action, which has published speaker at a mass meeting in New York, which took place under the auspices of the American Committee of Internationale Aid for the German workers on Sunday, January 20, at 8 P. M., at Cooper Union. This is the beginning of the campaign for the suffering German workers. A conference of workers' organizations will take place on Sunday afternoon, January 27, at the Labor Temple, 245 East 84th Street, for the purpose of organizing the relief work.

At the Cooper Union meeting Frank Walsh made a strong appeal in the interest of the suffering workers of Germany and their hungry children.

He spoke as follows: "The women and children of Germany have been dying since the end of the world war of a slow death by hunger. The world has observed this tragic drama with cruel indifference. There may be certain people in our own country who still consider the Germans as an enemy people; but there are only a few today who are dominated by such unworthy ideas.

"I hope that the American workers will respond generously to the appeal for this relief work by which millions of peace-loving, industrious workers will be helped."

NEW YORK.—Clayton R. Lusk, whose name is linked with an illegal affair at the Albany legislature and who obtained brief notoriety as the hero who saved America from terrored revolushun, has elbowed himself into the limelight again. But, alas, for Clayton; during the elbowing, he struck his funny bone.

Clayton the hyppesatile arose in the state legislature to prevent the appointment of Col. Frederick Greene as state highway commissioner. Let it be recorded parenthetically that since Clayton's implication in a dubious silverware adventure he is regarded as something of a spokesman on affairs of the —— well, highway. As we mentioned, he arose before the legislature:

"I wish to offer an apology for my charge that Colonel Greene is mentally dishonest

Voice in the gallery—"How can you judge someone who is mentally anything?"

"I do not believe he is consciously dishonest," continued Clayton, darkly.

There were a few words more to this effect; the senate proceeded to vote; and Colonel Greene's nomination was confirmed without a dissenting vote.

It is generally agreed in senatorial circles at Albany that if you wish to get fire way to be elected to anything, all you need is a little opposition from Clayton.

Caraway, Dem., Heaps Epithets on Fall, Republican

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—Senator Caraway, Arkansas Democrat, replied to the attack on former Secretary of the Interior Fall in the Senate today.

Caraway had evidently felt the wound a dispatch that Fall was considering a case and said:

"I recall that Benedict Arnold traveled incognito after selling West Point; Benedict Gasses of Teapot Dome) is in Europe and so is Benedict, so I believe that the three of them may have a conjugial reunion sometime soon.

"Here's a man who stands before the bar of public justice indicted for treason—for that is what it is when one sells the government," Caraway continued.

"If he's not guilty he would come before this committee and tell the truth about his lease of Teapot Dome."

Referring to Fall's recent statement that Caraway had often attacked him, Caraway said:

"I never mentioned Albert B. Fall in my life until he betrayed my country.

"I have not heard his name mentioned in polite society since I came here."

U. S. HAMPERS MOVE TO SHIP SOUTHERN COTTON TO RUSSIA

WASHINGTON.—Russia, thru a government agency, has bought several million dollars' worth of cotton in the south, only to be informed that vessels owned by the Emergency Fleet Corporation cannot be made available at this time to carry it to Russian ports.

Senator Dial of South Carolina complained of this hostility, in the senate, the other day. He said he was "very gratified" to know that Russia was resuming its American trade, but he was "very much disappointed" to find that the buyers had to take out insurance in England on these cargoes, and that they had to ship it in Norwegian vessels.

He told these Russian people that if they would buy direct they would cut out the profit of the middlemen," said Dial, "it is that which causes agriculture in the United States to be in a starving condition. That pleased the members of the committee, and they were delighted at the prospect. The Russian committee wants many more thousand bales of cotton, which would be a very profitable business for our people."

Ladd Backs Philippines

WASHINGTON.—Senator Ladd has undertaken to get an investigation in the Senate which Representative Frear failed to get in the House—into the facts of the Wood regime in the Philippines. The press propaganda against Philippine independence which has been conducted from Manila since Wood arrived there. This inquiry, if permitted by the Senate, will also include a study of the financial affairs of the Wood family in the Islands.

MELLON MILLIONS BRIBE TO FARMERS AS BANKS CRASH

Rushing Dough to Save Votes

(By The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After conference with the congressional delegation from South Dakota, President Coolidge is busy organizing political fiances in the northwest. The plans to rush the release of thirty million dollars held by the War Finance Corporation for immediate relief of the farmers' woes. The Federal reserve board will meet to plan just how the relief will be given.

Mellon's share of the plan is to have George James and Edward H. Cunningham, of the Federal Reserve Board, Director Meyers, of the War Finance Corporation, and Comptroller of the Currency Dawes to go to Chicago for a conference with middle western bankers on the situation of the farmers.

That the situation demands the best brains of the best bankers is shown by the fact that a South Dakota bank which has the deposits of two hundred small county banks has just been declared insolvent. Mitchell and Sioux Falls, S. D., are hardest hit by the failure of this bank and a panicky feeling is spreading to Nebraska and Minnesota. Wall Street and Chicago bankers are aroused over the financial failure of the farmer, so that Coolidge's concern for the farmer may have more than sentiment behind it. The situation of the farmers is having a grave national effect which assures Coolidge support if his plans are promptly enough in the suffering sons of the soil.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, and Ladd, of North Dakota, went for a cruise down the Potomac with the President and are said to have discussed the entire situation. The Senators are resting well after their pleasant trip

Norris Bill Asks Federal Control of Water Power

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Senator LaFollette has ranged himself with the Public Ownership League of America in support of the League's bill creating a federal super-power commission which shall develop and operate the electric power resources of the nation for the people. A revolving fund of $500,000,000 to be raised by a federal bond issue is proposed in the bill, this fund to promote the building of power plants and distributing systems, and to purchase existing plants where advisable. It will also develop reclamation projects in which hydro-electric power will be one of the chief factors.

This measure will be introduced in Congress by Senator Norris of Nebraska and will be given hearings before the committee on irrigation and reclamation.

Coal Monopoly Threatens the Miners' Union

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Consolidation of the bituminous coal industry into a few great monopolistic corporations under the control of New York bankers as a solution for the present over-expansion is a prospect facing the U. M. W. A. annual convention in Indianapolis, Jan. 22. Already more than 50% of normal production is in the hands of 25% of the operating corporations.

The growing combine with unlimited resources will rapidly develop mass production which will entirely alter the basis of unionism in the industry.

"Wanted! Another Morgan in the bituminous industry," is the cry of big business as expressed by Black Diamond, leading journal of the industry. J. P. Morgan by a systematic procedure of buying either physical properties or a controlling interest in corporations effected the organization of practically 80% of the anthracite tonnage. Thru his masterly manipulation mining was put on a sound engineering and economic basis and production was restricted to approximate demand."

The soft coal industry is ripe for just such manipulation.

The thousands of socalled independent operators are not really independent. They do not own their coal lands, but lease them in many instances from Wall Street interests. They secure their working capital from large wholesale corporations upon which they are also absolutely dependent for access to the consumer. Even their technical staff is furnished by these wholesalers who are closely associated with the financial combine.

The development of these giant coal combines will mean an end to the tradition of the individual miner upon which the strength of the present type of unionism in the industry rests. Instead will come mass production similar to that in the steel industry or in the huge automobile plants of Henry Ford.

"The first step in checking the spread of unionism in the coal mines," according to Supt. T. A. Stroup, Utah Fuel Co., "will be to abolish the contract system," then mechanicalize the mines thoroly, to standardize every operation down to the minutest detail so that the responsibility of any kind will fall on the worker." When this is accomplished, he points out, the United Mine Workers of America will decline like the Metal Miners' union which now is but a shadow of its former self. "In the metal mines," he says, "the tradition of the individual miner, capable and responsible, has been abolished, the mines have been thoroly mechanicalized, all operations have been standardized. The trade of the metal miner has ceased to exist; they are now all mine workers fitting into niches and conforming to the routine laid out by their managers."

Present labor organization in the coal industry is essentially trade unionism, however, industrial its form may appear. By abolishing the trade of the miner and making him just one of a mass of unskilled labor the coal trust will weaken the psychological basis on which a strong trade unionism rests.

The general trend in the industry is setting in this direction appearing particularly in the non-union fields which are rising to snatch the market from the older unionized areas. "The bituminous coal mining industry," says the U. S. coal commission, "is just entering the last stage of reducing manual labor thru the introduction of machinery." C. M. Means, consulting engineer of Pittsburgh, points out that "the coal mine of the future will be operated entirely by automatic and semi-automatic machinery and manual labor in the generally accepted term will be eliminated."

The program of operators in union districts fits in with this general trend. Illinois operators demand specifically: "(1) A wage contract with the miners that will actually provide for the abridged right to manage their properties efficiently and to the best advantage of ownership. (2) The right to select and use specially trained employes to do all the skilled work of undercutting, snubbing, drilling, and shooting the coal. (3) These employes to be entirely free from any interference. (4) A readjustment of the mining rate that will repay the mining companies for taking over this work which is now included in the present tonnage mining rates."

The accomplishment of this operators' program waits only the financial consolidation of the industry following the present outbreak war forced upon union and non-union miners by the big coal interests with capital invested in both union and non-union fields.

BRITISH C. P. HAS BASIC PROGRAM FOR LABOR RULE

Suggests Minimum Demands to L.P. Executive

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—(Via The Daily Worker)—That the Communist Party of Great Britain, the strongest and the most powerful minority of the British labor movement for which it is entitled, must work wherever the Welsh coal miners, the industrial section, is determined to see that major issues are not left out of by Labor Party leaders if they be in power to prevent that the common is entered by the non-act of the labor addressed to Arthur Henderson, secretary of the Party by Arthur Inkpin on behalf of the Central Executive of the British Communist Party. The letter makes certain very definite suggestions as a basis for a minimum program to be carried out within the framework of the Labor Party.

The text of letter follows:

Dear Arthur Henderson,

Secretary,

The Labor Party,

Dear Mr. Henderson: The Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party wishes to extend its very great satisfaction at the success of the Labor Party in the recent parliamentary elections. The seed sown by the pioneers of Socialism is now peeping as a harvest rich with possibilities for the working class. The Labor Party has the honor of gathering in that harvest, but it also has the very heavy and serious responsibility of stewardship.

In carrying out the obligations this stewardship imposes on it, there will be the ever-increasing opposition of the privileged classes to contend against. The Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party, recognizing this, desires to place on record its willingness as a working-class political organization to assist the Labor Party to the utmost of its ability. We believe that the Labor Party, in taking office, if and when the opportunity offers, can defeat every intrigue of its opponents by a straightforward declaration of policy that will unite the whole working-class movement in support of Labor. Such a declaration should include:

1. Full trade union rates for the unemployed against the time when useful work will be provided.

2. Adoption of a national housing scheme, restoration of rent control, and no evictions;

3. A complete application of the findings of the Sankey Commission, which involved nationalisation of the mines, with a minimum wage for miners;

4. Immediate and complete recognition of Soviet Russia;

5. A conference of all nations, including Russia and Germany, for the settlement of all outstanding questions affecting the peace of the world.

In putting forward these suggestions we are quite satisfied that the policy to be pursued in receiving the serious and continual attention of the leaders of the Labor Party, but we feel it is our right and duty, at such a time, to offer advice which our very considerable experience of the workers' struggle enables us to give.

Please accept this as an earnest of the very sincere desire of the Communist Party to help. We hail the present triumph of the Labor Party and will throw all our energy into making that triumph a lasting victory for the cause of the workers.

Yours sincerely,

On behalf of the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party,

ALBERT INKPIN,

Secretary.

The Communist Party of Great Britain, the English section of the Third International, altho denied affiliation as an organization with the British Labor Party, controls dozens of local Trades Councils and supported the Labor Party in the recent elections. Eight of its members were also selected as official candidates of the Labor Party by local branches of that organization.

J. Walton Newbold, Communist member of the House of Commons prior to the recent elections, attracted international attention by his ability and a suspension which resulted from his refusal to abide by an arbitrary ruling of the speaker.

Plan Farm-Labor Party in No. Dak. at Feb. 6th Meet

FARGO, N. D.—The convention of the Non-Partisan League, to be held in Bismarck, Feb. 6, will be the scene of a struggle between those farmer's and workers in the state of North Dakota, who favor an independent political action as against the policies of the Non-Partisan League.

At the Convention of the League the motion for the formation of a State Farmer-Labor Party was defeated by a large vote, the convention being controlled by the old Non-Partisan League forces. Since that time the action of the State Committee of the Republican Party, which is dominated by the Non-Partisan Leaguers, in indorsing the candidacy of President Coolidge has brought forth widespread resentment on the part of the farmers of the state and strengthened the movement for independent political action.

In the last convention the fight for the Farmer-Labor Party was led by the members of the United Front Educational League. This group has now initiated a state-wide campaign for a decision in favor of the organization of a Farmer-Labor Party at the Feb. 6 Convention of the Non-Partisan League and it is expected that this campaign will bring to the Convention a majority of delegates favorable to the organization of the Farmer-Labor Party.

Should the League convention, however, be under the control of the old machine and continue its present policy the group favoring independent political action will organize at the Convention for the organization of the Farmer-Labor Party.

From all appearances it is quite certain that North Dakota will soon be among the states represented by a class Farmer-Labor Party on the political field.

Real Labor Organ Will Take Place of B. C. Federationist

VANCOUVER, B. C.—A genuine labor weekly, developed from the Vancouver longshoremen's Strike Bulletin, will take the place of the moribund B. C. Federationist, which after 15 years of service to the labor government of western Canada, fell into financial difficulties and passed from the hands of its editorial staff to the control of a printing concern which publishes it to pay the printer's bill. The Vancouver Labor and Labor Council has withdrawn the Federationist and given it to the new publication which will be known as the British Columbia Labor Bulletin. The editor is the veteran labor editor and speaker, W. A. Prichard.

CANADIAN WORKERS PLEDGE SUPPORT TO McLACHLAN FAMILY

MONTREAL.—One hundred dollars a month to support the wife and nine children of J. B. McLachlan, deposed secretary, District 26, United Mine Workers of America, now serving a two-years' sentence on a seditious libel charge in connection with the Cape Breton strike last July, has been pledged by the Canadian Pacific Railway System federation in Montreal. The bulk of the money is understood to be subscribed by the men at the Angus shops. The payment is to last as long as McLachlan is in prison.

At the same time the district lodge of machinists is sending a petition to the minister of justice asking for McLachlan's release. A branch of the Nova Scotia Defense committee has been organized here.

Expel Hendin and Gruss

NEW YORK CITY.—The effort to create a factional movement inside of the Workers Party, initiated by I. B. Salutsky, who was expelled from the Party for failing to fight for the Party principles at the Conference for Progressive Political Action in Cleveland, when the Party was under attack, has come to a sudden stop thru the expulsion of L. Hendin and L. Gruss, who supported Salutsky in his move.

Salutsky called a meeting in New York for the organization of a Communist Educational League, evidently intending to use this in a fight against the Workers Party. Gruss and Hendin signed the call for the meeting. By instructions of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party they were informed before the meeting that if they participated in it they would be expelled from the Party would follow.

Both attended the meeting and spoke, attacking the policies of the Workers Party. The matter then came before the branches of the Party, at which they were present, and in each instance the branches voted unanimously to expel them from the Party.

HERE'S STORY OF "HAPPY H.O.M.E." HOUSE DRESSES

But the "Happy Homes" Are State Prisons

"Happy Home dresses and aprons. Buy one. Happy Home brand." Yes, that's the name that certain families could have something about. Get the Happy Home dress and you may think that "Happy Home" dresses was named by some sentimental employe who is long on "welfare work" for its employes and longer on that "individual initiative" under the open shop American plan. You are wrong. Leaders Taradish and Blair have named Happy Home dresses and aprons after themselves and leaders is no sentimentalist. He's a humorist. You wouldn't know he is a humorist to look at him, calling himself as a mere business man, president of the Sterling Co., Chicago. The clothing shops of this county man are unique in some respects. For instance there are bars at the windows.

One of his shops is in the Iowa state reformatory at Anamosa. Four hundred workers there, who have somewhat less freedom than employes elsewhere, turn out from 150,000 to 200,000 garments for him annually. He pays them an average of $6 a month. That is deducted from $7,000 to $10,000 he pays to the state, which acts as a kind of assistant to the Sterling Co. by feeding and sleeping the men and "keeping up production." Of course he also has his own bosses directly over the workers. The state of Iowa considers the system a great financial success.

Mr. Taradish feels that in his system he has solved the labor problem. He started his "business" at Anamosa six years ago when there were five million workers unemployed in America.

The full credit should be given Taradish as a humorist for that name—Happy Home brand!—the business credit must be divided between him and the vice president of the company, Milton P. Goodman. Goodman is better known as president of the Reliance Manufacturing Co., makers of men's shirts in various Happy Homes commonly called state penitentiaries

Pouring More Oil on the Troubled Political Waters

WASHINGTON.—A division of public attention from the Teapot Dome and California naval oil lands scandals to the activities of Secretary of the Interior Work, at the moment when Albert Fall, his predecessor, is caught in perjury as to the source of the mysterious $100,000 with which Fall arrived in New York after having sold the naval oil reserves to Doheny and Sinclair. The diversion is a spectacular dash to the Arctic this week, "in the examination of the navy's largest petroleum reserve."

Work explains, in a five-sheet press handout, that he is sending geologists and engineers of the geological survey to the naval oil reserve lying between the Yukon and Point Barrow, and occupying an area larger than the state of Maine. He does not say that there is much oil there, but the expedition must go in from the Yukon in the winter by dog-team, in order to be on the ground long enough this year to do much exploring and mapping. There seems to be no doubt that bear, moose and muskox are to be found in the reserve, but its early development as a chief base of fuel supply for the navy is not anticipated by practical oil men.

SPANISH WORKERS LEARN UNITY NEED UNDER FASCIST RULE

BARCELONA, Spain.—One of the results of the increasing rigor of the fascist military government of La Batalla of Barcelona is eloquent—principally by its silence. Over four pages in their usual size have been complete columns and various smaller items have been blotted out by the censor. Even the title has been wiped out with the exception of the title of one article which read: "Matters of Little Importance." Only that heading was allowed to stand, not one word of the article under it remains.

Across the whole paper one may read the big legend: "This number has been revised by the military censorship." The paper, scheduled for Nov. 7, bears the date line Nov. 23, with the brief announcement: "Delay due to the editorial force being in jail for three weeks."

Get busy for the Labor Party!

AS WE SEE IT

By T. O'FLAHERTY.

[illegible]

It is generally agreed that the capitalists need not fear anything from the policies of Ramsay MacDonald. Nevertheless Lord Parmoor is his most active supporters and it is frankly stated that the Labor Party has to thank conservatism from the radicals than did the Tory Party. The British Labor Party will introduce measures that can be safely supported by the Liberal Party and even by the Tories unless factional politics will prevent their cooperation. In fact some people say that the Labor Party is permitted to form a government partly for the reason that it is the only party in England that has sufficient support among the masses to warrant engaging in a stern French policy.

British capitalists are thanking their stars that they have not a bunch of communists on their hands instead of MacDonald, Henderson, Thomas and the rest. Those who have puzzled over the difference between the communist and socialist positions could follow the situation in England to their interest and enlightenment. The socialists are reformers who believe they can gradually free the workers from wage slavery thru reform measures achieved within the framework of capitalist government while the communists believe that the workers can only be freed by abolishing the capitalist forms of government and establishing the workers' rule thru a dictatorship of the working class.

Mr. John Bromley of the British Locomotive Engineers was lacking in good form when he refused to consider the embarrassment of Privy Councillor, J. H. Thomas, as sufficient reason for calling off the threatened strike. How ridiculous when Mr. MacDonald was almost succeeding in keeping the workers and capitalists in line and convincing both that he could serve them. Mr. Bromley throws a real problem into MacDonald's lap and the poor fellow must show his hand. He will have to show which side of the fence he really is on. We know he is with the bosses. But the British workers did not know. They will not wait long for disillusionment.

The Chicago Tribune is satisfied that the United States government is making a laudable effort to tranquilize Mexico and make that benighted country see the blessings of capitalist civilization. When the recent revolt against Obregon first broke the Tribune started a campaign for the invasion of Mexico. It suddenly halted, evidently having received assurances that Washington was going about it in approved diplomatic fashion. In yesterday's issue it praised the administration for following in the footsteps of the "Mother Country" (?) England, and seems fairly satisfied to leave the conduct of the campaign to bring our Southern neighbor under the dollar sign in the hands of the Secretaries of War and the Navy.

JEWISH DAILY FORWARD HELPS THE MILK TRUST

Mum on Strike; Accepted Scab "Ad"

The Jewish Daily Forward is the Yiddish organ of the reformist element in America. It is the principal purveyor of anti-strike lies in the country. Its editorials crimes against the workers in struggle are more than that of strikebreaking. Before it had finished fighting the Newspaper Union the milk strike began. The Daily Forward did not give a line to the milk producers' side of the case, but ran the following paid advertisement from the Bowman Dairy Company, a branch of the Milk Trust:

"An Answer from the Bowman Dairy Company."

"The Bowman Dairy Company is ready to deliver, without interruption or restriction, clean certified milk, which has been approved by the Board of Health. The Bowman Dairy Company does not receive its milk, from sources or districts, which are not authorized or completely approved by the health commission of the City of Chicago. The greater part of our supplies comes from the same places from which we formerly received it. The partial restriction from the old source was made good with milk from other nearby places, with milk which is just as good and which has been approved by the Health Commission. There is not and will not be a scarcity of good wholesome milk. Put out your bottles as customary and you will find your milk as formerly."

Canadian Labor Puts Eight-Hour Day up to Premier

OTTAWA.—An eight-hour day and repeal of the sales tax were the two chief legislative proposals made to the dominion government by a labor deputation from the Dominion Trades and Labor congress.

The deputation, which was headed by President Tom Moore, asked further for an amendment to the bank act to prevent banks against loans and for an amendment to the British North America act, the written, but smaller, part of the Canadian constitution, to curb the power of the Canadian senate to reject bills passed by the house of commons.

Premier King intimated that repeated action by the senate in rejecting bills passed by the lower chamber might strengthen the argument for curbing the powers of the upper house, which is now opposing him. He had previously referred to the bill to amend the industrial disputes act, which passed the commons last session and was thrown out by the senate. He announced that this bill—the chief purpose of which was to prevent railway or mining corporations from reducing wages without a hearing by a board under the industrial disputes act—would be introduced again at the session which opens Feb. 28.

King claimed credit from labor for having appointed Tom Moore as a representative of labor on the board of the Canadian National railways and for having arranged for the payment of pensions to Grand Trunk railway employes who took part in the strike of 1910.

Mellon Supporters Rally.

WASHINGTON.—Because the senate has ordered investigation of propaganda of the Mellon tax scheme, original plans for driving congress into enactment of that boon to millionaires have been abandoned. Now comes the National Citizens Committee in Support of the Mellon Tax Reduction Proposal, with Major General O'Ryan as its chairman, and with a long list of college presidents and editors to give it respectability.

Nicholas Murray Butler, Al Lawrence Lowell, Harry Pratt Judson, Charles W. Eliot, Irving Fisher and Norvell Dwight Hillis are cheek by jowl in this enterprise with Irving T. Bush, Lindley M. Garrison, Otto H. Kahn, Abraham T. Elkins, and Roger Babson. Former Governor Allen of Kansas, Festus J. Wade and Harry A. Wheeler likewise speak for the business interests.

Franc and Pound Take New Tumble as Market Opens

PARIS.—The franc went down another notch today, being quoted at 82.50 to the dollar.

It was the most severe slump in the franc's history, being a drop of 4.75 from the previous day's close.

The franc slumped right from the opening, which was 72.47 to the dollar, 10 centimes lower than Saturday's close.

LONDON.—The pound sterling sank to a new low level for the year today, falling to $4.31. The decline was attributed to the railway strike and the uncertainty as to the policies of the coming Labor Party government.

When Cal Was Wet.

WASHINGTON.—Calvin Coolidge, when vice-president, made a "wet" speech to the American Bar Association. This was on Aug. 10, 1922. The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment is printing copious extracts from his address.

For instance: "The attempt to regulate, control and prescribe all manner of conduct and social relations by force is new. It was always the practice of primitive peoples. . . . A large part of the history of free institutions is the history of the people struggling to emancipate themselves from all of this bondage."

OBREGON DECREE SOBERS SUPPORT GIVEN FASCISTI

They Cheered When Labor Was "33d"

MEXICO CITY.—Announcement by the government that the famous article 33 deportation clause of the Mexican constitution would be involved against any foreigner taking part in the counter-revolution or subsidizing it with funds has considerably sobered some of the more vitalized portions of the foreign propertied interests here.

The idea of being "thirty-thrued" in case they grumble on the wrong horse, thus terminating their opportunity to make money out of Mexico, has noticeably slackened their gambling instincts.

One of the last acts of Obregon before the revolution broke out was the "thirty-threeing" of General Manager Leach, Tampico Light and Power Co., for antagonizing the workers, promoting class conflicts and violating the labor safeguard clauses of the Mexican constitution.

When Obregon was using article 33 to expel Communists and others the same interests that are now cursing the famous article were loudly applauding it.

What Mexican Workers and Farmers Expect From The Daily Worker

It can be said that hitherto only Gompers has concerned himself about the Central American workers. Of course, he did it in his own peculiar way, viz., he stood up for the interests of the workers in the interests of the bourgeoisie. Without much ado Gompers organized the Pan-American Federation of Labor. Wherever American capitalists went, Gompers went, and wherever American capitalists thrived on the blood and sweat of the natives, the trade union bureaucrats of the Pan-American Federation of Labor thrived also.

The British navy and merchant fleet were the means for the establishment of British colonial domination. The American dollar and the American gun-of-war are the means by which American industry will acquire new markets and American finance capital new opportunities for investment. The American bourgeoisie is getting ready for a new period of their policy of expansion. There is no doubt whatever that their orientation is southwards. The advance on Mexico has already begun. In this connection armed intervention is not by any means a necessity. Americans are adepts at conquering backward nations without such violent means.

And Gompers—what will he have to say to it? Will he have anything to say about it at all? Certainly not! He will have to say that what had happened, as if everything were for the best in the best possible world. Even if the negroes in Cuba should be sunk into submission. Morons are done to death in the Phillipines, Columbia's trade is ruined on the Panama Canal, and in order to get command subsequently of the finances of this country, if coups d'etat are necessary in Central America and revolutions set on foot in Mexico, even than Gompers will find that everything is perfectly alright.

Thus it is a certainty that Gompers will not say anything at all. But events will speak for themselves with all the more clearness. The policy of the U. S. A. in the Mexican question spells the conquest of Mexico. In 1920 the American capitalists supported Obregon's revolution, namely the left parties against Carranza, with the object of downing the reactional bourgeoisie which is dependent on Great Britain. At present at the end of 1923, when trade and industry are mostly under American control, the capitalists are supporting and furthering the revolution of this same bourgeoisie against the parties of the petty-bourgeoisie and against the organizations of the proletariat.

In Mexico the position of the bourgeoisie on the one hand and of the petty-bourgeoisie on the other hand, is as follows: The national bourgeoisie exploits the workers' political power if it throws itself into the arms of American capitalism, while the only chance of the Mexican petty-bourgeoisie assuming political power lies in the support of the wide masses of peasants.

Hence, Mexico's future inevitable struggle against the U. S. A., will be a struggle of Mexican workers and peasants against capitalism and against the relics of feudalism.

But the question of U. S. A. domination in Mexico is not only a Mexican, but above all, an American question. The working class of the U. S. A. must be aware that the success of the American policy of expansion would spell defeat for the American working class, while the defeat of this policy would be tantamount to American workers' success.

The appearance of the DAILY WORKER is a very important event for all American workers and peasants. The DAILY WORKER is to be the leading organ, not only of the U. S. A. proletariat, but also of all the proletarian class organizations of Mexico and Central and South America.

Our internationalism is not an empty phrase, but community of interests and struggle. Our interest is the proletarian Revolution and we must struggle against everything which places itself between it and us. Our struggle must be conducted courageously, but also cleverly.

May THE DAILY WORKER be a brave and wise champion of the proletarian world revolution.

The "Daily" Is "Catching"

DEAR COMRADE ENGDAHL: I think you are getting out a wonderfully fine paper. The first issue was great and the rest are keeping up to the same high standard.

You should have been at the demonstration here in New York, last Sunday. It was a most enthusiastic meeting. I intended to write it up, but it was some half-ton tallies case of.

From all appearances THE DAILY WORKER will have splendid support from the start. It is so wide-awake and full of vitality and vigor that it will catch wherever it goes. Keep it up and we will back you to the end of the bloody system and till we enter the coming Workers' Republic in America.

Once in a while I will slip you a thought, and if you care to use it do so, otherwise throw it away.

With all my best wishes and with Communist greetings, I am

Yours in the Movement,

J. O. BENTALL.

FARMER-WORKER UNITY IS SOUGHT IN CALIFORNIA

Plan Convention to Be Held in April

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—At a conference held here of the Provisional Committee for the organization of a Farmer-Labor Party in the State of California, plans were made for a convention to be held in April for the organization of such a Party.

The Provisional Committee for the formation of the Farmer-Labor Party was elected at the Election Conference for Progressive Political Action last fall and consisted of the delegates in that organization who stood for independent political action as against the policy of participating in the primaries of the old parties followed by the Conference for Progressive Political Action.

At the recent meeting in San Francisco, this Provisional Committee adopted a program for development of the Farmer-Labor movement. The first step will be a conference to be held at the request of the Farmer-Labor Committee in which the Workers Party, the Socialist Party, the Non-Partisan League and the old Farmer-Labor group will participate and agree upon a program of action. Failure of the agreement upon a program by the groups named, the Provisional Committee of the Farmer-Labor Party will issue the call for the Convention during the last week of April, at which the State Farmer-Labor Party will be organized.

One of the problems facing the new Party will be to establish itself as a legal Party. This requires 40,000 signatures in the state of California, a very great task indeed. Proposals for the use of the Socialist Party legal standing as the medium of expression of the Farmer-Labor Party have been made, but these proposals are not acceptable to the other groups participating in the movement, as it is their view that the Farmer-Labor Party must establish itself as a legal entity in the political work as well as to be the movement appealing for the support of the workers and farmers of the state.

A Letter From a Polish Editor

(To THE DAILY WORKER, Chicago, Ill.: I will send you a letter in the near future. Yours, [illegible])

"The Polish Daily Worker" is published in Detroit, Mich., as the official organ of the Polish Workers Party. The editor is [illegible] of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party and a member of the Board of Directors of the Daily Worker Publishing Co. He is therefore fully acquainted with the relation of the Polish movement to the Workers Party and the Communist International. The above mentioned statement is quite interesting to your readers and associated with the situation in the Polish movement. This country. But there are some facts which should be known to every class conscious worker in this country, as the gang that now controls the "1060 Robotniczy" are making of it a yellow slander rag and wants to claim for it the title of a labor paper and revolutionary organ.

We were compelled to resign when at the yearly meeting of the Detroit branches of the International Publishing Association (which is publishing the "Glos Robotniczy") on the first of December, 1923, there was elected the new board of directors composed in overwhelming majority of open enemies of the Workers Party, who at the above meeting and before attacked in a most unheard-of manner the activity of the party and the personality of its leaders. None of these men who then their crooked intrigues succeeded in gaining for the time being control of the G. P. A., is a member of any workers' organization, either political or economic.

As it was an obvious impossibility with such a board of directors in control to carry on the editorial work of the paper in conformity with the interests of the revolutionary labor movement it was no other way left, as to resign immediately in order to compel those fellows to show their cards and openly as they have made it in a very enlightening manner.

See their "Proclamation" published in the issue of "Glos Robotniczy" of December 24 (No. 298) the business manager of the paper, Mr. Siwik, trying to denounce the indorsement of the electoral candidates supported by the Detroit Federation of Labor, and the Workers Party of our district, narrates a story about some unnamed politician who offered him $2,000 during the election period for advertising the candidates, which offer he indignantly spurned. Mr. Siwik never mentioned a single word about it before. If it is his invention, he is guilty of falsehood. If it is true and was until now concealed, the implication of crookedness is obvious.

The principal cause of these gentlemen's indignation over the support of the Federation of Labor candidates by the Workers Party was that one of them, Mr. Frank Manel is a real estate man. But the gentleman who signed the protest with Siwik, a Mr. Pawlak, is a real estate agent and licensed broker himself, and the very author of this "proclamation" is a Mr. Fritter-in-chief of "Glos Robotniczy." Mr. H. Gluski, according to an official statement of the president of the Detroit Federation, Mr. Stepe, made a couple of weeks ago, via a shrieking agent for Polish war bonds, issued as every one knows for war against Soviet Russia. A very proper editor-in-chief for a revolutionary labor paper to be very touching company of closest friends.

The leader of the trouble makers and disrupters, the former secretary of the I. P. A., Mr. B. Kozikorowski, for a couple of months succeeded in selling the Polish Workers' Club on McDougall Street, in Detroit, to the Polish White Legion—a Fascisti organization of the Vetwere of the General Haller army. He may be succeed in selling out to them the "1060 Robotniczy."

This is the situation of the paper which, as until now taken over by others, the only Polish workers' daily in the country.

My full statement in Polish on this matter and other materials concerning it can be obtained from the Polish Bureau of the Workers Party, 1060 N. State St., Room 214, Chicago, Ill., and I hope our comrades to inform the readers of the "Glos Robotniczy" with whom they are acquainted about the situation, as we have no means of communicating with them.

M. BARUTA.

Religion and Communism.

To the Daily Worker:

The founding of a religious and communism should be the function of the church. Only then could the priests and preachers look their followers in the face.

The preachers today tell us, when the wolf is at our door and the granaries are full, to leave it to God. We left it to God for two thousand years and that is enough. What have we today but hunger and starvation?

I believe that preachers someday will begin to tell the truth and write about the wrongs of which they were guilty. Not until then can we make peace with them.—Robert Long, Kansas City, Mo.

Editor—Our correspondent is more optimistic than we are about the possibility of the preachers turning over a new leaf.

Can't Be Without the Daily Worker

To the Daily Worker:

I am writing you a few lines about the "Worker." I cannot get along without the "Worker" because it shows clearly the exploitation of the workers by the capitalists.

I cannot send you any money at the present time but I will send you some as soon as I can.—M. Pallat, 3909 Warren St., Cleveland, O.

Favors Weekly Installments

To THE DAILY WORKER: I favor the weekly installment of the Russian novel.—John Eiben, Cleveland, Ohio.

Wants It Weekly

To THE DAILY WORKER In answer to the question as to whether the Russian novel should be published daily or weekly, I am for the latter.—Mark Kowriotq, Providence, R. I.

Wants It Weekly

To THE DAILY WORKER: I should like the daily installments of "A Week." I will bet you don't get ten requests for a weekly installment.—Timothy McCarty, Chicago, Ill.

To THE DAILY WORKER. It gives me great pleasure to read the WORKER, daily, and in this respect the post office is very accurate. The paper is a workers paper and there are some articles that should get support it. At least the American worker will be able to read the truth about Russia. A very proper editor-in-chief of "Glos Robotniczy." Mr. H. Gluski, according to an official statement of the president of the Detroit Federation, Mr. Stepe, made a couple of weeks ago, via a shrieking agent for Polish war bonds, issued as every one knows for war against Soviet Russia. A very proper editor-in-chief for a revolutionary labor paper to be very touching company of closest friends.

We are approaching a presidential election when the politicians will issue all kinds of platforms. The DAILY WORKER will show to the workers the truth about their platforms.

Every worker whether a member of the Workers Party or not, must give all his support to the paper and see that the DAILY WORKER is the only paper in the U. S. A.

With good wishes, I am, yours for the Daily Worker.—I. Cooper

No Wage Scales Drawn up By Building Trades

Statements of Edward Ryan that the building trades workers did not intend to demand $1.50 an hour were said to be premature by delegates from building trades unions to the Chicago Federation of Labor. Anton Johansson, delegate from the carpenters, said that so far as he knew no unions had drawn up a wage scale to replace the scale now in force. Other delegates said that it may be the intention of the unions covered by the Landis award not to demand more pay, but the unions not covered by the Landis award have not taken action on the question.

Watch the "Daily Worker" for the first installment of "A Week," the great epic of the Russian revolution, by the brilliant young Russian writer, Jury Libedinsky. It will start soon.

CAN WE TEACH COMMUNISM TO CHILDREN?

Article No. 1.

In our Junior Groups we do not intend or desire to teach the little proletarians dead and gone dogma or dull book knowledge. We acquaint them with the facts connected with the living struggle of the working class. As a matter of fact communism cannot be taught thru words. It must arise out of experience. It is not the frequent repetition of the words, "capitalism—proletariat—class struggle—revolution—dictatorship—" and others that make young communists of our children. It is their understanding of these words thru the daily struggle they encounter in the school, in their homes, in all their daily life, that counts. To strengthen their energy, to help them comprehend, by bringing out their working class common sense—that is communist education. "Common sense"—in a child! Most certainly—if it has not been destroyed by Public School "education". The child is brought into a circle where it shares its experiences in common with other children—the Junior Groups of the Young Workers League. There the children learn, thru experience, the nature and character of events that occur daily. They learn to distinguish between the actual community life and that agitatic, individualistic form which capitalism has poured into human society. But the children are not isolated from the world. The Junior Groups are not headed by a self-styled communist orchards and gardens. We are practical schools preparing the way for the class struggle in the world as it is now.

The children are already engaged in the class struggle. Their class consciousness is partly formed. They are those of their parents from economic conditions. A child can endure hunger and misery not ideally but as can an adult. The mental struggles of the children are even greater than those of the adults. They have not only the natural task of adjusting and adapting themselves to life, as a whole, but they have also to face the iron discipline of the teacher, the nonsense that is given to their hungry little minds in the Americanist Public Schools, and the denial of the protection of the "law" to their playgrounds—the streets.

Shall we ask them to recognize violence and obey it? No. In no case must they become slaves. We cannot, of course, order them to oppose violence by violent methods but do and must help them—especially to find out the reason for these things.

The Junior Groups are the militant community of the children. They are the nuclei of the militant workers of the future. They are not militant communities by commands. They become so, naturally, thru experience and training applied to experience. Communist education is not—as its opponents accuse it of being—the teaching of the children to repeat parrot like formulas, the committing to memory of the ABC of Communism. It is neither the "rational system" of communism of Owen nor yet the dogmatic methods used in Great Britain. The children who are being educated in the Junior Groups are not having their mental food served to them ready prepared and already digested. They prepare their own, by utilizing their own actual experiences in the class struggle, in the school, at home, and in the streets.

MINNESOTA LABOR PREPARING FOR MAY CONVENTION

Reactionaries Beaten at Willmar Meet

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—The Farmer-Labor conference recently held in the seventh congressional district, Minnesota, was successful on record for a national third party. Efforts to switch the movement off the economic base and open the doors to the gamut of public regardless of economic groupings were unavailing.

The conference was held in Willmar. The capitalist press predicted that the conference would repudiate the third party movement and would follow the lead of the non-partisan reactionaries, but they were disappointed. It was explained that the Farmer-Labor party movement is distinctly a movement originating with the farmers, organized as farmers and with industrial workers organized as industrial workers, and this distinction must be preserved.

Much talk has been indulged in regarding the differences between Chairman Pike of the Farmer Labor Party and other members of the executive committee. This difference was attributed to personal animosities of the various leaders. Pike is opposed to a class party and favors opening the party to "American citizens" and opposed to allowing any economic groups representation as such at the May 30th convention.

The opposition to Chairman Pike bases its position on the fact that without its class character the Farmer-Labor Party would have no excuse for existence. The capitalist parties while ostensibly open to the public are ruled by the capitalist interests. These parties frame laws in the interests of the capitalists and use the armed forces of the government which they control to enforce these laws.

William Mahoney, editor of the Minnesota Union Advocate and a leader in the farmer-labor movement for the May 30th convention, delivered a splendid speech at the conference in which he answered the objections made by Chairman Pike and showed that the proposed Farmer-Labor Federation would be based on popular groups with much more rank and file control than has been true in the state central committees of the Farmer Labor Party.

The Labor-Progressive forces of St. Paul are preparing for the forthcoming primaries and city election. At the last meeting it was decided to make an endorsement for mayor and to endorse four out of a possible six members for the council and a candidate for controller.

The names proposed for the Council are: Commissioners J. M. Clancy and H. Wenzel; J. E. Corcoran of Typographical Union No. 30, and a present deputy commissioner of finance; J. C. Pearce, deputy commissioner of parks and playgrounds; C. J. McGlogan, member and general chairman of Electrical Workers Union No. 902; Scott Gipple, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks; Carl C. Carlgren of Carpenter's Union, No. 87; Alex Christianson, member of Plumbers' union, and at present in business; and Chas. Herbert, custodian of the Labor Temple and a member of Meat Cutters' Union No. 114.

U. S. Print Shop Czar Wants Serf Status for Typos

WASHINGTON.—The right of petition and protest, guaranteed to every American citizen, is a cause of bitter controversy between Public Printer George H. Carter and employes of the government printing office.

The workers offer to prove this right hos been denied them by the public printer, who threatens with discharge all who disobey his order.

Carter has been working to bring about passage of a bill, now in the House, which would give him complete and autocratic control of all salaries.

The workers, fearing wholesale reductions in pay, have undertaken to present to Congress their arguments for defeat of the bill.

Carter has resented this and has issued an order forbidding any of them to make any appearance before the committee or to send written communications on the subject of the bill.

Leader Defies Him.

August F. Lander, spokesman for the workers, continued to write letters to the committee. Thereupon Carter suspended him from his job in the printing office, forbade him even to enter the building, and instructed him that he would be given no pay days which to give reasons why he should not be permanently discharged.

If the discharge is carried out Congress will be asked to act and appeal also will be made to President Coolidge.

F.-L. Congressman In Maiden Speech Says He's Radical

By The Federated Press.

WASHINGTON.—Representative Lineberger, of Los Angeles, 110-per cent patriot, had railed and fumed at "radicals" in the House, during the fight on the new rule which would permit the progressives to get a record vote on important measures.

Finally Representative Wefald, of Minnesota, the only Farmer-Labor Party member, got up to make his first speech. He said that he wanted it understood that he was a radical; whenever he saw an evil, or anything that he wanted to change for the better, he proposed to go to the roots of the difficulty.

He told of having asked the Republican leader for committee assignments, and of being asked in reply as to whether he would support the Republican organization.

"I replied that I would support the Republican organization whenever it is was right, and I hope it will be right all the time," said Wefald. "I received an indirect answer in the shape of committee assignments, and these make me think that the Republican organization does not intend to be right all the time."

Then he ridiculed the fears of Newton, Khutson and other Minnesota standpatters over price changes, and reminded them that old King Tut, going to sleep in his tomb in Moses' day, must have left the impression that the world was going to smash. But the voters of Minnesota, once rock-ribbed Republican, were so no longer. They now had a party of their own.

WHO THE YOUNG WORKERS

CONDUCTED BY THE YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE

The Youth In Russia

By WILLIAM K. KRUSE

This is the last of a series of articles on the Youth Movement of Russia and other countries, written by comrades from R.

The Russian Komsomol (Youth Movement) is not divorced from the mass. Its shop organizations taking up the daily problems of their own workplaces, keeping constantly aware of the latest developments of world politics keep their feet on the ground, their head on their shoulders and their eyes and ears in the crowd.

Neither are their "intellectuals" or "leaders" permitted to grow away from the masses. There is no such thing as an "intellectuals" branch or even nucleus of the Komsomol. Every intellectual is attached to some proletarian institution, be some factory or shop. Thus they keep close to the mass.

Not even in sports is the line drawn between communists and non-partisan. There is a tremendous interest in sport in Russia, particularly in the mass sports, rowing and football. But the sport organizations are broader than any party and the husky young communists are leaders in this world as well as in the political.

There is no valid reason why friendship for Marx should mean enmity for Spaulding. Sport is a wide avenue of approach thru which thousands of youth can be influenced to take their first steps toward Communism, in America as well as Russia, and in those spaces it furnishes the finest possible psychological foundation for future combat, the combination of limitless loyalty to one's "side" with the last possible ounce of personal exertion.

Just as the party looks to the Komsomol to carry on the communist struggle in the youth world and to steadily strengthen the elder organization with an influx of trained and tried members of highest calibre, so the Komsomol looks to its junior movement, the Young Pioneers, for its future existence. The capitalist parties while ostensibly open to the public are ruled by the capitalist interests. These parties frame laws in the interests of the capitalists and use the armed forces of the government which they control to enforce these laws.

William Mahoney, editor of the Minnesota Union Advocate and a leader in the farmer-labor movement for the May 30th convention, delivered a splendid speech at the conference in which he answered the objections made by Chairman Pike and showed that the proposed Farmer-Labor Federation would be based on popular groups with much more rank and file control than has been true in the state central committees of the Farmer Labor Party.

Youth Views

By HARRY GANNES

Acts not Words Need Against Child Labor.

Despite the fact that Medill McCormick, capitalist U. S. Senator from Illinois declares that the government is so thoroly familiar with the child labor question that no further information is needed, the National Child Labor Committee has set aside January 26, 27 and 28, as Child Labor Days for propaganda against child labor.

The senator is right when he says plenty is known about the exploitation of children. The problem primarily is not to collect information but to act on the facts already known to every intelligent person in the United States.

Two half-hearted attempts on the part of Congress to pass milk-and-water laws regulating child labor were based on the horrible facts that the U. S. legislators knew better than anyone else for they have before them the reports of the United States Department of Labor investigators. The reports thus gained are printed in but a few copies and are at the disposal, first of all, of the capitalist servants who formulate the laws in Washington. Both child labor laws, however, were killed by the Supreme Court.

The National Child Labor Committee has done some excellent work in gathering statistics and disseminating information on the evils of child labor; but it has failed to offer a program which will in any way benefit the working class or show a marked betterment in the condition of the child slaves under consideration.

The foremost fact behind the child labor question is that the parents do not get enough wages to feed their children even the sometimes both the father and the mother work. The problem of child labor is not a mater for philanthropists or the good-heartedness of the representatives of capitalism, such as the National Child Labor Committee, but it is a vital economic and political issue for the workers every member of the working class.

What is necessary as an effective step to strike a blow in the proper manner is the exploitation of the millions of American children now slaving in every state in this country. The telling move would be the setting aside of an anti-child labor week by every working class organization in the United States. Sam Gompers and Woodville Lears would be warbles about the "American child slaves" but what tangible move has he made outside of supporting the reactionary Senator McCormick who is seeking to preserve the interest of his fellow exploiters first, last and all the time?

The workers demand should be better wages for the parents of the child slaves Imprisonment for all bosses who employ children. Organization in the trade unions of the youth now employed.

And every working class organization in this country should put its full strength behind the realization of these demands.

Sauce for Goose, Sauce for Gander, Belief of Labor

NEW YORK—Labor is losing no time in "coming back" at the Associate Industries, the bosses' organization which is demanding an investigation of the New York state labor department. On the trusted principle of "What is sauce for the goose..." trade union interests will put forward a resolution in the legislature this week demanding an investigation into the Associated Industries.

The Federated Press is assured in labor circles that the proposal is not quiry. If undertaken, will disclose amazing facts as to the powerful lobby maintained in Albany by the Associated Industries. It is charged that this lobby has been instrumental in thwarting the passage of many social welfare bills.

Boost the News Stand Sales

The Daily Worker can now be secured on the news stands in the city of Chicago. It is of great importance that those who have charge of such stands should be given encouragement to display the Daily Worker in the early days of its existence.

Our readers are therefore urged to purchase at least one copy of the Daily Worker each day until it is well advertised.

It is of special importance that our readers should ask for The Daily Worker from the news agent near t heir homes.

Even though you are a subscriber we nevertheless urge you to purchase an extra copy each day from a news stand. You can use that copy to interest another worker in the paper and its message. We expect our subscribers to help boost the Daily Worker.

HILLMAN SPEAKS AT MEETING TO RECOGNIZE RUSS

Paxton Hibben Sends Letter of Regrets

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, will speak at the mass meeting demanding that the United States recognize Soviet Russia, to be held at Ashland Auditorium, Sunday evening, Jan. 27.

Hillman is the third national figure in the fight for recognition of Russia who has signified his intention of speaking at this meeting. The others are Robert Morss Lovett, one of the editors of the New Republic, and a professor at the University of Chicago, and Albert A. Johnson, a member of the unofficial congressional committee sent to Russia by the Hearst newspapers. Johnson has made four trips to Russia and is well acquainted with the leaders of the government there.

The Friends of Soviet Russia and Workers Germany, who are arranging the meeting, received a letter from Captain Paxton Hibben who is being tried by a special court martial, expressing his regret at not being able to be present at the meeting. The letter follows in part:

"DEAR FRIENDS: As you know from press dispatches from Washington, I have been indicted for telling beliefs favorable to enemies of the United States government,' because I have for three years publicly advocated the resumption of friendly and normal relations between the United States and Russia. I still neither retract nor modify my views on this subject for any man.

"I believe in Russia and the future of Russia. I believe in the future of any country where the workers get the fruits of their labor, where the toiling masses who create the good things of life get those good things they create. I believe that governments are instituted among men for this purpose and the government of this country specifically so. And that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends it is the right of the people to alter it. It is not you and I my friends, who seek to destroy the foundations of the government of the United States, but those who seek to deny or obscure this fundamental principle. Yours, PAXTON HIBBEN."

The entire proceeds of the meeting Jan. 27 will go to the German relief. The Friends of Soviet Russia and of workers Germany, report that their drive for funds is meeting with great success. With the drive well under way they report that daily receipts have jumped from around $300 a day to around $500. Workers are responding to the urgent appeals for help that are coming out of Germany. If the said success is to be kept down it will be necessary to keep up the present drive all winter and well into the spring.

The Bok Bunk

Edward W. Bok, formerly editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, believes that the best way to be ready for war is to prepare for peace. This has been the result of his $100,000 contest for the most practicable plan by which the United States might co-operate with other nations to achieve world peace. Bok's million dollars brought more intellectual weaklings out of their beds than Coue's visit. But it brought more than that.

When the mental fog caused by the flood of inspired writing let loose by the Bok money bags cleared, people begin to rub their eyes and wonder if what was transpiring behind the smokescreen of a peace move was not the most gigantic piece of war propaganda ever conceived in this country.

The jury awarded the prize to a proposal to join the the League of Nations, an organization with a reputation as unsavory as a bootlegging parlor.

In the favored plan there is no word about disarmament, the outlawry of war or any of the other shiboleths that even our liberals like to talk about. The League was the pet scheme of the world's most sighted financiers and its principal weakness was the absence of the United States from its councils. This country could provide the financial club that could be used by the capitalist pirates of the world to compel the rebellious sections of the capitalist class to stay with the machine or else suffer annihilation. The League would be the International of capitalism. It would seek to hold back the tide of evolution with the Canute broom of American dollars.

It was a sensible plan for the capitalists. But they cannot agree among themselves. Unity comes hard to thieves. But their professors and intellectual retainers have never given up the idea of building a capitalist international like the League of Nations and the Bok Peace Plan is another such effort. It will fail, not because of its obvious dishonesty, but because no plan can harmonize the contradictions in capitalist society. Society can only be harmonized by the abolition of capitalism and that will not be done by doting millionaires and greedy capitalists but by the working-class who have an interest in getting rid of the robber system which breeds the wars they are called upon to fight.

Plus and Minus

The capitalist clique that exploits and oppresses the city workers is the same capitalist clique that is driving the farming population of the country into bankruptcy.

This truth is timely and cannot be over-emphasized, especially at this moment when the big employers and bankers are making a desperate attempt to line up the farmers for the coming election campaign.

Time and again the farmers have protested against the tribute of seventy millions of dollars levied on them annually by the vicious system of "Pittsburgh plus." The steel barons, who are overworking and underpaying the hundreds of thousands of workers in their plants, are pocketing these $70,000,000 by adding to the price of steel manufactured outside the Pittsburgh district the cost that would be entailed in shipping this product as freight from Pittsburgh to the destination of the consumer.

Now comes the Federal Trade Commission with its story of how the grain gamblers of the Northwest, centered in the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, are holding the wheat farmers at their mercy and forcing these farmers to receive the lowest possible prices for their wheat. The official report is a recitation of the most damaging evidence on the extent to which the wealthy grain gamblers are ready to go to rob the farmers. In this instance the Equity Co-operative Exchange of St. Paul was the target of the capitalist attacks.

The circulation of false rumors, instituting unfounded litigation to hurt the standing of the co-operative grain exchanges, preventing telegraph companies from furnishing price quotations on grain to the co-operatives, "compelling shippers of grain to Minneapolis from country points or from St. Paul" to pay certain commissions are some of the practices of this Chamber of Commerce which is one of the most aggressive sections of the National Chamber, representing the biggest bankers and industrialists. These methods have been pursued by the grain gamblers for ten years.

The plight of the farmers and the sufferings of the workers arise from the same source, the capitalist exploitation of government and industry through Pittsburgh Plus and "Minneapolis [illegible]

Detectives and Degenerates

An organization that recruits its members from the lowest stratum of the human race and which a mass of evidence proves to have as its principal object the capitalising of human weakness for purposes of blackmail and extortion today is entrusted with the duty of preserving the republic, of maintaining intact American institutions and protecting public officials who are charged with the duty of hunting down just such human menaces to life and property as compose this organization.

We refer to the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, presided over by William J. Burns, head of the Burns Detective Agency, two of whose former employees have just been arrested by the Chicago police and who have confessed to an apparently endless series of violent crimes such as torturing women to force a disclosure of the hiding-place of jewelry.

Nor is this an isolated instance. William J. Burns himself has admitted that he has "fixed" juries and the police records are filled with lists of crimes committed by agents of the Burns and other agencies. From data in the possession of The Daily Worker there is every reason to believe that a criminal record is almost an indispensable qualification for securing employment with a detective agency.

Into the central office of the Burns detective agency flows a stream of filth that is carefully classified and indexed. Let anyone in public life stray ever so little from the straight and narrow path and he is marked for persecution if he ever comes into opposition with the powerful industrial and financial interests whom the Burns agency serves.

More than one congressman and senator has been intimidated, has had his private papers rifled, has been shadowed and in other ways felt the heavy hand of the powerful clients of the Burns agency.

Not only this, but in every strike, in almost every union, in every organization of wage-earners, political or industrial, are to be found the stool-pigeons who may be picking up information merely, cataloging the active workers, or using every means to disrupt and destroy working-class organizations. Department of Justice agents and private employees of the Burns agency are indistinguishable, so close is the connection between the two.

It is to be hoped that the Chicago disclosures will renew the demand for an investigation of these breeding places of crime and degeneracy made by Senator Wheeler of Montana.

In a series of articles to be published soon The Daily Worker will give elaborate and irrefutable evidence of the unholy alliance between law enforcing and law breaking agencies. We intend to carry on this campaign of publicity until every man, woman and child who can read will know to what depths the rulers of this nation have stooped in their efforts to frighten and debauch the labor movement of this nation.

The Creature Schwartz

That a renegade radical can sink to depths of depravity unequalled by any other type of human being has been amply demonstrated in this country since the victory of the Russian workers in 1917 struck fear into the hearts of the capitalists to the extent that they opened their money bags to any political sewer rat who would unload his filth on the Soviet Republic for cash.

One particularly loathsome specimen of that type spread himself in the Chicago Tribune, of Jan. 20. His name is Alexander Schwartz. Physically he is a big chunk of animated protoplasm who wears a 22-inch collar and 6¼-inch hat. The brain capacity of a moron, with the neck of a gorilla.

Schwartz claims he went to Russia and participated at the meeting of the second congress of the Third International, that he was a member of the Socialist Party of America, travelled thru Russia, interviewed the peasants and advised Lenin how to manage the revolution.

Because of his independence of mind, Schwartz declared, the Bolsheviks feared him and put him in prison. This moron finally escaped to America and immediately unloaded his piffle on the capitalist press. For over two years he has appeared before chambers of commerce and other capitalist organizations braying about the terrors of Bolshevism.

The fact is that Schwartz was never a member of the Socialist Party, never secured credentials from the Socialist Party to represent it in Moscow, never was a member of the Third International and never spoke to Lenin in his life as the latter had plenty of more useful work than interviewing a mental defective.

The political pus that flows from the social excrescence which is personified in Schwartz finds its way into the organs of big business, hoping in that way to poison the workers with the germs of the same disease from which Schwartz and his tribe are suffering. The capitalists are hard put for anti-Soviet lies when they must fall back on this degenerate.

Formerly it was the custom of Machiavellian statesmen, when a political Samson appeared with sword and shield, ready for battle, to throw temptation in the form of woman in his way. It usually worked. Delilah sheared Samson of his locks. We could cite other examples. However, when Magnus Johnson went into the enemy's camp in Washington no fair Delilah crossed his path. He was coolly led to the byre and under the shadow of a Jersey cow did he fall.

The Franc Totters and France With It

By JOHN PEPPER

Never before has there been such a [illegible] as the present one. The French franc dropped so low as the [illegible] cents, and the dollar rose to [illegible] francs. Then the franc rose first from 25c to 24c and then to 27c.

Capital is scared about France's future, about the impoverishment of the French proletariat, and is fleeing from France to the United States and other secure countries.

French capitalism awaits with chattering teeth the new [illegible] ment in Great Britain. It fears that this labor government will break relations with France, that it will recognize Soviet Russia and make friendly overtures to Germany.

France is in a deep financial crisis. One of the leading capitalist newspapers, "L'Ere Nouvelle," began its editorial dealing with the financial crisis with the word "Panic!" The financial crisis of France is not new. It originates from the world war. But it was treated as a secret disease. The real figures of the French budget were never made public. The ruling capitalist parties did not care to [illegible] the taxes any further. They dreaded the revolt of the farmers and workers. The state always balanced its budget with the illusion of the German reparation payments instead of with a real income. Poincare sought to keep the secret disease concealed as long as possible. But the financial crisis existed, it exists now, and is breaking out openly in the form of a great panic.

The financial question is the central question of French policy. The Communist International analyzed the French situation more correctly than all the French politicians, and had already foretold the sharpening of the financial crisis in a resolution of September, 1923: "The political life of France depends on the question of the budget. The capitalist class has been able to delay the collapse through skillful political and financial manœuvres. But the crisis is proving more and more to be unavoidable. All the problems of French international policy and to a great extent also the problems of foreign policy hang together with the imminent financial crisis. The political struggle at present consists actually of strong efforts on the part of every class of capitalist society to load the financial burden upon the next lower class."

The French workers and farmers did not see it so clearly, but the panic speaks a very clear language, and [illegible] of the next parliamentary elections a political event of prime importance.

The ruling French capitalist class is now attempting in the last moment to make every effort to avoid the financial crash or at least to postpone it.

The French government is persecuting the bankers who speculate in francs.

The French government forbids the export of gold.

The Bank of France raises the [illegible] rate to 6%, 7½%, and then [illegible]

But all these measures against the panic only increase the panic. [illegible] ation of the [illegible] of the [illegible] Italian [illegible] Mussolini, who is [illegible] likewise signed its own death sentence.

The 20% increase of all taxes means a rapid [illegible] in the [illegible] of workmen and salaried elements. The Paris correspondent of the Chicago Tribune writes with admirable naivete and frankness:

"The cabinet admits frankly that the cost of living certainly will increase, but declines to admit that wages must be advanced 20 per cent also, insisting that the proverbial French thrift and economy will permit the vast majority to get along with perhaps minor raises in wages by making sacrifices and denying themselves until France has passed the crisis. It is realized that if it is necessary to raise wages any appreciable amount the government must inflate the currency thru printing additional billions of francs which will depreciate the exchange lower than ever."

The French capitalists, and their government want the workers and farmers to pay the costs of the financial crisis. The cost of living of the workers will rise, and the workers will be forced to demand higher wages. But the capitalists and their government will resist. In other words, a greater sharpening of the class struggle, strikes, and lockouts, offensive of capital and intervention of troops.

The stopping of reconstruction of the state, to make a new reduction of civil servants, altho 50,000 have already been discharged in the last six months.

But all this is still not enough. The government decided and the parliament will adopt measures causing France to hold up reconstruction of the devasted areas and other reconstruction work until Germany pays reparations.

The French capitalists are making the most strenuous effort to check the financial crisis in order to cut off the hydra heads of the panic. France is beginning to introduce measures which hitherto have been resorted to only in the defeated countries, in Germany, Austria and Hungary.

But it is too late. If the French capitalists were to cut off as many more hydra heads of the panic, just as many new heads would grow up again.

The government raises all taxes by [illegible] But that means the [illegible] ing [illegible] of the [illegible] ing [illegible] and [illegible] ing [illegible] ation of the most revolutionary factors in the [illegible] France is [illegible] ing [illegible] ing [illegible] Poincare, who a month ago likewise signed its own death sentence.

On Whose Side Are You?

THE HEARST PRESS--LABOR'S ENEMY

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.

The Hearst newspapers have the largest circulation of any one group of newspapers in the United States. They are read by millions of wage-earners not only because of their comic strips and special features but because in some manner the impression has been created that Hearst and his papers "are for the working-man."

No better proof could be had of the indiscriminating manner in which the great American public takes its mental nourishment. Hearst has built up the enormous circulation of his chain by playing up some issue in which the ordinary individual is interested but which does not affect by one jot or tittle the iron-clad control of the means of life of millions by a few powerful and unscrupulous individuals. Nor does Hearst take any chances of mistaking some major issue for something of little importance but great popularity. For every line of type written to arouse the indignation of the unthinking there are two lines of antidote.

The slippery liberalism of a Brisbane is offset by the absolute reaction of a Hinman and the humanitarianism of a Barry or Hapgood is counteracted by the cold "beat policy for business" of a Forbes.

Brisbane may—and does—express a quiet satisfaction at the rise of the British Labor party from the place of His Majesty's Opposition to His Majesty's government but Hinman, in the same paper and paid by the same man denounces the British Labor party and its leaders as the enemy of all America and Americanism stands for; this being, of course, the right of the businessman—a Hinman standing everyone who is "on his own"—to plunder when and where he please without any restraint whatsoever.

A Barry or Hapgood may express carefully worded doubts as to some of most vaunted benefits of unrestricted capitalist enterprise but a Forbes—of the same paper and paid by the same man—glorifies every aspect of American capitalism and assures the American workers that they will concentrate on the thought that the most humble toiler is doing something useful the world will be a bright and pleasant place.

Examination of Methods.

No better expression of American Toryism has been published than that contained in the George W. Hinman article featured in all Hearst papers on the 13th of this month and no more studied and deliberate exposition of American capitalism has appeared than the article written by H. C. Forbes in the same papers and on the same date.

Hinman goes forward to the defense of the Standard Oil Co. and the Rockefeller interests. Point by point he takes up the charges made against the Standard Oil Co. and the Rockefeller interests by the Federal Trade Commission and by the Senate committee investigating the oil scandals and refutes them.

Right here Mr. Hinman throws a couple of fits. Remember that Hearst, his employer, is looked upon as a friend and his papers as friendly to the wage-earners. The "disgorging of wealth" proposed by Sydney Webb is a rhetorical phrase and nothing more. It is to be a long slow process covering a period of time during which the British capitalists will devise more efficient means of exploiting the British workingclass. Expansion of the unemployment insurance scheme, inheritance taxes, enlargement of sick and old age pensions—these will be the means by which the Webbs will get the capitalists to "disgorge".

To these measures no one but a supporter of the most hidebound section of the American capitalist class would object. Hearst's liberalism and his friendship for the wage-earners is of the same character. Hinman and not Brisbane speaks for Hearst.

Forbes' Function

The job of B. C. Forbes is to keep the white-collar slaves docile and at the same time imbue them with the "go-getter" spirit that makes them efficient and allows them no time to think. Only incidentally does Forbes mention the toiling masses—the wage slaves who make the things that executives and salesmen sell.

Typical of the all-for-one and one-for-all philosophy which Forbes as the mouthpiece of the Hearst interests desires to have the workers adopt as their guide is the following paragraph:

"The street cleaner can feel that he is contributing invaluably to the health of his community.

"The clerk in the store can feel that he or she is playing an indispensable part in supplying the people with the necessaries or the comforts or the luxuries of life.

"The steel worker in the foundry or factory can feel that the progress of the world has been made possible by the sweat of his brow, spent in supplying mankind with steel.

"The needle worker, the cotton weaver, the silk factory worker, the textile mill worker, each and all can and should feel that the world could not spin around very comfortably without their labors in connection therewith.

"And, of course, all salesmen engaged in honorable work can and should get the vision which the biggest salesman got at that cash register, where he saw hundreds and hundreds of wage-earners at work, filling the orders he and his fellows were bringing up.

"Never we are, here, to say, this apostle of Hearst liberalism, "all of us doing the same great work and all equally important." Some of us do more work, some less, some of us are more skilful, which entitles us to more pay. All degrees of merit to be recognized. All degrees of ability to be rewarded. All degrees of industry to be appreciated.

also, insisting that the proverbial French thrift and economy will permit the vast majority to get along with perhaps minor raises in wages by making sacrifices and denying themselves until France has passed the crisis. It is realized that if it is necessary to raise wages any appreciable amount the government must inflate the currency thru printing additional billions of francs which will depreciate the exchange lower than ever."

The French capitalists, and their government want the workers and farmers to pay the costs of the financial crisis. The cost of living of the workers will rise, and the workers will be forced to demand higher wages. But the capitalists and their government will resist. In other words, a greater sharpening of the class struggle, strikes, and lockouts, offensive of capital and intervention of troops.

LENIN IS DEAD

Great Masses of Workers Over World in Mourning

(SPECIAL TO THE DAILY WORKER FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

MOSCOW.—Nicolai Lenin, Premier of the Russian Soviet Government, who had been ill for many months, is dead.

The man who led the Russian revolution that overthrew the long established order of the czars, passed away at a moment when his party is beginning to reap the fruits of his labors.

Ill for many months, the Bolshevik leader died while others carried on the Soviet government he founded.

It was known that he had suffered a form of paralysis and that famous specialists had come from far lands to treat him.

Only a fortnight ago, it was reported to Russia at large that Lenin was getting well. He had been out hunting rabbits on Christmas day—the Christmas of the "capitalistic" countries he scorned—and again on New Year's day.

His early return to participation in Russian affairs even was rumored.

No one from the outside world was permitted to see Lenin. He was kept closely guarded, while others carried on the affairs of the government and the country that had followed his lead awaited his return.

Today came word of his death—many times rumored and as often denied.

The Russian leader, hailed as one of the greatest men of modern times, died at ten minutes to seven Monday night.

The funeral will be held on Saturday.

On that day the body of Lenin will be interred in the Kremlin Hall, beside that of Svertloff, one of his fellow leaders in the great upheaval of Russia.

The death of Lenin came as a blow to his millions of followers.

Despite his two years absence from the Kremlin, he was first in the hearts of the Russians who rose behind him and overthrew the Romanoff dynasty.

They had always looked forward to his return. Some few, who knew the worst, may have given up hope, but not the great majority of Russia.

As this country's commercial relations with other nations improved, the talk was always of "when Lenin gets back to work."

Now Lenin is dead, of an illness the exact nature of which was not at first disclosed.

He lived, however, to see the state he dreamed of and fought for, take its place among the nations of the world; a state not yet recognized by many governments, but standing on its own feet.

At half past one this afternoon, the physicians who had attended Lenin in his last illness, issued a bulletin describing the Soviet chieftain's death.

His condition had greatly improved, they said. Suddenly, on Monday, it took a turn for the worse.

Lenin died within a few hours.

Paralysis of the respiratory organs was apparently the cause.

The body will be brought to Moscow tomorrow and will lie in state until Saturday.

In death, Lenin is to be made accessible to all those who followed him and who could not be with him in his illness.

An official statement issued by the Russian government said that the Soviet Government will continue to carry out the will of the workers and peasants, in accordance with Lenin's last wishes.

Wife Ardent Communist

Lenin's wife, Krupskaya, has been known as an ardent Communist. She was a convict in Siberia when she married the man destined, in a way, to succeed the Czar of all the Russians.

Nicolai Lenin, the $50-a-week Premier, who ushered in the dictatorship of the proletariat nearly six years ago, had been in failing health for many months.

Ministrations of several of the most eminent physicians in Europe failed to save the life of our Communist leader, who suffered his first stroke of paralysis two years ago.

Saw Brutalities of Czar

Lenin was forced to live away from the Kremlin, erstwhile citadel of the Czars, whence he had directed the destinies of the New Russia.

Lenin, when he was 17, saw the corpse of his older brother, Alexander, swing from the Czar's gibbet—executed because he participated in a plot to take the ruler's life. The boy also saw the Cossacks suppress his people with the rule of the whip and sword.

Lenin, born April 10, 1870, at Simbirsk, on the Volga, was the son of a school-master of noble blood who began to train his son at an early age. He attended the "gymnasium" (high school) of his native village, the master of which was Fedor Kerensky. Little did the school-master think that the quiet young son of the Ulianov family would some day lead the overthrow of his own son, Alexander Kerensky, who was destined to become the Minister-President of the Provisional Government after the downfall of Nicholas II.

Student of Karl Marx

While at school, Lenin became an ardent student and admirer of Karl Marx, the German Socialist. Although he identified himself with the Russian revolutionary movement at an early age, he prepared for intellectual leadership and, so far as is known, never took part in terrorism plots.

Lenin was expelled from the University of Kazan for preaching socialism. The future Communist leader, while attending the University of Petersburg, where he studied law, published a treatise on Marxism called "The Development of Capitalism," which established him as an authority of the subject.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Archie Roosevelt, son of the late president and brother of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt, vice-president of the Union Petroleum Company—a Sinclair concern—until yesterday, and according to his own admissions, director of innumerable subsidiary Sinclair concerns, appeared before the Senate committee investigating the connection of Senator Fall with the Teapot dome grab-and told an astounding story of payment of mysterious large sums by his superiors to Fall representatives, of hurried flight by Sinclair and Colonel Zevely, his private attorney, of hurried and secret conferences with one G. F. Wahlberg and his brother Theodore resulting in his decision to testify.

He gave the impression of a badly scared young man who, after allowing the family name to be used by unscrupulous financiers for confidence-creating purposes wished to clear his skirts of all blame in connection with what promises to be one of the most putrescent scandals ever bared in Washington circles.

Archie Roosevelt testifies that G. D. Wahlburg, private secretary to Harry F. Sinclair had told him that $68,000 had been paid to the foreman of Fall's ranch at Three Rivers, New Mexico. Wahlburg, on the stand said he had not made this statement to Roosevelt but gave other and more damaging testimony tending to show the shady financial transactions between Fall and Sinclair.

$25,000 in Liberty bonds and approximately $70,000 in Sinclair Consolidated stock had been turned over to Zevely, the main go-between in the negotations for the Teapot Dome sold to Sinclair by Fall.

Another incident told by Wahlberg was the sending of high-priced pure-bred cattle by Sinclair to Fall's ranch for a sum insufficient to pay freight charges.

Sinclair is now in Europe and Archie Roosevelt secured the steamship ticket for Sinclair, was told to keep the matter quiet and did keep Sinclair's name off the passenger-list, he told the committee. Before leaving Sinclair gave instructions for his private papers to be taken from his New York office and secreted in his home.

It has been rumored here for several days that startling developments were about to take place in the Tea-

WAGE SCALE BIG PROBLEM OF MINERS

Indianapolis Convention Hears Officers Report

By JOHN FITZGERALD

(Staff Correspondent of The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The twenty-ninth consecutive and sixth biennial convention of the United Mine Workers of America opened here today with 1,800 delegates in attendance, with unemployment throwing its threatening shadow over the bituminous coal fields.

The question of unemployment and the matter of a new wage-scale and the length of the contract period will probably occupy most of the time of the convention, although the struggle for the adoption of more progressive policies will be a bitter one as indicated in the opening addresses of William Green, international secretary and William Murray, international vice-president.

The report of President John L. Lewis was purely formal, making no mention of the expulsion of the Arkansas miners led by Alex Howat or the revocation of the charter of District 26, Nova Scotia.

Green and Lewis were evidently chosen to draw the fire of the progressive miners spokesmen when the fight develops. Howat's name was not mentioned by Lewis, Green or Murray, but the latter two officials vigorously denounced the radical element in the organization.

Phil Murray, early in his report, launched into an attack against the Progressive Miners International Committee and singled out the secretary of that educational organiza-

Doctors' and Official Statement Tell How Lenin Passed Away

(By Our Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW.—The official bulletin issued by the physicians said:

"Nicolai Lenin's condition took an unexpected turn for the worse on January 21.

"By 5:30 P. M. he was breathing with great difficulty.

"He became unconscious and his respiration was accompanied by convulsive movements of the body.

"At 6:30 P. M. Lenin died of paralytic symptoms of the respiratory organs."

The official announcement said:

"There was not the slightest sign to indicate the possibilities of death lately.

"Lenin's condition had improved immensely and prospects were most hopeful.

SOVIET POWER PROTECTION OF WORKERS' RULE

PLAN FUNERAL FOR SATURDAY; MEETINGS HERE

Zinoviev Sends News to Workers Everywhere

Soviet Congress, who are about to assemble will take steps to insure the continuation of government measures.

"The death of Lenin is the greatest blow since the workman and peasants gained power. It will move not only our peasants and workers, but the whole world.

"The masses of the working world mourn his death. He is no more amongst us, but his work remains. The Soviet Government will continue on the route established by Lenin. Soviet power stands for protection of the revolution of the proletariat."

Minister Zinoviev cabled to representatives in all parts of the world as follows:

"At 6:50 Lenin suddenly died of paralysis of the respiratory organs. The funeral will be Saturday.

"The Communist International has lost its best leader and teacher and the international proletariat has suffered the heaviest loss since the death of Karl Marx.

"Let us bow before the fresh grave of the great teacher of the working class. The workers of the world know whom they lost with Lenin.

"The Communist International asks close ranks and the continuation of its work in the spirit of Lenin's inheritance."

In 1897 the Czar banished Lenin to Siberia, where he spent the next three years in study and preaching, then, his facile pen, the gospel of Revolution. Released in 1900, he spent the most of his time—until 1917—outside of Russia, carrying on revolutionary propaganda.

Lenin was in Switzerland in April 1917, when the Russian people threw off the yoke of Czarism. The German government permitted Lenin and 100 other revolutionists to pass thru the country to Russia. This led to charges that Lenin was a paid agent of Germany.

Lenin's coup which brought him into power, came on Nov. 7, 1917, when the government of Alexander Kerensky, president-Minister of the provisional government, which had been growing weaker and weaker, finally died.

Communists on their "D a y" jammed the great hall of the Smolny Institute in St. Petersburg. As the meeting started, a little bald-headed man, with a wrinkled and bearded face, unkempt hair and dressed in a plain black suit, pushed his way forward.

Light On His Character

"Comrade Lenin will now address the congress," the chairman announced.

Lenin immediately got down to the business of the day.

"Comrades," he said, "we shall now take up formation of the Socialist state."

Thus started the greatest experiment in Communism the world had ever known.

It is said, Lenin believed anything justified which would bring about success of the revolution.

Attempt On Life

In 1917, an unsuccessful attempt was made to shoot him while he was driving thru the streets in an automobile.

In August 1918, Dora Kaplan, a left social-revolutionary, fired several shots into his body. These almost proved fatal and are believed to have caused his death.

The success of the Communist Government remaining in power for such a long time surprised even Lenin.

"The revolution may fall even in Russia," he had been quoted as saying.

"But we will keep alive the flame of revolution until the world is alight."

Said Revolution Would Conquer

Even tho the powers of all the earth combined to crush Russia, Lenin said, the idea of the revolution would persist.

No one has charged that Lenin used his high office for personal gain. There are few who question his sincerity. His salary as Chief of the Soviet State was $50 a week.

Forbid Public Entertainments

Stalin, minister of nationalities, is most prominent among the possible successors of the premiership.

A bulletin issued by the physicians who attended Lenin during his last illness, said that an examination of the dead premier's brain at noon today showed evidence of important changes in blood vessels.

Hemorrhage probably was the immediate cause of death, it said.

The Moscow Soviet, upon being informed of Lenin's death, prohibited all public entertainments until Jan. 27.

DEATH OF LENIN STIRS CAPITOL'S OFFICIAL CIRCLES

Great Loss to Russia, Say Liberals

WASHINGTON.—News of Lenin's death stirred Washington's official and diplomatic circles deeply. The immediate reaction was speculation on what his removal would mean to Russia.

Senator Borah, Idaho, Chairman of the Senate Committee holding hearings on Russian recognition and the chief Senate advocate of American recognition of the Soviet Regime, said: "I do not know enough about the situation there to say what the effect of his death will be, but I feel sure that if he had lived, Russia within the next two or three years would have been back on a sound economic footing and would have been restored to complete relationship with all countries.

"Lenin was undoubtedly a man of great ability and while he made great mistakes, he also made great progress."

No one who will control Russia following the death of Lenin can prevent the drift of the country towards capitalism, said Col. Wm. N. Haskell, who was the head of the American relief administration in Russia.

Colonel Haskell, who was head of the American relief administration in Russia, said:

"It is only a question of time in my opinion before all the governments will be dealing with Russia. Lenin was leading his country in this direction as fast as he could."

Stalin, the Minister of Nationalities in Russia, will succeed Lenin as the controlling power of Russia, Haskell predicted. Stalin is a quiet, unassuming man, but a power in Russia, said, according to Haskell, "was very close to Lenin."

Coolidge Bankers Promise Aid to New Victims

WASHINGTON.—The Federal Government will furnish adequate credit facilities to tide the banks of North and South Dakota over their crisis, it was announced on behalf of President Coolidge today.

Comptroller of the Currency, Henry Dawes and Director of the War Finance Corporation Meyer are in Chicago today on their way west to organize the banks of the section to carry help to those in North and South Dakota.

It was pointed out at the White House that the Government can do nothing to replace losses already incurred.

'Gene Debs Pays Glowing Tribute to Nicolai Lenin

TERRE HAUTE, Ind.—The death of Nicolai Lenin is a calamity to the Russian Soviet, Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, said here today.

"I regard Lenin as the greatest thinker that emerged from the world war," Debs said. "He towers head and shoulders above every other statesman in Europe.

"Lenin has passed thru an ordeal in the past five years such as never before faced any human being. He has carried two bullets, fired into his body by an assassin, and at the same time been forced to bear a burden of official responsibility and care greater than any other man's in the world.

"His place in history is certain. He will go down in history as one of the greatest statesmen, a towering personality, a heroic soul, and in the loftiest sense a champion of the rights and liberties of the common people."

Lenin By JOHN PEPPER

The world revolution marches on. Lenin discovered the inner laws of the world crisis, and the world revolution. He gave to the working class the revolutionary strategy and mapped out for the working class the revolutionary tactics in the final, the imperialistic period of capitalism. Marxism, applied to our recent epoch, became Leninism. Marx transformed a world: he developed Socialism from utopia to science. Lenin again reshaped a world: he developed Socialism from science to action.

Our greatest leader is dead. But the international working class has learned Leninism. The vanguard of the working class, the world party of the Communists, has learned from Lenin that its historic mission is to make the revolution, and has learned from Lenin the methods, the startegy and tactics of the revolution. Marx said once: "The philosophers have interpreted the world but the question is to reshape the world." Lenin has carried out completely this Marxist program. We can say that since Napoleon, the sword and will of the great French bourgeois revolution, no other single man has so thoroly transformed the world as Lenin, the brains and will of the great Russian proletarian revolution.

Marx discovered in historical materialism the laws of development of human history. In the surplus value theory Marx discovered the special laws of development of capitalism. Marx saw clearly for the first time that the revolution, the dictatorship of the proletariat, follows as an iron inevitability from the inner contradictions of capitalist society itself.

But Lenin was the first who forged the steel weapon of the revolution: the centralized Communist Party, the conscious minority which seizes the initiative, but never loses contact with the masses. Lenin coined the historical parallel: a Bolsevik is nothing else than a Jacobin who unites with the working class. Lenin formulated for the first time the conception that the leaders of the working class must be professional revolutionaries.

Lenin for the first time discovered the central role of state power. The Marxian decadents of the Second International simply have forgotten the state power for decades.

Lenin for the first time saw clearly the revolutionary significance of the general strike. The reformist of the Second International declared: "General strike is general idiocy."

Lenin was the first who recognized the necessity of turning the general strike into an armed uprising. After the defeat of the first Russian revolution in 1905, Plechanov declared: "It was a mistake to take up arms." But Lenin drew a different, and a great lesson from the defeat: "The revolution must be thoroly organized."

Lenin was the first who discovered how fundamentally opportunistic the Second International was, and he founded the Third International. Lenin replaced international phrase by international action.

Lenin once said that every leader makes mistakes, but a good leader makes no big mistake and quickly corrects a little mistakes. Every one who knows the history of the Russian revolution must recognize that Lenin did not make a single big mistake. He was not only a reliable adviser, but a calculating and succesful adviser of the working class.

The secret which enabled Lenin to avoid making too great mistakes was not in his being too cautious. On the contrary, Lenin made no big mistakes because he analyzed the facts correctly and because he had the revolutionary courage to act with audacity in the decisive moment. Danton, the leader of the French revolution, said that three things are necessary in a revolution, "Audacity, more audacity, always audacity!" Marx called Danton the greatest strategist of revolutionary tactics. Lenin is the greatest realist, the coolest analyzer of facts, but the basis of his strategy at the same time was always the slogan of Danton: "Audacity, more audacity, always audacity!"

Lenin always had the mental courage and determination to advance or to retreat in a given moment.

On November 7, 1917, Lenin had the audacity to seize power for the working class. A capitalist universe laughed at the Bolsheviki, and even his own party wavered, the best and oldest revolutionaries, Zinoviev and Kamenief recoiled from the terrible responsibility. But Lenin stood like a rock of iron and led the Russian workers to power and to lastigg victory.

Then later, the question of the peace of Brest-Litovsk. The whole of international Menshevism accused the Bolsheviki of betraying the revolution in concluding peace with German imperialist Kaiserdom. And even the party of the Bolsheviki again wavered. Such keen-minded Marxists as Radek and Bucharin could not understand the necessity of the retreat. But Lenin did not waver for a moment. He led his party with an iron hand to Brest-Litovsk, in order to gain a breathing spell for the revolution. And Lenin was again right. German Kaiserdom collapsed miserably a year later.

Then the third great turn in the history of the Russian revolution: the New Economic Policy. The capitalists proclaimed with great joy: the rule of Communism in Russia is at an end. International Menshevism again accused the Bolsheviki of betraying the workers in favor of the peasants. And the party of the Bolsheviki itself wavered once more. A mighty opposition lifted its head within the Party. But Lenin did not waver: he convinced the Party that concessions must be given to the farmers in order to save the rule of the working class, and they must be given immediately and without delay. Kronstadt is in mutiny, and Tambov is ablaze with peasant uprisings. And Lenin was again right. He saved the Russian revolution and thereby the world revolution.

Leninism is Marxism applied to the present, the final, period of capitalism. Lenin's most basic and most profound thought was his understanding and analysing the revolution as a uniform process. Lenin was the first who saw clearly that the revolution cannot be the achievement of a single class, but that it can succeed only if on the one hand, not only the working class, but all other non-capitalist strata are revolutionized, and if on the other hand, the capitalist class itself is no longer in a position which represented only the narrow class interests of the industrial workers within capitalist society. Lenin emphasized the general interests of the working class as the class of the revolution. Lenin recognized that to reject the idea of an alliance with the farmers is not revolutionary, uncompromise, but an opportunism which is afraid of victory. Lenin not only recognized that an isolated Communist Party without the laboring masses cannot be victorious, but he also recognized that the working class alone, without the farmers as allies, can neither be victorious, nor retain permanent victory.

And Lenin recognized that the proletarian revolution in the highly developed capitalist countries must form an alliance with the oppressed small nations and with the enormous masses of the exploited colonies against ruling imperialism. Lenin knew that only the working class can bring about its own salvation. But he also knew what the Second International did not know, that the working class cannot bring about its own salvation if it does not become the leader of all the oppressed and exploited of the euth.

All-Russian Congress Gets News; Men and Women Comrades Weep

MOSCOW.—The All-Russian Congress was advised of Lenin's death by President Kalinin, who read an official bulletin and proposed that hereafter January 21 should be observed as an official day of mourning.

The Congress stood silent for several minutes out of respect to their dead leader, men and women weeping without restraint.

Moscow already had taken on a funeral aspect, black bunting draping the houses thruout the city. This had been put up to commemorate the 1905 Petrograd massacres.

Shaking Down Oil Magnates Is Game Of de la Huerta

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—Adolfo de la Huerta, Mexican fascist chief, wants $400,000 of the Mexican Petroleum company's money, according to H. G. Wylie, vice-president of the company. The Mexican military rebel wants the money to put him in a peaceful mood towards the company's property at Tampico. Otherwise de la Huerta threatens to wreck the property, Mr. Wylie says.

But no good cash will be paid out. Wylie informs the press, unless de la Huerta actually gains control of the port of Tampico, and signalizes the intention of carrying out the threat immediately.

The money is demanded as an advance on export oil taxes, which de la Huerta contends, should be paid to himself, on the theory that he is the de facto government for this part of Mexico.

Coal Miner Killed.

Lenin at the Age of 16

By MAX SCHACHTMAN.

Editor, Young Worker.

Even during his early youth, Nicolai Lenin showed an active interest in the revolutionary movement in Russia. While attending the University of Kazan, he became very active in organizing a revolutionary movement among the students. This was during the bitterest days of czarist oppression, but the fear of persecution did not deter Lenin from carrying on a working-class activity. For this activity he was expelled from the university at an early age.

BURNS OUTFIT TRIES TO DISOWN TWO STICK-UPS

Detective Agency Rea... Lily-White Gang

Not a single smudge on the mo... sility of the William J. Burns Inter... national Detective Agency, Inc., n... matter how many stick-ups and women-dunkings the individual dicks may confess to.

"Yes, sir, we repudiate them... with a big R," said Mr. V. A. Thompson, present assistant manager of the local branch, to a representative of the DAILY WORKER, who asked what he thought of the sensational confessions of Hugh Engel, former assistant manager, and J. Gleason Walker, a rank and file shadow worker.

"We have no sympathy with anyone who goes wrong," Mr. Thompson pleasantly emphasized.

He declared that the agency would positively not defend the arrested men. Thompson assured his interrogator that Engel was no longer connected with the organization. Asked when the severance took place he hesitated a moment, then said it was several months ago. Walker, he insisted, had never worked for Burns.

This information is somewhat at variance with that furnished by the Chicago police, but if readers of the DAILY WORKER think that someone is departing from the good old truth telling morality of George Washington cherry tree days they will have to think so on their own initiative, for Mr. Thompson sought to be very impressive.

Engel and Walker are still in the custody of the detective bureau of the Chicago police. Someone is paying for their defense, but the reader is again reminded that the William J. Burns International Detective Agency, Inc., has no sympathy with anyone who goes wrong.

Lenin's Death

Statement by the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party.

Lenin is dead.

For the Communists the world over these words spell the loss of the leader of the world of the proletarian revolution.

It was Lenin's great mind which directed the struggle of the workers and peasants of Russia against the Kerensky government so that victory came for the workers. It was Lenin, who during the five years of bitter and bloody struggle against counter revolution and world imperialism, laid down the policies and tactics which carried the proletarian revolution on from victory to victory.

Out of the policies and tactics which guided the workers and peasants of Russia in their fight against their oppressors and exploiters have come the guiding principles which are followed by every Communist party in the world.

His name will go down in history as the founder of the modern Communist movement. To the working class of the world his services were those of giving the working class leadership in the form of the Communist party.

It is in the spirit of these services that the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party calls upon the workers of this country to honor the memory of Lenin.

All units of the party are instructed to arrange memorial meetings on Sunday, February 3rd in the memory of Lenin and his services to the world proletarian revolution. The theme of the speeches in memory of Lenin must be that of the role of the Communist Party in the proletarian revolution.

It will be thus that we can honor Lenin most. From his mind sprang the theories, principles, policies and tactics which today guide the Communists the world over. For that contribution to our cause we honor him.

Lenin, our leader is dead. But the principles he gave us and the world organization founded upon those principles—the Communist International—lives and will carry forward the struggle until the principles triumph in the triumph of the world proletarian revolution.

Special Issue of Daily Worker for the Lenin Memorial Meetings

For the week ending Feb. 2, the Magazine Section of THE DAILY WORKER will be issued in the Wednesday (January 30) edition, instead of Saturday's as heretofore. This change is made in order to make it possible for those in charge of the Lenin memorial meetings which are to be held in all sections of the country Feb. 3, to obtain the paper for sale at the meetings. The Magazine Section for this week will be a special Lenin number, one which every member of the working class will want to read and to keep as a memento of the greatest man of this generation.

Persons in charge of the Lenin memorial meetings or others who wish to order special bundles of the Lenin issue of THE DAILY WORKER should mail or telegraph their orders at once. Orders arriving later than Tuesday morning, January 29, cannot be filled.

"ALIBI ARCHIE" QUITS HIS PALS IN BIG OIL STEAL

All Crooks But He, Says Roosevelt Scion

Teapot Dome scandal but the appearance of Archie Roosevelt gave the capital one of its biggest surprises and his testimony, with speculation as to the probable effect on the Coolidge administration is the sole topic of discussion.

Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, took the stand for a few minutes before his brother and told of how Archie had consulted with him last Saturday to the advisability of appearing before the committee.

Archie Roosevelt stated in answer to a question that as a responsible officer of a Sinclair corporation and as one in close touch with the foreign affairs of the Sinclair concerns, he knew of no business that would require Harry F. Sinclair's presence abroad at this time. His suspicions had been aroused, he said, both by recent revelations made by Senator Walsh, following his interview with Edward McLean, publisher of the Washington Post and close friend of the late President Harding, who is now in Florida. He told of asking Wahlberg if he thought Sinclair had bribed Fall and Wahlberg replying that he thought "somebody might have left Mr. Fall money."

Archie continued:

"Then I asked him why he thought Mr. Sinclair was in the country. He shook his head, and he said, 'Well'—and he said that 'it must be, of course, on account of the finding of Senator Walsh's trip down at Palm Beach.' He then said to me that he was extremely worried—that leaving him over here all alone, with Mr. Sinclair away, he was afraid that he would be forced to explain certain things; that he would undoubtedly be expected to lie about certain things; that one of the things that he was worried about was a payment which was made to a foreman of Mr. Fall's. That that payment was $68,000. And that he had cancelled the check. Now, this was the main reason."

This statement of Wahlberg's, said Archie left him breathless and he hastened to get in touch with his brother who immediately asked permission of the committee for Archie to appear before it.

Will Try to Get Truth

All the legal powers of the government will be called on if necessary to get the truth about the Teapot Dome lease, senators on the investigating committee declared today in the light of the sensational disclosures that have begun to come to life.

More subpoenaes will be issued immediately.

These may include a peremptory summons to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior, to come to Washington from New Orleans, to submit to examination by the committee.

A search was begun today for Harry Sinclair's books.

Sinclair may be brought back from Europe, where he went last week, to disclose certain information to the committee.

The assistance of department of justice agents, United States marshals and the Federal courts will be invoked if necessary, senators said, to force the truth from reluctant witnesses.

Biggest Matter Before Congress

The Teapot Dome scandal has become the biggest matter before congress and in political circles here has dwarfed the issue of tax reduction for the time being.

There is a general belief here that the whole truth is coming out and that all naval oil reserve leases will be summarily cancelled by congress as a result.

Developments came rapidly after the sensational story of Archie Roosevelt, as told the committee late yesterday that he had resigned from the Sinclair corporation because of suspicion of "scandal" in connection with the Sinclair's lease of Teapot Dome from former Secretary of the Interior Fall.

G. D. Wahlberg, confidential secretary to Sinclair told the committee, after Roosevelt's testimony that Sinclair had ordered all his books and personal effects sent out to his home the night before he sailed for Europe. They were taken away by Sinclair's attorney and not returned, so far as Wahlberg knew.

Teachers Plan Tour

NEW YORK—The Teachers Union of New York is arranging a tour of England and France for a small group of teachers wishing to study experimental educational institutions under competent guidance. It is proposed that the group shall reach England about July 1.

COAL MINERS! Talk To Your Convention Thru Daily Worker

Coal Miners! Your convention is on at Indianapolis, Ind. It will be a convention for your needs if you will talk to it, talk to it in loud and emphatic tones.

You can do this thru your paper, THE DAILY WORKER. You can do it every day. You can make yourself heard.

If you will write to THE DAILY WORKER, telling your needs, the delegates will read your letter.

One of the big things you are interested in is unemployment. If you don't work there is no pay envelope. If you don't work, there is nothing with which to pay the landlord, the grocer, with which to buy the things your family needs. How do you get along? How do you make both ends meet? What do you demand?

Tell it to the delegates at Indianapolis. Tell it to your highly paid officials, whose salaries go on the whole year around.

Write about all the other great problems confronting the coal miners of this country. Your letters will be published in THE DAILY WORKER and read by the delegates at your convention at Indianapolis. Write to the Editor, The Daily Worker, 1640 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

Daily Worker Will Show What Congress Wants to do in War Upon the Nation's Foreign-Born

(NOTE—This is the first of a series of articles which the DAILY WORKER will publish on the laws which are now pending before Congress, directed against foreign-born workers who wish to come to this country and those in this country.)

By C. E. RUTHENBERG

A veritable avalanche of bills directed against foreign-born workers who wish to come to this country and those who are in this country have been introduced in Congress. Not less than twenty-five such measures are now pending before Congress, having been referred to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization for consideration.

These laws all seek to make it more difficult for foreign-born workers to come to the United States, particularly those of radical tendencies or with a leaning toward Trade Unionism, and endeavor to make it difficult for the foreign-born workers in this country to organize in unions for the fight for better wages and working conditions.

For many years the great employers of this country seemed only too anxious to have as many foreign-born workers come here as they could induce to emigrate to the United States. In fact, many great industrial organizations maintained agents in Europe who advertised far and wide for workers willing to come to this country.

Now all this has been changed. The foreign-born workers are being urged to come here previously seems no longer to be welcome. Those foreign-born workers who are in the United States are to have all kinds of restrictions placed upon them to safeguard the employers against a danger which they seem to think threatens them from these foreign-born workers.

The reason for this change of heart is unquestionably to be found in the general radicalization of the workers in Europe. The triumph of the workers and peasants of Russia has left its impress on the workers of every other European country. The American employers fear that the foreign-born workers because they fear that the same influence has affected them and that these workers will join in the struggle of the Labor and Industrial system thru which they make their profits. They cannot get along without at least some labor from Europe. To cut off the supply of labor entirely would reduce the labor available for further development of American industry which for over half a century depended upon the foreign-born workers for the increase in its productive power. The employers therefore are between the evil and the deep blue sea so far as this problem is concerned. They must have foreign-born workers, but they are afraid of the foreign-born workers. Hence they are casting about for all sorts of restrictive legislation thru which they can make these foreign-born workers willing slaves of American industry.

Laws Before Congress.

House Bill No. 5, introduced by Representative Raker, of California, is a good example of the legislation directed against the foreign-born workers who wish to come to the United States.

This law prescribes that only 2% of the number of foreign-born workers of each nationality in this country in 1890 shall be admitted each year, with an additional 1% made up of relatives of foreign-born workers already here; and then goes on to say that each immigrant who desires to enter the United States must fill out an application blank giving "such information as the Secretary shall, by regulation, prescribe."

This bill leaves the door wide open for an examination of each immigrant as to his political views and his views in regard to trade union organization before he is granted permission to enter this country. This will make it possible for the government to carefully sift out all workers of militant tendencies, those who are favorable to organized labor, or those who have political views antagonistic to the interests of the employers.

The law further provides that each immigrant must furnish two photographs of himself with the application for entry into the United States, one of which will be placed on file in Washington after he reaches this country so that the Government will have a registration of just such foreign-born workers together with their pictures and can keep close tab on them.

The bill carefully prescribes that skilled labor needed in this country is exempted from the percentage provisions, which of course means that the employers can bring in skilled workers in case of strike in the industries of this country.

Bars Immigrants from Unrecognized Countries.

A new provision which has not previously appeared in immigration laws is included in the Raker bill, which declares that "No immigrant shall be admitted to the United States so long as the government or foreign state of which he is a citizen is not recognized by the United States government." That of course means that no immigrant from Soviet Russia can enter the United States and if other unrecognized Soviet governments were set up, the same prohibition would apply.

One of the curious provisions of the Raker bill is that it permits students to come to this country to enter the schools, but should such a student marry while in the United States, he will be punished by immediate deportation.

The Raker bill is one of the mildest of the twenty-five laws pending before Congress. The provisions of other bills, both aimed against immigrants and the foreign-born workers here, will be analyzed in further articles.

NEW YORK BOSSES ARE OUT TO GET SHIENTAG FOR TRIANGLE PROBE

NEW YORK—Why are the Associated Industries out to scalp the New York state department of labor? This question is likely to be answered soon when Governor Smith shall have acted as the Moreland commission will investigate charges preferred by the Associated Industries against the labor department.

State Industrial Commissioner Shientag is the "labor department man" against whom the employers' attack is directed. He first gained the disapproval of the bosses when he started the investigation of working conditions in New York after the Triangle Shirtwaist factory fire, in which 150 working girls lost their lives.

Since then, Shientag has championed advanced labor legislation at Albany on every occasion, including workingmen's compensation insurance, the 48-hour week and the minimum wage. It was Shientag who re-codified the most important social laws in New York under the present administration.

When Governor Smith inquires into the accusations made by the Associated Industries, he will also investigate the reasons why that body of employers has retarded every social welfare bill in the state, both in enactment and administration.

WAGE SCALE IS BIG PROBLEM OF COAL MINERS

Indianapolis Meeting Gets Down to Work

pion, Thomas Myerscough, for particular mention.

"Red Ideas"

"Red ideas," said Murray, "are at large in the organization." He declared that behind the red ideas were the wily Lenoid Eddie with the dollar ties of the American people while the lives of our people burnt out." He slipped a new banana joke over on the convention when he said that "the workers were now standing on the banana-skin of fate but would have no bananas in the form of Russian proletarian."

William Green finished his report with an attack on those members of the organization who have social views. He urged the delegates to follow the methods approved by the present leadership.

Half-Million Membership.

His report showed at the end of 1923 the union had to its credit in banks of deposit the sums of $1,177,021.15. The membership on Jan. 3 was reported as 501,235.

The income of the Indianapolis labor movement was extended to the convention by Otto Ray and James Smith of the Indianapolis Central Labor Union.

Seeks for Long Contract.

Lewis advocated in his report a mine wage contract covering a period of years instead of the usual one year contract as a certain means of stabilizing the coal industry.

"Were such an agreement possible, it would demonstrate to the coal consuming public that the industry itself was making a sincere attempt to place its house in order," Lewis said.

"Such a policy, if carried out, would eliminate the necessity for coal legislation by the Federal Congress or the various state legislatures."

Wage Question Paramount.

The wage question stands out above all other business to be taken up by the convention. The Ohio delegates came instructed to stand for a 35 per cent wage increase. Some other delegations, by one of their men, have been directed to ask for increases of ten to fifteen per cent. The Illinois delegation, it is believed, will center around fight for a longer term contract, probably for two years, with a continuation of the present wage scale. A long term contract in the opinion of miners' officials, would help stabilize the coal market, eliminate the acute unemployment situation and help prevent further over-expansion in the industry.

Banks Close As Coolidge Cashiers Meet in Chicago

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The renewed and continuing crash of banks in Texas and Oklahoma and the frantic S. O. S. from panic-stricken administration supporters in all these districts has the White House extremely worried.

From Sioux Falls, S. D., comes the news of the failure of the International State Bank, following the closing of a dozen banks in that state since January 1. "This is no time for dilly-dallying around Chicago" say representatives of the Boosters Association of Sioux Falls, referring to the eleventh hour attempts at relief by a conference of bankers and administration officials sponsored by Coolidge.

Two Montana banks, one in Havre and one in Fort Benton failed yesterday; Little Rock, Arkansas, reports the failure of the Hazen, Prairie county, bank; the Merchants bank of Hastings, Minnesota, closed its doors shortly after the principal bank in Grand Island, Nebraska, went insolvent. It is estimated that the bank failures of the week total $5,000,000.

The Chicago conference of middle western bankers, heads of the federal reserve board and the war finance corporation has so far resulted in nothing.

Coolidge boosters had let it be known that something like $30,000,000 would be available for the emergency.

The belief is expressed here by congressmen and senators familiar with the agricultural situation that the recent rash of bank failures in the farm regions when many observers thought the end of the liquidation period had been reached presages a wave of insolvency that will leave few banks standing in the middle west, west and south west.

Syndicalist Law Hit

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—A body blow has been dealt to the criminal syndicalism law and the Busick anti-I. W. W. injunction by the decision of the third district court of appeals in the case of William Flanagan and Albert Stangeland. This decision states that no person can be convicted of criminal syndicalism unless it can be proved that when he joined the I. W. W. he was aware that the organization was an unlawful one. Manifestly it is impossible to prove knowledge or belief existing only in the mind of the defendant himself.

Many versions of the famous Zinoviev letter that was published in full in yesterday's DAILY WORKER appeared in the capitalist press. If you want authentic news about Russia, look for it in the DAILY WORKER.

Voice of British Workers!

Ramsay MacDonald, Premier of the British Labor Government, who has already won the confidence of the British workers and the respect of the world by his able administration. Chosen by the workers of Glasgow, who once thrilled the world with their revolutionary spirit, MacDonald has shown the workers of Europe and America the path to peaceful parliamentarism, liberty and peace.

"If the government does not deal with unemployment it will have to face a storm of protest," said MacDonald. "There is no other subject in the country that is more pressing and making us more ashamed. If the choice is between the bloody and unbloody methods then we would play hell over it."

Deadly silence except for the speaker's voice allowed every word of the Scotch workers' challenge to be heard distinctly by house and gallery.

British Labor Party Takes Office; New Premier Kisses King's Hand

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—Great Britain, greatest of the few remaining monarchies today had its affairs of state and industry transferred to the Labor Party ministry, under the premiership of J. Ramsay MacDonald, who succeeded Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservative Party.

MacDonald was called in to form a cabinet after the Parliament had voted by a majority of 73 votes in favor of the Labor Party motion for a vote of lack of confidence in the Baldwin ministry, making the first parliamentary labor government England has yet had.

This morning the formalities that accompany a change of government in Great Britain were gone thru. Baldwin and his cabinet consulted briefly at number 10, Downing Street; after which the premier drove to the palace and placed his resignation in the hands of King George.

A short time after, Ramsay MacDonald, accompanied by J. H. Thomas and J. R. Clynes, two of his immediate colleagues, drove to Buckingham palace.

Baldwin Humorous

Premier Baldwin, in his speech against the motion of no confidence showed himself the typical representative of British industry that he is. He was even humorous at times as when he said the Labor party was put in power by the votes of a progressive party. This elicited cheers from the liberals but he turned the tables by saying, "Yes, but progress is not necessarily forward," and then quoted figures to show the constantly lessening liberal representation since 1906. "You only got bigger numbers in the last election by appealing to the voters to keep the socialists out," he said to the liberals.

Ramsay MacDonald's speech was interpreted by the press generally as very conciliatory and a direct bid for middle-class support. He promised to use many of the reforms proposed by the tories and said their failure was due largely to their vacillating policy on the German reparations.

The vote on the labor party amendment showed that the campaign to line up the liberals behind the Baldwin government had been a complete failure. No important liberal member voted against the amendment.

MacDonald Kisses King's Hand

Following the adjournment of the house until Feb. 12, the labor party premier returned to Buckingham palace, kissed the hand of the king and submitted a list of the choices for cabinet positions.

The Labor Party cabinet was officially announced this evening, the principal offices being filled as follows:

Ramsay MacDonald, First Lord of the Treasury and Foreign Secretary.

Viscount Haldane, Lord Chancellor.

Phillip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Arthur Henderson, Home Secretary.

J. H. Thomas, Colonial Secretary.

Stephen Walsh, War.

Sir Sidney Oliveier, India.

Brigadier General Thompson, Air.

Viscount Chelmsford, First Lord of the Admiralty.

Captain Sydney Webb, President of the Board of Trade.

John Wheatley, Health.

Noel Buxton, Agriculture.

Charles Trevelyan, Education.

Thomas Shaw, Labor.

Vernon Hartsborn, Postmaster General.

Colonel Wedgwood, Chancelor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Delegates Are on the Job for Big Coal Miners' Convention

By Our Staff Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—"Hello, Buddy!" "How's work in your District?" "Will we reinstate Howat this time?" and many other cross-questions were the order of the day here with the opening of the Miners' Convention. It was the talk among delegates from all sections of the United States and Canada.

There is a big difference in the facial expressions that are being worn by the delegates to this convention, and despite the adverse conditions that prevails back home, the boys who have taken part in the previous convention fights are expressing themselves as being hopeful of the outcome of the present convention.

When asked for the cause of their apparent joyful mood, they gleefully answer that "we too" have a machine this time, and while it is not as well "oiled" perhaps as the Lewis machine, it is going to function in the interests of the folks back home, and that should be sufficient to command a push from every honest delegate to substitute for the lack of "oil."

The convention committees were on the job early last week, and it is said that the "right" elements were also represented by an advance guard. Who knows but that they were finding a shop or some suitable place to keep their "medicine" in good working order? On Sunday saw the arrival of quite a number of miners, and Monday the average citizen could tell that the city was the scene of a big convention, for on every train from every direction they came. As they pass on the streets one can hear, "Where're you from, Buddy? Let's see, didn't I meet you at the last convention?" It is interesting to hear the exchange of greetings, also the expressions of hope for the outcome of the convention. Nearly all have a pitiable tale of woe, apropos the conditions that exist in the many mining camps where they hail.

Ellis Searles, the chief dummy thru whom the ventriloquists of the Miners' union speak, is quoted in the local papers as saying that the cause of 20 per cent for the non-union miners would have no effect on the organized miners," but a statement like that from him will not be keeping with his determination to prove to the world that he knows nothing about mining conditions, but that at the same time that he is a world-beater at keeping his name before the news-consuming public.

The delegates are a very interesting lot for in addition to the things back home, they talk about the things that are of interest to the organization, and it is with a sense of pride that the boys that Southern Illinois should spend some time, so as to familiarize himself with the conditions that confront the miners of the American continent.

As they flit about looking for a place to call home for the duration of the convention, they are discussing the things that will likely come before them, and many of them have been kept in the dark as to things that are going on in the organization upon hearing of the new things that will be considered, including the "Progressive Committee, open their eyes and mouths in amazement, and declare that from all indications, it is the best thing that has crept over the horizon in many years.

BIG GARMENT PLANT SHOWS IT CAN MAKE MONEY THO UNIONIZED

Industrial peace has been very profitable to Alfred Decker & Cohn, third largest clothing manufacturers in the Chicago district, who have had an agreement with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America since they were beaten into line in the 1919 strike. Financial reports for the year ending Dec. 31, 1923, show net profits of $837,899, three times as large as any previous year.

No concern in Chicago fought labor more bitterly than this concern till it was compelled to sign its first agreement early in May, 1919, at the conclusion of the strike. It took a leading place in the war front of the combined employers in both the three months' 1915 strike and the hard and last contest in 1919.

The earlier strike was lost but the firm was compelled to yield not only the 44-hour week but the closed shop and union recognition.

Two hundred pickets were arrested during the strike but the united front of workingclass organizations proved irresistible.

Two Years' Wait at Best.

ALBANY, N. Y.—A demand to amend the state constitution to enable the various municipalities to lend their credit for housing relief, has been introduced in the senate and assembly, in compliance with Governor Smith's recommendation. A period of at least two years must elapse before the amendment can become effective.

Get unity thru the Labor Party!

FIVE NATIONS CENTRAL AMERI TO GET TOGETH

Unity Blow to Aims U. S. Imperialism

By BERTRAM D. WOL (Staff Correspondent of the Federated

A union of the five Central A can countries into a United of Central America has been officially proposed by Secretary of Foreign Relations Roberto Lowenthal of Guatemala.

As steps in that direction he cites stances the new commercial treaty with El Salvador for the abrogation of commerce barriers, the growing network of international roads between the five countries and increased cooperation along economic lines. As principal obstacle he sees the intervention direct or indirect of one country in the internal politics of another or others (in thinking of the 'one country'—the U. S.A.—that has the guns of its battleships overlooking the principal export of Honduras just now?) No doubt been the principal cause of the antagonisms which render difficult the fusion of the five central American republics."

Chile has just adopted an income tax bearing most heavily on real estate speculation and almost not at all on wage earners. Profits from real estate speculation are taxed 8%; securities profits, 4½%; profits on industry and commerce, and on mining enterprises (it is said that the U. S. state department had a finger in this), 3½%, and all salaries exceeding 2,400 pesos yearly, 3%.

Latin-American papers are quoting know why Lopez Gutheres has been told under the guns of an American battleship that the U. S. state department will not permit him to perpetuate himself in the presidency of Honduras because the United States views with concern, etc." Yet the power of the same state department has been used ever since the fall of Castro to keep in power the odious tyrant of Venezuela, Juaun Vicente Gomez, who no longer takes the trouble to hold elections. They say that whether the oil concessions granted by Gomez to the Standard Oil Co. have anything to do with it.

By the determined boycott of American and British packers, the law for the inspection of cattle on the hoof in Argentina has been suspended after a bitter struggle. When the depression in the price of beef ruined so many American farmers was felt in Argentina, the cattle raising farmers therefore forced thru a price-fixing law. All interested parties were to participate in the representatives in the packing commission. The American and British packers refused to take part in the conference, and then refused to make any purchases at cents until the law was suspended. In November it was suspended for six months. It is doubtful whether it will again be put into force. The packers have won.

German Finance Minister Urging Big Wage Slash

BERLIN.—Wage slashing of workers in private industries is threatened in a letter from the minister of finance to the ministries of labor, economics and post and telegraphs. The finance minister charges that employes of private concerns are getting twice the wages of those in the government service in similar positions. He urges government intervention, compelling a lowering of labor costs to a level approaching that of state employes.

The proposal was put out as a "feeler" it is believed. Big German industrialists are enthusiastic at the idea of crushing completely the powerful and labor organizations and wage reductions will be resisted.

Some University

SACRAMENTO, Cal. Investigators of fake "medical mills" in California have accused another organization besides the Pacific Medical college, already under fire. This is the American university, the entire "campus" of which was a small room in a Los Angeles suburb, and the entire "staff" a "doctor" who lived, ate and worked in this room.

...ENSE AUDIT SHOWS DEFICIT HAMPERS WORK

...thenberg Appeal Is Big New Task

The Labor Defense Council, which ...15 months has been in the fore... of the fight against "anti-...syndicalism" persecutions, now finds itself in serious financial ...ts. The financial statement for the three months ended Jan. 1, 1924 ...closes that expenses for the period ...eeded income by $2,142.

The total deficit of the Labor ...ense Council amounts to $4,670 ...It will be seen that nearly half ...this was incurred in October, ...vember and December, 1923. Re...pts have fallen off steadily during ...past few months and unfortunately ...ticularly at the time when renewed ...orts are needed for the winning ...the Ruthenberg Appeal.

Must Raise $15,000

Between now and March 1, the ...fense must raise $15,000. This is ...e minimum required to meet cur... bills and expenses, some of ...hich are already past due. It will ...so cover any of the $4,670 deficit re...erred to above which has been taken ...t of temporarily by loans which ...ust be repaid shortly.

Organized nearly a year and a ...lf ago, the Labor Defense Council ...as raised more than $110,000 for ...he defense of the Communists in...icted in Michigan as a result of the ...amination of Burns and Daugherty. ...e magnitude of this accomplish...ent will be realized when it is un...erstood that over 90 per cent of the ...oney raised was contributed by ...rking men and women, in small ...ounts. It was the wholehearted ...pport of workers everywhere that ...ade possible the engaging of Frank ...P. Walsh as chief counsel for the ...defense.

Kept Workers Out of Prison.

By its persistent campaign, the Labor Defense Council has been able to save 32 staunch fighters of the working class from prison. But it has done much more than this. It has carried on a defense which was at the same time an attack, making use of the Michigan emergency to create a united front of labor against the vicious agents of the employers. It has exposed the secret collaboration of Burns and his "Department of Justice" with the Ku Klux Klan. It defeated the avowed purpose of the enemies of labor to destroy the militant wing of the labor movement and weaken the whole labor structure.

But the remarkable victory in the case of William Z. Foster will be again endangered unless it is made secure by a unanimous decision of acquittal under the Michigan Criminal Syndicalism Law. The struggle must be carried to complete and final victory thru the success of the Ruthenberg Appeal. If the Appeal is lost, it is almost certain that Foster will be brought to trial again—facing with Wilkins, Dunne, the Pastor Stokes, Robert Minor and the twenty-seven other defendants who have not yet been brought to trial.

Has Raised $110,000

The Labor Defense Council has raised over $110,000 in its 1½ year and a half of existence. The administrative cost of raising this has been about 30 per cent, including printing and advertising, traveling expenses of speakers, office expenses, etc. It is generally agreed that this is an extremely low percentage for collecting defense funds. Some $70,000 have gone directly into legal expenses.

Great results have been achieved, more than justifying the time and money which have gone into the defense work. The present condition of Labor Defense Council finances, however, is such that the fruits of past triumphs may be lost unless sympathizers can be made to realize the importance of assuring final victory thru the winning of the Ruthenberg Appeal. The secretary of the Council declares that plans in connection with the appeal may be hampered in the event of insufficient funds.

THE PARTY AT WORK

Say, "I Want to Help!"

By MORITZ J. LOEB.

Of all the many and varied activities of the Workers Party there is none that demands and receives more interest at the present time than THE DAILY WORKER.

Received with unanimous enthusiasm and carrying with it the hopes and the aspirations of every party member and every party unit THE DAILY WORKER, nevertheless, has tremendous obstacles to overcome and tremendous problems to solve before it will have passed from the experimental stage and has become firmly established as an institution, self-supporting and safe from destruction.

The establishment of THE DAILY WORKER was a big revolution accomplished by the members of the Workers Party, supported by the militant American wage-workers. In a few months of struggle and toil, the American militants have freed themselves of the necessity of depending on the enemy press for news and have created the conditions under which the whole working class can also be freed.

But as in every revolution, after the first victory there must be months of the most unremitting labor to strengthen and make tenable the position won. That is particularly true about THE DAILY WORKER.

For the Workers Party and the working class are to realize the benefits out of THE DAILY WORKER for which they worked and hoped, there must be performed for the next months, day in and day out, the labor that will make THE DAILY WORKER live.

That labor is already being carried on. The militants of American labor have been mobilized for THE DAILY WORKER to the extent that in the first week-and-a-half of THE DAILY WORKER'S existence, three thousand new subscriptions were received. In every section of the country workers for the first time are beginning to read the militant labor press.

But something more than individual work on the part of militant workers is needed to serve as the back-bone of THE DAILY WORKER. An ORGANIZED ARMY is of the utmost necessity. The organization of this army has begun. In every city, wherever a Workers Party branch exists, there will also be a DAILY WORKER agency, functioning every day to strengthen and spread THE DAILY WORKER, working thru the Workers Party and with the Party as a base to increase THE DAILY WORKER'S circulation and influence.

Wherever these agencies have not already been established, the militants are urged to communicate in once with THE DAILY WORKER Business office. There is work and important work to do for every live rebel who wants to help THE DAILY WORKER succeed in its great mission. There are material rewards as well as the rewards that come with a great work well done for those who can serve THE DAILY WORKER and the working class in putting across the first militant national daily labor paper.

Before it is forgotten, let the real live ones take a post card, address it to THE DAILY WORKER and write, "I want to help THE DAILY WORKER grow."

Remember Liebknecht-Luxemburg

Thruout the country successful demonstrations were held in memory of Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg.

In New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Rochester, Gary, South Bend, Omaha and other cities, young workers gathered under the banner of the Young Workers League, affiliated to the Young Communist International, and listened to the speeches made by league and party speakers.

Murdered in cold blood five years ago, Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg remain a living influence in the hearts of the workers, young an old.

This is the third year in America that the youth has demonstrated their loyalty and devotion to the cause for which our comrades gave up their lives. This year's demonstrations have by far outnumbered the previous ones. Abern, Salzman, Kaplan, Shachtman, Gannes, members of the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers League of America, were out on the road speaking in behalf of International Liebknecht Day, and in many cities were also sent out on the road to address mass meetings which were held under the auspices of the Young Workers League of America.

In Chicago, more than a thousand workers cheered the speakers.

The celebration was opened with singing of the International, after which the Young Workers League staged an excellent play Comrade Edwards and Herd, in their talks, portrayed the life struggles of Karl Liebknecht, his great courage and heroism, revolutionary spirit and tragic death. Edwards especially emphasized Liebknecht's work among the youth of Germany, whom he was preparing to play their role in the coming revolution. "Liebknecht is dead," said Edwards, "but his great revolutionary spirit lives today and permeates the great masses of the exploited workers, who are going to complete the great historic task undertaken by him."

Comrade William Z. Foster, the next speaker, showed the struggle between the revolutionary left and counter revolutionary right in the Labor Movement in Germany. He showed that the traitorous and yellow Social-Democracy of Germany is in a process of rapid disintegration and that the Communists, the only true revolutionaries, are gaining the masses from the paralyzing influence of the yellow renegades.

The Young Workers League Band of Chicago rendered several selections which were heartily applauded by the whole gathering.

Comrade Minor, editor of the Liberator, gave an excellent talk on the Spartacus Week in Germany, showing the situation "ripe and ready for the revolution," said Comrade Minor. "The ruling class was no longer able to rule, the rich bourgeois classes, in spite of their ruling class clothes to escape the wrath of the infuriated workers; every worker and soldier was demanding a Soviet form of government, but, nevertheless, the revolution failed. It lacked one thing without which no revolution can be successful, and that is a revolutionary party, a party of the revolution, well organized and strongly disciplined, which could put the masses into motion and lead them forth to victory." He made a special appeal for the organization of the youth, the future fighters of the revolution.

Comrade Max Bedacht, who was the last speaker, pictured the political situation in Germany, which must inevitably lead to a proletarian revolution. "The Communist Party in Germany is suppressed," said the speaker, "but it exists illegally and is preparing the forces for the revolution."

Seventy-five per cent of them are estimated to be permanently retarded to a sixth grade intelligence stage. Many of them are the children of South European, but more and more are native born of native parents, forced by poverty to put the whole family to hard labor while California's famous 24 big crops are harvested.

Milwaukee Applauds "Fifth Year."

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—A full house greeted "The Fifth Year," the great Russian film, when it was presented in the Pabst theater by the Friends of Soviet Russia here.

"Enthusiastic applause was evoked when the huge workers' parades and the chiefs of the Russian workers' republic were thrown on the screen. Almost $500 for Comrade relief was contributed by the audience.

Seattle Carpenters Ask $9 a Day.

SEATTLE.—An increase of $1, making a daily wage of $9 will be proposed as the statewide scale at the annual meeting of the Washington State Council of Carpenters in session at Centralia. The resolution is to be presented by Local 1335, Seattle. The present scale of $8 a day is uniform thruout the state.

Nineteen twenty-three was the most successful season in the history of Alfred Decker & Cohn, Inc., third largest clothing manufacturers in Chicago. The net profits for the year ending October 31, 1923, were $837,699 as compared to $105,127 in 1922 and $250,000 in 1921. The concern has had industrial peace since 1920 when its employees were organized by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

15,000 Children Under Age Slave in Harvest Fields

BY MIRIAM ALLEN deFORD
(Staff Correspondent of the Federated Press)

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—A survey just completed by the state boards of education and health shows over 15,000 children in California under working age who annually work hard in the fields in harvesting the state's various crops. These children are taken from school early in the spring, and until late fall follow their parents all over California, working gradually southward until they reach the cotton fields in the Imperial valley

NEEDLE INDUSTRY MILITANTS CALL NATIONAL MEET

Will Wage Fight to Save the Unions

Declaring that demoralisation faces the needle trades unions unless effective steps are taken to stop the campaign of expulsion initiated and being carried out by the "motley crew of labor bureaucrats and their socialist allies in the International Committee of the Needle Trades Section of the Trade Union Educational League has sent out a call for a national conference of the left wing elements in the needle trades to meet in New York on February 9th and 10th. The call follows:

Comrades and Brothers:

The influences of the militants in the American Labor Movement is assuming ever greater proportions. In the needle Trades, the militants can with just pride, claim the honor of being among the pioneers of all advanced ideas in the trade-union movement in America. As far back as 1914 they organized into various groups. No matter under which name these groups functioned, their purpose was to make a better, cleaner, and stronger union.

From small, isolated groups, the militants have grown into a powerful movement, counting many thousands. Never before has there been an opportunity of realizing progressive policies in our unions as at present.

In great fear of the tremendous growth and prestige gained by the militants this motley crew of labor bureaucrats and their socialist satellites have formed a holy alliance "for suspensions and expulsions."

Raising the bogey of dual unionists, disruptionists, outsiders, etc., they are expelling the most active members, thus demoralising the ranks of the workers.

At a time when the industry is shattered, when many shops are moving out of town and working on an "open shop" basis; at a time when the employers are getting more and more aggressive trying to take away all the gains achieved by us thru long years of bitter struggle; at a time when strikes are imminent in almost every branch of the industry, the reactionary bureaucrats, instead of unifying and consolidating the ranks of the workers in combat against the employers, are pursuing a policy of creating chaos and demoralisation amongst the ranks of the workers. In the I. L. G. W. U. they started a campaign of expulsions and suspensions of the most active members. In the Amalgamated Clothing Workers the old strikebreaker fakers are brought in as "False Messiahs." In the Furriers Union gangsterism and slugging prevail as a means to suppress the ever-growing protests of the membership.

In order to stop these treacherous actions of the officials, in order to meet the attacks of the employers, it is the task of the militants to work out a definite fighting program that will tend to consolidate the ranks of the workers and prevent further demoralisation of our unions. A national conference of Needle Trades militants of United States and Canada, has been called to convene in New York on February 9-10, the conference to open Saturday, February 9th, 10 A. M.

All leagues affiliated with the Needle Trades Section of the T. U. E. L. of U. S. and Canada are entitled to send delegates. Let all militant needle workers rally to this call.

International Committee of Needle Trades Section of T. U. E. L.
P. Korets, Secretary.

The action of President Sigman of the I. L. G. W. U. in expelling several of the leading members in the Chicago unions has aroused nationwide anger among the rank and file. That this policy will not have the effect of intimidating the militants is indicated by their increasing activity.

Red Letter Day for International

TO THE DAILY WORKER:—The day on which the first Esthonian Soviet Republic was established—that is a red-letter day in the whole international movement.

Workers are the capacities to be surmounted greater than in the realms of Anglo-Saxon countries. Workers see the results to be achieved for the international movement.

We in Britain, where socialism has derived so much stimulus from American conditions and contacts, both from militants and writers, and from our experience gained among you, look with admiration and emulation to the magnificent progress of the Workers Party of America and its press.

In the front rank the work of the Trade Union Educational League in awakening and welding together the nascent class-conscious forces in American trade unionism has struck imagination here because of the similarity of the problem to be faced and of the enemy to be fought.

Both in America and Britain a heavy task is laid upon us to awaken a sleeping working class hemmed in by corruption, to battle against leaders without disruption, to unite the scattered and desperate revolutionary forces and end their isolation, to counteract the disastrous diversion of the masses against all parties, leadership and politics, to combat the deep-rooted industrialist and syndicalist tendencies of many of the best and most class-conscious elements of our own forces, and to create a real living revolutionary movement capable of arousing and organising the mighty mass forces which lie still unstirred beneath the surface of American and British capitalist society.

Gigantic issues await our movements, which involve the whole future of the world working class. The American and British ruling class, united for the moment in close partnership in the exploitation of the world, may at any point find themselves face to face in mortal opposition. When that time comes, on our readiness all will depend. Already the seeds of hatred are being sown among the masses. Already the machinery of power to replace the mockery of democracy is being prepared. Against these forces, no vague aspiration, no negative opposition will avail, but only the embattled force of the world working class united in the Communist International.

May we be quickly ready to take our place and prove ourselves equal to the events that await us.

With Communist Greetings,
R. PALME DUTT,
Editor of the Labour Monthly.
Editor of the Workers' Weekly.
Member of the Political Bureau of the Communist Party of Great Britain.

Start Campaign to Bury Bonus

A costly advertisement by the so-called "Ex-Service Men's Anti-Bonus League," is the latest step in the organized campaign by the American Legion to kill the bonus bill now pending in Washington.

Not content with the rebuke of the soldier-audience at the bonus mass meeting in Chicago recently, the army-officer officials at the head of the American Legion are now carrying on a disguised mud-slinging campaign against the rank and file of ex-service men who are heartily disgusted with the repeated attempts to sidetrack the facts behind the failure of the capitalist government to provide a bonus to those who suffered loss of limb and health, not to say working-time, during the war.

The bulk of the "News" addressed to "X-Service Man and Patriotic Citizen," is undoubtedly inspired by some of the reactionary officers who were instrumental in organizing the American Legion, before that body was flooded by the rank and file who have succeeded in turning the attention of that misdirected body toward a bonus.

Says the ad:

"The Bonus was NOT born in Paris in 1919, when the American Legion was formed. No official demand for a bonus was made at the organization meeting of the Legion held in St. Louis, nor at its first national convention at Minneapolis."

Every ex-service man knows that the bunch of sullen and over-spoon, scurvy officers who organized the Legion in Paris were not mindful of the wishes of the great mass of buddies who ate mud for grub and bound their wounds in filthy rags during the war. The gang that organized the Legion in the cities of Paris did not demand the bonus because they never dreamed that their control over the men in the ranks would disappear when they were mustered out.

The usual bunk about a bonus being wages for patriotism is again handed out by the shady group of alleged "public spirited citizens and ex-soldiers" responsible for the latest anti-bonus gas attack.

The billions of dollars wasted in the interest of profiteers is a story that every intelligent war vet knows, and will take a good deal of search before you find a real worker who was forced into the ranks of the slaughtering force who does not want to get back some of the wages he lost because Morgan needed the services of 4,000,000 American young fellows to protect the principal and interest of his vast loans to the European capitalist nations. The story about the Government ordering more curry-combs than there were horses and mules in use by the United States army, is just one of the illustrations that makes the dough boys laugh when you try to fill them up with the "don't-accept-pay-for-your-service," idea.

American capitalism is not only wealthy enough to pay a bonus without feeling the effects of the few pennies from their gorged pocket books, but they should be relieved somewhat, likewise, to provide in proper manner for the thousands of disabled soldiers who receive the most miserable treatment in the government hospitals at the present time.

The size of the bonus proposed by the capitalist politicians is by far too small for the sacrifices made by the American soldiers during the world war. With 85 per cent of all taxes paid for war purposes, the soldiers can rightfully demand that a stop be made to the increasing expenditures for armaments. The intended mobilization of 400,000 men thruout the United States, is a great waste of money that could be used for the bonus. Instead of the North Pole trip of the Shenandoah, the cost of this war preparation could be flopped in for the measly bonus that the soldiers want.

Money just oozes out of the war department and yet not a penny is given to the ex-soldiers for their indescribable suffering and misery while in the lousy trenches over in France.

You will never be able to tell the ex-soldiers that they were not cheated—yes, robbed—out of a bonus, should the pending bill fail to pass.

Ex-soldiers you can get that bonus, you can get what belongs to you. But not under the leadership of your present Legion officers who are sworn against any such benefit to you. Demand the burst of the swollen military budget and dont be browbeaten with the fossilized, not to say brazenly lying retort of "no compensation for patriotic service during the war." The bonus belongs to you.

Youth Views

Cake-eating Cadets Strike.

The future officers of the American fascist know the utility and the effectiveness of a strike. The entire sophomore class numbering 113 men of the Virginia Military institute at Lexington, Va., went out on strike recently in protest against punishment imposed by a vigilance committee upon one of its members.

A good lesson can be learned by the young workers in the factories, shops and mercantile establishment from their future slayers. You will find that the working youth have more guts than these cake eating military cadets. But it is that peaceful damper that keeps the toiling youth from striking against miserable working conditions that the organized young workers are trying to lift.

Report Marketing Bill.

WASHINGTON.—Favorable report of the Sinclair-Norris government marketing corporation bill, from the House and Senate committees on agriculture, within a month is now considered possible, as a result of strong testimony given in its behalf by spokesmen of the railroad brotherhoods, the A. F. of L. and the progressive farm organizations.

F. H. Cruse, for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and Jas. P. Noonan, for the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, told the committees that organized labor would share the benefits to be gained by the farmers thru this marketing plan.

DARK TENEMENT ROOMS MUST GO, SAY N. Y. WOMEN

Unite to End Horrible Housing Conditions

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—Shameful housing conditions, rivaling those that Jacob Riis exposed in "How the Other Half Lives," are being unveiled by the commission appointed by Governor Smith.

Tubercular breeding dark rooms are still common. The commission found as many as fourteen persons crowded into four dark rooms without improvements or sanitation. Many tenement flats lack water and toilets. Tenement houses which would be condemned by enforcement of existing laws are doing a thriving blood-money business.

While Governor Smith's commission is laying bare the secrets of the tenements the working women of New York have come together in an organization to force remedial action. The new organization, is called the United Council of Working class Women. At the first meeting of the Central Committee, Jan. 16, plans well laid for a series of demonstrations and meetings. Kate Gitlow is secretary.

At an earlier conference which ruled in favor of a women's organization to abolish the home-wrecking dark room, 46 organizations were represented. They included the Workers' Party branches of New York; the Workmen's Circles; the Lithuanian Progressive Women's Alliance with 2,000 members; the Independent Workmen's Circles Auxiliary, the Socialist Consumers' League and 11 mothers' leagues from Boston.

OWEN RENEWS FIGHT ON SECRET DIPLOMACY IN THE U. S. SENATE

By The Federated Press

WASHINGTON — Renewing his fight against secret diplomacy which he has charged with responsibility for the world war, Senator Owen came to the support in the Senate of Senator Borah's denunciation of French evasion of the American debt. He argued that restoration of production in Europe must follow upon restoration of confidence in the stability of the governments and this would require that the French army out of the Ruhr, and that the French and German governments and press shall conduct a propaganda campaign of good-will.

Then, as a guaranty for the future, the French foreign office must be put under the control of the Chamber of Deputies, just as Ramsay MacDonald proposes that Britain's foreign office respond to the parliament.

COMMUNIST CHILDREN'S COLUMN

CHILDREN'S COLUMN
Tommy the Newsboy
By H. LANE

Thomas was a little newsboy. But was he one of the rough, uncultivated little newsboys who stick their papers under our nose as we are rushing to catch a car, and shout the news in coarse strident voices? He was—not. He was a little gentleman. Thomas was a little newsboy in a book by that great student of human nature, Horatio Alger, Jr.

A gentleman came along. "My lad," said the gentlemen always say "my lad" to Horatio newsboys; they know intuitively that they have the happiness to patronize a diamond in the rough) "I should be delighted to buy one of your papers, but I have nothing smaller than a five dollar bill."

The gentleman was well dressed; expensive simplicity, and all that sort of thing. "That is all right," said our little hero, "it is a pleasure to be of service to you. Take a paper free. Take one home to your wife, too." And he thrust two papers into the hand of the courtly gentleman, who was dressed with expensive simplicity.

The next day the gentleman came by again. "My lad," said he, and his little friend gave a low bow with true Horatian courtesy, "I appreciate your honesty and generosity. I know merit when I see it. Here is a thousand dollar bill. I hope you will come to work for me at a hundred dollars a week, and when you are old enough I want you to marry my daughter. I should be proud to have you for a son-in-law. Your work will be to attend school thru college."

This is the way things always happen in real life. Heaven only knows how Horatio got such a keen insight into human nature, but there you have it. Bread cast upon Algerian waters (Horatio Algerian, that is) always returns in the form of cake, ready iced, with birthday candles on it.

How to Get Thin.

The organ of eminent respectability and conservatism—"Saturday Evening Post"—offers the following advice on how to get thin:

Several cups of hot water on rising.
A brisk walk of about a mile.
Breakfast.
Brief rest.
A five or six mile road jog.
Rubdown by servant.
Luncheon.
Another period of digestive rest.
Workout in gymnasium, sparring with partners.
Shower and vigorous rubdown.
An undisturbed hour of recumbent relaxation.
Dinner.
A few recreational hours before bedtime.

"What about my job?" asks a rude proletarian reader. Well, what about your job to reply. If you read it in the Saturday Evening Post, it is so. Just tell your boss that you are getting too fat and he'll tell you.

Find Thin Safeguard.

WASHINGTON.—Farmer and labor interests are to some degree safeguarded by the amendments to the House rules which have been adopted in the fight of the past week on the floor. One hundred and fifty members now by joint petition, forces to a roll call the issue of whether the House shall proceed to debate and vote on a railroad bill.

Cotton prices fell down, reaching the lowest level of the last two months amid general liquidation. Cotton farmers are unable to borrow from the banks. The Japanese government is making a loan of $50,000,000 and the Argentine Government $40,000,000.

Soviet Furs Arrive.

NEW YORK.—The first consignment of Soviet furs arrived here, under Arcos contract, consigned to Elrington-Schild Co. Fur dealers commented favorably on the quality and the first consignment had no trouble in finding buyers.

Additional shipments are expected to find as prompt buyers as the first arrival.

NEW ATTACK ON DAIRY FARMERS AUGURS STRIKE

Agreement Is Violated, Say Angry Producers

Representatives of the Milk Producers Association charge that the Bowman Dairy Company and other milk middlemen are out to break the farmers' organization and Chicago is confronted with another and more widespread milk strike than the one ended a few days ago by a compromise settlement between the Bowman Dairy Company and the Milk Producers Association which the company has now violated.

The Bowman Dairy Company, which controls a third or more of the milk distributing business in Chicago, is now announcing that it will refuse to buy milk from farmers who do not sign a year's contract at the present price of $2.67½ per hundred, which the farmers obtained in the last settlement.

The company's arbitrary demand in bulletin form was posted at all its depots within fifty miles of Chicago, and states that farmers must agree to deliver a minimum quantity of milk to the company "at the prevailing prices" and warns the farmers that contracts must be signed today or their milk will not be purchased by the company agents.

A penalty clause is also contained in the company ukase to the effect that any milk producer who fails to bring in the quantity demanded by the contract, may at the pleasure of the company be paid at the rate of $2.03 per hundred instead of $2.67½.

Mr. Fowler, secretary of the Milk Producers Association, called attention to the fact that the present agreement expires April 1 and that the Bowman Dairy Company, by forcing long term contracts at this time, believes it will be able to have things its own way after the expiration of the present understanding.

Fowler charges that the Chicago middlemen are out to break the producers' organization, that other dealers refuse to be bound by the Bowman prices and that the dealers actually provoked the recent milk strike by their arbitrary attitude.

"This fight," said Fowler, "together with its origin, is something more than prices. There is no logical reason why the farmer should not get the same price for his milk during the next three months as he has received during the last six."

Boost the News Stand Sales

The Daily Worker can now be secured on the news stands in the city of Chicago. It is of great importance that those who have charge of such stands should be given encouragement to display the Daily Worker in the early days of its existence.

Our readers are therefore urged to purchase at least one copy of the Daily Worker each day until it is well advertised.

It is of special importance that our readers should ask for The Daily Worker from the news agent near their homes.

Even though you are a subscriber we nevertheless urge you to purchase an extra copy each day from a news stand. You can use that copy to interest another worker in the paper and its message. We expect our subscribers and readers to boost the Daily Worker.

Lenin--Communist

Nicolai Lenin, for seven glorious and terrible years the head of the first Workers' and Farmers' government the world has ever seen, is dead. His passing removes from the world arena of the class conflict a man whose life has been spent in that struggle, who had no interests outside that struggle, and who died from wounds inflicted by the enemies of the revolutionary and conquering working-class of Russia.

Nicolai Lenin was a Communist and great because of that fact. There can be no thought of Lenin without the Communist Party of Russia and the Third International of which it is a part. No greater compliment can be paid any man than this. Living, Lenin typified the iron determination and blazing courage of the parties of the Third International the world over. Dead, his teachings and his example become a source of inspiration for new achievements and new victories.

In the pages of history that the children of the present generation of working-class fighters will read and wonder over, no name will be more reverenced than that of Lenin, no organization with a longer list of seemingly insurmountable obstacles overcome than the Communist Party of Russia, which he did so much to build and which he led to power.

Communists believe in power—power for masses of the workers and farmers, and no greater contribution to the theory and tactics of the class struggle exceeds, in importance Lenin's gospel—the necessity for the seizure and consolidation of power by the workers and farmers.

The masses followed the Communist Party of Russia and became the ruling class.

They chose Lenin to head the government and the revolutionary fighter became the revolutionary statesman—the greatest statesman of all time—great because he never forgot the need of the working masses for power and never forgot that the source of power, the defense of the revolution, was the mass of workers and peasants.

Sure in the knowledge acquired by the study as an exile and by bitter experience in the class struggle, he never wavered in the darkest hours of the revolution, when the new-born workers' and peasants' state was ringed around with the steel of the capitalist world. From Lenin, thru the Communist Party of Russia, to the masses of Russia went a sure message of hope and courage. Thru the Communist international goes the same message today to the workers of the World.

Lenin is dead. The working-class has lost its greatest leader and teacher. But the Communist International lives as he meant it should and as he knew it would.

It is the weapon which he did so much to forge and the weapon that the workers the world over have learned to use. It is his legacy to the workers whom he loved with all his great heart and his challenge from the grave to the capitalist system that he hated with all the strength of his great mind.

We in America will mourn as the struggling toilers of the whole globe, will mourn tho he would want no mourners.

But from every great gathering of workers held to praise and commemorate the death of the greatest of all revolutionists, who lived to see capitalism overthrown on one-sixth of the earth's surface, will go up a mighty cry that will shake the already crumbling foundations of world capitalism:

LENIN IS DEAD! LONG LIVE THE WORLD REVOLUTION AND THE PARTY OF THE WORLD REVOLUTION —THE COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL.

Lenin died after the victory of his party and the masses which it leads so well.

No Communist could wish for better fortune, nor will any Communist shrink from the added burdens that his loss throws upon the Communist International and its sections in every country.

To do well the new tasks that the increasing instability of capitalism brings is the only way of perpetuating the memory of Lenin of which he would approve.

WE WILL NOT FAIL!

Where Is Daugherty Now?

Graft, fraud and corruption are not new in American politics. But once in a while there is a big leak, the poor public learns too much about the inner doings of the government, and the leading officials are compelled to work overtime to hide this ugly phase of the class character of the whole business of government.

The exposure of the rottenness in the Veterans' Bureau headed by Col. Forbes is an example of this sort. The fraud and conspiracy in the criminal mismanagement of the Veterans' Bureau constitute some of the most sordid chapters yet written in the history of our "pure, democratic institutions." There is no question about the Veterans' Bureau steal being the worst case of blackest corruption and darkest graft in the last 25 years.

Yet, where is the Honorable Attorney General Daugherty, whose task is to protect the innocent and punish the guilty? With more than 2,000 pages of evidence before him, why doesn't "Handsome Harry" take steps to punish the big fellows who committed this scandalous and outrageous holdup on the country's treasury? Why does Daugherty show so much energy and determination in putting innocent workers in jail for violating infamous, unconstitutional injunctions, but do absolutely nothing to punish the capitalist crooks who are engaged in wholesale robberies?

There are many explanations for this criminal conduct on the part of the strikebreaking Attorney General. Some say that Daugherty refuses to prosecute in the Forbes case because too many men high up in the administration are involved. For instance, the Thompson, Kelly Co., of Boston, is mixed up in the deal, and Boston is the home town of Secretary of War Weeks and close to the heart of Coolidge. Others say that Daugherty knows that too many people have the goods on him and therefore dares not proceed against others.

These reasons are undoubtedly correct. But the real explanation for Daugherty's protecting the rich criminals and jailing the innocent workers is this: Ours is a government of, by, and for the capitalist class, and Daugherty is simply carrying out his duties to the employing interests.

Toward Fascism!

Capitalism in Europe is badly in need of a saviour. The French france is jogging along pleasantly in the wake of the German mark. General Dawes and his bankers are trying to bring Germany back to normalcy. The British Labor Party has taken over the reigns of government in England. The situation is serious. What is to be done about it?

Is a dictatorship the solution? While our capitalist apologists have poured the vials of their wrath on the Soviet government of Russia because of its workers' dictatorship it has nevertheless smiled on the dictatorship of the Fascisti in Italy which was in behalf of the capitalist system. That the Italian lire maintains its equanimity while the franc flutters and gasps and lurches toward destruction endears Mussolini still more to that section of society which lives on the toil of others.

The day of bourgeois democracy has reached its eve. The workers of Russia have established their dictatorship until the capitalist system is supplanted with the new order of Communism. The capitalists in the rest of Europe are chafing at the restrictions of democracy and are anxious to follow the Italian lead. The class-conscious workers look for inspiration to Moscow. The question is: Which dictatorship?

Frank A Vanderlip, the noted financier, stated that unless the British Labor Party arises to its responsibilities, help capitalism out of the hole—that it would be faced with the probability of a fascist movement. There is no danger from the leaders of the British Labor Party, he declared, but there is from the rank and file. And he stated further that the Mussolini of England would rise out of the liberal-labor combination which has Ramsay MacDonald as its standard bearer.

In the stormy days following the armistice, capitalism was saved thru the treachery of the labor leaders and yellow socialists. Again today as doom yawns before the robber system its leaders look for aid and comfort to the same tribe who have made of socialism a hissing and a by-word. Fascism looks mighty good to the bourgeoisie today. The race to dictatorship is now on between the workers and the capitalists.

We have heard of the man who "came to scoff and remained to pray" but women do things differently. A Swiss lady burglar came to prey and remained to take a bath. On larceny intent she climbed into a well furnished room but fell under temptation of a porcelain floored bathtub. She has discovered that cleanliness may be next to godliness but is a poor excuse for taking liberties with private property.

Senator Medill McCormack believes that in a free country no one man is capable of preserving the rights of all the people. Yet the Senator is an admirer of Mussolini!

The Chicago Tribune hopes the Russian revolution having disposed of the aristocracy and the capitalist class will now write "finis" to the career of the Communists. The bible says something about hope deferred making the heart sick. We suggest the Trib. editor read the bible.

SOMETHING IS GOING TO GET SPILLED

America and Repudiation of State Debts

"Isvestia," official organ of the Russian Soviet government, of Dec. 22, publishes an interesting historical sketch by F. Kupelinsh, on the question of repudiation of its debts by the American Government. We publish a translation of that remarkable article in full in view of its timely interest to all Americans who are interested in Recognition of Soviet Russia.

"Mr. Hughes has again saddled his pet horse and in his relation to us plays the part of a defender of the capitalist morals," it says. "He is disturbed by the annulment of the czarist debts by the Bolshevika, because, of, so to say, the principle involved.

"Let us see what America did with its own debts.

"In judicial science open annulment of state debts, the broadest form of state bankruptcy—is usually called "repudiation," which is a purely American term. (See Prof. Manas' "State Bankruptcies," Berlin, 1919. Germ. Edition, Page 57). This term was first applied in 1841, by the Governor of Mississippi. This happened after the Cotton Crisis of 1839, which brought tremendous losses to the Mississippi bank and its proprietor, the State itself. The payment of interest and debts of Mississippi State was then stopped. Replying to one of the principal creditors, a Holland bank, Mr. Nott, the governor of the State declared the State debts annuled and refused to make any payments. The reasons given for this action were—the government is not obliged to recognize a loan made by it in an illegal manner, namely, without the authorization of the Congress. The State Congress has upheld this point of view and in fiery speeches demanded to stand by the constitution. The main supporter of this point of view was Jefferson Davis, who was afterwards elected President of the Southern States which have separated from the North.

"Two other states—Pennsylvania and Michigan—followed the same example.

"State bankruptcies in the form of repudiation has taken place in the following twelve States—Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Minnesota, Michigan and Virginia. These bankruptcies belong to two periods—to the Fourties and the period between the Seventies and the Eighties. In all of these cases with the exception of two, the States attempted to justify the annulment of their debts on legal grounds. They were trying to prove that the loans were made in contradiction to the laws, or if they failed in this, the claim was made that the law itself was unconstitutional. And when even this excuse could not be used some minor violations of law were found.

"However, even the bourgeois authors justify the bankruptcies of the Fourties and emphasize the fact that repudiation was demanded not only by the representatives of the State Congress, but by the entire population, who refused to pay taxes to cover those debts. Manas justifies this by saying that all these debts were imposed upon the States by firms—swindlers. As far as the other State bankruptcies are concerned, so they have been mainly the results of civil war.

"Still more interesting and instructive is the legal practice of the States which prohibit the suing of the government for debts incurred. Georgia has in 1794, even passed a law imposing death penalty against those persons who sue the government for debts. This was directed mainly against the English—a clear illustration of how the North American States, having gained freedom from England, have dealt with their "mutatis mutandis"—with their "Czarist" debts. State after State have even incorporated in their constitution clauses prohibiting anyone from suing the government for debts incurred. Wisconsin and Nebraska clearly state in their constitutions that the State can never be sentenced to pay government debts. The laws of other States formally do not have such restrictions, but they have other clauses which in reality make is impossible to sue the government for debts.

"The practical result, according to Prof. Manas, is that every State of the United States is given a free hand to deal with its debts in its own way. In other words they have the right to declare their debts void, to annul them. (page 162).

"We are not talking at all about South America. Not a single State has there been in the 19th century in South America which did not declare itself bankrupt. Many of them go bankrupt not once, but every 7-12 years. They are in a position of chronic bankruptcy, as Columbia, for example.

"After all this it seems unfit for Mr. Hughes to appear as a Don Quixote of the petit bourgeois morals. 'People in glass houses should not throw stones.'"

When Humanity Is In Flower

By JOEL SHOMAKER.
State Chairman, Farmer-Labor Party of Washington.

There is a sound of revelry. Bells are ringing out the old and chiming in the new. Lackeys in livery stand to attention. Men and women of wealth saunter along the gilded halls of select hotels. The clans are gathering for the grand opening march in the pageant of Capitalistic Clowns.

It is the beginning of the political campaign of 1924. The call for one million dollars has gone forth. Human brokers are falling over each other trying to get in on the ground floor. Checks do not have to be certified. Bankers take them as sight drafts. They know the signatures.

Yes, the campaign has started with a rush. The old bell-ringers are back at their stations. They will send out the glad tidings that another safe and sane man has been found to sit on the throne of Comercialism. From ocean to ocean and now even the lakes to the gulf, they will sound his praises.

Just a plain man of this world might be coaxed, by his own inquisitiveness, to ask why all this wild, crazy and extravagant expenditure of money in a Presidential Campaign? Then his friendly brother, or sister, in the arena of hard work, might answer in one long word—CAPITALISM.

Capitalism is the great enemy of humanity. It never builds but always destroys. It never sleeps for it is drawing more and more interest in the dark. It has no friends, except in the days of combine, for it has destroyed homes, ruined places of business and scattered families to the four winds.

Yet there are people, who claim to be leaders in social, financial and political affairs, that bow the knees to the God of Mammon and pass up the needs of humanity to others. They think that money is all there is in this world. They do not know that the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil.

Go into the secret meetings of the pot-boiling money kings, who mold candidates for public offices and furnish the brains to raise campaign funds from the workers, and note the playing of the game. There is no such word as people, for the masters in the art of politics, hold all.

Men and women having the right of franchise, are told to vote the right ticket. And woe unto the one in the employ of Capitalism if that command is not obeyed. For another winter of unemployment might add many new graves to the long row of starved bodies, 'neath mounds of earth, in the cities of the dead.

Capitalism seeks men of outstanding public importance to deliver nominations, on silver platters. That means the men sought must have passed muster in the school of Capitalism, thru the push of money and the pull of politics. They must be succesful politicians and have the power of accumulation.

How different from the plans of the people who invest—they who build the railroads, plant and harvest the crops, put the city walls in place and make it possible for Capitalism to live—for they are not seeking outstanding big men to nominate for public officials. They want men and women of honor, integrity and ability, who are not tainted with the germs of Capitalism.

Humanity will be in flower when a desire to serve the people stands head and shoulders above the indolent specimens of Capitalistic Push and Political Pull. And the day is coming as sure as the ides of November.

The Role of the Foreign-Born.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—That the foreign-born workers are in the majority in many industries, is made known in a recent statement issued by the American Bankers' Association calling for increased quotas.

The statement declares that the proportion of foreign-born in the various industries is as follows:

Sugar refining, 85 per cent; silk dyeing, 75 per cent; clothing, 72 per cent; cotton goods manufacturing, 69 per cent; oil refining, 67 per cent; leather manufacturing, 69 per cent; copper mining, 65 per cent; bituminous coal mining, 63 per cent; agricultural implements, 60 per cent, and iron and steel manufacturing, 58 per cent.

"These industries became prominent during the great-st periods of immigration—1860-1910," it continues. "In that same span of years the prosperity of the country increased materially. . . . Immigrants helped build the country and made others which they brought with them the foremost in the world."

Coolidge Tells Daugherty to Watch Friends

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—President Coolidge has ordered Attorney General Daugherty to send a department of justice agent to the Senate Committee's investigation of Teapot Dome to listen to disclosures regarding the leasing of the naval oil reserve to Sinclair interests, it was stated at the White House today on Mr. Coolidge's behalf.

If irregularities are disclosed at the investigation the department of justice will take whatever action is necessary to bring to justice any individuals found guilty of breaking the law it was stated on behalf of the president.

Mr. Coolidge took this action, the White House spokesman said, because of certain rumors heard by him.

Withhold All Suspicion.

The department of justice was represented at the hearing by President Coolidge's express direction, it was said. It was indicated at the White House further investigations were being made, but could not be discussed at the moment because they might dry up sources of information.

The spokesman for the president emphasized that the government did not wish to cast suspicion on any individual.

Poor "Justice" Faces Defeat.

Rumors that have reached the White House however, are too grave to be overlooked and an investigation of them is proceeding the president's spokesman said.

The department of justice is prepared to go the limit in taking action against any person, whatever his position or previous position, against whom evidence is found to warrant prosecution, it was said on Mr. Coolidge's behalf.

For the government to indicate who is under suspicion the White House spokesman pointed out would defeat the ends of justice and nothing could be disclosed at present beyond the intention of both the President and the department of justice to press the investigation until any misdeeds are uncovered.

15,000 Railroad Men Given Raise To Avert Strike

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—The New York Central lines today granted a five per cent wage increase to some 15,000 men of the brotherhoods of railway engineers and firemen.

If other lines follow suit 45,000 workers will be affected.

Strike talk has been dropped by New York Central firemen and engineers and the controversy that has raged since Dec. 4 is at an end.

Eighteen lines were represented in the conference. Original demands for the increase were made in Chicago in July when the men asked a raise of twenty per cent.

Dropped from Payroll.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.—One hundred and fifty employes of the Chicago & Alton shops here find themselves dropped from the payroll. The men are laid off, the company says, to reduce operating expenses. The 1500 employes offered to go on a five-day-week basis in lieu of the other workmen being laid off. This was rejected by the company. The main shops of the C. & A. are located here.

RAIL STRIKE IS FIRST BUSINESS OF MAC DONALD

Tells Henderson to Get Men, Bosses Together

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—Ramsay MacDonald presided over the first meeting of Britain's new Labor cabinet at the historic residence of premiers, No. 10 Downing Street, this afternoon.

The new prime minister walked to the meeting from the foreign office.

Tom Shaw, minister of labor, reported on the railway strike situation to his new colleagues.

LONDON.—The first act of the MacDonald government, even before it was quite formally in office, was to attempt a settlement of the rail strike.

While the government of Great Britain was passing into the hands of representatives of the Labor Party, every effort was being bent to bring an end to the slowly spreading industrial paralysis of the transportation tie-up.

Men chosen by premier Ramsay MacDonald for the nation's first labor cabinet were early at the various government offices. Their retiring predecessors, the conservatives, showed them "the ropes" before leaving.

Some More Osculation.

The outgoing and incoming ministers went to the palace and the seals of office were exchanged and all kissed the king's hand.

The new cabinet members were sworn in at a special meeting of the privy council and held the first cabinet meeting at 4 p. m.

Arthur Henderson already has assumed his duties as home secretary, although a seat in commons must be found for him before he can be officially given the seals of office.

MacDonald, however, instructed Henderson not to wait, but to "get busy and compose the differences of the engineers and firemen and their employers."

Doesn't Stir a Ripple

The British spirit of fair play is manifesting itself in the public and press reception to the laborites.

Today's newspapers, regardless of politics, are practically unanimous in commending MacDonald's good judgement in his selection of a cabinet. Even the tory Morning Post admits: "It might easily have been worse."

PLAN FOR HOUSE OF MORGAN MORTGAGE ON GERMANY IS RIPE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS.—The plan of the American bankers for the restoration of Germany industrially and financially includes as its major provision a loan of $250,000,000 as capital for an international bank to be established in either Holland or Switzerland, it was learned today.

That this enormous sum is to come from American sources and that an American financier will be placed in charge of the bank if the proposal is accepted is considered certain here.

The American financial experts, Brigadier-General Dawes and Owen D. Young, will return to Berlin and hold further conferences with Dr. Schacht, head of the German commission, on Jan. 30.

MYERSCOUGH IS TARGET OF PHIL MURRAY

Vice-President of Miners Takes Slap at Radicals

By JOHN FITZGERALD

(Staff Correspondent of The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The first real clash to take place since the opening of the U. M. W. of A. convention here was staged this morning when the committee on officers recommended approval of Vice-President Murray's report.

One section of the report mentioned the Progressive Miners International Committee in general and Thomas Myerscough, its secretary in particular. The report charged the Progressive Committee with trying to induce striking western Pennsylvania miners to accept a reduction in wages at a mass-meeting held in Arelton on Nov. 25, 1921.

The committee recommendation to accept the report was no sooner made than several delegates were on their feet demanding the floor to refute the charges made.

Delegate James Oates of Charleroi, Pa., declared that he attended the meeting in question and that but for the work of Myerscough and others the operators would have succeeded in breaking the ranks of the striking miners and reducing wages.

His statement was substantiated by Frank Mercantili of Local Union 4646, one of the signers of the call for a special meeting in Monongahela to discuss the situation on Dec. 4, '92.

Mercantili stated that he had been a union member since he was thirteen years old. He had attented the meeting in Axelton, testified to the good work of Myerscough and others in preventing a wage-cut.

Delegate John Hindmarsh of Riverton, Ill., asked Vice-President Murray if he wished to leave the impression that the members of the Progressive Miners, who signed the call for a mass-meeting, on Dec. 4, advocated a wage-cut. Murray answered in the negative. Hindmarsh urged that the convention refuse to condemn Myerscough or any other miner on one sided evidence "without hearing the other side of the case."

Fazan Contradicts Murray.

President Fagan, of District No. 5, admitted in his speech on the question that Myerscough and Guiler spoke against a reduction in wages.

President Lewis, just before the vote was taken, announced that Myerscough's case would be heard before the convention adjourned. The report was finally adopted by a show of hands with a heavy negative vote.

Interview With Myerscough.

In a statement made to the DAILY WORKER representative, Tom Myerscough, who was expelled from the union by action of the Pittsburgh district executive board, after the international executive board declared the Progressive Committee to be a dual union, said that the meeting in Hazelton mentioned by Vice-President Murray was not called by him of the Progressive Miners Committee, but by an agent of the coal operators for the purpose of breaking

Fifty Entombed In Mexican Mine, El Paso Reports

(Special to The Daily Worker)

EL PASO, Texas.—Fifty miners, Americans and Mexicans, are entombed in the Corpuscion mine at Villa Ahumanda, Mexico, 80 miles south of El Paso, according to reports reaching here this afternoon.

Officials of the mining company here expressed doubt as to the reports. They said an American mining engineer named Perry had been badly injured in a fall of rock in the mine.

Stand Firm for Final Victory, Appeal to Workers, Farmers, Red Army, as Russia Prepares for Lenin's Funeral

(By Our Own Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW.—While Moscow is a city of black, prepared to receive today, the remains of Nikolai Lenin, the dead premier's fellow leaders urged workers, farmers and the Red Army to stand firm.

"Final victory of our party will be the best monument to Lenin," a proclamation issued by the Central Executive Committee said.

Lenin's body was to lie in state here until Saturday, when it will be interred in the Kremlin wall.

Tens of thousands of his comrades are to be given an opportunity to gaze for the last time on the stilled features of the most powerful revolutionary figure of all times.

Lenin, after a lingering illness, died at 6:50 P. M., at his villa at Gorky, passing away while unconscious. A cerebral hemorrhage caused paralysis of the respiratory organs.

(Note: An official announcement by the Russian Soviet Government confirms our previous reports that Lenin's death occurred exactly 6:50 P. M., Monday, not 5:50, as erroneously reported by other sources.)

The chief care of Russia's present leaders—mingled with their great and genuine sorrow—is that there shall be no opportunity for enemies of the Soviet to take advantage of Lenin's passing.

Lenin Died Uncomplaining.

Nicolai Lenin died silent, uncomplaining. An eye witness to the passing of the Russian Premier gave to the DAILY WORKER today the first story of how the end came.

At noon Monday Lenin told his household he had a slight headache and went to bed.

Professors Foerster and Ossipoff, Lenin's wife and his sister, Buchari, were the only ones present when the death agony set in at 5:30 P. M.

Lenin spoke not a single word. He was unconscious at the last.

After death had been pronounced, the body was dressed in a brown suit, with white socks and soft brown slippers and placed on a table in the reception room.

The Premier's face showed no change. It has a healthy appearance.

The table was heaped with flowers.

His Comrades Arrive.

A little later the minister of the Soviet government began to arrive, having come hurriedly from Moscow to Gorky, where Lenin's villa is located.

Stalin, Kalinin, Zinoviev and Kamenev reached the villa at 11 P. M. All were weeping heartbrokenly. Their lamentations were kept up thruout the night.

After the ministers came throngs of peasants, pouring out to Gorky in a continuous stream, surrounding the house.

Chicagoans Will Remember Lenin at Mass Meeting

The passing of Nicolai Lenin will be mourned at a huge mass meeting in Chicago, Tuesday evening, Jan. 29, in Ashland Auditorium.

Speakers who will testify to the idealism and brilliant generalship of the departed proletarian leader will include William Z. Foster, C. E. Ruthenberg, William F. Dunne, Robert Minor and Martin Abern. Their addresses will be grouped under the subject "Lenin and the Role of the Communist Party."

Moving pictures of Lenin's life and music will supplement the program.

Lenin memorial meetings will be held in all parts of the country Sunday, Feb. 3, in response to the appeal of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party.

Immense N. Y. Meeting Planned.

NEW YORK.—Madison Square Garden, the largest hall in the city, has been engaged for the Lenin Memorial Meeting, Sunday, February 3rd, to hold the enormous crowds expected in honor of deceased premier.

St. Paul Lenin Meeting.

The Feb. 3 Lenin memorial meeting at St. Paul will be held at the Labor Temple at 3 P. M.

Lenin Death Can't Cause Injury To Powerful Russia

A wave of support for the central committee will probably be created by Lenin's death, says F. A. Mac Kenzie, a Moscow correspondent for an American newspaper syndicate. The Russian government, he adds, is now too vast a machine to be jettisoned by the death of any one man—even Lenin.

For more than a year, the correspondent reasons, Lenin took no active part in the government and immensely loved as he was by the peasants his death will have no adverse political effect.

In a personal and emotional way the shock of the great Premier's death has been profound, MacKenzie testifies. Vast Russia from the far flung villages of Siberia to the towns of the Crimea is dazed.

Say Klan Chose Mayfield.

WASHINGTON.—Earle B. Mayfield's name was placed on the senatorial ballot in Texas "in flagrant contempt and disregard of injunction orders and the law, but in obedience to the clandestine decrees of Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in supercession of the lawful government of Texas," Mayfield's opponents alleged in new documents filed today with the Senate Committee that will investigate Mayfield's right to his seat.

COLUMBUS.—Fight to give President Coolidge a solid Ohio delegation at the convention in Cleveland will be planned here tomorrow at a meeting of more than 300 state and national G. O. P. leaders.

For the week ending Feb. 2, the Magazine Section of THE DAILY WORKER will be issued in the Wednesday (January 30) edition, instead of Saturday's as heretofore. This change is made in order to make it possible for those in charge of the Lenin memorial meetings which are to be held in all sections of the country Feb. 3, to obtain the paper for sale at the meetings. The Magazine Section for this week will be a special Lenin number, one which every member of the working class will want to read and to keep as a memento of the greatest man of this generation.

Persons in charge of the Lenin memorial meetings or others who wish to order special bundles of the Lenin issue of THE DAILY WORKER should mail or telegraph their orders at once. Orders arriving later than Tuesday morning, January 29, cannot be filled.

ing the strike. He had heard of the things said by them, and they were false rumors, coming from William Dolley.

Success Almost Successful.

On their arrival at the meeting they found much sentiment for returning to work. The mover of the motion to accept the compromise got hundreds of seconds. Guiler took the floor and urged the miners to hold out.

After Guiler finished speaking Myerscough took the floor and spoke for half an hour. When he finished an almost unanimous vote was cast against the motion, only the mover voting for it.

Reclassification Before Convention.

Secretary Green's report was adopted after a brief discussion.

William Mitch and John Gay, delegates to the International Miners' Conference, brought the first touch of internationalism into the convention. The conference to which they were delegates advocated socialization of mines and a boycott on the exportation of coal to countries where miners were on strike.

Nine million eight hundred tons of coal were sent to England from the United States during the 1921 coal strike in that country. The report declared that "the insanity of capitalism was never more demonstrated than at present."

The most important committee of the convention—the scale committee —with Frank Farrington as chairman, met last night.

Peaceful, Says Lewis.

In his report to the 29th convention of the United Mine Workers of America, in session here, John L. Lewis, president of the miners, says the internal struggles of the organization that marked the 1922 convention are at rest and that co-operation to a marked degree exists between the union's units.

Lewis' report calls the 1922 bituminous strike, which was a renewal of the wages and working conditions of 1920, "the most memorable struggle in the annals of the U. M. W. A." The same kind of an agreement reached in the anthracite field a month later is classed by the President as one of the outstanding achievements.

The anthracite settlement was for one year. At its termination in August, 1923, another strike was waged by the hard coal miners which resulted in a 10 per cent increase in wages, universal eight hour day in the anthracite industry and other improvements, according to Lewis' report. The anthracite agreement is effective until August 31, 1925.

President Lewis' report does not recommend anything specific as to wages or working conditions, leaving that to the scale committee. This Committee will report the second week of the convention.

Lewis says the bituminous industry is unsound from every moral and economic standpoint and constitutes a crying need for adjustment. It is unfortunate, his report says, that the U. S. coal commission which spent $600,000 lacked the wisdom to properly portray this situation and make practical recommendations for permanent reform.

Fight to Reinstate Howat

TOMLINSON HALL, INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The anti-administration forces at the United Mine Workers of America convention here, organized as the Progressive Miners' International Committee, held a well-attended session last night after convention adjournment.

Chief among the planks adopted by this progressive group are the nationalization of the coal mining industry and the six-hour day and five-day week.

A fight for the re-instatement of Alex Howat with the full rights of a member will be launched by the sympathizers of the Progressive International Committee, and many other measures advocated by the rank and file committee members will be brought before the convention if the Lewis machine does not stifle them by reason of its control of the convention machinery.

Farrington Heads Scale Committee.

Frank Farrington, president of District No. 2, Illinois, has been appointed chairman of the scale committee, which will meet the operators' committee in the wage negotiations arising out of the contract expiration March 31.

Other important committee chairmen are: Lonnie Jackson, Kentucky, constitution committee; Lee Hall, Ohio, officers' reports; John Hessler, Indiana, appeals and grievances before whom will come the Howat case and those of other districts whose charters Lewis has revoked or suspended; Thomas Kennedy, Pennsylvania, resolutions. If Farrington, as is rumored, has patched up his difference with Lewis, all committee chairmen are solid administration men.

The reports of international auditors and the committee on old age pensions have had their reports accepted without debate.

A telegram from Samuel Gompers contained no suggestions for solution of the serious problems that the convention faces but instead advised the miners to look forward to the day when electric power would be generated at the mouth of the mines. Just how this would better the condition of the miners or reduce the number of their unemployed the telegram did not explain.

Final Victory Greatest Monument to Lenin, Proclaim All-Russian Executive Committee

(By Our Own Staff Correspondent.)

MOSCOW.—The All-Russian Executive Committee addressed the following proclamation to the workers, peasants and soldiers:

"The main order which the Eleventh Congress gives the Soviet Government at the moment of the death of Lenin is to protect the Workers' and Peasants' Union.

"Never sidestep a hair's breadth from Lenin's policy. This is the principal question of our life."

The Central Executive Committee's proclamation was in somewhat similar vein. Its memorial says Lenin supplemented Marxism by actually creating a proletarian dictatorship in the creation of the Workers' and Peasants' Union. It praises Lenin's super-human sense of duty and his devotion of his life to the working class.

"The hope of our enemies that our party will collapse is vain. We will continue with an iron will, because it is Lenin's Party. We stand firm. Lenin's death will close our ranks tighter and final victory will be the best monument to Lenin."

Greetings from Great Britain

Dear Comrades: I hasten to extend heartiest greetings to the DAILY WORKER.

The advent of a daily working class paper, giving voice to the struggle of the working class of America, is an immense step forward.

We ever here have just emerged from one of the most momentous General Elections in our history. At the moment of writing we are actually on the threshold of a Labour Government for the first time, and more than ever we have been compelled to appreciate the fallacy of the Press.

I am sure the DAILY WORKER will prove to be the spur for accelerating the development of the working class movement of America.

I send you the heartiest of good wishes in your new venture.

Yours fraternally,

Carrillo Died With 12 Others at Hand Of Yucatan Whites

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK—Rumors that Felipe Carrillo may still be alive were allayed, and hope for his survival dissipated with the arrival here of a recent issue of the Mexican daily "Revista de Yucatan," describing in detail the manner in which Carrillo, his three brothers and nine other labor men met death at the hands of a firing squad.

Previous rumors, taken from the reactionary paper "Excelsior" by the Mexico City correspondent of The Federated Press, suggested that implicit belief in the report of Carrillo's execution is unwarranted.

What is regarded as an authentic description of the tragic events of January 2 and 3 states that the thirteen Mexican revolutionists, including the four Carrillo brothers, were taken into custody on the charge of "disturbing the public peace." Held incommunicado, they were rushed thru a farcical, brutal court martial procedure. The military prosecutor was scarcely obliged to produce evidence, with the verdict a foregone conclusion. Sentence of death was passed upon the thirteen labor prisoners unceremoniously. Asked if he wished to make a final statement, Felipe Carrillo remained silent. He was shot at 4:30 on the morning of January 3. His comrades were "put up against the wall" in quick succession.

It is now believed that rumors of Carrillo's survival were circulated by the reactionary authorities in order to quell the indignation aroused by news of the executions.

Smith to Probe Corrupt Control of N. Y. Law Body

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK—Political interest here is centered upon the impending investigation of the State Labor Department, to be conducted by Governor Smith this week. The inquiry results from charges brought against the labor department by the Associated Industries.

In all probability, the Associated Industries, a reactionary group of factory owners and merchants, will lose the day they demanded an investigation. Governor Smith has subpoenaed thirty-six officers and directors of the Associated Industries, Inc., to appear before him when the inquiry opens. In all likelihood, the investigation will be directed against the Associated Industries themselves, and will shed much light upon the lobby thru which that organization has been opposing social legislation for many years.

The captains of industry, as they like to call themselves, will be put on the stand. As a result, it is possible that the governor will ask certain legislators to explain why they have been influenced by the political intrigues of this manufacturers' organization.

Unless the Associated Industries decide to scurry from the ship they overhastily chartered, significant facts as to the functions of a political lobby may emerge from the investigation.

Labor Circles Are Aroused by Fake Dynamite Story

Vicious propaganda methods the daily newspapers of Chicago are using against union labor were illustrated yesterday in the Daily News' story about the report of a harness bull that he had found three sticks of dynamite in the basement of a building on Harrison street where several local unions have office.

A Greek restaurant and other business places are also using the building, but this makes no difference in the Daily News, which says with the utmost cocksureness that "one of the many unions which have headquarters" there "had stocked up with a supply of explosives in preparation of union warfare."

Not a shred of evidence is offered by the reporter to sustain this libelous statement.

Interviewed by the DAILY WORKER, officials of the unions in the building denounced the whole affair as a plot to discredit labor unions in advance of an open shop drive.

"We are used to such tactics by the police and by the newspapers," said one of the union officials. "It is such old stuff that not many people fall for it any more, but it is disgusting just the same."

Bowman Dairy Co. Capitulates and Averts a Strike

Forced by the determined attitude of the Milk Producers' Association to withdraw their ultimatum specifying one year's contract and a stated quantity of milk that farmers must supply or be boycotted by them, the Bowman Dairy Company has again made peace with the members of the Milk Producers' Association.

The capitulation of the company removes the threat of a renewal of the recent strike and officials of the milk producers' organization state that unless the distributors issue further arbitrary ultimatums complete peace will be restored.

The present agreement between producers and distributors expires April 1, at which time difficulty may arise during the negotiations for a renewal of the agreement.

COOLIDGE BEGS FOR BANKS THAT ROB FARMERS

Would Help Growers by Helping Banks

WASHINGTON.—President Coolidge today sent Congress a special message on the agricultural situation he said exists in the wheat growing sections of the Northwest.

"The economic situation in certain wheat growing sections of the Northwest is reaching an acute stage that requires organized co-operation on the part of the Federal Government and the local institutions of that territory for its solution," the President said.

Mr. Coolidge recommended as remedial measures:

1.—The refunding of "the pressing past due indebtedness of the farmer in the territory most seriously affected.

2.—Financial assistance thru a federal agency to enable wheat farmers to make a change from a single crop system to diversified farming.

Asks Aid for Banks.

3.—"Restoration, wherever it would be helpful, of the impaired capital of banking institutions in the distressed sections.

4.—"Encouragement by private capital of a substantial financing corporation to assist in the plan of bank reorganizations."

5.—Extension until December 31, 1924, of the power of the War Finance Corporation to make loans. This power expires March 31.

The President pointed out some arrangement must be made that will insure money loaned by the government reaching the farmers and not being swallowed up immediately by their creditors, the banks.

Loans of that sort will not help the farmers a particle, he said.

He urged business in the region affected, including merchant insurance companies and the like, to cooperate in every way to help the farmer. Discussing the situation confronting wheat farmers, the President said:

"Great numbers of individual farmers were so involved in debt, both on mortgages and to merchants and banks that they are unable to preserve the equity of their properties. They are unable to undertake the diversification of farming that is fundamentally necessary for sound agricultural reconstruction of the area. They are unable to meet their obligations and thereby has been involved the entire mercantile and banking fabric of these regions.

Tells of Bank Failures.

"Not only have there been large numbers of foreclosures by actual farms, but there are great numbers in possession on sufferance from their creditors who are continuing in creditors. There have been large and increasing bank failures. Bills have been introduced providing for the lending by the Federal Government of monies directly to the farmer for purposes of assisting them in co-operation with the banks on the basis of diversified farming. I am heartily in favor of these bills, but they do not and will not compass the entire problem."

After pointing out the need for private as well as government agencies to assist the sufferer, Mr. Coolidge stated:

"It may be necessary, on a well organized and extensive scale, to provide systematically for the restoration or strengthening of the capital resources of the country banks and financing institutions necessary to the proper service of the farmers.

"It may be found desirable to create new financing institutions, such as have been organized with great success in the livestock territories, to co-operate with the War Finance Corporation.

Wants Railroads to Help.

"The government cannot supply banking facilities nor can it organize loan companies, but it can properly call upon those large business concerns, the railroads, the mercantile establishments, the agricultural supply house and all those large business establishments whose welfare is immediately connected with the welfare of the farmer.

"It can ask them, in their own interest as well as in the interest of the country, to co-operate with federal agencies in attacking the problem in a large way.

I have therefore directed the secretaries of commerce and agriculture to the managing director of the War Finance Corporation to confer with representatives of the interested groups, to devise a practicable plan of action.

"They are measures by which, without due alarm or agitation, but nevertheless promptly and effectively, we can bring to bear on a serious but happily a localised emergency every resource of the federal government and all the assistance which the business and farming community can render."

What Government of British Labor Party May Mean

(By The Federated Press)

LONDON.—The Labor Party governs the British empire. Ramsay MacDonald, pacifist socialist leader of the British Labor Party is premier. On Jan. 2, the recently elected house of commons voted no confidence in the Conservative government by 328 to 256, and the king for the first time in the history of the empire had to hand over the reins of government to working class representatives.

Labor assumes power at a critical time after a Liberal-Tory coalition and a Tory government have failed to solve the menacing problems of unemployment in England, European chaos resulting from the robbers' peace of Versailles, and colonial unrest in the British empire. But since the Labor Party is still a minority and governs only on sufferance of Liberal votes, no basic reforms are expected to result from the MacDonald ministry.

The chief domestic policies, capital levy and nationalisation of public utilities and national resources, upon which Labor fought the election, can not be put into effect because of the Liberal veto. It is expected, however, that the Liberals will support MacDonald in a pacific foreign policy entailing recognition of Russia, open support of Germany against France for evacuation of the Ruhr, reduction of reparations, and rewriting the disastrous peace treaty, reform of the capitalist league of nations, and more independence for the British colonies and mandates.

WASHINGTON. — The Workers' Party of America, guided by the Russian Third International, ordered its members, in March 1923, to undertake propaganda in the American Legion and the army and navy with a view to procuring arms and ammunition for an armed revolution against the American government, A. W. Kliefoth, State Department official, testified today before the Borah committee investigating alleged Russian propaganda.

Zinoviev, Bukharin and Radek, officials of the Soviet government, were officers of the Third International when these instructions were sent, Kliefoth said.

Evidence was introduced by Kliefoth purporting to show that at an earlier date the Communist Party of America had underground "illegal" branch of the Third International was urged to "bore from within" in the American Federation of Labor.

William Z. Foster, radical worker, received from Moscow at various times a total of $166,000 for propaganda among American trade unions, Kliefoth testified.

You Will Like "A Week"

By NANCY MARKOFF of "The Liberator"

Every reader of the DAILY WORKER will find the tremendous book, "A WEEK" that comes to us out of the depth of the struggle of the Russian revolution, tremendously interesting. Every reader of the DAILY WORKER will feel this book deeply.

The outstanding feature of the story is the grip that the new order has upon the Russian people. Only a movement which truly voices, the needs of the people can draw forth such self sacrificing reactions.

The best part of this book is meeting these people who think of nothing but their goal and who die bravely for their cause. They are interesting studies of human reactions to the birth of a new order and in guarding its life.

This narrative is purely description and action—nevertheless the revolutionary characters in the story leave an imprint on your heart and you find yourself living in them.

I am told some folks have found occasion to criticize this book on the grounds that it is giving information detrimental to the work of the communists. But these people are wrong. Even those who find it difficult to adjust themselves to the drastic measures necessary in defense of the revolution, find their sympathy is with the revolutionists. The revolutionists are fighting for an ideal, the others are fighting for their "life" of ease. Fighting for an ideal is more inspirational and beautiful. And for this reason the revolutionists are invincible, even to those who are not fully conscious.

Arkansas, for immediate cancellation of the lease of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to the Sinclair oil interests.

Caraway's motion that the senate intervene immediately and will be opposed on the ground that the public lands committee is investigating the "whole question and should not be interfered with until its inquiry is finished.

This is likely to lead to a spectacular fight with Democratic senators seeking to put the Republicans on record. Teapot Dome is considered certain now to figure in the campaign.

Caraway and Senator Heflin, Alabama, have already served notice that they intend to disclose to the senate certain information regarding Teapot Dome.

Developments Are Sensational

News and sensational developments brought nearer the climax of the Teapot Dome investigation, which has stirred governmental and political circles to their depths.

These developments included:

Peremptory summons to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who leased Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to the Sinclair interests and about whom the storm centers, to appear at once before the senate public lands committee investigating the transaction. Fall, who is in New Orleans, will arrive Friday to testify.

A request to Harry Sinclair, oil magnate who leased the rich naval oil reserve and who last Wednesday sailed for Europe to return and show the committee the books of the Hyva Corporation, which are presumably in his possession, that they were given to him just before he sailed and were not returned to his office.

Coolidge Finally Acts.

Announcement on behalf of President Coolidge at the White House that he had directed Attorney General Daugherty to take a hand for the case because of rumors too grave to be overlooked which have reached the president. Coolidge has ordered Daugherty to have a man at the senate investigation and if evidence is disclosed warranting that to prosecute anybody who is guilty.

Announcement by Senator Caraway, Arkansas, that he would shortly ask the senate at once to act on a resolution cancelling the lease of Teapot Dome.

A statement by Fall at New Orleans that it was not necessary for the committee to subpoena him as he was ready to testify.

A statement by Sinclair at Plymouth, England, where the ship touched, that he never gave Fall any money.

Caraway's demand tomorrow that the senate act at once is expected to be the signal for a heated discussion of the whole Teapot Dome scandal in the open senate and demands for summary action against certain individuals are in prospect.

After hearing testimony late today from Sinclair's counsel, the senate committee adjourned subject to the chairman's call.

Somebody Lied.

Fall will be asked to explain where he got $100,000 to buy a New Mexico ranch. His story and that of E. B. McLean, Washington publisher, from whom Fall said he borrowed the money, conflicted.

Zevely will be asked to explain what he did with $30,000 Sinclair stock and $25,000 Liberty bonds, which C. D. Wahlberg, Sinclair's secretary told the senate investigating committee were given to Zevely.

Senator Caraway, Arkansas, today gave notice in the senate that he would move tomorrow to have the senate public land committee relieved of further consideration of a resolution for cancellation of the Teapot Dome and other naval oil reserve leases and have it considered at once by the senate.

Want Sinclair.

The senate committee today on resuming its hearing, asked counsel for Harry Sinclair, oil man who leased Teapot Dome, to have Sinclair appear as soon as possible. G. E. Stanford, Sinclair's counsel, said he would cable Sinclair at once to return.

Sinclair Denies Everything.

PLYMOUTH, Eng.—"I never gave any money to Albert B. Fall," Harry F. Sinclair told the United Press today, upon his arrival here on the French liner Paris.

Board of Education Shows no Indication of Taking Action; Daily Worker Will Give Facts

Fireproof school buildings, where the lives of the pupils are further imperilled by overcrowded conditions, are considered proof enough for the fact, in the working class district of Chicago, it is revealed in an investigation which the DAILY WORKER is conducting.

The DAILY WORKER'S investigation was begun because the Board of Education has given no indication of taking action on the facts which are being brought out at the hearings before the buildings and grounds committee of the Board of Education of Chicago, indicating that scores of school buildings are a menace to life and health and should be replaced by new ones.

Official Probe Not Started

It was first declared by the board, that the buildings and grounds committee would investigate all such buildings, but this was afterwards narrowed down to a statement that the investigation would be limited to the J. N. Thorp school, 39th street and Burley avenue, which was considered the worst. The business manager of the Board of Education and the superintendent of schools were ordered to conduct the investigation. Henry D. Hatch said yesterday, that far as he knew they had not begun the investigation.

The DAILY WORKER'S own investigation began with the J. N. Thorp school which the committee seems to be avoiding. The Thorp school is located in the heart of the South Chicago industrial district. It is attended by the children of working class parents. Most of the pupils are the children of foreign born workers. The neighborhood in which it is situated is populated mostly by Poles and Slavs who work in the steel mills of South Chicago.

Hole-in-the-Wall Kitchen

In addition to the regular classes there are classes for subnormal children and former truants. There is also a penny lunch room, run in connection with the school which serves more than a hundred children a day. Many of the children during the morning recess, buy their breakfast. The equipment for the lunch room is of the miserably inadequate sort found in school lunchrooms. The kitchen is nothing more than a one-time cupboard, with a hole in the wall, connecting it with the lunch room proper. All the food is cooked and the dishes are washed in this tiny den. The three employees are continually forced to crowd each other in the kitchen and walk on each others toes.

The class room for subnormal children is in a regular class room. It is crowded in together with the special equipment together with the tables and chairs. Often 24 pupils are attended at single desks for subnormals. It is impossible to teach so many satisfactorily at one time. They are sent from schools outside the district regularly served by the Thorp school.

The class for former truants is crowded into one room. Manual training equipment and a loom, in addition to the regular desks, are all jammed into the same room. The loom is crowded against one window where it cannot be handled because of the proximity of the stationary desks.

Firetrap of Worst Kind

The Thorp school building is a veritable firetrap. The original building was put up about 1892, with an addition in 1896. The addition is above the floor level of the old building. The old building's stairs are still used. They are winding, narrow stairs with two landings from one floor to another. If a fire should break out in the older part of the building, the children would either have to pass far to the front of the building or down these narrow stairs. The light on the stairs is wretched.

In spite of city ordinances, no fireproof material is used in the interior of either of the buildings. The storage facilities of the school are so inadequate that they add to the fire hazards. There is no doubt that the whole place would go up like tinder if a fire started.

The sanitary arrangements of the school are nothing short of an outrage. The boys' toilet is on the ground floor below the street level. The entire equipment of the toilets is of the most antiquated sort. In order to keep down toilet odors it is necessary to flush the floors twice a day. They are continually wet as a result

Foul Toilet Smells

The school is built around a light well on the south side of which the boys toilet is situated. During the time school windows are kept open, which is most of the school year, odors from the toilet permeate the entire building. A fan ventilator was put in the toilet a few years ago, but it only runs to the floor level above the street permitting the odors to be blown thru the building. The boys' play room is next to the toilet and is damp most of the year. The manual training room is in the basement below the street level and, like the play room, is damp. The basement also contains a room for shower baths. It is dark, damp and poorly ventilated.

Pupils Frozen Out

During the summer new boilers were put in the heating plant, but in the sub-zero weather last Monday the school was so cold that it was necessary to dismiss the classes.

The Board of Education building program says that "no building which can be made safe, sanitary and usable will be replaced under present building conditions." The Thorp school is neither safe, sanitary or fit to be used. The program of the Board of Education for new buildings and the remodeling of old ones does not contemplate doing anything about the Thorp school which is in a working class neighborhood and which is attended by the children of workers.

A portable building was put up at the Thorp school in 1822. Last summer it was moved to the school year, the portable building which accommodates 150 pupils and it was only the vigorous protest of the principal, Mr. Hatch that prevented its use.

Half-Day Education

About one-third of the 800 pupils now attending the Thorp school are receiving half days, because of the crowded condition of the school. This means that many mothers who want to go to work are unable to leave home because they must take care of their children. If the children were going to school full day, they could go to work sure that they were being taken care of. Mothers frequently come to the school and ask that their children be put in full time classes in order that they might work.

The Board of Education will get a report of the buildings committee on the Thorp school in 1922. Last summer they will do to remedy conditions which are outrageous. Private conditions existing in South Chicago would not be permitted to continue in any but a working class neighborhood.

Because the workers in the South Chicago district are foreigners and have little part, not vocally, their interests have been ignored and the lives and health of their children put in continual danger.

made before the senate investigating committee in Washington thru which details of the Teapot Domo oil lease have become known and thru which former Secretary of the Interior Fall is alleged to have received money from some mysterious source.

Sinclair further denied that he had left New York secretly, as alleged by Archie Roosevelt in testimony before the senate committee.

Sinclair is accompanied by Vice-President Day of his company.

"I do not see how it can be said that I sailed secretly for Europe," said Sinclair, "when everybody knew that I was in New York and knew that I was sailing. The trip obviously has nothing to do with avoiding an appearance before the senate hearing, as that has been in progress for two months. I have already testified four or five times and been excused."

Fall Will Appear.

NEW ORLEANS.—Subpoena for Albert B. Fall to appear before the senate committee investigating the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Sinclair interests, was filed on the former secretary here today.

Fall was in the lobby of the Roosevelt hotel when United States Deputy Marshal H. C. Moseley read the summons.

Fall said he would accept the subpoena and go to Washington as soon as possible. He said, however, he would request the committee for permission to take his wife, who is ill, to El Paso, Texas, before making the trip to Washington.

GAMBLER CLIMBS INTO UNIVERSITY BOARD IN VIENNA

Academic Life Prostituted Under League

(By The Federated Press)

VIENNA.—The University of Vienna, one of the most ancient centers of learning in Europe, has entered a new stage in its career. The appointment of Dr. Schmitz, who has been reduced to a propaganda office for the League of Nations, is not opposed by most of the university's faculty. It has therefore accepted the offer (which it courted) of Sigmund Kunwald, banker and gambler, to act as trustee for the stock-owned university.

While such an act is not uncommon in the countries, it is unprecedented in the annals of European universities. The organ of Austrian socialists, the Arbeiter-Zeitung, calls this act "undignified and dangerous."

Simultaneously, it is reported that private capitalists are showing an interest in the state-owned theaters, the museums, high schools and other public institutions. Hitherto, most of these have been operated at a loss. But it has been the first duty of the state to cover that loss. Now, financiers and manufacturers talk of making "paying propositions" of Europe's cultural institutions.

They have already made vast inroads into the industries and public utilities formerly controlled by the state. In Germany, Stinnes is maneuvering to acquire the state railroads.

Bosel, the man who has purchased a share in the control of the University of Vienna, is a young man who used to operate a garment factory before the war. He secured government contracts for military uniforms, and grew rich. He bought a bank, then a newspaper, then a factory. Today, he rivals Stinnes as a financial power on the continent. He is 32 years old, and his possessions extend from the coal mines of Silesia to the money-changing houses of the Balkans.

Austrian labor is indignant at the delivery of the university, with all its traditions, to the tender mercies of an upstart speculator. Viennese citizens are asking whether this is what is meant by the League of Nations' relief for Austria.

It is but an episode. But it is regarded as another proof that the league is more interested in restoring "safe and sane" capitalism in Europe than in reviving trade and industry in the interest of all classes of the population.

Karolyi Memoirs Banned as Red by Hungarian Rulers

(By The Federated Press)

BUDAPEST.—The Hungarian government has suppressed the recently published memoirs of Count Michael Karolyi, president of the first Magyar republic. Karolyi's book, which is the first of three contemplated volumes, is an indictment of the venerable Austro-Hungarian aristocracy. Karolyi himself belongs to one of the foremost families of the aristocratic caste. But Karolyi's sympathy with the cause of revolutionary labor have led him far from the path of the hierarchy of landlords. His book is a frank confession of the failure of the class to which Karolyi was born. Its suppression in Hungary will doubtless increase its circulation in countries unvisited by white terrorism.

Banks Bar News of Clerks' Frolic in Official Sheet

Employees of Chicago banks, members of the Bank Employees' Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, have been prevented from advertising or giving any other publicity to their social affairs in the columns of The American Banker, official organ of the American Institute of Banking, according to J. Shafir, secretary of the union.

The reason assigned for the censorship by officials of the company is that the union policy is opposed to that of the Institute and its publication.

United States Government on Trial in Borah Hearing for Recognition of Soviet Russia

By JAY LOVESTONE.

WASHINGTON.—The United States Government is now on trial in the Senate hearings on the Borah resolution for the recognition of Soviet Russia.

Listening to the testimony of the witnesses, analyzing the methods pursued by the sub-committee, and above all examining the pivotal point of the whole survey, one is compelled by the very weight of the evidence to conclude that this is a class investigation.

On this Committee are represented the various layers of our present ruling class. There is Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, who speaks for the powerful railroad and coal interests of the Keystone State, the he usually manages to hide his invaluable services behind a dense smoke screen of the pompous, of the thinnest juridical sophistries.

There is Senator Swanson, of Virginia, who personifies that hybrid combination of the new Southern land baron and the rising anti-union Southern coal magnate.

There is Senator Borah, of Wisconsin, there is crystallized that renegade type of petty bourgeois progressive spokesman, who prefers the whole cake of the big capitalists with all the fifth of the stray crumbs of the small fry owners struggling to hold their own between the rising capitalist industrialism and atrophying small scale agriculture.

Finally Senator Borah, of Idaho, the Chairman of the Committee, speaks, and in a rather effective, clear cut voice, for the small owners, for the middle class vised in between the devouring jaw of big capitalism and the ever-more threatening jaw of the exploited, dispossessed working and farming masses.

Private Property the Issue

Property, capitalist private property, is the central point of the whole investigation. Whatever information or misinformation that is given about Soviet Russia which, in the opinion of the senators, is conducive to the perpetuation of our present capitalist system of the exploitation of the workers, is judged by all the committee members to be a point in favor of the Soviet Republic.

Now only defender of the Soviet Government on the Committee, Senator Borah, plays as his trump card the facts arising out of the conditions which prevail because Soviet Russia to adopt policies which he can show as not hostile to the system of capitalist private property.

Hence, the difficult position in which Senator Borah finds himself surrounded on the spokesmen of the bigest capitalist interests.

United States Is On Trial

Under these circumstances it is obvious that the decisions of this Committee and the opinion of these decisions by the Senate, will be largely determined by the economic class interests of the capitalist dominating the Government.

The United States Government is on trial in the whole Russian question. It is openly appearing as the centralized defense agency of the capitalist private property interests the world over. The workers and farmers of America will judge it in its true role.

Kelly Not So Selfish

Robert E. Kelly, of the eastern European division of the state department, who is representing Secretary Hughes in the fight against recognition of Soviet Russia before the senate foreign relations' subcommittee, had a peculiar theory as to why England had resumed trade relations with Russia, when quizzed by Senator Borah.

"England recognized Russia because she was selfish and wanted trade," elucidated the state department's expert.

Nine Countries Recognize Russia

Nine countries have recognized the Russian government and six others have established trade relations, Kelly admitted. But, the anti-soviet plank hitter pleaded, in response to a leading question by Senator Pepper, five of the nine recognized Russia only to save their own independence and Germany, because of the Brest-Litovsk treaty. Borah forced Kelly to concede that no country had withdrawn recognition, once granted.

Kelly opened his argument by reading from Trotsky's speech to the Tenth Congress of the All-Russian Soviets the statement that:

"Soviet boundary is front line beyond which no counter-revolution can go."

What this attempted to prove was not made clear. He also read a letter to Claude McKay, regarding work among negroes. Senator Borah countered by proving that McKay had never used the letter here. Kelly then read portions of speeches by Zinoviev, Radek, Bukarin, Skablov and the Red International of Labor Unions greeting the Industrial Workers of the World and the California Seamen's strike and the Comintern proclamation on the Verovsky murder.

Shudders at Workers' Hopes

Russian hopes for world soviet republics were voiced in extracts which Kelly read from the Federated Soviet constitution regarding the division of the world into imperialistic and proletarian camps. This was emphasized by the state department's representative as showing a policy from which the American government should shrink.

Is Going to Russia

Borah pressed the witness repeatedly to prove his assertions as to the responsibility of the Communist Party of Russia for the government and for the Third International. He pointed, for example, to the statements contained in policy toward Italy issued by the Russian government and the Third International, and to the development of the new economic policy against the resistance of Zinoviev, and asked how the department reconciled these historic facts with his theory.

court is not so omnipotent as in America. Appeals can be taken from the Soviet Supreme Court to the Central Executive Union of Soviets, consisting of 371 delegates elected at National Soviet Congress and functioning between the latter's sessions.

Borah made the point the Kelly simply proved supreme court responsible to legislative executive body. Borah forced Kelly to admit that in the United States it is the same as appeals to congress against Supreme Court Decisions. Pepper insisted Kelly by claiming that the Communist Party is the only legal party, therefore, communist party believes supreme court case is still good.

Lectures on Communist History

A. W. Clayton, next State Department witness, described history of the first, second and third Internationals, and gave the development of the American communist movement from expulsion of 40,000 members of Socialist Party. Answering Borah regarding difference in American party's principles before and after affiliation with the International he said the American party subsequently advocated force and violence. He said the American party was driven underground and subjected to raids and deportations but he would not give Borah any figures of the numbers convicted and deported.

Clayton read from Secretary of Labor Wilson's deportation ruling and asserted that all courts and state departments since have decided against communists and the Soviet government. The statement ignored the fact that Superior Court Judge Anderson of Massachusetts ruled that membership in the communist party was not ground for deportation.

Post's Book Put in Record

Borah compelled Clayton to admit that Ludwig Martens had not been sent from the country because of any anti-government activities on his part. During the afternoon session Borah inserted sections of Louis F. Post's book on the "Deportations' delirium of 1920," proving that Martens was not deported because of his activities.

Borah forced Clayton to admit that force and violence literature and propagandists in this country existed twenty years before the establishment of the Comintern. Clayton continued reading documents and minutes of the Comintern about organization of the Workers Party and the struggle in the party regarding the same. Followed exact method of Michigan prosecution. Swanson occasionally interrupted Clayton with request to insert in record the names of the Comintern officials giving these instructions who are also soviet officials.

CALL HUGHES' BLUFF.

By LAURENCE TODD

(Staff Correspondent of the Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of State Hughes' bluff was called, on the opening day of Senator Borah's subcommittee investigation into reasons why the American government refuses to recognize Russia, and Hughes' reply was a suggestion of "confidential" information to be given to the senators "in executive session." He declined to submit it to prove to the American people that the Soviet government is conducting a campaign of propaganda in this country. Hughes sent a letter to the committee, together with a package of photostatic copies of alleged translations of Russian communications, which were read to the senate by Senator Borah. Young, chief of the division of Near Eastern affairs in the department.

Can't Read Russian.

But when Young admitted that he could not read Russian, the letter was shelved, and E. F. Kelly, an interpreter attached to the state department, was called to take his place. During the first day's session offered in evidence mainly of these Russian statements, the substance of which was disclosed by Senator Lodge's speech some days ago.

The argument of the department was that the Russian Communist Party controls the Russian government, and that it also controls the Third International. If the Third International should be found to have expended money for revolutionary propaganda, it assumed, this would be equally the act of the party and of the government.

Senator Borah asked the witness point-blank, whether he would present proof that the Russian government furnished any money for the foreign revolutionary propaganda and received the reply that there was no such evidence "made public," but that "we shall be able to communicate in confidence, in executive session" some evidence of such payments of Russian government funds. Borah answered that he, for one, did not want any evidence given in confidence. He saw no reason for secrecy, especially after the witness conceded that nobody's life would be imperilled if the testimony were made public.

Forgets About Forged Document

It was evident immediately that Hughes had dropped the use of the forged Zinoviev document dealing with the "red flag on the White House." Moreover, it was clear that the State Department officials would not want Borah to bring it up. Back of the witness sat Wm. J. Burns, chief of the Bureau of Investigation of Justice, with J. E. Hoover, manager of the Palmer "red raids," sponsors of the Zinoviev document. Across the room were seated Samuel Gompers and his editorial secretary, Chester M. Wright, while the public admitted to the public was divided between reactionaries and liberals, crowding to hear the State Department's revelations.

Borah pressed the witness repeatedly to prove his assertions as to the responsibility of the Communist Party of Russia for the government and for the Third International. He pointed, for example, to the statements contained in policy toward Italy issued by the Russian government and the Third International, and to the development of the new economic policy against the resistance of Zinoviev, and asked how the department reconciled these historic facts with his theory.

W. C. Left Wing Say Officers Use Corruption Funds

NEW YORK CITY.—The nomination conference of the Workmen's Circle will take place on February 24, in New York City. This means that the elections are approaching in the organization, and the reactionaries are already busy organizing their forces and setting the whole machinery of the organization in motion, using every trick they know, in order to fight the left element in the organization and to win the elections for the executive committee. The machine is afraid of the hold that Communist ideas have on the rank and file of the Workmen's Circle. The machine is spending a considerable amount of money in circularizing and propagandizing the membership. If this money comes from the treasury of the Workmen's Circle, there is a crime being committed. The reactionary machine is trying to alarm the membership with the cry that the lefts want to capture the Workmen's Circle for their private interests. The present executive is even going so far as to brand the expulsion of the most active members of the organization because they are members or adherents of the Committee of Action of the left wing.

Workers Decide They Can Get No Justice in New York Courts

By FREDERICK KUH
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK.—The next time a hundredpercenter tells you that American courts dispense impartial justice, give him this case to chew on:

Mrs. Julia Lutkits is a widow, living in a $12-a-month flat in this city, together with her four children. In an accident a year ago, one of the Lutkits children received injuries so grave that they resulted in the amputation of his leg. Mrs. Lutkits has been attempting to obtain an early trial of her $30,000 damage suit against the Second Avenue Railroad Co.

Thru its receiver, Charles E. Chalmers, the company objected to any speeding-up of the trial. Mrs. Lutkits states that she has been constrained to abandon her work—she was earning $15 a week as dressmaker—and has exhausted her savings in caring for her crippled son. The company, gentlemenanly to the last, argued that these facts do not constitute "exceptional circumstances" which make an immediate trial essential.

Testimony of doctors was submitted, affirming that the reason why her son's wounds do not heal properly is the boy's impaired health. The physicians added that "were he sent to the country where he could get better attention, he would probably regain his health."

Statements of Mrs. Susan White Belden, social investigator, were to the effect that Mrs. Lutkits is unable to work because of her son's condition. The investigator mentions that the other children and Mrs. Lutkits herself are weak and anemic.

With due solemnity, the appellate division, New York Supreme Court, Justice Wagner presiding, decided in favor of the company. Mrs. Lutkits's attempts to secure a rapid trial are defeated and a year or more may elapse before the case is heard.

Here is another case

Tenants in this city and state were told "where to get off" by Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel, who ruled Jan. 18 that residents who moved into their present homes "Ere June 1, 1923, can not avail themselves of the protection afforded by the emergency rent laws. Wasservogel's judgment in favor of the landlords affects thousands of tenants thruout this state, who are already hard pressed to make the steep rent grade.

Assemblyman Samuel I. Roseman declared that he would lose no time in introducing a bill in the state legislature to offset the ruling of Justice Wasservogel.

Translated from the German, Wasservogel means water bird. To which the echo calls Wotta bird!

Chicago Unionist Says Lenin Death Is Blow to World

"All the progressive and class conscious members of the machinists' union are mourning the death of Nicolai Lenin," said Julius N Uhlmann, business agent for the Chicago District of the International Association of Machinists.

"I hope the DAILY WORKER will extend our condolences to the Russian workers who have been reprieved of the services of the most brilliant political leader in Europe.

"Lenin was not only a man of the highest ideals but he had the rare experience of seeing his ideals realized in the Russian Workers' Republic. His work will go on but he was still needed and his loss is a severe blow not only to the Russian but the workers of the world.

"It was particularly tragic that he should have passed away at the moment when the British labor movement was coming into power, at least in modified form."

The International Association of Machinists was one of the first American labor organizations to come out for the recognition of the Russian government.

Christian Madsen of the Chicago painters' union expressed keen regret at the Russian Premier's death. Madsen took an active part on the floor at the Portland convention in the fight to win a resolution endorsing resumption of trade relations with Russia from that body. He was the only Chicago delegate to oppose the Gompers policy on this issue.

Much Youth Stuff In F. S. R. Film, Film.

The next motion picture to be toured by the Friends of the Soviet Union (International Workers' Aid) will contain a mass of material of special interest to young workers, according to William F. Kruse, who made the pictures in Russia. The youth of Russia are the most inspiring element of all in that country and their doings will permeate the entire film.

Among the special subjects covered are the Youth Demonstrations in the Red Square, Sept. 1st (International Youth Day); the youth frolic at the opening of the Foreign Section of the Agricultural Exposition, the dedication of a banner to the German Youth in the Kazag University, where Lenin attended; various student meetings, factory schools, and the self-governing self-supporting young folks in the Children's communes.

Youth organizations affiliated with F. S. R. locals should urge their locals to make immediate application to the National Office of the Friends of Soviet Russia at 32 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill. for a date for this film. It will be ready for showing from March 1st on.

Debate Government Slaves?

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Rumors that wages of government employes will be deflated in the course of President Coolidge's "economy program" are worrying thousands of bureau clerks who are having trouble making both ends meet on their present stipends.

Rumors to this effect have been more rife since the President's address to the thousand federal executive officers who make up the business organization of the government, in which he stressed the need of reducing expenditures.

The pessimists point to the President's reference to the "general easing of conditions" as indicating that he is thinking of the unemployment period into which the country is now entering and which is calculated, business men say, to lower wage costs.

Yanson Goes to Rome.

MOSCOW.—M. Yanson, formerly Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Far Eastern Republic, who is holding an important government post in Russia, has been delegated to Rome for the negotations going on between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Italy anent the conclusion of a commercial treaty.

Japs Are Interested.

MOSCOW.—Mr. Matsuda, who has arrived here as representative of the Osaka Chamber of Commerce and a number of Japanese business firms, states that much interest is being evinced on the part of Japanese industrialists for concessions in the Russian Far East, chiefly forestry, fishing and mining concessions.

Mandolinists of Workmen's Circle Defy Bureaucrats

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY.—The mandolin orchestra of the Workmen's Circle in New York has made a little revolt of its own against the politicians of the machine of the organization, by refusing to play on Friday, January 19, at the campaign concert in Manhattan Temple, altho they were listed on the program.

The mandolin players have been fighting courageously for the last two years against the clique of leaders of the Workmen's Circle (Arbeiter Ring).

For one thing, they insist on playing at affairs arranged by Communists in spite of orders to the contrary. The mandolin orchestra cannot be browbeaten into submission by the Forward gang of Socialists which tries to dominate the Workmen's Circle.

VETERAN GETS FIRST COPY OF 'THE DAILY' AT BOSTON MEETING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass.—The first copy of THE DAILY WORKER in Boston was sold to John Francis Mullen for $11 and presented by him to Jacob Pask, eighty-year-old Communist of this city. This pleasing incident took place at the meeting called by the English Workers Party branches of Boston at New International Hall, to greet THE DAILY WORKER and express as a surprise to the assembly, who, however, recognized the appropriateness of the tribute.

At a time when most men are preparing for their grave, Comrade Pask is one of the most ardent workers for THE DAILY WORKER and an active propagandist for Communism. He responded with tears in his eyes pledging his wholehearted support for the DAILY and calling upon the comrades to contribute freely.

H. M. Wicks, who is lecturing in this district, was the speaker of the evening, outlining the part destined to be played by the DAILY WORKER in the American labor struggle. Speeches from the floor, that were really spontaneous, a musical program, and the singing of the Red Flag and The International marked a meeting that showed a fine enthusiasm and augurs well for the success of THE DAILY WORKER in this district. The sum of $53.85 was realized on the sale of the paper. H. J Canter was chairman.

English Railways Now 17 per Cent of Normal Service

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—The railway companies have reaffirmed their determination to meet with the striking engineers and firemen only on the basis of proposals made before the walkout.

This reply was made to a communication from the Society of Engineers and Firemen expressing its willingness to confer with the companies at any time in an effort to secure an adjustment.

This attitude of the railway companies is said to be based on the belief that the strike being a source of embarrassment to the new Labor Party ministry, the government will bring pressure to bear upon the strikers.

Charges that violence is being reported to by the strikers is made by the railway companies. They claim that a train was stoned near Northampton yesterday and that at Glasgow a train crashed thru some wooden obstruction. The charges have so far not been proved.

Passenger service is said to be about 17 per cent of normal.

MENTIONING THE MOVIES

By PROMETEUS

"Looking Up" Would Be a Good Title for a fine film which I saw recently that will soon be released. I do not mean that would mean only the picture. It is a love story, but it is also a story with a fine, clear social background. Movie titles, like newspaper headlines, are written to catch the eye, and, as in the case of "Looking Up," the title now headlines needs any essential connection with the contents of the story, so don't let that fool you. "Looking Up," means you away from this picture.

The story shows the keenest insight into the human and social business of the life of the workers, in this case of the harbor boatmen. The scene is a tiny coast wise lumber shipping town,—the here (Monty Blue), an ordinary, lovable, work-a-day tugboat captain, idolized by the sailor's engineer and the stepping young mate who make up the crew of the toughest "Mother's Darling" on sight, in fair weather or foul, the tiny tug is ready to pull much larger craft over the treacherous bar which all day blocks the harbor. And day after day the harbor bell tolls the death of one or more of the unseeming ones that the bar sees.

The young captain and his mate get married on the same day. The mate is drowned shortly after. According to the most movie hoakum a terrific storm would be used to remove him. Not so here. A bright clear day, but a rolling and a heaver on the afterdeck, the heavy line catches somewhere forward, the mate jerked and whirled, the line suddenly loosens, overboard, stunned by the propeller, and he never comes up. The same restraint characterizes the whole picture. The characters are human and they go along in a blundering, muddling, undecisive way just like real folks do.

The cap'n has a tough job to break the news to the mate's widow. But, like a true product of the sea, she takes the blow with fine courage. The acting of her part here and thru the whole play is a treat.

The death of the mate frightens the cap'y wife more than it procrastes the widow. The young wife first seeks to make him leave the sea entirely. But he knows nothing else, how could he earn their living? So they compromise with his promise never to go across the bar when there is any danger.

Her acceptance of this promise shows how utterly ignorant she is of work—of all work—the girl realizes. As soon ask a fireman to promise never to shovel coal, a G-11 blacksmith or a structural ironworker never to go above the second story. The cap'n continues his work in fair weather and foul, and every time he tackles a dangerous job he telephones his wife that he is detained on some harmless pretext. It is called a "loving lie" to keep her from worry.

The denouement comes in sharp tragedy. A child is expected at the cap'n's home. Nervous and fearful over the impending event, the wife makes her husband promise under any circumstances to leave the bar, she would die of fright if she awoke and found him gone. Enter the superstitious sailor. He knows he can save a ship caught on the bar. The man refuses to leave his house. The super visits Hattery and "You must be captain cap'n on the Coast." It falls flat. He cracks the economic whip, "If you don't go, it means your job." His job is cherished, but the human appeal is irresistible. "If a hundred lives are lost on the bar it will be your fault," and he quit. Many women and children are among them. Suppose it were your wife—and she drowned—because some captain had quit." A woman neighbor is hastily telephoned for and he goes.

The wife wakes, finds her man gone, and rushes out into the storm to seek him. Her child is born dead and her own life is barely saved. The fine, tragic irony of it, the very careful of her, the disappointment of an empty cradle is extremely hard for a woman to "see." And the village gossips get to work on the captain's friendship for his mate's widow and child.

It comes out all right in the end, to the tune of deaths and storms, a ship broken on the reef and a village wholly saved. Story, direction, photography, and acting—all of the kind that can make the movies the most important medium of mass expression yet known to mankind. Labor theaters should not fail to book the film, labor audiences should demand it, and the workers generally support it wherever it is shown.

GERMAN RULERS STICK KNIFE INTO EIGHT-HOUR DAY

54-Hour Week Ordered for Federal Employes

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Chicago Daily News Foreign Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN.—The eight-hour day, which has been tenaciously clung to by the workers of Germany as the most positive achievement of the revolution of 1918, has practically gone by the board. Notice has been served by the federal government that all government officials must work 54 hours a week.

In the Ruhr valley it has been agreed to lengthen time for underground miners from seven to eight hours, while miners working above hours, while miners working above ground are to work nine hours hereafter. It is agreed that in principle the eight-hour day shall be adhered to, and this is to represent only a temporary arrangement, but workers are exceedingly skeptical of this point.

The ministry of labor has issued a decree in accordance with the extraordinary powers given the government by parliament, by which the eight-hour day is still maintained "in principle," but exceptions may be made "whenever public interest makes this desirable." This is but a veiled way of practically throwing the eight-hour day into the discard.

10 Cents an Hour Wage.

BERLIN.—Now that Germany has gone back to a gold mark basis, it is becoming evident how underpaid the German worker is. The average wage of a full-time worker (and he is rather the exception) is 40 to 50 pfennigs, or 10 to 12½ cents an hour.

Also, there is a growing tendency to widen the gulf between skilled and unskilled workers, and between men and women and young persons.

The government is proceeding on the theory that low wages will mean the economic salvation of the country. The ministry of labor contends that a rate which is from 65 to 80% lower than the prewar wage is about the right standard today.

This position of the government is being fought by the unions. But as the treasuries of the workers' organizations are depleted, they can do little more than make a verbal protest.

Bok Learns Something.

"What do you mean by 'propaganda,'" asked Edward W. Bok of Senator Reed during the investigation of Bok's alleged peace activities in connection with his now famous peace plan.

"If you don't know, you have no business regulating the affairs of the world," retorted Senator Reed.

Bok Keeps His Secret

WASHINGTON.—The Senate investigation of the Bok Peace Award came to an abrupt halt today when Edward W. Bok refused to tell the committee the size of a fund he said he had established to advertise his $100,000 peace plan.

COMPANY UNION IN RHODE ISLAND PUT ON SHELF

Schemes of Crompton Company Defeated

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ARCTIC, R. I.—"Industrial democracy" as interpreted by employers has met decisive defeat at the hands of unionism in the village of Crompton, near here. The Crompton Company, manufacturers of velvets and corduroys, employing about eleven hundred workers, after a year of running fight with the Amalgamated Textile Workers of America lasting six months, has given up its attempt to establish the company union in its mills.

John Leach, a professional promoter of the scheme which embodies a sort of replica on a shop scale of the federal government of the United States, who has been on the payroll of the Crompton Company for about six months, has been dismissed. He had held several meetings of the employes at which he attempted to have them vote in favor of the plan, but each time he was defeated.

Late last fall a committee of workers was picked to visit certain plants said to be working under this scheme and they made a trip at the company's expense. Despite the fact that the company made much of their reports the workers again turned down the industrial democracy plan.

Local Pawtuxet Valley, Amalgamated Textile Workers, issued a series of leaflets against the scheme, the main argument being that it was nothing but a company union, which would be controlled by the bosses and their pets; that if the company really wished to deal fairly with the workers it would recognize the union. About 90 per cent of the Crompton workers are members of the local, with headquarters at Arctic.

During the past two months the Company has twice charged that workers employed in the plant were practicing sabotage. The first occasion was when a worker cut a piece of cloth, according to mill officials, and the second when a chunk of tar was found in a copper mixing kettle in the dye house.

William H. Derrick, general organizer for the Amalgamated, who is in charge in the Pawtuxet Valley, declares that the charges are utterly unfounded, and that the company is merely trying to get the workers suspicious of one another. Union members point out that the finding of the chunk of tar by the foreman before any damage was done, coupled with the fact that there is not the slightest evidence produced to show that a worker was responsible for placing it there, would tend to indicate that some over-zealous boss, had "done some detective work."

"We regret to see the Crompton Company taking the attitude of fighting its workers," said Organizer Derrick. "The Amalgamated Textile Workers is ready at any time to confer with the company and arrive at satisfactory means of adjusting everything that is of mutual concern to the firm and workers. A reasonably friendly attitude toward the workers, who are determined to maintain their own union would smooth out nine-tenths of the difficulties now confronting the management of the Crompton mills. We realize it is hard for textile manufacturers to assume such an attitude, as they have been little czars too long, but the Crompton Company officials would display good business sense in addition to humane sentiment if they would get over the old habit of thinking of themselves as feudal lords or slave owners."

What Congress Wants to Do With Foreign-Born Workers

NOTE—This is the second of a series of articles which the DAILY WORKER will publish on the laws which are now pending before Congress, directed against foreignborn workers who wish to come to this country and those in this country.

By C. E. RUTHENBERG

House Bill No. 450, introduced by Representative Philips of Butler, Pa., is more frank in its provisions for safeguarding the employing class of this country against workers of trade union or radical tendencies.

While this bill, introduced by Representative Raker, merely gives the Secretary of Labor the right to prescribe the information which the immigrant must give, Representative Philips frankly tells what the employing class desires to know about the immigrants before permission is granted to come to this country. The Philips bill makes it discretionary on the part of the Commissioner-General of Immigration as to whether any particular immigrant shall be permitted to come to this country and instructs that the Commissioner-General shall take into consideration the physical condition, the mental capacity, the moral qualifications of the applicant and also the desirability of the applicant as a resident or citizen of the United States from a social, economic and industrial viewpoint.

These have been the real reason for the avalanche of bills against the foreign-born workers. The employing class for years in Congress is saying is very much concerned about the social, economic and industrial viewpoint of immigrants who may wish to come to the United States. They want to bar all those who are in any way antagonistic to their specially privileged position and who may become part of a labor movement fighting for a higher standing of a labor movement, fighting for a higher standard of living for the workers of this country.

Under the provisions of this law, not a single European worker who believes in trade unionism, who has any radical political views, or the slightest inclination to fight against the capitalist system in any form, will get into the United States.

In other words, the employing class wants to bring to the United States only those workers who will be fit to become part of an army of docile labor that will never have the spirit to rebel against the oppression and exploitation to which these workers will be subjected.

Making Money Out of Immigration

The Philips bill in addition to what has been outlined above, has a provision for the United States to make the nice little sum of $10,000,000 annually out of immigrants workers. The bill provides that not more than 300,000 immigrants shall be permitted to enter this country each year and that each immigrant shall pay at the time of making his application for a visa the sum of $20. When the immigrant is denied permission to enter the United States, the government automatically returns 50% of the application fee, but should he come to this country, it will cost him the full $20.

Another provision of the Philips bill is that the Commissioner-General of Immigration shall "take into consideration the then industrial conditions in the United States" in determining the number of immigrants who are to be admitted in any one year. This is another clever provision making it possible for the employers to secure workers when they need them and to keep them away when they have no need for an additional labor supply. Of course, one of the times when the employers need labor badly is when there is a great strike on, such as a miners' strike, involving a half million workers.

THE MEANING OF COMMUNIST OBJECT LESSONS.

Article No. 4

The Junior Groups require in their communist education neither bulky tomes nor "pedagogic systems." Our guide book which has open our eyes to the crumbling capitalist social system. A working class teacher—and especially a communist teacher—needs one particular qualification—the power to observe and to understand what he observes. "Learn to see! Learn to hear. These are the mottoes of the leaders of the Junior Groups. And for their methods—these consist in inducing the children to express what arises in their own minds from what they themselves see and hear. Every shop window, every pedestrian on the street—rich and poor—his walk, his clothing, the men who push barrows and the men who ride in Rolls-Royces, the railroads—day coaches and pullmans—and the people who ride in them, the factories with their overseers and their workers, the barracks, soldiers and officers, the slum districts and the fashionable parts of the city—everything in life reflects the present character of the social system. Everything reflects the privileges of the possessing class and that class' statement of the bible: "In him that hath shall be given." These are all inexhaustible sources of communist teaching.

How many workers continue to go thru life with closed eyes and ears! The eyes of our children must see everything, their ears hear everything.

For example: We are walking along the street with the children. At a corner stands a beggar, perhaps—probably—a war hero, an ex-soldier, decorated with a badge of honor. The children will be astonished that this man, who fought "for God, Democracy and Country," must stand and beg for a living. We discuss with them the world war. We tell them why it was fought, and for whom. The poor "hero" must beg while the rich profiteers who were never in the trenches ride in great automobiles.

The children themselves ask a hundred questions and in discussing these things with the children they are answered. We do not give them ready made answers. We lead them to look for the causes of these various things.

There is a class feeling in all children. They all know that they suffer under the conditions of their life, and that suffices for the beginning. They are brought into the class struggle not thru any superimposed theories, thru actualities. Thus we neither "teach" them communism or ask them to learn the ready made lessons—we only lead and inspire them so that they become communists of their own accord. For children can be communists. The distribution of their paper, the "Young Comrade" among other children communist propaganda—sometimes even a militant activity.

There are instances in the Public Schools where the existence of hostile forces is brought to their observation and experience. They carry communism into the working class families. They arouse and inspire their parents. They become the leaders of their brothers and sisters. The child—far more than the adult—has force and energy enough to devote itself fully and without reservation to a cause and to agitate for it on all occasions, favorable and unfavorable alike.

The leaders of the Junior Groups are often startled and amazed by the energy and comprehension of the children. They realize the absurdity of all the old discussions of "pedagogic methods." Not only the leaders, but all of us can learn from the children.

SEE LEFKOWITZ HOWLING WITH ANTI-NYLANITES

Would Use Teachers' Union as Catspaw

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY.—A few days ago, Abraham Lefkowitz, the dourphy leader of the so-called American Labor Party, and delegate of Teachers' Union, Local 5, introduced a resolution in the New York Central Trades and Labor Council, condemning the efforts on the part of politicians to control the city school system, and demanding an investigation.

This is the same cry that is being raised by the Republican Party and the entire Anti-Hylan crowd. In other words Lefkowitz wishes the Teachers' Union as a catspaw for the dirty work of the politicians who demand a finger in the rich pie of patronage, who want the public schools controlled not by the Hylan people, but by themselves.

Here was an excellent opportunity to introduce the idea of the necessity for independent political action on the part of labor. The workers are vitally interested in the schools. They want their children to be properly educated. Instead of pointing out therefore, that the appointment of policy-making officials must of necessity involve politics, that the school system is but part of the machine of patronage necessary to strengthen the power of the city politicians, and that therefore the workers must establish their own political party to secure political control of the schools, Lefkowitz, a teacher of history and economics, ostensibly a profound student of the labor movement, and an advocate of independent political action, naively points out that we must protest against the use of politics in the schools. We can ascribe such tactics to but one of two causes—ignorance or insincerity.

Russia Trades With Persia.

MOSCOW.—A number of new large deals have been concluded with Persian merchants in Russian sugar and paper to be exported to Persia. The Russo-Oriental Chamber of Commerce intends to export to Persia one and a half million poods of sugar, which is 30 per cent of the prewar exports of sugar from Russia into Persia.

Gompers Hears Borah Rout Foes of Soviets' Rule

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Samuel Gompers and Chester Wright, the publicity engineer of the anti-red crusades, have been attending all the Senate Foreign Relation subcommittee hearings where Senator Borah is routing the foes of Russian recognition.

Borah's demand that the State Department furnish the "confidential" information which Robert E. Kelly, its Belshevik expert says it bases part of its case on, got no applause from Mr. Gompers who also declares that he has "trustworthy" sources of information that he does not reveal.

When Senator Pepper ran to the rescue of Kelly, saying that the alleged confidential information would be handled at executive sessions of the committee Borah burst out:

"Committee can do as it pleases; I don't want secret information for myself."

Borah forced Kelly to admit that lives would be imperiled by the State Department's disclosures of the sources of such information.

One of the horrors of Sovietism which Kelly testified to was the exclusion of workers and clergymen from voting in Soviet elections. In reply, Borah declared that the Soviet Government is responsible to the peasants constituting 80 per cent of the population and cited the adoption of the new economic policy to suit the demands of the agriculturalists.

Youth Week

By HENRY GAMBLE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CHICAGO.—The YOUNG COMRADE issued by the Young Workers League of America, has declared this week Youth Week. For instance, please save the Saturday issue just out. It is a special number for children. It is a symphony of art by children, for workers' children, 10, 11, 12 and 13 years of age. One of the kids' pictures is called "Workers' Children and Who Can Best Feel and Understand the Brutality of These Exclusive Capitalist Institutions (Boss Schools)." Another shows the children! Suffering is mainly a subjective condition. If we could get the child workers to express themselves, even if in crude letters and articles, you would have some bitter human documents of brutal degradation.

We have heard too much about "educating" children. The YOUNG COMRADE is an attempt to get away from the accepted idea of merely educating the children in established dogmas, long-continued servility. A worker's child is a rebel without any education. However, the proper systematic class education of the child is a most necessary step. His conditions of life, properly interpreted, are enough to stamp him an enemy of capitalism. Education thru observation of the class struggle and life," is the slogan of the Communist Children's groups, and that is the idea behind the YOUNG COMRADE.

The only a few months in existence, the YOUNG COMRADE has leaped to a 6,000 circulation, and is growing daily. The children of the working-class have been neglected; we pay the proper attention to the trade unions, political parties; and such things are necessary. But no Communist movement can overlook the millions of kiddies brought up in environments of misery and suffering and not use this potential army of future wage slaves in the interest of their own emancipation. Then, too, a child in the hands of some capitalist teacher is a future soldier against the working class.

Workers' Die in Wreck.

ALIQUIPPA, Pa.—Three men were killed when the boiler of a locomotive on a Pittsburgh and Lake Erie passenger train exploded here today.

The dead: George Clark, engineer, of McKees Rock; Urban Kuechler, fireman, and Jame R. Meade, road foreman engineer.

N. Y. Waiters Denounce Lies of 'Daily Forward'

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY.—Several hundred waiters in protest demonstration filled Broadway in the New York City, in front of the newspaper building of the Jewish Socialist Forward. The waiters, this yellow sheet, or yellow sheets, to denounce the Forward for printing lying reports against the waiters in Local No. 1 of the Waiters' Union. The demonstrating waiters carried posters with inscriptions such as these: "Why does the 'Forward' print lies about the waiters' fakes?" "Who controls the 'Forward'?" "We demand justice."

The reactionary henchmen of the Forward had committed treason toward in the elections of officers for that local, and the New York Forward put the blame on the left elements, printing all kinds of lies about them. The demonstration of the waiters was a spontaneous one, growing out of the conviction of the waiters that a small clique of Forward Socialists are conspiring against them.

Amalgamation means strength!

Asquith Back of MacDonald.

LYONS, France.—"Behind MacDonald, Asquith will rule," declared Walter Newbold at a Communist convention here, presided over by Marcel Cachin.

"The old Lloyd George policy will continue," he continued, "recognition of the Soviets being merely a concession to necessity rather than a mark of respect to the Labor regime."

"The first social crisis in England will show that the Labor Party, in coalition with the Liberals, is incapable of satisfying the demands of the British proletariat."

Get guilty thru the Labor Party!

Letters to The Daily

Music's Aim.

To THE DAILY WORKER:

In reply to your query whether the statement of Ivan Liberkny's music in "A WEEK" shall be published weekly or daily, I wish to go on record in favor of not publishing it at all. Nothing is weekly or daily in Communism. The novel is printed complete bound into a nice cloth bound book and sold for $1.50 per copy. I should advise your readers to immediately buy a copy of the novel from the Literature Department of the Workers Party, by sending the price to 1009 N. State St., Chicago, Ill. Then the reader can read it weekly or daily, just as he likes.

Hoping that you and your readers will accept this timely suggestion.—Nicholas Dozenberg, Director Literature Department, Workers Party.

Imperialism's Opportunity

Are the Mexican workers and peasants, after years of struggle oftentimes bloody, to surrender their hard-won liberties to an out-right dictatorship of American capital enforced by Mexican mercenaries commended by Yankee officers?

There can be little doubt that American capital, altho its government tentatively supports the Obregon regime, welcomes the present revolt of a faction more to the right than Obregon.

American and naval forces, once anchored in the ports or encamped on the soil of "backward" nations possessing rich natural resources, have a habit of remaining for an indefinite period as witness Haiti, Santo Domingo and the Phillipines, to say nothing of Cuba, which without an army of occupation in recent years, has become merely the private property of the sugar trust and the National City Bank.

Today a fleet of cruisers and destroyers lies off Tampico, the port of the richest oil region in Mexico and one of the richest in the world. De la Huerta, the chosen leader of the Mexican capitalists and landlords, controls this section with his counter-revolutionary forces.

What will the government of Wall Street in the White House do? Will it work to increase the dissension in Mexico? A two year old child can answer the question.

The recognition of the Obregon government was a bitter pill for Wall Street to swallow and the counter-revolution was as welcome as a heavy rain to a Kansas farmer. It will not be allowed to die as long as one chance remains of its being a good excuse for pushing our southern boundary southward, to use the happy phraseology of "Black Jack" Pershing.

Great Britain is too busy at home right now to make an effective protest in case our marines should protect her oil interests in the Tampico sector so efficiently that we might forget who owned them, but international complications spring up rather easily when any great power embarks on one of these grabbing expeditions.

The American workers, if they want peace for themselves and an opportunity for the Mexican workers and peasants to work out their own salvation, must demand the withdrawal of the fleet and a renewal of the hands-off policy in Mexico that the state department has abandoned at the request of powerful oil interests.

Finally Hits Home

While the Reverend William Sunday did battle with the devil and traveled far and wide in quest of grace and dollars Satan was raising hell with "Billy's" home. There he reigned supreme. Sunday knocked the devil around numerous tabernacles in every part of the United States and when he thought he "had 'im goin'" there was the evil one holding hands with Billy's two sons in Los Angeles.

One of them patronized bootleggers, of course under old Nick's influence, until finally in an effort to put the Reverend William Sunday out of business with a broken heart, the devil induced the youngest of Billy's brood to attempt suicide.

George, another scion of the Sunday family, is a real estate agent. Now, if there is any profession in which diabolical ingenuity is used to a greater degree than in the business of fastening land plots on unsuspecting citizens, the writer of this article has to be shown. The devil had it all his own way for a long time but perseverence can even move mountains, and Billy persevered.

The result is that George Sunday, real estate shark, has decided to drop some of his vices and throw a little sawdust in his path. Accustomed to selling lots on Sunday he has changed his schedule and from now on will allow his employees to spend their Sundays as they please.

The devil is reported to be as dejected as a politician defeated for office.

The cautious manner in which, in today's Washington dispatches, President Coolidge expresses the opinion that everything may not be quite honest and above-board in the Teapot Dome affair, shows that he is not the cold and calculating creature his enemies have pictured him. It is the tender care for the feelings of men after his own heart, such as Senator Fall, that shows the real man.

The granite of New England has been softened by the oil of Oklahoma—and other

Lenin and MacDonald

Lenin, the clear-sighted leader of the workers, the founder of the Third International, the arch foe of world capitalism that the enemy is to use the parliamentary machinery of capitalism for the overthrow of its inventors must end in disillusionment and defeat of the workers, is dead. The capitalist press of the world gloats over the good fortune that is their masters.

Ramsay MacDonald, the advocate of a futile parliamentarianism, adherent of the bankrupt Second International and foe of Communism, takes his place as the head of the British Empire on the same day that Lenin dies. In the capitalist press of the world are expressions only of a benevolent neutrality for the MacDonald government.

Sir Arthur Balfour, chairman of the association of British Chambers of Commerce, England's real rulers, speaking yesterday, said:

"I am not frightened by the Labor government and so long as it is not dominated by Communists I am willing to give every support in my power." On business matters, he said the chamber's services were always at the disposal of the government.

Here is a mighty contrast. The Soviet government of Russia, headed by Lenin, has been in power for seven years, yet every capitalist government in the world is its enemy. It has had to fight, for its existence since the day it was born of the struggles of the Russian workers and peasants and hundreds and thousands of these same workers and peasants gave their lives on a dozen fronts in the struggle against the armies of world capitalism.

No sooner had the Soviets—the form of government in which the power of the masses crystallizes in revolutionary periods—led by Communists, taken over Russia then every embassy of foreign governments became a center of counter-revolution plotting. In London, the daughter of Ramsay MacDonald is welcomed to Number 10, Downing street, by the wife of Stanley Baldwin, whom MacDonald replaces.

The British press is almost unanimous in expressions of approval of McDonald's cabinet. Even the Tory papers say "it might easily have been worse."

The opportunists and the advocates of class collaboration have a ready explanation for these striking contrasts. They say that they are due to the difference in the Russian and the English method, that the English have had a long training in democracy. Like most ready explanations this one is superficial where it is not consciously hypocritical.

The capitalist class is not composed of fools. Even the it were, it could hire servants with brains to warn it of danger. The almost fatherly attitude of world capitalism toward the reformistic MacDonald government is explained only by the fact that it endangers not even an outpost of British and world capitalism.

The capitalist class and its advisors know better than do the non-Communist workers and their leaders that, no matter what pretensions it may make, no party presuming to express the interests of the workers can do anything other than destroy itself and endanger the working-class by attempting to overthrow capitalism with parliamentary government—built by the capitalists themselves—as their only instrument.

The capitalist class of Great Britain knows that while some embarrassment for their more brazen exploitation enterprises may result from the labor party government the foundations of their system and the basis of their control—their ownership of natural resources, machinery, press and financial institutions—will not be seriously threatened.

The parliamentary process is a slow one; the capitalist class itself scraps it when an emergency arises; should any measure to which British capitalism has strong objection be proposed it will sabotage by tightening up on credit, by closing of factories, by campaigns in the capitalist press, by disaffection and bribery, by the thousand and one means possessed by a class still in control of the nation's wealth of defeating any attack on their ancient privilege of robbing the masses.

The MacDonalds believe, or profess to believe, that capitalism can be tricked and cajoled into surrender. This is the basis of the position of the parties of social reform.

Lenin believed, and the events of the last seven years have proven his contention to the hilt, that capitalism will never surrender; that it will fight to the death and see civilization destroyed rather than allow the workers to come into power.

The Communist parties of the world, the parties of world revolution, organized in the Third (Communist International) alone recognize the truth of Lenin's teachings—and the words of Sir Arthur Balfour are the expression of world capitalism.

The present ruling class will tolerate any government that is not Communist; which means that they fear no attempts to establish a real government of workers and farmers from any other working class party no matter what revolutionary phraseology is juggled by the tongues of its spokesmen.

Lenin lived and died a revolutionist.

MacDonald lives—but not as a revolutionist.

The Rev. Carl D. Case, alleged love pirate, was never more popular than he is now. Why not? The world admires a good lover. Without some spice in the pulpit who would care to labor in the Lord's vineyard?

This Is a Case of Blind-folding. By Robert Minor

Sink That Peace Ship!

By JAY LOVESTONE.

If every worker and farmer would only get the chance to read the "Social Activities" page of the Washington newspapers!

What splendid propaganda these gaudy columns contain against the enemies of the city and country workers!

What hell and damnation these columns pour into the camp of the "friends of labor"!

What damaging evidence these columns array against the "dirt-farm Senators and Congressmen!

Here is a typical gem culled from the "Society Page" of the Washington Post, regarded by many as the official mouthpiece of the royal family on Capitol Hill:

"The President and Mrs. Coolidge entertained aboard the Mayflower yesterday afternoon, their guests being for the most part recruited from the Senatorial contingent. The party included Senator and Mrs. Tasker L. Oddie, Senator and Mrs. Frank B. Willis, Senator and Mrs. Arthur Capper, Senator Frederick Hale, Senator and Mrs. Edwin F. Ladd, Mrs. Mae E. Nolan, member of Congress from California; the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and Mrs. Charles H. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. David S. Barry, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stearns, the Rev. and Mrs. Jason Noble Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic William Wile."

Coolidge's Flagship.

So here we have it! President Coolidge has learned something from Henry Ford. The strikebreaking Chief Executive has organized a peace ship, as it were—a ship where he signs peace with his political foes on his own terms. The Mayflower, the country's royal yacht, has become the peace ship of the Administration. On this boat the over-advertised "dirt-farmer" Senator Frazier from North Dakota has been entertained. On this boat the senior Senator Ladd from North Dakota has been twice entertained.

These tactics are pretty simple. A Senator's constituents get restless. There is danger of the Senator pretending to listen to the complaints. He soon threatens to become an insurgent. But in the eyes of the Administration pretensions are dangerous nowadays when they are popular. The President then arranges a cruise down the Potomac. The "insurgent" Senator gets an invitation from the President himself. If necessary even Mrs. Coolidge does the inviting. The "insurgent" is tamed. The "progressive" is flattered. After all, what is the Senator for if not to receive honors and be taken into "decent" company. The royal Mayflower goes down the Potomac—quite often they say even beyond the three mile limit. And down forever go the faintest progressive pretentions!

Ladd is Thru.

This is the story of the fake progressive Senator Ladd. His younger colleague Frazier has become somewhat frightened at the furor that his maiden trip on the Mayflower has brought on amongst his bankrupt farmer constituents in North Dakota. So Frazier is, for a while at least, thru with exhilarating Potomac air.

But Professor Ladd, oh well, he is different! He is an ex-professor of agriculture and therefore knows something about husbanding and raping virgin soil. Apparently the Professor Senator Ladd is convinced that his political Puritanism has been raped by his maiden Mayflower trip. Apparently he has become convinced that his constituents have already seen thru him much more than he had ever dreamt of in his worst nightmares. It would seem that Ladd knows he stands no more chance with the poor farmers whom he has fooled and betrayed. Ladd is now bent on building up new political fences with his new angels. For the poor farmers and the exploited workers the story of the complete disgraceful collapse of Senator Ladd has become a lesson.

Some Pertinent Questions.

Let the farmers of North Dakota ask some questions from the ex-Senator Ladd. Let Senator Ladd answer them and explain if he can. Otherwise let North Dakota farmers kick him into the alley.

Now, Senator Ladd, do you think that associating and hobnobbing with the worst enemies of the farmers helps the bankrupt farming masses in any way at all?

Do you think that the farmers who voted for you, the farmers whose debt increased more than a hundred per cent in the last decade, are helped by your Saturday afternoon cruises with Coolidge who has told the farmers to go shuffling for themselves?

Do you think that your peace treaty with the Wall Street Administration will be of any aid to the thousands of farmers who have deserted their farms because they could not raise enough money to pay even taxes to help finance your pleasant Mayflower trips down the Potomac on Saturday afternoons?

What business have you whom we have sent to Washington to fight for us against the big railroad interests of making merry with the reactionary Senator Hale who has voted for the Esch-Cummins railroad-bonus Act that is responsible for so much of our misery today?

What business have you dining and wining Senator Oddie who boasts of being one of the most powerful cattle kings in the land while we are paying millions in ransom to the Beef interests?

Do you call these cruises down the Potomac with Coolidge and his boss Frank W. Stearns, the millionaire textile operator and Boston banker, service to you who are in desperate want here in North Dakota?

Is that what we sent you to Washington for?

No, Senator Ladd. Perhaps you think that the blessings and the benign influence of the Reverend Jason Noble Pierce aboard the Mayflower may wipe away your sins. We who are facing disaster and ruin and hunger in North Dakota don't think so. We know you by this time. We are thru with you and thru with you for good.

We will never send you again to Washington to enjoy pleasant cruises on the Potomac with our worst enemy, President Coolidge. We have tried you, Mr. Ladd. You have been found sadly wanting—criminally negligent of our interests. The Presidential political peace ship has become the ship bearing your dead political hopes. The farmers will sink that ship and with it will go down forever the political hopes and aspirations of you Mr. Ladd and your kind, that "friend of labor" from California, Congresswoman Mae Nolan.

Finnish Socialists Betray Communists

The Social-Democratic members of the Finnish Riksdag have threatened a parliament strike if the Finnish government does not call the new elections. The new elections are necessary because all 27 Communist deputies and hundreds of leading Communists are in prison.

But the Social-Democracy is not the defender of the imprisoned Communists. It wishes the new elections only because it thinks it can capture the Communist seats. The Finnish Social-Democrats are just as responsible for the persecution of the Communists. As a proof we print a letter by a Finnish comrade who writes from prison:

"The heroic revolutionary rising of the working class of Finland in 1918, is well known to all class-conscious workers in every land. It is equally well known how the bourgeoisie came out of it victorious, establishing a most savage white terror, during the period of which, 90,000 workers of both sexes were driven to concentration camps, where about 15,000 were starved to death, and some 36,000 executed. All the labor organizations were suppressed, of course. And in this manner the demands of "civilization" were satisfied.

But the defeated working class rallied again. And in May, 1920, the representatives of the revolutionary workers gathered together to establish the "Socialist Party of Finland." By breaking up that congress the bourgeoisie demonstrated that the [illegible] still reigned. (The [illegible] delegates, of course, were allowed to organize their party as early as in 1918.) The workers replied to the action of the chief of police of Helsingfors (the instrument of reaction) by establishing the "Socialist Labor Party of Finland" in June, 1920. From that date our party has been continually under fire. The bourgeois have charged us with receiving gold from the Russian government. Their newspapers tell hair-raising stories of our alleged underground work. From the very birth of our party they have warned the ruling class of our treasonable activities. These knights of the defense-guard of bourgeois law and order have pointed us out to the state police (Schutzmas) as being plotters, who, with the help of the Red Army of Russia, are trying to convert Finland into a Russian colony. And their efforts have been in vain. Their labors have born fruit.

Hundreds of the active members of our party are languishing in prisons and penitentiaries for being true to the cause of socialism. But the fury of the bourgeoisie reached its climax on the 3rd of August, when the mass arrests of the alleged communists were carried thru. On that day all the members of the party executive, and of our parliamentary group (27), besides innumerable ordinary party members were dragged behind prison bars. All the party organs were suppressed and the printing establishments and all other property of the party confiscated. The number of arrested amounts to about 500.

According to [illegible] reports, we are to be charged with "high-treason." And the sentences will be as heavy as the laws allows. Newspapers are agitating for that end already. A paper published in the Swedish language, entitled "Nyland" writing of the arrested communists demanded: "—most of them must be hanged as a punishment for their crimes and as a warning to others. There are enough telephone-posts along the highways." Fine proof of the barbaric instincts of our bourgeoisie! They are out to uproot communism. But they will see that the day of the triumph of communism shall come. After rain comes sunshine.

One will ask, what are the social-democrats doing now the field is cleared for them? They, of course, had to change their tactics in order to retain the support of the workers. On one hand they condemn the government by bringing evidence against us, that it is false. On the 4th of August, some social-democratic leaders visited the Minister of the Interior hypocritically asking why such harsh action had been taken against the communists and on what ground. The minister replied that such action was taken because the communists are attempting to overthrow the government by force and with the aid of a foreign state. The chairman of the Social-Democratic Party, Väino Tanner answered, according to the official organ of the party: Sosialidemokraasti of August 6th: "In Sweden and England the Communists are allowed to talk freely as much as they please, but [illegible] different. [illegible] ready, with the aid of foreign power to destroy the independence of our country." That is the main charge against us. And the social-democratic leaders are testifying it. But how could they do otherwise without severing their friendly relations with the government, which pays high salaries to many of them. In the Sosialidemokraasti of August 17th, appears an appeal to the workers of this country. It bears as a heading "Leave the Communist Party." The appeal declares: "If you don't want to yield up the independence of Finland, if you don't want to be defeated in the struggle against the bourgeoisie of this country, there is at least time to denounce communist principles, to leave that (communist) party, and to return to the old Social-Democratic Party ." These few quotations shows the game being played by the social democratic leaders in the suppression of our party.

We felt somewhat encouraged when reading in the papers that comrades in Norway have boycotted a Finnish bourgeois choir on its visit to Christiania and that the Communist youth of Norway are heading the boycott-campaign against the bourgeoisie of Finland. It is a fine example of international class solidarity.

We in the prisons of barbaric Finland want to proclaim to the workers of the world, that although we are in chains behind iron bars, we are not defeated. The struggle will be carried on by those outside, whatever form it will take. In Comrade Ralph Chaplin's words: "We make a vow no tryant might shall make us bend a knee." Jailed or free we will fight for the common cause of the proletariat.

When Glory Comes

By J. O. BENTALL

New York and the rest of the world has been aroused by a piece of startling news such as comes only after the death of some neglected genius.

The news, however, is not of the genius and his work, but of the exciting fact that a rich woman rescued his dead body from the potters' field.

Johannes Sophus Jolart had labored in obscurity till he was tired of life. He had produced masterpieces of art that had made him famous as a sculptor on two continents, but his fame had brought him no reward that could be translated into bread, so that between hunger and cold he had sought death, unsuccessfully. The next worse fate that he hankered after was the poor house which he entered, successfully. Also he died there, successfully, and was buried in the potters' field, successfully.

It was when the rich lady found this out that she opened her heart and the sculptor's grave and had his body removed to a respectable grave where services were held and flowers left by the arts women who needed a thrill and a headline in the metropolitan newspapers.

Sculptors are very useful members of society. The Communists of Russia give them a free hand to work out the best that is in them. Feed the children and the artists first, is the slogan of the Bolsheviks. Feed the fat capitalists first, is the slogan of free America, and let the children die and the artists be routed out of their graves after they are dead.

PROGRESSIVE MINERS BLOCK LEWIS MACHINE

O'GRADY TO BE BRITISH RUSS AMBASSADOR

J. H. Thomas Quits As Rail Union Secretary

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—The Labor Party ministry is now in charge of the affairs of the British Empire with Ramsay MacDonald doubling in the offices of premiers and secretary for foreign affairs.

Two cabinet appointments have occasioned surprise. One is the naming of Lord Chelmsford, former viceroy of India, as first lord of the admiralty and the other is the appointment of John Wheatley, generally considered as belonging to the left wing of the Labor Party, as minister of health. Wheatley came from the Clydeside and it is from this well-organized industrial section that the most trouble for the government is looked for. Housing is a burning question in the Scottish industrial district and with this the minister of health will deal. On the question of unemployment the minister of health will also exercise a great influence and it is this domestic matter that will first demand the attention of the Labor Party ministry.

Resignation of Cecil.

One of the first of a number of pressing foreign affairs demanding MacDonald's attention was to receive the resignation of Lord Robert Cecil as British representative on the League of Nations council.

Cecil will be succeeded by Lord Parmoor, president of the council in MacDonald's cabinet, and it is understood he and the prime minister will press vigorously for early inclusion of both Russia and Germany in the League of Nations.

Russ Recognition Up.

Other problems accumulating for MacDonald's attention are recognition of Russia, ratification of the Lausanne treaty and the Tangier convention, negotiations regarding the Mosul oil fields and the Egyptian dispute, to say nothing of the Anglo-French dispute about occupation of German territory and over reparations.

It is considered unlikely that MacDonald will be required to devote much attention to the rail strike, as tho there was no break in the deadlock today and J. Bromley, leader of the engineers and firemen, who went out Sunday midnight, said the strikers positon was stronger than ever.

O'Grady for Ambassador.

There seems to be no doubt in the public minds here that full recognition to Soviet Russia will be had as soon as the government can get thru the routine work occasioned by a change of ministries. As ambassador to Russia the name most mentioned is that of James O'Grady. He is known to be sympathetic to the Soviet Republic and is well-informed on Russian affairs having made two visits there, in 1917 and 1922. He is also the author of a book on Russia and took an active part in opposing British intervention in the internal affairs of the Soviet.

Strike Situation Serious.

The railroad strike situation continues serious. Tom Shaw, new minister of labor, has had a long con-

FOSTER ASKS FLOOR IN MINERS' CONVENTION TO REFUTE SLANDERS

William Z. Foster has demanded the floor in the Indianapolis Convention of the United Mine Workers of America to answer to slanders hurled at him and the Trade Union Educational League. His telegram to William Green Secretary of the convention, was as follows:

* * * *

William Green, Secretary,
United Mine Workers of America,
Indianapolis, Indiana.

Information has reached me that a resolution submitted by International Organizer Ben Williams, thru Taylor Bell local union, viciously attacking me as an enemy of the United Mine Workers of America, is now pending in the convention.

Therefore I request that I be given an opportunity to make suitable reply to the same on the floor of the convention when it is acted upon.

United Mine Workers will not condemn a union man of long standing without giving him an opportunity to defend himself. I am coming to Indianapolis for that purpose.

(Signed) William Z. Foster.

MINERS OF NOVA SCOTIA DESCRIBE LEWIS' TREASON

Claim Union Officials Aided Corporations

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The deposing of Secretary-Treasurer James B. MacLachlan and other officials of District 26 and their denunciation by John L. Lewis while they were fighting for the removal of troops from the district is one of the chief reasons why MacLachlan was convicted and sent to the penitentiary for two years, says a statement issued by Local 4529 of that district and distributed to the delegates here.

The high-handed methods used by the Lewis machine to prevent thoro consideration and favorable action on the appeal of District 26 has aroused new interest in the case and the matter is not to be allowed to drop according to Canadian delegates.

The statement follows:

Dear Brother: At the convention resolutions from District 26, (Nova Scotia) will be presented to you asking for the return of our District Charter which was revoked by the International President, and the reinstatement of the officers deposed by the International President last July 17th. The circumstances surrounding these actions of our International

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A long and rambling soap-box speech against Russian and American Communists was the contribution that A. W. Klieforth, Secretary Hughes' witness, made to the hearings of the senate foreign relations subcommittee which is investigating propaganda.

The weakness of the speech by the anti-red expert was that he was never able to substantiate any of his assertions, when asked to make good by Senator Borah.

Klieforth explained that he wanted to save the committee time that might be lost by perusal of the corroborative documents the senators asked him to produce.

Endless Line of Mourners Passes Bier of Nicolai Lenin

(By Our Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW.—In the great banqueting hall of what was once the nobles' club, rendezvous of Russia's nobility, the body of Nikolai Lenin reposed in a simple coffin upon a humble couch today, while his comrades of the revolution paid him last honors as they passed slowly in single file.

The face of the dead Premier was calm and waxen and in the play of brilliant lights it seemed to wear an expectant look.

Soldiers of the Red Army, with fixed bayonets, stood at rigid attention or kept order with hushed voices.

The line of mourners was endless. Scores of thousands stood in the bitter cold and snow; it was 20 degrees below zero during the night. The line extended six deep for many blocks and grew constantly as thousands more joined in the hope of a last look at Lenin.

Inside the hall the mourners shuffled forward silently, many weeping.

Commissars took turns in the death watch; that of Foreign Minister Chicherin came at 3:30 A. M. today.

Word from the Caucasus was to the effect that Leon Trotsky probably will be unable to come to Moscow for the funeral Saturday. The war minister is ill and has a high temperature.

Rank and File Delegates in Revolt Staging Big Comeback That Upsets Lewis Machine

By JOHN FITZGERALD

(Staff Correspondent of The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The Lewis steam-roller, that yesterday rolled over and crushed the resolutions asking for a square deal for the Nova Scotia miners, this morning was blocked by a solid wall of protest and anger that ended in bringing the administration forces the first defeat they have received at this convention.

Since the convention adjourned in an uproar last night, after the hysterical speech of Lewis against the imprisoned leader of the Nova Scotia miners, John McLachlan, the indignation of the delegates has been growing every hour. When the convention opened today Lewis found a different spirited bunch of men than those he faced yesterday.

Rank and File Challenges Machine.

Angry voices were raised and fists shaken at the platform. The rank and file challenged the machine, fought it and beat it until it went lurching to its first defeat.

Delegates Take Platform.

Many of the delegates insisted on walking up to the platform and speaking from that vantage point. Practically every speaker denounced Lewis for his action against the Nova Scotia miners and imprisoned Jim McLachlan.

The defeat of the machine came on a motion of the resolutions committee to non-concur with Resolution 80, demanding that all resolutions sent in by local unions be read as sent in and that the delegate representing the local signing the resolution be allowed to explain his resolution.

Machine Over-Reaches Itself.

Flushed with its victory of the previous day, the committee chairman rose at once referred to the opposition [illegible] as "fakers" and "propagandists."

This was bitterly resented and Thomas Kennedy, president of District 9 and Martin Flynik of District 10, were hereld down for their insinuations against the delegates.

Plenty of Discussion.

The administration allowed plenty of time to discuss this minor question and was pointed out by Freeman Thompson, this was in striking contrast to yesterday's method of stifling debate.

Every delegate who took the floor with the exception of Lee Hall, president of District 6, spoke but little on the resolution, but devoted most of his time to rebuking the actions of the evening before.

Lewis Gets Slips.

Delegate Morgan of Nordegg, Canada, denounced Lewis for refusing to allow McLachlan's friends to defend him. Lawrence Lamb, of Springfield, established a precedent for the rank and file by being the first to take the platform.

This move was greeted with cheers. Lewis was losing his hegemony over the convention. Delegates William Deck, J. J. Watt and Thomas Parry also opposed the committee report.

Blames Lewis for Trouble.

Thomas Hern, of Locustdale, Pa., an anthracite miner, said that the whole trouble at this session could be laid to the action of Lewis in refusing the delegates from Nova Scotia a chance to be heard.

He declared that the resolutions committee should be elected from the floor of the convention and not appointed by the machine. He was applauded even by some of the Lewis messenger boys.

Evan Green Fails.

Strenuous efforts were made by the rush of feeling against, even Secretary William Green, the "Pinch-hitter" of the administration forces taking the floor; the miners, however, were on the clean-up and they vented wrath for the crucifixion of the Nova Scotia miners on the resolution committee.

The committee report was defeated overwhelmingly and the original resolution carried.

Progressive Committeeman Unseated.

At the opening of the convention today Joseph Chicolini, of Pennsylvania, was unseated for membership in the Progressive Miners International Committee.

A resolution calling for the affiliation of the miners with the railroad workers brought out the information that attempts on the part of the United Mine Workers to arrange such an agreement had been unveiling be-

FALL TO SAY A DEMOCRAT GAVE DOUGH

Full Story of $100,000 Will Be Told

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—A report spread thru the Senate office building today that Fall has informed a senator "the full story of the $100,000 would be told." This is the $100,000 Fall said he got from E. B. McLean to buy a ranch, but which McLean later said Fall didn't use.

This report had it that Fall would say he obtained the money from a democrat, seven months after the lease of Teapot Dome. The democrat was not an oil man.

Senator Walsh was informed of the report, but would make no comment.

Walsh Misses Doheny.

Senator Walsh, Montana, went to the Union Station today after Doheny arrived on his private car, but said he did not see Doheny who was in seclusion in a hotel.

"I am satisfied Doheny will tell all the facts about the leases he is concerned in," Walsh said.

Senator Lenroot, chairman of the public lands committee, asked Walsh for a conference and the two went into Lenroot's office.

Fall and Col. J. V. Zeverly, Sinclair's Washington attorney, are due in Washington at 10:20 tonight, according to a telegram received here from the train on which they are traveling. Both Fall and Zeverly were reported as remaining in seclusion in their compartment, having their meals taken to them.

Secretary of the navy Denby conferred with President Coolidge at the White House for 15 minutes today, but would not admit he talked about Teapot dome.

Denby refused to comment on the senate investigation beyond saying that so far as he could see, no facts had been disclosed yet.

Denby Approved Grab.

Denby approved the naval oil reserve leases with Sinclair and Doheny. He testified before the senate committee some months ago, that the leasing was "a detail" which he did not carefully investigate.

Denby has told friends within the past 24 hours that his conscience is easy on the naval leases and that he will not get into the matter unless he is drawn in.

The Teapot dome scandal, which for a long time was "just another senate investigation" to most people has become almost overnight a three-

Actor Cries, "Hurrah, Lenin Is Dead!" Gets Hissed In Minneapolis Theatre

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—The actor appearing in the Russian Yarmack troupe who cried "Lenin is dead! Hurrah!" as he danced upon the stage, was hissed by the select audience of the Hennepin-Orpheum theatre here.

Among the dancers of the Yarmack troupe are former members of the Russian aristocracy and frankly monarchist in their sympathies. Both stage they are reported to have cursed Lenin and to have rejoiced in his death.

On the other hand some of the dancers are sympathetic to the Soviet regime. Theodor Steganoff, featured dancer of the troupe, who was reported in the press to have said that "Lenin was a great man and sincere" was given a tremendous ovation by the same audience that a few minutes before had hissed the actor of monarchist leanings.

Facts About the Nova Scotia Situation

resident are such that we are of the opinion that the delegates to our convention should be informed of them. With this object in view our Local Union No. 4529, New Aberdeen, N. S., has drawn up the following statement.

No. Contract Violation.

In July, 1922, our District officers were accused by the International President of calling a strike in violation of a contract with the British Empire Steel Corporation. The strike last July was not called in violation of the contract because there was no clause in the contract prohibiting the miners from quitting work during the period of the contract. In previous contracts with the corporation there was a clause prohibiting the stoppage of work during the period of the contract, but in the last contract signed in August 1922 this clause was opposed by the representatives of the miners, and was endorsed by a referendum vote of the district. Therefore we do not fear contradiction when we assert that the contract was not violated when the strike was called on July 3rd, 1923.

The strike of July, 1923, was called as a protest against the use of armed forces in industrial disputes, and was provoked by the attack of the provincial police sent by the provincial government of Nova Scotia to compell the steel workers of Sydney to return to work without gaining the demands for which they struck on June 28th. On July 1st this police force charged the pickets of the steel workers and in the attack rode down many people not connected with the strike in any way with the result that many of them were injured including women and children.

Evil of Long Standing.

For many years the miners of District 26 have suffered by the use of armed troops by the coal operators to prevent us raising our wages to the level of those prevailing in other districts of our union. In 1909 troops were used to prevent the miners joining the U. M. W., and in 1922 during the strike in August against the 37 per cent reduction in wages which the corporation tried to force us to accept troops were sent to the District. The corporation has used these troops against us without provocation since then has never been any disorder during our strikes which would make the use of troops necessary. The Town Council of Glace Bay in our District has always protested against the use of these troops by the corporation to intimidate the miners.

Therefore the strike in July last year had no connection with wages, conditions of labor, or the contract with the corporation. It was a protest against the use of troops by the corporation in industrial disputes. Last May the provincial politics actually raided our district office in the absence of our officers, and pried into the documents of our union there. The homes of our district officers were also raided during this time. The corporation has used this armed force in the attempts to smash our union and throw us back into the disorganized state we were in before we organized District 26, U. M. W. Under these circumstances is was our duty to make as effective a protest as possible against the troops which the corporation is constantly using against organized labor in the province of Nova Scotia.

Leaders Revokes Charter.

On July 17th, the International President revoked our District Charter, and deposed our regularly elected District officers without an investigation into the situation. Our officers have not been given a trial, which they are entitled to as members of the union. The International President proceeded to set up a provisional district, and appointed as provisional officers men who had been overwhelmingly defeated when they stood for election in the district elections in August 1922.

Provisional Officials Use Police.

These provisional officers commenced injunction proceedings in the courts against the deposed officers in the same manner as the corporations have used injunctions against our union. They drove the district officers from the district office by means of calling the town police, the armed provincial police, and the Militia. We wish to point out to you that it is in violation of all the principles of our organization that application should be made to the courts for action against members of our union until the matter has been disposed of by the institutions of our union. Despite this these provisional officers did this, to the detriment of our union in Nova Scotia.

At the same time International President ordered the locals to return to work under threat of losing their charters. Had the miners of this District remained on strike the district would have been destroyed and a split caused in our organization. Rather than risk this the miners returned to work and preserved the unity of our organization. Nevertheless the miners of this district understand thereby that they could have forced the withdrawal of the troops from the province, in spite of the corporation, the provincial and federal governments, and the troops and armed police, if the International President had not aided their forces by revoking our charter deposing our officers and threatening to cancel the charters of our locals if the miners did not return to work.

Betray Indicted Men.

At the time our district officers were deposed the corporation had been able to get them arrested on charges of seditious libel. The fact that they had been deposed and denounced by the International Union is conclusive proof of our position in this matter. The fact that our deposed Secretary-Treasurer, James B. MacLachlan has been sent to the penitentiary for two years.

When the provisional officers were unable to secure a decision in the courts to which they were entitled they gave up their injunction proceedings. The miners of this district have refused to take any action which would split our union, and have stuck loyally to the U. M. W. The provisional officers who have been foisted upon us against the will of the vast majority of the rank and file have no standing with the miners because of their actions in the past in trying to force the miners to accept a wage reduction which would have brought the wages of the local workers down to $2.64 a day. The miners have no confidence in these men, and they could never have been elected to the office in this district because of their bad records.

Was Autonomous District.

When this District, which until 1910 was organized as the Amalgamated Mine Workers of Nova Scotia, became a district of the U. M. W. it was done by means of a tri-party agreement between the operators, the mine workers of Nova Scotia and the United Mine Workers of America.

Before the operators would recognize the District of the U. M. W. it had to be agreed on the demand of the operators, that this District would have complete autonomy, so that the coal operators of Nova Scotia would not have to face a strike of the mine workers of Nova Scotia called by the International President because of conditions existing in the United States at that time.

This is the understanding upon which the International President at that time sent us our charter.

LEWIS RAVES EXCITEDLY ON "RED MENACE"

Tries to Confuse the Real Issue Before Delegates

By JOHN FITZGERALD

(Staff Correspondent of The Daily Worker)

TOMLINSON HALL, Indianapolis, Ind.—Wild scenes were enacted late yesterday in the miners' convention here when the administration machine closed debate on the resolutions condemning John L. Lewis, president, for revoking the charter of District 26, Nova Scotia, while that district was on strike against the use of troops by the Canadian government.

Lewis, in a speech that was obviously composed to confuse the real issue (the lining up of the international union officials with the British Empire Steel Company and the Canadian government) covered the alliance between Nova Scotia and Moscow. In the best style of the old-time stump orators he raved about the red menace and denounced the opponents of his administration as enemies of society in general and the United Mine Workers in particular.

Lewis Recognizes Himself.

The resolutions committee had offered a substitute for the Nova Scotia resolution glorifying Lewis and the international officials. A Canadian delegate was on his feet immediately. Lewis said, "The chair recognizes himself" and then proceeded to attack John McLachlan and the officers of District No. 26, claiming that they thought more of the instructions of the Red Labor Union International than of the laws of the United Mine Workers of America.

He wound up by saying that McLachlan is in jail now for violating the laws of Canada and the British Empire and, so far as he (Lewis) is concerned, he can stay there. McLachlan has been sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for denouncing the use of troops by the government and the Canadian steel trust to break a strike of steel workers.)

When Lewis finished his tirade, Vice-President Murray took the chair and declared the previous question had been called for and carried the opposite appeared to be the case. On a viva voce vote he declared the substitute resolution carried.

Storm Breaks.

A demand was made for a roll-call which was denied by Murray but such a storm of protest broke loose that he finally asked if the necessary thirty per cent of the delegates present wanted the roll-call.

The machine-controlled poll (421 of the 1,800 delegates present, but the prevailing opinion is that they were extremely short-sighted

Tactics Astound Reporters.

Experienced convention reporters for capitalist papers claim to have never seen a more brazen abuse of power than the tactics employed by Lewis in crushing a man who could not be at the convention because he is in jail for his loyalty to his union and his class while Lewis defends the right of the British Empire Steel company to put and keep him there.

The convention went on record for recognition of Soviet Russia by the adoption of a resolution to which the resolution committee had added a few phrases cribbed from statements of Secretary of State Hughes.

A cautiously worded resolution on affiliation with the Farmer-Labor party movement was passed by the convention with ference with the members of the unions involved and the executive of the Trades Union Congress of which he made a report to the first meeting of the cabinet.

The Trade Union Congress executive has appointed an emergency committee to intervene in the strike when the moment is considered opportune.

Thomas Quits Secretaryship.

J. H. Thomas, has resigned his position as secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen to devote his whole time to his duties as colonial secretary. It is believed that this will tend to diminish the hostility which exists between his organization and that of J. Bromley, secretary of the Society of Enginemen and Firemen, the union now on strike.

A meeting of the railway managers adjourned after long debate without answering the offer of the strikers for fresh conferences.

Britain's Labor Ministers.

LONDON.—After the excitement of watching the first Labor party ministry take over the government of the British empire, London has settled down to its old routine with the feeling that this new government will make few if any basic changes in the political and economic system. Even the conservative press and the big industrialists and bankers with few exceptions point out that the Labor party chiefs are "moderates" who are apt to steer a "safe" course under the "sobering pressure of responsibility." The severest critics of the new cabinet are the left wing Socialists and the Communists.

"Safe and Sane."

Examination of the records of the new cabinet officers supports the belief that most of them are "safe," which explains the co-operation of Asquith and the Liberals.

Ramsay MacDonald, the new premier and foreign minister, has long been a leader of the Cantriet group in his party and the European Socialist movement. Born in Scotland in 1866 of peasant parents, he began work at the age of 12. At 19 he was a Socialist. First a teacher and then a journalist, he began his political career as a secretary to a Liberal M. P. In 1900 he was elected to parliament from Leicester and served till 1918. He was the first secretary of the labor party. During the war he was prominent as a pacifist, and as such resigned the chairmanship of the parliamentary Labor party which supported the war.

Clynes for League.

J. R. Clynes, lord of privy seal and deputy leader house of commons, is the chief of the moderates of the right wing of the party and as such succeeded MacDonald as official party leader during the war hysteria.

He was a member of the coalition war government as food controller. He is a strong advocate of the present league of nations. Of Irish parents, he began work at 10 in a cotton mill. Long a union organizer, he later became president of the National Union of General Workers.

Henderson Ex-Sky Pilot.

Arthur Henderson, the new home secretary, is the organizing expert of the party, an able politician. Known as "Uncle Arthur," he is a prominent Wesleyan lay-preacher.

Thomas Conservative Unionist.

J. H. Thomas, new secretary for colonies, is another conservative Laborite, president of the Amsterdam International Federation of Trade Unions.

Sydney Webb—Fabian.

Sydney Webb, president board of trade, is a noted British economist, founder of the London School of Economics. With Bernard Shaw, he began and carried on the Fabian Socialist society, the intellectual and theoretical side of the Labor movement. He is the author of many authoritative books on co-operatives, unions, and Socialism.

Tom Shaw, minister of labor, is a joint secretary of the Amsterdam Socialist International. He came into the Labor party as a trade union official in the Amalgamated Weavers Association.

Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, is a brilliant intellectual and one of the ablest speakers in parliament. He was an early member of the Independent Labor party (socialist) and a member of parliament from 1906 to 1918. His profession has been that of a member of the civil service, which he entered at 22.

Viscount Haldane, lord chancellor, has held important cabinet positions in several Liberal governments.

Viscount Chelmsford, first lord of the admiralty, formerly a Tory, was viceroy of India.

Wheatley—Lone Leftwinger.

The only man in the new ministry ranked as a "radical" is John Wheatley, minister of health. He is one of the left wing Glasgow group.

50 Firetrap School Houses Peril Chicago Children, But School Board Does Nothing

Since THE DAILY WORKER began its investigation of fire trap public school buildings the chief engineer of the Board of Education has informed the buildings committee of the board that more than fifty public schools in the city are fire traps.

According to John C. McDonnell, chief of the fire prevention bureau of the fire department, the Board of Education and the superintendents of schools are the "hardest people in the world to convince of the necessity of fire prevention equipment." The chief of the bureau made this statement in a report to the mayor on the work of his bureau. The report was submitted to the city council for action.

REFUSE TO CLOSE UNSAFE SCHOOLS.

The report of the bureau says that all sorts of buildings now being used by city and state institutions are unsafe and a menace to life. The engineers of the bureau are working on a list of such buildings which they declare are unsafe. Public school buildings which should be condemned are in use because of alleged lack of funds. The report of the bureau states that if all unsafe schools and other public buildings were closed the public would protest so much that that bureau of fire prevention would be forced to reopen them.

As an example of the difficulty the bureau of fire prevention has to meet with in dealing with those in charge of schools the report recites the following incident:

"I have in mind a recommendation made by this bureau in March, 1923, concerning the Wentworth school and the Perkins Bass school, both on the south side. Sprinkler systems were asked for in both instances. A fire escape and changes in the fire drills were urged. Also that the loose chairs in the assembly hall be fastened to the floor. These recommendations were sent to the President of the Board of Education and Superintendent Mortenson, who sharply knocked out all recommendations in a letter to the fire commissioner."

Nothing Is Done.

Since then nothing to improve conditions in these schools has been done.

Is the Board of Education interested in the safety of the children who attend the public schools?

In submitting the report of the bureau of fire prevention to the council the mayor said that on account of the present shortage of buildings he hesitated to close any and hoped that tragedy could be averted till vacation when he would advocate emergency measures be taken. The mayor's message together with the report of the fire prevention bureau were referred to the committee on buildings.

40 Are Unsafe Buildings.

Engineers of the Fire Prevention Bureau are at work making up a list of public schools which they consider unsafe.

School children are being housed in buildings more than sixty-years old. The fire prevention has announced as its building policy that no building that can be made "safe, sanitary, and usable will be replaced by a new structure." Their plans for the repair of old buildings and the erection of new ones makes no mention of the 50 schools that the condition of which was described in yesterday's DAILY WORKER. This school building is only one of many in the city that are unsafe, not sanitary and not properly usable that the board does not plan to do anything about.

Some of the Firetraps.

The following is a list of school buildings in Chicago more than forty years old, but before the days of modern fire prevention construction and sanitation.

The DAILY WORKER will publish reports of all these schools.

Moseley school, (1st ward). The original building was erected in 1868 and an addition made in 1875. It has 21 rooms seating 882 pupils.

Brown school, (27th ward), Warren ave. and Wood street. The original building of this school was erected in 1857 and an addition made in 1870. It hag 29 rooms with 945 seats and 1421 pupils.

Burr school, (33rd ward), Wabansia and Ashland avenues. The original building was erected in 1873 and additions made 1885 and 1897. It has 52 rooms and 1466 seats.

King school, (25th ward), 2420 W Harrison street. The original building was erected in 1873 and an addition made 1885. It has 23 rooms and 1119 seats.

Ward school, (1st ward), Shields avenue and 27th street. The original building was erected in 1874 and an addition made 1897. It has 28 rooms with 992 seats.

Pickard school, (21st ward), 21st Place and Shelley avenue. The original building was erected in 1874 and additions made 1893, 1903, 1915. It has 28 rooms and 1467 seats.

Vanderpoel school, (19th ward), Prospect avenue and 95th street. The original building was erected in 1878 and additions made 1898, 1911. It has 16 rooms and 528 seats.

Otis school, (31st ward), Grand and Armour avenues. The original building was erected in 1879, and additions made in 1892, 1900. It has 38 rooms and 1467 seats.

Raymond school, (2nd ward), Wabash avenue and 36th Place. The building was erected in 1879 and an addition made in 1886. It has 23 rooms and 720 seats.

How Much Goes For War?

"It is estimated that $2 out of every $10 you spend is taken out in taxes. The galling part of this tax proposition is that only 7 cents out of every dollar taken out of the taxpayer's pocket for our federal government is spent for the general expenses of our government. The remainder goes to pay interest on our war bonds, the upkeep of our army and navy, pensions, and the support of our Veteran's Bureau—all the product of war. The pensions and aid to our ex-service men we do not begrudge, but if does seem hard that our people shall be burdened for years with this great war debt."

This is the gist of a speech delivered by Solomon Levitan, State Treasurer of the State of Wisconsin, before the Community Club of Pleasantville, Wisc. He made the argument in favor of the Mellon plan of tax reduction. How this would wipe out the war debt was not made plain. Tinkering with the tax machine is always a method of benefiting one group of capitalists as against another. In the end the worker pays all the freight. The way to wipe out war debts is to wipe them out.

Special Issue of Daily Worker for the Lenin Memorial Meetings

For the week ending Feb. 2, the Magazine Section of THE DAILY WORKER will be issued in the Wednesday (January 30) edition, instead of Saturday's as heretofore. This change is made in order to make it possible for those in charge of the Lenin memorial meetings which are to be held in all sections of the country Feb. 2, to obtain the paper for sale at the meetings. The Magazine Section for this week will be a special Lenin number, one which every member of the working class will want to read and to keep as a memento of the greatest man of this generation.

Persons in charge of the Lenin memorial meetings or others who wish to order special bundles of the Lenin issue of THE DAILY WORKER should mail or telegraph their orders at once. Orders arriving later than Tuesday morning, January 29, cannot be filled.

RUSSIA TAKES LAST LOOK AT NICOLAI LENIN

Masses File Past Body on Red Dais in Moscow

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW.—While Moscow was still in the throes of emotion that followed Lenin's death, foreign minister Chicherin announced that the Russian government would continue to follow the basic policies of the great departed leader.

Peace with all the outside world and the building up of the industries and agriculture of Russia will be the aims of the administrative forces of the nation, now, as before.

The farewell viewing of Lenin by the scores of thousands of mourners who filed past his bier was an impressive and solemn occasion such as has never been seen in the metropolis. The enormous crowd waited while Lenin's immediate colleagues and the leaders of the trade unions took their final look at him when the doors were opened and the masses of the people marched past the bier.

Lenin lay in a black casket on a dias draped in red in the hall of the House of the Unions in Moscow. As the crowds marched past the quiet figure in its gray-brown suit sounds of sobbing were heard from the people who loved him for his unsurpassed career of devotion to their welfare. The crowd filed past, eight abreast, with the lines stretching out for half a mile outside.

The mournful farewell continued until late in the evening, while new crowds added themselves to the procession

Lenin's body left the village of Gorky, when the premier died, early in the morning. It was borne from the Moscow railroad station on the shoulders of devoted colleagues to the House of the Unions, where it lay in state thruout the day.

Flags hung at half mast all day over embassies, legations and headquarters of missions which have recognized Russia or established trade relations. A solemn quiet marked the city.

Party Will Carry On Lenin's Work, Says Ruthenberg

Pledging the aid of the American Communist movement, in working for the world working class revolution to which Nicolai Lenin dedicated his whole life, C. E. Ruthenberg, Executive Secretary of the Workers Party, sent the following telegram to the Communist International in Moscow:

"In the name of the Communists of the United States and hundreds of thousands of sympathizers to the cause of the workers and peasants of Russia, the central executive committee of the Workers' Party expresses deep sympathy with the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia in the hour of our great leader Lenin. In his memory we pledge ourselves to work with greater energy and with unshakeable determination for the principles he gave us and to carry forward those principles until the triumph of the world proletarian revolution of which he was the great leader.

Lenin Greatest Statesman, Says Frank P. Walsh

Eulogy could not go higher than Frank P. Walsh's tribute to Nicolai Lenin, which he telegraphed to the Friends of Soviet Russia.

"The greatest revolutionary statesman of all time", says the noted lawyer who has been taking an active part in the last few years in the movement for the recognition of the Russian republic and in the defense of political leaders on trial under reactionary laws.

The telegram follows: "The death of Lenin marks the passage of the greatest revolutionary statesman of all time. As thinker, strategist, and executive his place is unique in the history of revolutionary government. Regardless of agreement or disagreement with his principles and politics the world must pay tribute to him, as an intellectual marvel and a brave and honest man."

Cleveland Party Meeting.

CLEVELAND.—The campaign for the protection of the foreign born will be discussed fully at a general membership meeting of Cleveland local, Workers Party, Sunday, Jan. 27, at 2:30 p. m., at 6 St. Clair ave. Elmer Hall, 5607 St. Clair avenue. A report on the national convention will be given by the Cleveland delegation to the convention, Max Lerner, district organizer; N. Schaffer and Angelo Severino.

The Industries for the workers!

Omaha Meeting Will Be Held In Lenin's Memory

OMAHA, Neb.—The Lenin Memorial meeting which the Workers Party will hold in the Labor Lyceum, Sunday afternoon, Feb. 3, will be one of the largest held in Omaha this year, judging from the emotion which the passing of the revolutionary leader caused in the hearts of thousands of persons here.

A tribute to Lenin prepared by the Omaha branch of the party says:

"He brought peace to Russia. He drove out profiteer and cadet. He gathered together the twisted rails and built railroads. Where famine laid waste the land he planted wheat. Idle smokestacks were returned to their task. A great nation was restored to unity. But he paid the price."

Memorial day speakers will include Tom Matthews, Rev. J. L. Beebe, W. H. Green and D. Resnik.

Russia A Friend Says Mongolian Political Leader

PEKING, China.—"The Mongolian people are sympathetic with Soviet Russia," says Dunsan Bagatad, chairman of the central committee of the People's Revolutionary Party in Mongolia, who is visiting Peking.

"Soviet Russia has repudiated the rapacious policy of the Tsarist government and the Mongolians realize that she is helping the Mongolian people in gaining and consolidating their freedom."

Economic conditions are improving steadily in Mongolia, largely thru the influence of the co-operatives, says Bagatad. In the city of Urga, for instance, the co-operative movement is running a leather mill, meat, wool, and other enterprises. The cost of seed grain for the farmers is financed in part by the Ministry of Finance.

Strike Will Halt Dressmaking In Open Shop Plants

A general strike of all the nonunion dressmaking plants in Chicago next month is the program of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, if open shop manufacturers refuse to enter into an agreement, it was learned at the union's street office last night.

A big pre-strike mass meeting will be held in Schoenhofen's Hall, Ashland and Milwaukee Aves., Tuesday, when the strike call may go for the walkout will be announced.

Strike agitation has been carried on by the militants for a long time and if the organization officially throws its strength into the fight, it was pointed out, the remaining non-union portion of the ladies' garment industry in Chicago can be organized as effectively as was the cloak industry shortly after the successful 1919 strike.

Salzman Starts New Tour.

Max Salzman, national organizer of the Young Workers League, will tour the New England district and visit all the important towns of that district, strengthening and building the youth movement. Salzman just concluded a tour of several months in the Minnesota and Michigan districts where he organized new branches of the league.

The industrial district of New England with its thousands of child laborers, is a fertile field for organization and it is expected that Salzman will have good results. All Party branches and language sections should give their unstinted support. The tour is as follows:

Gardner, Mass., Jan. 27-28; Fitchburg, Jan. 29-30; Worcester, Jan. 30-Feb. 1; Maynard, Feb. 2-3; Lowell, Feb. 4-5; Lawrence, Feb. 6-7; Haverhill, Feb. 8; Boston, Cambury, Lett Branch, Feb. 10-18; Lynn, Revere, Norwood, Feb. 19-20; Quincy, Feb. 21; Brockton, Feb. 23-24; Providence, R. I., Feb. 25-26.

Furriers Fight Low Wages.

MONTREAL.—Montreal and Toronto locals of the International Fur Workers' union combined their forces for the fighting battle against wage standard does not allow any reductions recently under International President Morris Kaufman. Resolutions, claiming that the present low wage standard does not allow any reductions without degrading the wages to a starvation limit and asking the international to use every possible means to maintain the present rate, were passed. Moral and financial support was pledged to the Toronto locals, already actually engaged in the fight to maintain the present agreement.

Poles Accept Inertiable.

MOSCOW.—The Polish Government has addressed a note to the Soviet Government, whereby it acknowledges the reservations and takes to cognizance the notification of the Soviet Government regarding the decision of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. The note reaffirms that Poland agrees to maintain normal diplomatic relations with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

SEAT FOR EVERY KID, IS CANNON'S SCHOOL SLOGAN

Party Official Attacks Firetrap Buildings

"A seat for every school child in a safe school," is the slogan James P. Cannon, chairman of the Workers Party of America, suggested for the DAILY WORKER'S campaign against fire trap schools.

"The conditions existing in the J. N. Thorp school and exposed in the DAILY WORKER are shameful. I feel sure that there are no schools along the North Shore that are in the same condition. I am very glad to see the DAILY WORKER go after these conditions and am sure they will be able to arouse the workers to the danger their children are facing," he said.

Find Conditions "Rotten"

The exposure of the conditions in the J. N. Thorp school contained in yesterdays DAILY WORKER is only one example of rotten conditions in the public schools of Chicago. Members of the Young Workers League and of the Junior Section of the Y. W. L. have long known of these conditions from members who attend public schools. It is not only in Chicago that school conditions are rottan. in every large city in the country they are the same.

The Young Workers League is glad to get behind and help the DAILY WORKER in its campaign for better schools and exposure of present conditions. In the investigation of conditions the Young Workers League is willing to place the entire resources of the organization at the disposal of the DAILY WORKER. We will do all in our power to help get better schools for the children of the workers.

Workers Made Goats.

The refusal of the board of education to take the existence of firetrap schools is part of the boards political plot to keep down expenses. As in all economy plans the workers are the ones on whom the economy is carried out.

The part time plan now in vogue in many of the crowded schools of Chicago supplies the bosses with part time child slaves. When not in school many of the public school pupils work at home helping their parents earn a living in all sorts of "home industries."

The Young Workers League and the Junior Section of the League will fight unceasingly against fire trap schools, and part time education and calls upon the Chicago Teachers Federation to join a joint campaign against these evils.

Part-Time Democracy

"The proud boast that free education in our public schools is the foundation of the American democracy looks rather cheap when we realize that nearly all the children attending public schools in the cities of America are housed in schools such as the one described in Wednesday's DAILY WORKER. Part-time democracy is the only result that we can expect from part-time education. The overwhelming majority of the future workers of America will receive only a public school education. They should receive the best possible education. How can they get a decent education in miserably inadequate schools?

"The Workers Party in Chicago will get behind the DAILY WORKER in its campaign for better and safer schools and help to arouse the workers of Chicago to the educational needs of their children."

That is the statement of Arne Swabeck, organizer of district 8 of the Workers Party of America regarding fire trap public schools and the campaign of the DAILY WORKER for better and safer schools.

Protest the Foreign Born!

Noted Speakers Will Tell About Hungry Germany

The foregoing cablegram received by the Friends of Soviet Russia emphasizes the desperate state in which the German workers and their children are facing.

Thousands of Chicago men and women will fill Ashland Auditorium next Sunday evening in a mass meeting for the sake of organizing relief for starving workers in Germany and for demanding recognition of Soviet Russia.

Professor Robert Morse Lovett; Max Selinsky, of the Journeymen Tailors' Union; Albert Johnson, Congressman lately returned from Russia; James P. Cannon, Chairman of the Workers' Party, and Max Bedacht, who spent many years in Germany will speak on the contrasting conditions in the two countries—where workers are dying in the ruins of German capitalism and conditions are steadily improving under the Russian Soviet system.

ANOTHER COOLIDGE REACTIONARY LINED UP AGAINST FARMERS

WASHINGTON.—Cynics onlookers at the capitol, who know the story of the packing trust investigations and reports by the Federal Trade Commission, and of the way in which the sheer weight of the packers' money and business power has crushed out the hope of punishment of their lawbreaking, do not expect to prevent the confirmation of George R. Christian Jr. as a member of the Commission to succeed Victor Murdock, resigned.

They know that Christian, with the other two reactionaries on the Commission, have worked to the detriment of work that Murdock and the two surviving progressive members have been doing, both as to the packers' trust and the Standard Oil grain buyers' monopoly and the lumber and coal combines. Business ownership of government makes a distinct move forward.

At the same time, the cynical judges of politics believe that Mr. Coolidge will regret this public affront to the farmers and wage workers of the country. Christian was private secretary to Harding in the intimate friend of Fall, and represents all the indifference to public interest which marked the Harding regime. He knows nothing of the economic matters with which the Federal Trade Commission must deal, and is not inclined to study it. He will be surrounded by advisers who know precisely what their employers want.

They'll Fight Underwood Anyway

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Underwood defeat and must be defeated in the presidential primaries in Alabama, says the Conference for Progressive Political Action, in a circular letter to trade unions, farmers and teachers of that state.

"We need you greatings," says the letter, "with the reminder that you will soon have within your power to abate the big banking and corporation attorneys and unfair employers that they cannot deceive and control the votes of Alabama citizens. Complete victory will be won for L. H. Musgrove, the people's candidate, when Alabama farmers and industrial workers put their strength at the presidential primaries, Feb. 1. The ambitions of Underwood will be completely shattered. Foreign corporations that are behind him will be defeated."

Export Much Russian Butter.

MOSCOW.—One hundred and twenty thousand pounds of Siberian butter is being exported to England this year. Next year it is proposed to export 450,000 pounds.

FEDERATED FARM LABOR SECRETARY SCORES COOLIDGE

Demands Farmers, Not His Bankers, Be Aided

"The real essence of President Coolidge is not the farmers' crisis, but that of the bank failures throughout the grain-growing sections of the country," said Joseph Manley, national secretary of the Federated Farmer-Labor Party, in an interview with the DAILY WORKER, commenting on the president's message regarding the desperate situation in the wheat belt.

"Starvation in the homes of the farmers is of no concern to the government's political administration. But a condition of financial chaos among the state and national banking institutions is very much so. This latest measure proposed by the President, "to help the farmers", is one which will help the bankers—but not the farmers.

"The only measure thru which the bankrupt farmers of this country may hope to obtain any lasting benefit—or even temporary relief—is unquestionably the five-year moratorium demand which has been inaugurated by the Federated Farmer-Labor Party. The farmers everywhere are recognizing this fact. And the thirteen states the country they are coming together, in Farmer-Labor organizations, to join with the Federated Farmer-Labor Party in its efforts to enforce that and other demands, for their own relief."

Manley scores Coolidge's proposal to creat new banks, in addition to those he seeks aid for.

"He would create these banks", said the secretary, "by appealing to the very agencies which are the cause of the present critical situation. In his message these agencies are listed as "Finance business concerns, the railroads, the mercantile establishments, the agricultural supply houses, and all those large business establishments whose welfare is immediately connected with the welfare of the farmer.

"The Federated Farmer-Labor Party insists that the farmer himself be helped, and not the financial enterprises that exploit him. Our demand for a five year moratorium on the mortgage debts of all working farmers is hailed by the men on the land. We are going on with aggressive agitation for the working farmers."

A First Step, Effort.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D.—The war finance corporation will establish immediately, a branch at Sioux Falls, according to Eugene Meyer, managing director of the corporation.

Meyer made the announcement after a conference with South Dakota bankers here last night.

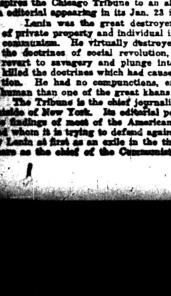
The purpose of the branch here is to bring the resources and assistance of the war finance corporation in closer contact with South Dakota banks, he said.

The branch agency will be in charge of a group of Sioux Falls bankers.

The action constitutes the first step by the federal government to help agriculture in the northwest to its feet.

Make Favorable Report.

MOSCOW.—The delegation of the Russian Agricultural Union of the turned from the International Congress, held in Washington, reports on the successful negotiations which they had with the American banking institutions about the crediting of the Agricultural Union's operations. The Union has opened a branch in New York.



The Poor Fish says he is against pastors being intimate with the wives of parishioners but it much of a beau all right in the Leland case because they always prayed first.

A Snarl From The Other Camp

Lenin's death, which has drawn tributes, even from bitter enemies, to his large social vision, his administrative genius and his incorruptibility, inspires the Chicago Tribune to an almost insane denunciation of him. In an editorial appearing in its Jan. 23 issue the Tribune says:

Lenin was the great destroyer. He tried to destroy the society of private property and individual initiative and liberty. He destroyed enormous wealth. He ruthlessly murdered millions. He applied the doctrines of social revolution, saw them wreck a nation, saw it revert to savagery and plunge into famine and plague, and then he killed the doctrines which had caused the bloodshed, disease and starvation. He had no compunctions, emotions or passions. He was less human than one of the great khans marching into Russia with Tartars.

The Tribune is the chief journalistic bulwark of capitalism in America outside of New York. Its editorial position, quoted above, was prior to the findings of most of the American capitalists that have been in Russia and whom it is trying to defend against the march of the movement guided by Lenin at first as an exile in the time of the czars and then for over six years as the chief of the Communist regime in Russia.

Fall Will Say, Democrat Gave Him the Oil Dough

ning drama of politics, high finance and intrigue.

In any drama, the interest centers largely in the character who moves the third in sinister fashion.

Here, briefly sketched, are some of the principal actors in Teapot dome:

Fall Versatile.

Albert B. Fall, of Three Rivers, N. M., former United States senator, former secretary of the interior. Fall is a long, gaunt, "hard looking" plainsman of 63, with a cold eye, a stringy "Chuckwalla Bill" mustache that droops its sensitive corners nearly to his coat lapels. Miner, cattle man, lawyer, lumber man, farmer, stock raiser, politician, Fall has turned his hand to many things, ending with the cabinet position tendered him by the late President Harding, whose secretaryship of the interior he became on March 5, 1921.

Fall is a man of irascible temper when crossed, but a "good scout" among his friends, with a wealth of experiences gathered in the southwest.

Is Western Type

His lanky figure, topped by a broad-brimmed sof. hat and with a half chewed cigar stuck at an aggressive angle from a corner of his mouth, was long familiar about the capital. He talks in an aggressive, assertive manner and when aroused is a hard man to deal with.

Fall is the man who leased Teapot dome to Harry F. Sinclair and the California naval reserves to E. L. Doheny.

Sinclair—Millionaire Sport

Harry F. Sinclair, 48, millionaire oil man and sportsman, owner of the champion race horse Zev. Sinclair is a native of West Virginia and started out in life to be a druggist. While in the drug business in Independence, Kansas, he got into oil. Oil made him a millionaire. That permitted him to gratify his love of fine horses, so that his stables was the biggest single money winner on the American turf the past two seasons.

Like Fall, Sinclair can be "hard boiled" on occasions and for one reason and another is not exceedingly popular among some members of the sporting world in which his name is so well known.

Sinclair has been one of the country's most succesful operators in Oil. He leased the Teapot dome naval oil reserve from Fall in April 1922.

Edward L. Doheny, of Los Angeles, spent twenty years prospecting for gold and silver and then turned prospector for "liquid gold"—California oil. Doheny is 68 years old. He was born in Wisconsin, but the great far west called him and as a young man, he did everything out there—drove a dump cart, prospected, worked in mining camps, and finally got rich in oil.

He is a fatherly-looking old man now, from whose face the lessons learned of the hard hitting old days are gone, tho his wealth is evidence he didn't forget the lessons he learned out under the stars. Doheny leased California naval oil reserves one and two from Fall.

Walsh of The Legal Mind

Thomas J. Walsh, senator from Montana, is the nemesis of corruption in the Teapot dome case, if corruption is there. He is a mild mannered, somewhat shy, but extremely tenacious and "unbluffable" wearer of 05, with an eye as cold as Fall's and what, before he trimmed it, was as handsome a "soup strainer" mustache as Fall ever boasted. He has a quality of grimness to match Fall's bluster.

Walsh's mind is essentially judicial, with the added keenness of a good investigator.

Probe Moves Toward Climax.

The Teapot Dome investigation moved rapidly towards its climax today.

As a preliminary to the testimony tomorrow of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, which is expected to be the high point of the whole inquiry, Edward L. Doheny, California oil operator, arrived today to tell his story to the Senate Public Lands Committee.

Doheny, reaching Washington early this morning on his private car, and accompanied by his counsel, Galvin McNab, will take the stand at 2 P. M.

Doheny Arrives.

He was not summoned, but appears at his own request.

Doheny will tell the story of leasing of naval oil reserves one and two, California.

He said here today his leases were entirely legal and that his statement would clear him and the leases from all connection with any suspected corruption.

In addition to Doheny's arrival, the early developments today included:

Recall Development.

Receipt of word that Fall would arrive in Washington at 10:20 tonight with Colonel J. W. Zevely, Harry Sinclair' counsel.

Announcement that Senator Caraway would not pass for immediate action on the senate resolution to irate Teapot Dome lease but would await presentation of a substitute next week by Senator Walsh, Montana.

Daugherty to Florida.

Announcement that Attorney General Daugherty, whose name has been brought into the case, would leave for Florida, but would keep in touch with the situation.

Conference at the White House between President Coolidge and Secretary of the Navy Denby, who approved the leases.

Many conferences among senators who are more deeply stirred over Teapot Dome than anything else at present in the public mind.

Fall Kind to Doheny.

"Mr. Fall has tried to keep my name out of it," Doheny said.

"The loan has nothing to do with the lease I obtained in competitive bidding from the Government."

Doheny leased naval oil reserves number one and number two in California some months before Harry F. Sinclair leased Teapot Dome.

Committee Room Jammed.

Doheny's short white mustache hung down over his lips. As he spoke he peered thru his gold rimmed spectacles directly at Senator Walsh, across the table.

The hearing room was jammed to the doors ten minutes before the hearing started and capital police stationed outside turned scores away.

Doheny was accompanied by his counsel, Gal. McNab.

Assistant Attorney General Hoiland, who was sent up by direction of President Coolidge to listen to the evidence, was present.

Lowest Bid Got Oil.

Doheny said his bid for the California reserves was "the lowest received by the government."

Two proposals were submitted by him, Doheny said. He read a letter sent to him by Fall notifying him that his bid had been accepted.

Doheny's first contract covering reserves one and two was signed July 12, 1921, several months before he made the loan to Fall.

Doheny's startling announcement was received in silence by the committee.

He continued reading his statement in a high pitched, firm voice.

The bid was specifically for royalty oil but it included a provision for leasing naval reserves numbers one and two in California which were leased.

Doheny read rapidly and members of the committee and others that packed the room strained to catch his words.

Seven Officials Involved

Senator Walsh cross-examined Doheny after he had finished his statement.

"If there was any collusion it involved seven members of the navy department and the two reserves in any company," Doheny said in answer to the first question. He explained all nine persons were involved in the lease.

"My California manager objected to both contracts because we assumed such great obligations. We almost came to blows over it," he said.

Mr. Fall had nohing to do with the study of the conditions under which the contract was made."

Fall Gave Note.

Walsh brought out in examining the witness that Fall gave Doheny a personal note.

"I left it at home, I think, or it may be in New York," he said.

Doheny promised to send the note to the committee.

Arranged Loan by Telephone.

Negotiations for the loan were carried on by telephone on November 30, 1923. Doheny was in New York and Fall in Washington.

"I have known Fall for about 30 years," Doheny said. "We were bound together by strong ties of friendship. I followed him all thru his career as Senator and Senator Fall was unfortunate."

Doheny was overcome with emotion at this time and was unable to continue for a few seconds.

"When he told me about his misfortune, I told him any time he needed money to come to me.

"He spoke at that time about getting it from Ed McLean, but I told him to come to me.

Gave Fall Cash.

"I told him I didn't need any security for it."

Doheny said he gave the money to Fall in cash in a satchel. He said he got the money from his bank, Blair and Company in New York, by cashing a check.

"I don't know whether he asked me to get it in cash or not," Doheny said.

Unusual Transaction.

Walsh asked him if the transaction was not unusual.

"I loaned more than $1,000,000 that way," Doheny answered. "I realized that the money meant nothing to me, no more than $5 or $10 to another man.

"I admit that Fall might have been led to favor me—but he couldn't because the negotiations were all carried on by men under his control."

Money Bought Ranch.

Doheny said the money he gave Fall was used by Fall to purchase a $91,000 ranch in New Mexico and to make improvements on Fall's property.

Fall was "hard up" at that time and needed the money, Doheny said Fall told him.

Doheny said he gave Fall authorization to tell all the facts about his loan, to tell the committee months ago, but that Fall chose not to do so.

Loan Relieved Mind.

"His failure to raise the necessary funds by realizing in his extensive and once valuable Mexican mine holdings and made him feel he was a victim of an onward tide. In one of these talks I indicated to him that I would be willing to make him the loan and this seemed to relieve his mind greatly.

"In the autumn of 1921, he told me that the purchase had become possible by reason of the willingness of the then owners of the Harris ranch to sell and that the time had arrived when he was ready to take advantage of my offer to make the loan.

Came With Fall.

"In closing, I wish to state that I left Los Angeles on January 17 to come to Washington to present a statement of all the facts to the committee, and have facts before the committee, and having been informed that Mr. Fall was in New Orleans, took that route in order to appraise him of my intention and found him already in entire accord with my purpose."

Doheny Admits $100,000 Loan to Senator Fall

WASHINGTON.—Edward L. Doheny of Los Angeles, lessee of two naval reserves, told the senate public lands committee today that he loaned $100,000 to former Secretary of the Interior Fall.

Doheny said the loan was made "personally" on Nov. 30, 1921.

Doheny said it was purely a "friendly transaction and had nothing to do with the two leases he obtained from Fall."

Doheny made his statement in written form. He said he had not told of the loan previously because he had not been asked about it by the committee.

Russian Bureau Expresses Grief

The Central Bureau of the Russian section of the Workers Party of America, expresses its supreme grief at the loss of our beloved leader of the world Proletariat, Comrade Nicolai Lenin, and upon this tragic occasion solemnly pledges itself to carry out Communists principles and policies which Comrade Lenin personified during his life time and to which he was devoted until the end. Comrade Lenin, the greatest revolutionary genius of all time, lived to see his dream of the First Workers' and Peasants' Republics realized in the formation of Soviet Russia, and we pledge all our strength, devotion and courage to the extension of our great leaders work until such a time as there shall be established the World Federation of Soviet Republics.

Italy's Press, Just Like Kept Sheets in U. S. A., Falsify News About the Communists

ROME, Italy.—Mussolini's government is doing utmost to give the impression of legality, which he has established in Italy, a "democratic" and "European" aspect. Therefore he dared not officially dissolve the Communist Party, which survived the barbarities of the Fascisti reign of terror. But a "democratic" trial was enacted on a fabled-up charge of "conspiracy against the State." The bourgeois press, and especially the "Giornale d'Italia," as is its wont, substituted fantastic fiction for facts. Nevertheless, in spite of the efforts of Mussolini's hirelings, the court was compelled to acquit all the defendants.

It will interest our readers to read some of the details of this trial, culled from a letter received from Italy.

Italian Communists Before the Court in Rome.

We think it well to give some idea of the manner in which the "Giornale d'Italia" informs its readers about the trial which has created such a sensation in bourgeois circles.

The "Giornale d'Italia" is an organ which combines patriotic frenzy with cowardice, wrote as follows:

"Our readers will remember the magnificent coup of the agents of our political police which at the beginning of 1923, led to the arrest of the notorious Amadeo Bordiga just as he was on the point of escaping. It is due solely to the energy of the inspector of the secret police Cualbotti that revolutionary action on a large scale, which was in the course of preparation in Italy under the guidance of Moscow, was frustrated.

"Bordiga was arrested on the staircase of No. 35 Via Frattina where the Italian committee of the Party which adheres to the Moscow Third International had calmly installed itself on the top floor.

"Bordiga wore a magnificent fur coat valued at over 5,000 lire, and he was carrying a leather case which was locked.

"The case contained highly interesting documents which shed light on the criminal activities of the Communists.

"In addition to this valuable case, Bordiga had on him a number of one thousand lire banknotes. The case contained 12,000 lire and a bundle of cheques to the value of 250,000 lire.

"A number of other arrests were effected and on the decision of the prosecuting magistrates, a number of persons were sent for trial and accused of having established an association which aimed at committing acts directed against law and order."

Among these persons were mentioned: Amadeo Borida, Bruno Fortichiari, Ruggiero Terracini, Ruggiero Greco, Edouardo d'Onofrio, Ernesto Nisidi, Antonio Gramsci, Gueparde di Gaetano and others, 32 persons in all.

"The accused declared in their written statements that they take upon themselves the entire responsibility for their revolutionary activity.

"The trial is arousing public interest, especially owing to the fact that on Bordiga's person was found 250,000 BANKNOTES BEARING THE SIGNATURE OF KRASSIN.(?)

"During the examination, the accused—Borida, Fortichiari, Terracini, Greco, as well as Giuseppe Lambi, Angelo Tasca, Misiti and Giuseppe d'Amato—will be put on their trial for incitement to criminal acts and for stirring up class hatred and also for an infringement of paragraph 1 of the law of July 19, 1894.

"The trial is to take place on October 24, 1923, in the 1st criminal department of the Court."

This scandalous trial is being enacted by the new fascist government which dared not liquidate the Communist Party for fear of betraying abroad the spurioneness of its democratic character, but which took care to incarcerate the party leaders.

But let us hear what Comrade Bordiga had to say at the examination.

Amadeo Bordiga's Examination.

Having taken cognizance of the charge against him on the strength of articles 246, 247 and 251, and also of paragraph 3 of articles 116 and 126 of the Criminal Code (conspiracy against the safety of the State), Bordiga made the following statement:

"Generally speaking, the Communist program includes the abolition of all class distinctions. To attain this aim communists consider a preliminary condition of state power from the ruling classes to the proletariat essential. This transaction must be primarily prepared by organizational activities and propaganda of communist principles, which ultimately will make a revolutionary change possible as soon as the situation for it is ripe. As to Italy, the Communist Party, which, by the way, is represented in Parliament, limited itself at first to propagandist and organizational activities allowed by the laws of the country. The Party is far from imagining that the revolutionary period is already upon us. On the contrary, it is on the defensive, as the Party has lately strengthened its positions at the sacrifice of the successes and achievements won previously by the proletariat. In all the proclamations of the Italian Communist Party, as well as in the manifesto of the Third International published in No. 227 of "Avanti," the workers were called to re-establish the organizational connections which were destroyed, so as to reconquer the positions previously won and subsequently partly lost.

"In appealing thus to the workers, we invite them also to make use of illegal methods for owing to the violation by the government of civil liberties and of other constitutional guarantees provided by the existing legislation, the proletariat must resist the government by methods of lawful self-defense, and also by including violent means.

"Thus, for instance, in view of the fact that secrecy of private correspondence is being continually infringed and letters addressed to our party organizations frequently opened, that premises occupied by our party institutions have been more than once set on fire and our contributors exposed to treatment, the proletariat is compelled to defend itself with all the means at its disposal, if necessary, having recourse to violence.

"It was to avoid the destruction of our Executive premises that we did not deem it advisable to take a public office for ourselves. In this respect, I wish to recall the fact that in 1921 the fascisti repeatedly threatened to destroy the premises of our Executive in Milan. Finally the building was occupied by the police who sealed it up, refusing to remove the seals for several months, altho nothing definite could be proved against the leaders of our party.

"I emphatically deny the existence of any preparations for the overthrow of the government by means of violence. As I have already said, the Party is on the defensive, and not a single sane member of the Party imagines that this state of affairs can be changed by violence.

"In accord with its program the Communist Party aims at the transformation of the present State institutions in Italy, as well as in other countries But, it has not recently been preparing any actions aiming at the transformation of the Italian State Institution by means of our Party. Nevertheless, I do not consider it possible to make any statements in connection with these documents, for I believe that their confiscation by the police is not due to the conviction that a conspiracy is on foot for the overthrow of the present government, but to the desire to divulge by means of this trial the threads of the political organization of our party, in order to attack it subsequently by every kind of legal and illegal means. Only if I am convinced that any of the documents substantiate the accusations brought forward by the police, shall I be induced to make such explanations as I shall consider necessary.

"I am not the treasurer of the Italian Communist Party. I do not intend to divulge the name of the person who gave me the three banknotes found on me by the police. This person was fully entitled to hold the money in the interests of the Communist Party.

"As to the three thousand lire taken away from me, I should like one thousand five hundred lire of it to be handed over to my father, Orasto Bordiga, who will take care of my wife and children. I also would like 500 lire to be deposited (at my disposal) in the Ragina Cali. In view of the fact that (as I have already stated) the confiscated banknotes are the property of the Communist Party and were intended for the settlement of Party debts, mainly in connection with newspaper publications, I beg that all these moneys be paid to the creditors. A list of these creditors can be obtained from the member of Parliament, Reposi. I wish the lawyer, Bruno Cassinelli, to act as counsel for the defense."

Comrade Bordiga's answer to the fantastic accusations of Mussolini's creatures was indeed a dignified one.

Bryan Gets Monkey Horrors.

FRANKFORT, Ky.—William Jennings Bryan raised his head from a banqueting plate here to express his abhorrence of the theory of evolution which would link men with the animal world. He said he hoped that a law would soon forbid any public school teachers from teaching the facts about that pernicious theory.

D. OF J. DETAILED BODYGUARD TO PROTECT GOMPERS

Paraded as Chauffeur But Paid by U. S. A.

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—When the Gompers's forces brought a Russian anti-Communist paper before the Federal Labor Union here, to intensify the official propaganda against recognition of the Russian republic, some caustic remarks on the arguments of the imported speaker were made by a delegate from the federal employes' union who has a Russian name. This delegate suggested that the central body ask the anti-red speaker to come to one of its sessions and tell the other side of the story.

To this plan there was immediate opposition. Edward F. O'Grady, legislative agent, A. F. of L., read a letter from the State Department to Gompers, warning him that a "Soviet" meeting in Portland, Ore., some time ago discussed plans for destroying the A. F. of L., and that in this Portland meeting the prediction was made that Gompers would be assassinated within a year.

When Primov, the delegate who wanted the truth about Russia, poked fun at O'Grady's fears, the chairman stopped him. Demand was made as to whether he were a "trades unionist or a sovietist." He replied that he was both an official union delegate and a friend of the Russian people and their struggle for social justice.

O'Grady declared that on two occasions, during the recent Portland convention, State Department detectives shielded Gompers from "probable harm at the hand of Communists was tried to get close to him."

During the war and for a period of more than a year after the war a man named Irish was detailed, according to his own statement, by the Department of Justice as a bodyguard to Gompers. He was known as Gompers' chauffeur, but he was paid from the public treasury.

"BANKRUPT" GARY PLANS TO SPEND COOL $15,000,000

Sock Still Full Tho Busted by 8 Hours

NEW YORK.—Judge Gary said he would go bankrupt if he granted the eight-hour day. . . . Now the eight-hour day is in effect, in a part of the steel industry at least, and the Judge plentifully supplied, that he is going to spend a cool $15,000,000 on big steel plants at Homestead, Penn., and Gary, Indiana.

"At present we are contemplating re-arrangement and improvement of some mills of the Homestead works at Pittsburgh and have appropriated $6,000,000 on account of same," Gary's statement said.

"We are also proceeding to complete our tube plant at Gary, Ind., which has been in the process of construction for over a year. We have likewise recommended $6,000,000 on account of this work.

"Also we have recommended construction of an additional unit of 140 by-products coke ovens at Gary to meet the full requirements of a large number of blast furnaces at Gary and South Chicago which have been in operation for some years. For these ovens we have appropriated $3,000,000

"These, of course, do not include all work being done and contemplated, but they are leading items.

"We are all the time making extensions and improvements on one or another of our various plants."

WILD CHARGES BEST HUGHES' AGENT COULD DO

Klieforth Couldn't Back Claims with Facts

the Idahoan arrived, he talked glibly about "Workers Party," and "Communist Party" which he said were coincident, the Communist party officially went out of existence in America nearly a year ago; the Workers Party remaining as the sole representative of the Third International.

Couldn't Explain Difference.

Later, when asked by Senator Pittman, Klieforth could not explain the difference between the Workers Party and the Communist Party.

The senators let the loose talk about the two parties go by, but when Klieforth began to beat the verbal tom-tom about the presence in America of John Pepper, revolutionary leader, who, he said, came here March, 1923, and issued instructions in the name of the Communist International the senators asked him for proof.

Senator Pepper was particularly anxious to get the documentary facts about the Communist who shared his name, and Lenroot, Swanson and Pittman showed their interest by asking Klieforth to clinch his statements with evidence.

He Gets Into Hole.

But the Department of State witness realised that he had got into a hole. He rummaged around his papers with embarrassment, but without success, and finally said that he would produce the proofs about Pepper's status at some other time. Senator Pepper sharply ordered him to make good at once. Klieforth quit.

Klieforth quit on that tack but rambled off on another tangent by saying that 15 Americans attended the sessions of the Fourth Congress of the Communist International.

"Who were these Americans?" asked Senator Swanson, checking the flow of blather.

Klieforth didn't know but said he could get them—later

Only Momentarily Checked.

But the blather was only momentarily checked and visitors to the senate chambers had their ears assailed with a windy monologue against the Young Workers' movement. As one of the visitors said, Klieforth must seem very funny to youngsters, or he wouldn't hate them so.

Starting with the Young Communist League convention at Bethel, Connecticut, 1922, he conjured up for the committee the apparition of a Moscow organizer, who, he said, actually appeared before the convention. From there he went on to tell how the "Young Worker" of April, 1922 used scorching words against the Young Men's Christian Association, Young Men's Hebrew Association, Boy's Scouts and other institutions catering to immaculate adolescence.

Failed to Respect "Fourth."

In short, the "Young Worker," said Mr. Klieforth with an air of righteous indignation, incited against all authority, civil, moral, and religious and even failed in one article to show the proper respect for the Fourth of July.

Lenin College, Chicago, and schools in eleven other cities, came in for adverse comment.

Here Mr. Klieforth actually produced some leaflets and foreign language publications as evidence of the fact that the foreign-language Communist press was doing business.

Borah who had not entered, asked him if all these publications were not going thru the mails with the permission of the United States government. Klieforth admitted that they were.

No Substantiating Evidence.

Weakest of all Klieforth's asllies was his assertion that Foster brought $40,000 from Russia for the Trade Union Educational League and later got $90,000 more and again $25,000 at Bridgman, Mich. This Mr. Hughes' witness, asked the committee to believe because the state department believed the information was reliable. Not a shred of evidence was offered to substantiate this back-stairs William J Burns rumor.

That Communists were active in the mining fields of West Virginia, Klieforth said, the department believed from evidence seized in a raid in Bleecker street, New York, but he did not attempt to read the alleged evidence. The Communist activity, said Klieforth, consisted in inciting miners against the government.

Shocked at Reed's Speech.

The state department, thru its witness, expressed itself as greatly shocked at a speech of John Reed in said to have made before the Second Congress of the Communist International in Moscow, in which he graphically described the gallant resistance that Washington negroes offered to race rioters, killing three whites for every negro who fell. He told of the appointment of special committees to deal with the negro question appointed at the 1922 congress and at the Fourth Congress.

Object to Farmer's Propaganda.

Communist plans for propaganda work among the farmers were luridly referred to but not enumerated explained, the witness preferring the crimson hues of imagination to the cold rays of logic. Communist work with the Industrial Workers of the World was also barely referred to. The Friends of Soviet Russia's activity in distributing pro-Russian pictures were also mentioned as something which the Department of State abhors.

The Workers Party's desire that aliens become American citizens is not for patriotic reasons! Klieforth emphasized, but for the sake of drawing them into political life. The aliens, he insisted, are the backbone of the American movement.

Putting Communist thesis into public libraries, organizing sport clubs to further propaganda, issuing leaflets denouncing religion as the opium of the people and approving the execution of Russian priests,—these were some of the Communist activities Mr. Klieforth next testified to.

The Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia was next mentioned as a pro-Communist agency and Klieforth then enumerated the prosecutions of Communists in various states.

Alleged documents said to have been taxen in the Bleecker street raid show that the Communists propagandize the army and navy, said the witness and said, quoting, "Communists have to be acquainted with the technique and strategy of modern warfare. Every Communist must know how to handle a gun and form a fighting line."

Never Do to Give Proof.

Klieforth said it would never do to give proof regarding the authenticity of the documents about training in shooting and sapper work in public sessions and it was agreed that the committee would consider this in executive session.

Klieforth could not give the facts on the collapse of the Kolchak and Denikin and Yudenich expeditions. Borah insisted and the committee adjourned to meet on call.

Foster Denies Lurid Charges of Hughes' Anti-Russ Agent

William Z. Foster, Secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, has addressed the following communication to the members of the Senate foreign relations committee in connection with the question of the Recognition of Soviet Russia, commenting on the charges of the State Department's Secret Agent, A. W. Klieforth. Foster's statement denying Klieforth's charges is as follows:

"The statement made by Mr. A. W. Klieforth, special agent of the state department, before the senate foreign relations committee, to the effect that I have received $1,000,000, or some such sum, are unqualified and deliberate lies. I challenge him to prove them. A. Lozovsky, secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions, has never been in this country in his life.

"The books and accounts of the Trade Union Educational League are open for public inspection. I have stated this time and again when Congressmen Lewis, Wolf and other reactionaries have retailed the manufactured charges now being reiterated by Klieforth, they failed to take advantage of their opportunity to audit our books. And the Department of Justice will fail likewise. If the latter had proof of any such money being sent me, why did they not produce it at my recent trial in Michigan? Every charge against me and my work is one more chapter in the Department of Justice's long record of criminal treacheries.

(Signed) WILLIAM Z. FOSTER."

It will be interesting to await any action of the Borah sub-committee in investigating the books of the Trade Union Educational League, that Sam Gompers, John L. Lewis, and other reactionary labor leaders have so consistently refused to touch.

Youth Views

By HARRY GANNES

Preparing New For "Citizen" Army.

Soon the sign-boards will be yelling, "Join the Citizen's Training Camps. Get a Free Vacation." Plans have already been formulated for an energetic campaign to recruit the callow youth for a month's training in brutality and scientific murder. Behind the scheme are the "Lest" military minds in the country. Girded on by the failure of the last two years, the militarists in the United States are going to strain every nerve beginning this spring to prove that the American youth can be fooled, cajoled or browbeaten into military training.

Last year stinking food kept a good many hobos out of the training camps. Somehow or other, the youth didn't and wouldn't respond. The army heads literally tore their hair. Here were long, carefully-laid plans that were to make the American democracy a well-drilled nation. The old adage about mice and men bobbed up. The plan didn't work.

Many of the capitalist sheets carried stories of rotten food and arrogant officers. There was quite a scandal. Thereafter the advertisements of warmer sample menus tasting the unemployed and the hungry young workers.

However, the citizen's military training plan will not fail because of bad food. Mistakes like this will happen in a nation famed for grafting. But imperialism is built on a solider foundation than that. They will give the youth fairly good food; for a time, the officers will act almost human; the camp sites will be ideal, and every trick known to the advertising art will be used to swell the citizen training camps. American imperialism must have an army, active as well as dormant.

To the workers we point out many dangers in the citizen's military training which is but a small part of the all-inclusive militarization project of the U. S. War Department. In case of strike, what is to prevent the use of these "citizen soldiers" from scabbing on the workers? Why can't these boys, while under the domination of U. S. officers be used in the case of a re-entrance of a nation-wide anti-strike injunction? While the young fellows are in these camps they are subject to the same discipline as regular soldiers in the U. S. Army.

We cannot overlook the anti-working class propaganda that will be injected into the heads of the young fellows while in these camps. All feeling of solidarity to their fellow workers, all sympathy for men striving to make a better living, all regard for human life, is crushed in the mind of the embryo soldier.

With the growing unemployment there is no doubt that the camps will be crowded this summer. Who can say that the unemployed young workers would not welcome a chance to be fed for a month or so (even if they do have to stand the gaff)? While they would dread the idea of joining the army because of the years of the length of servitude. Citizen's military training camps are a dangerous weapon in the hands of the American imperialists.

Examples of Workers Greatness in The Daily?

Comrade [illegible] of the Public Speaking Class of Section No. 2 (Near North) Publicity Department, writes us that the class has decided to [illegible] The Daily Worker. The DAILY WORKER (Signed) JOSEPH DYLAK, Sec'y. A. LAPINSKI, Chairman.

COMMUNIST CHILDREN'S COLUMN

Communists Assured of Snatching Children From Arms of "Mother" Church.

By IDA DAILES.

Another example of the "efficiency" and "reliability" of capitalist news service is furnished by an article which recently appeared in the New York Times. As usual, when dealing with news affecting the working class and the radical section of the organized workers, the story sounds plausible but the facts are garbled almost beyond recognition. Following is the text of the "news" item:

"REDS USE SUNDAY SCHOOLS"

Communist Youths Here Instructed to Seek Converts at Churches.

RIGA, Jan. 12.—American Sunday schools are to be invaded by youthful American Communists, according to instructions which will be sent to the New York Central headquarters of the Communist International Youth, which is a junior organization attached to and supported by the funds of the Third International, with headquarters in Moscow.

According to a copy of the Moscow Pravda of Jan. 5, Serial No. 4, which arrived here today, the Executive Committee of the Communist International Youths held a meeting in Moscow to report on the development of the Young Communist Movement in America. Pravda states that already the Young Communist movement has its branches in sixteen American cities with a membership of more than 1,000 children. After the discussion closed, the committee passed a resolution instructing the Secretary to send a letter to the New York headquarters with further directions for spreading the movement, especially suggesting that the children be instructed to seek converts in the Sunday schools.

We will pass over the inaccuracy of names and places. The Young Workers' League of America, with headquarters in Chicago has received no such communication as yet. However, it is quite possible that advice regarding the work among workers' children is en route from the Young Communist International, the international organization of working youth.

However, even if this is the case, the advice is not that which is stated in the above article.

The "Sunday schools" referred to are organizations of working class children in charge of Socialists Workmen's Circle members, Freethinkers, and people of various shades of working class consciousness. The Young Workers' League of America works within these organizations to introduce better methods of organization and a better system of working class education. The ultimate aim of the Young Workers' League is the same as that of the workers who have established these Sunday schools—the education of workers' children to become fighters for the establishment of a workers' and farmers' government. The difference lies in this: These Sunday schools have been in existence for many years, some of them as long as thirty years, and their methods have scarcely changed in all that time, as a result of which their achievements have been almost nil; on the other hand, the Young Workers' League, able to study the experiences of the past and coming to the problem with a fresh point of view, have developed new forms and methods, which, even in the short time they have been applied, have already produced results.

The principle work of the Young Workers' League among children is to organize Junior Sections, the work in the Workers' Sunday Schools being only a small part of their task.

Let us be grateful for our workers' newspaper, THE DAILY WORKER, where the working class point of view may be expressed without distortion by capitalist editors and reporters!

Letters to The Daily

Congratulations to The Daily Worker. To The DAILY WORKER: Congratulations on the advent of the DAILY WORKER. The paper is printed by and for the workers, the better!

The capitalist press of the country is in the last stage of the oppression exposed in the columns of the DAILY WORKER since a peaceful demonstration then a crime, now a crime." This attitude has created a demand for a labor press a press for the masses. This demand must be met! As repression, distortion, coloration of the news, and near civil strife lies, finesses, etc., should the trade unionists' papers like the DAILY WORKER increase, all over this country. As the capitalist press is the greatest and most effective enemy of the workers—be they home or labor spokesmen—the labor press is their greatest and most useful friend.—Blanche Watson, New York City.

Proposes Fight On Intervention.

To The DAILY WORKER: I suggest that the DAILY WORKER immediately start a campaign of protest in the trade unions, central labor bodies and other organizations, against the sending of warships to Mexico without the consent of the people of the United States. Our party comrades should be urged to introduce such resolutions in all organizations.

As a member of a trade union and of the Workers Party, I feel that we need such a campaign in our press.—Bert Miller, New York.

Archie and Teddy-Office Boys

Political reputations and prestige of those involved in the Teapot Oil Dome Steal are suffering and will suffer more. The morality of capitalism penalyzes those who are found to have sinned against their fellow-plunderers by coarse work and carelessness. A presidential year has made it impossible to smother the smell arising from the oily mess or to administer the usual coat of whitewash.

Of all the revelations that have been made, however, none so shattering of a carefully cultivated myth as the connection of the offspring of the toothful Teddy with grafters on both the giving and receiving end.

Theodore Roosevelt is assistant secretary of the navy department whose head, Edward Denby, approved the leases to Sinclair and Doheny. He signed the leases for Denby.

Archie Roosevelt, until a few days ago, was vice-president of one Sinclair company and director in many others.

His actual work seems to have consisted, by his own testimony, of buying steamship tickets and running other errands for Harry F. Sinclair.

Young Teddy fills a similar berth in the navy department. He attends semi-official functions as a representative of the administration, makes the most asinine speeches in the memory of man and has his picture taken for the rotogravure sections—wherein the Roosevelt name is prominently displayed.

For Theodore Roosevelt alive we had no more respect than we have for any other political mountebank; dead, we do not mourn, but this we will say: he stood on his own feet and did not live on the memory of others.

His sons have simply capitalized his reputation and have used the family name to add what lustre it could to the tarnished tinsel of the Coolidges, Denbys, Mellons, Falls and Daughertys.

A Roosevelt heir running down to the dock and buying steamship tickets for an escaping grafter is not so strange after all.

The dynasty that the father planned to found has found its niche; the heirs are now the office boys of the real rulers—and they are a little frightened at the company in which they find themselves.

The Roosevelt tradition has been drowned in oil.

Our Mistake

A department of justice agent tells the senate committee investigating Communist propaganda, that members of the Workers Party of America were instructed to join the American Legion so as to get arms and ammunition for a revolution.

Having in mind the major activities of legion posts thruout the country, we had supposed that about all one could get by being an active member was tickets to prizefights.

What a representative and responsive form of government we are blessed with! In any other country in the world with a so-called democratic form of government, The Teapot Dome scandal would have caused a cabinet crisis, resignations of Coolidge henchmen would have been the order of the day and the administration would have been forced to form a new cabinet or call an election.

In the United States the officials involved instead of going to the country go to Europe until some other outrage crowds them off the front page.

Samuel Gompers is so delightfully practical compared with the communists. He inspires the unemployed miners by telling them that electric power, will in a few years, be produced right at the mouth of the mines and that this will be a much cheaper source of power.

It will be cheaper—for the employers—but this is what passes for constructive thinking in the great American labor movement.

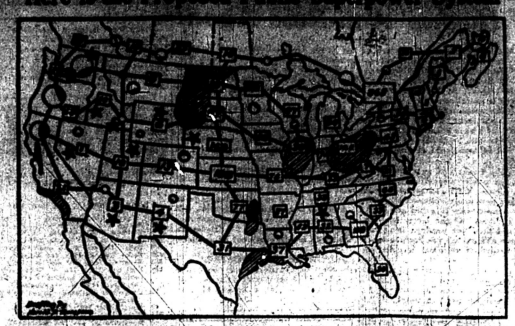
General "Hell and Maria" Dawes is in Europe representing the American bankers, and, incidently, the American government. He proposes an international gold bank as a solution of the German financial problem.

The Chicago Tribune co-operates thusly: "It is possible that a big American financial man will be chosen as head of the bank."

Judge Hanby of Los Onglaize (correct), in holding hearings on the Dines shooting in Mabel Normand's apartments has established the needed precedent of a bedroom omnipotent for bathroom cases.

The Public Ownership Myth

Here is a map of the United States showing the location of the principal power systems of the country. Each system is shown in a different color. The map is based on a map published by the Federal Power Commission.



Explanation: (1) The areas in heavy black lines are those of municipally owned electric light and power plants in 2,318 cities in the United States and 401 in Canada.

(2) The stars indicate the hydro-electric power plants owned and operated by the U. S. government or leased in connection with the reclamation projects.

(3) Circles indicate the hydro-electric power plants which are the basis of the superpower systems indicated broadly by the superpower circle that has been developed and the municipal systems that which is still undeveloped. Every circle is based upon water power alone in the giant power zone the circles have been omitted.

(4) The shaded areas of the map indicate the location of the principal coal measures of coal and oil which are the basis of steam power. Coal and oil are also used in connection with water power in many districts.

THERE is arising in America the mightiest monopoly the world has ever seen—the power trust. This monopoly will be more powerful than any that has ever existed before because it will include them all; it will own and control the power without which none of them can exist and without which modern civilization cannot proceed. Electric power is the key to the coming civilization. The power trust is monopolizing the electric power and the sources of electric power of the continent.

The private electric power companies already boast of their chain of interconnected power systems that stretch like mightly tentacles from southern California to northern Washington, from Niagara to the factories of Massachusetts, from Minnesota to Tennessee, from North Carolina to the Everglades of Florida. Over 650 municipally owned electric light and power plants in various parts of the United States, they say, have succumbed to their superpower organization within the last few months.

2,000 Municipally Owned Plants

There are first of all the 2318 municipally owned and operated electric light and power plants in the United States and 401 in Canada. (Indicated on accompanying map by the figures in squares). In these is the nucleus of a nation-wide, publicly owned superpower system. True, scarcely a day passes now that private companies do not announce the "taking over" of some municipal plant. But on the whole, the municipally owned plants are holding their own or gaining a bit.

In Ontario, there already exists a successful, firmly established public superpower system. Here 265 cities and 77 rural communities are co-operating together in a system operated on the principle of service at cost. Seattle has interconnected her municipal power system with that of Tacoma, and these two in turn have arranged to interconnect with Aberdeen. Los Angeles, Cal.; Springfield, Ill.; Wahoo, Neb.; Granite Falls, Minn., and scores of other cities have caught the superpower idea.

12 Plants Is 10 States.

Besides the municipal plants there are 12 hydro-electric plants that are owned by the U. S. government, 11 connected with reclamation projects in the western states. The 12th is the government plant at Muscle Shoals. (Indicated by stars on the map.) On or adjacent to these projects, located in ten states, are over 1,500,000 horse power of hydro-electric energy available that may be developed.

Next are the water resources of the nation that can be used to develop electric power: Rivers like the Columbia, 6,000,000 horse power; great cataracts like Niagara; the rapids of St. Lawrence; Muscle Shoals, and literally hundreds of other streams, rapids and falls of smaller potentialities. (Indicated on map by circles, unshaded portion undeveloped.) Probably less than one-eighth of the total potential hydro-electric power has been taken by private companies.

Finally, there are the fuel resources of coal and oil. (Indicated on map by shaded patches on map.) These resources are largely privately owned, some still remain under public ownership and the public superpower system must negotiate with private owners for fuel at the development of coal and oil which is necessary to operate the steam plants which are the basis of the superpower system.

These steam plants, together with the many thousands of similar plants owned and operated by the cities, must be interconnected with the water power plants and made a part of the national system.

In the Dakotas, Montana, and Wyoming alone there are 600,000,000,000 tons of lignite coal as yet almost untouched; not commercially practical at present, which can be used at the mine mouth to develop electric power. Such a U. S. government mine near Williston, N. D., produces electric power for pumping on the reclamation project and lights and supplies power to the city of Williston.

Indorsed by A. F. of L.

The American Federation of Labor, League of Municipalities of California and Georgia, The Intl. Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Assn. of Mayors and other City Officials of New York, Natl. Grange, Michigan State Grange, California Water and Power Acts Campaign committee, Boulder Canon Assn. of the Southwest, the Washington and Oregon Public ownership leagues, and the South Dakota Hydro league, these are a few of the forces already mobilized and fighting for public superpower.

The matter will go to referendum vote of the whole people in at least three states during the coming year, and will be strongly pressed in the state legislatures of at least a dozen more, as well as in congress.

Capper Lines Up With Coolidge

It is evident that a campaign is about to be launched by the big dailies of the country to convince the mass of people that everybody is for Coolidge. Already there are rumors being circulated to the effect that Coolidge's popularity is growing especially in the Western States. This wave of popularity that is threatening to overwhelm the President is attributed to the great impression that the President's message has made on the farmers.

The dullest fifth grade school expert can refute this ridiculous contention with very little effort. The fact of the matter is that certain gentlemen in the Senate and House who have arrogated to themselves the unwarranted and unwarrantable right to speak for the farming masses are lining up with Coolidge as was to be expected. Gentlemen of the type of Senator Capper the millionaire newspaper-farmer from Kansas and a few weak-kneed mid-western Senators are the only farming masses rallying to Coolidge's support.

It is an open secret in Washington that Senator Capper is very likely going to be the reactionaries' choice as Coolidge's running mate in November. Apropos of this, the following report of the leading New York papers is very instructive. The facts as cited show precisely where Capper stands and who he is. Senator Capper has abandoned support of a bill which was advocated by growers of wool, farmers and agricultural organizations and opposed by woolen manufacturers. Instead he espoused one introduced by Senator Lodge. The latter bill was less drastic than Senator Capper's proposed measure and less objectionable to the woolen interests.

After having introduced his own bill, Senator Lodge then went ahead to substitute one including some provisions of the Capper bill, it is alleged. Now the woolen manufacturers are opposing it. They are hinting bad faith on the part of Lodge. But the men on the inside of Washington's great game of politics look upon the alleged understanding between Senator Lodge and Senator Capper as only an ordinary episode in the scheme to make use of the latter's progressive label in the interests of the reactionary Coolidge.

Whatever doubts one might have had as to where Capper really stands are dismissed in his following from an editorial in the Senator's paper: "The Topeka Capital," "There is nothing in sight now to prevent the nomination of Coolidge. He is strong and growing stronger, and his support is peculiar in not being factional or sectional. It is general among all elements of the party and all sections of the country. It is no stronger anywhere than it is today in Kansas."

Needless to say the big mass of farmers who are having the devil's own time making their most limited ends meet will not take Capper seriously again. Capper and his tribe have betrayed the farmers too often. There comes a time when even a Senator is known by his deeds as well as his words. That time has already come for Capper in the eyes of the overwhelming majority of the working farmers.

Beck, U. S. Solicitor, Looks Backward

Speaking at the Hamilton Club, Chicago, with one exception perhaps the richest and most reactionary clique in America, James M. Beck, solicitor general of the United States, mournfully sighed for the "good old days." And his audience, composed almost exclusively of those who already have their swag, sighed with him. "The times are moving too fast," was the burden of his lament.

"We are moving with express train rapidity. It is a world of acceleration. Shakespeare with a hand press could do more good today than a string of rotary presses stretching from New York to San Francisco—because Shakespeare had a soul and something to say."

(If we had choice of weapons in our duel with capitalism we should certainly give Beck his hand press. his Shakespeare, and his soul. Bring on the rotaries. The weakness of the workers is that they are compelled to use the hand press against their enemy's rotary.)

After the customary and proper tremolos about the "principles of Hamilton," always good for a hand at the Hamilton Club, and some fear at losing "the blood bought privileges of our fathers," Mr. Beck continued, "the constitution does not represent today what it did twenty-five years ago. It's a changing picture mind—our lack of thinkers. There are not ten men in America today who have sufficient eloquence and sound thoughts to pack a hall as large as the Coliseum annex. We are our thinkers, our speakers!"

Discarding for just one moment our customary enmity, may we not remark that these days we are all anything at all have joined the Workers Party?

Profits 50% On Chewing Gum

An appropriation of $40,000,000 for education—in chewing gum the Wrigley way has been cheerfully paid by American wage earners, according to New York financial reports. Evidently the kind of solidarity they want is in the loyal order of Wrigley chewers. Per 5c of that amount could not be raised for maintaining a decent labor press.

As a matter of act this huge sum has been filched from your pocket penny by penny with each package you buy. A total of $40,000,000 of it was paid out in seven years for just one sign, the giant electric sign which used to top Times square, New York. Wrigley paid $10,000 a year to educate 2,300,000 people a day at that point. Only 27,000,000 of the total went in four years to put the public's pennies out of the Wrigley pockets to promote their own profits.

As a result of paying for this educational campaign Wrigley profits at the rate of 87.5% a year on the investment of stockholders. Only dividends now going to the owners of the chewing gum trust at the rate of $8 a year on each $9.20 worth of stock.

MINERS RECONSIDER NOVA SCOTIA ISSUE

Free Prisoners, Repeal Syndicalism Laws, Is Demanded

HOWAT CASE SOON UP FOR SETTLEMENT

Lewis–Murray Machine Loses Grip on the Delegates

By JOHN FITZGERALD
(Staff Correspondent of The Daily Worker)

Tomlinson Hall, Indianapolis, Ind.—A sensational backdown of the Lewis-Murray machine, which outlawed the Nova Scotia miners for their sympathetic strike in behalf of the steel workers and their endorsement of the Red International of Labor Unions, came this afternoon when Vice-President Phil Murray arose and moved for reconsideration of the Nova Scotia issue.

A tremendous volume of ayes greeted the motion, and it was carried with tremendous enthusiasm after a speech by J. J. Watt, of Springfield, Ill.

MacIntyre Allowed to Speak.

Cheers again greeted the demand of Delegate Morgan, of Nordegg, Canada, that MacIntyre, the deposed vice-president of the Nova Scotia district, be given the floor.

The convention brushed aside the motion of Chairman Kennedy that the anti-Nova Scotia resolution originally submitted be concurred in and MacIntyre mounted the platform. Another ovation came as MacIntyre began to speak.

Great Threat to Administration.

MacIntyre requested postponement of the discussion until he secured certain documents which are in Indianapolis.

The Nova Scotia case is the greatest threat the Indianapolis machine is facing. The outlawing of the miners in this maritime province has aroused bitter resentment throuout the union the John L. Lewis boasted of his deed at the A. F. of L. convention.

MacIntyre and his colleagues are prepared for the fight. The administration learned that they had a statement in the printers' hands for distribution to the delegates and this is believed to have caused the backdown in giving them the floor.

The Nova Scotia case is an entering wedge for the coming Howat fight. In spite of the Farrington alliance John L. Lewis is facing a battle that all his payroll supports may not be able to win at this convention.

Delegates have been eagerly reading the exposures in the DAILY WORKER.

The Howat Case Comes Up.

The power of the Lewis-Murray machine will receive its severest test when Alexander Howat makes his fight to appear before the convention.

Enthusiastic Howat sentiment was shown as the fighting coal digger himself appeared in the convention hall. Delegates rushed to his side and pledged their support.

"I have been waiting 29 months to get a square deal," said the man who was kicked out of the miners' organization when he led the great fight against the Industrial Court in Kansas. "I expect to get it now. "I am demanding nothing but justice from the miners," continued Ho-

FALL IN SICK BED AFTER $100,000 TALE OF BRIBERY

Got Money Before Doheny Got Lease

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—The senate public lands committee investigating Teapot Dome will demand absolute proof of the truth of the story told by E. L. Doheny, millionaire oil man, of a $100,000 loan to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior.

Both Fall and Doheny must submit conclusive evidence to the committee that their testimony is accurate, committee members said today as the committee prepared to continue delving into the amazing story of loans to the man who controlled the leasing of vast national wealth in the form of oil in the naval oil reserves of the west.

Fall Faces Grilling

Fall, who arrived in Washington about 11 o'clock last night from New Orleans, to undergo an ordeal of cross examination never before faced by an American cabinet officer or former cabinet member, will take the witness stand Monday, according to present plans.

Colonel J. W. Zevely, Washington representative of Harry F. Sinclair, rival of Doheny and lessee of Teapot Dome, will be quizzed this after-

Fall Contradicts Doheny

WASHINGTON.—How the various leases granted Doheny on government oil reserves occurred, with relation to the loan of $100,000 he made Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, is shown by these dates:

July, 1921—Doheny signed royalty oil lease with the government.

November 30, 1921—Loaned $100,000 on personal unsecured note to Secretary of Interior Fall, who had charge of leases.

April 25, 1922—Obtained contract with government, stating that his company, the Pan American Petroleum Company, was to have priority rights to drilling on naval reserves Numbers One and Two.

Dec. 11, 1922—Signed leases with government for exclusive drilling rights on naval reserve Number One, known as the Elk Hill reserve.

BUT-

Doheny Contradicts Fall

WASHINGTON. — Here's the statement Albert B. Fall will be called on Monday to explain to the senate committee investigating Teapot Dome. It is taken from testimony Fall gave before the committee Dec. 27:

"It should be needless for me to say that in the purchase of the Harris ranch or in any other purchase or expenditures, I have never approached E. L. Doheny or any one connected with him or any of his corporations or Mr. H. F. Sinclair or any one connected with him or any of his corporations, nor have I ever received from either of said parties one cent on account of any oil lease or upon any other account whatsoever."

CORONER'S JURY GIVES STANDARD OIL WHITE WASH

No Voice Is Raised for Dead at Pekin

(By The Federated Press)

PEKIN, Ill.—Boquets for the Corn Products Co., and a verdict attaching no blame for the Jan. 3 explosion that took 42 workers' lives, marked the hearings by the coroner's jury into the industrial disaster.

No one ventured to push himself forward against the powerful Standard Oil subsidiary and point out that the absence of suction fans and probably the principal element in the causes leading up to the starch factory blast. No one called attention to the fact that since the union was broken and the open shop instituted the union precautions against danger had been junked and a deadly competition for production records stimulated by the company among its three shifts.

Instead, one employe was induced to testify that "as far as he knew the company did everything possible to keep the plant cleaned up." Others said there had been safety first lectures by company officials and lots of notices to be careful. The coroner's jury found that the men came to their deaths "as a result of burns and injuries received at an explosion and fire which occurred at the Corn Products plant at Pekin, Ill., on the morning of Jan. 3, between the hours of 3:30 and 4:30 a. m." The blame is not fixed.

In place of suction fans in the plant that would have automatically eliminated the explosive dust, the dead employes of the Rockefeller corporation will have the benefit of a shaft in the center of their burial plot in the cemetery.

The funeral services were attended by several thousand people.

For Recognition of Soviet Russia!

LABOR PARTY RECOGNIZES SOVIET RULE

Only Details of Pact to Be Adjusted Later

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—The British Labor Party cabinet, in a special communique issued thru the foreign office, announces that it has decided to grant full recognition to the Russian Soviet government as soon as possible. James O'Grady will be the ambassador to Russia.

This is the first official act of the new Labor Party government and coincides with pledges made during the campaign.

The decision of the Labor Party government will make Great Britain the first major power to recognize the Soviet government. According to the Russian Trade Mission, headed by M. Rakovsky, negotiations for recognition had been progressing before the labor party came into power, but the death of Lenin interrupted them.

They will be resumed in a few days to determine a number of minor conditions, bearing on recognition. Rakovsky said he did not believe that the death of Lenin would have any effect upon the attitude of the Labor Party government.

Brilliant Weekly, The Freeman, to Appear No More

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—Announcement by the Huebach Publishing Company that the Freeman would be abandoned March 5, four years after its founding in 1920, brought keen regret to radical and intellectual circles.

The magazine was distinguished for its brilliant ironic comment on present day affairs and for the intellectual courage and clarity with which it dealt with new movements in philosophy and literature. Its own political point of view was that of the single tax economist who has however, no faith in existing political institutions, and this disillusionment set it strikingly apart from the liberal periodicals.

The demise of the Freeman is said to be occasioned by the withdrawal of the financial support of Helen Swift Neilson, wife of one of the editors. Mrs. Neilson had fulfilled her original promise to maintain the paper for three years. It is being retired at the height of its circulation but is not self supporting. The paper accepted no advertising.

Separatist Assassinated.

LONDON.—Herr Schlicht, noted separatist leader, was assassinated today at Adenau in the Rhineland, according to a Central News Berlin dispatch.

LANDLORD GOES TO JAIL; FAILED TO GIVE HEAT; MAY STAY IN 300 DAYS

Michael Bottighiere, landlord, is in a prison cell today, for failure to provide heat for his tenants.

Bottighiere was convicted on a charge of allowing his apartments to go without fire during the recent cold spell.

When the landlord refused to pay a fine of $100, he was sent to the bastile. If he pays the fine and costs, he will stay in jail for 300 days.

"Close Ranks," Says Trotsky in Tribute to Lenin

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW.—"In our mourning let us close our ranks and our hearts for new combats," Leon Trotsky, Russian war minister, wrote in a remarkable tribute to his dead comrade, Nicolai Lenin.

The tribute, cabled from Tiflis, where Trotsky is ill, was published today. It read:

"How shall we now proceed along our path, Comrades?

"Shall we not wander now that Lenin no longer is with us?

"No!

"Lenin-ism remains.

"Lenin is immortal in his doctrine of work and his method and example, which live in the Party he created.

"He was the head and the helmsman.

"Our grief is as great as our loss, but we thank history for permitting us to have been born as contemporaries of Lenin.

"Our Party is Leninism in action. Every one of us contains something of Lenin.

"With the light of Leninism in our hand, we shall find the true road, by collective thought and collective will.

"How many among us could not unhesitatingly give the very last drop of our blood to revive the circulation in the veins of our matchless, unequalled leader?

"Lenin was necessary to the world's working classes as perhaps never in the history of humanity has a man been necessary.

"The Party is now an orphan.

"The working class is an orphan.

"That is what one feels today above everything else.

"Our responsibility now has been doubled. Let us be worthy of him who taught us.

"In our mourning, let us close our ranks and our hearts for new combats.

"Farewell!"

WORKERS PARTY OPPOSED TO ANY MAY 30 DELAY

Statement Issued on New Mahoney Proposal

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. PAUL, Minn.—William Mahoney, returning from a conference in Washington, D. C., with Senators LaFollette, Shipstead and Johnson, will advise the postponement of the May 30 farmer-labor conference until after the conventions of the democratic and republican parties. This announcement is made in a statement to the press issued by Mahoney.

It is believed that his action will arouse much opposition in the ranks of the labor and farmer organizations sponsoring the conference.

The Workers Party, which has taken a leading part in organizing the May 30th conference, today issued the following statement on the Mahoney proposal of postponing the May 30 meeting:

"The Workers Party is unalterably opposed to the postponement of the May 30th Conference, for the convenience of politicians who have secured the high offices they now hold thru the support of the farmers and wage-earners without endangering their friends in the capitalistic parties.

"To postpone the May 30 conference at the request of such hopelessly timid elements as this would be inexcusable. The present political movement of the farmers and wage-earners is crystallizing rapidly into a political expression of their own class.

"The Workers Party is interested not in organizing the masses behind some petty bourgeois leader

Peasants Block Roads Leading to Lenin's Funeral

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW.—So many thousands of peasants are pouring toward Moscow from all parts of Russia, to pay honor to their dead leader, Nicolai Lenin, that roads and railways are blocked for miles. It became necessary to postpone the funeral from Saturday to Sunday.

An incessant stream of persons still passes slowly and reverently by the simple bier where Lenin lies. To view the body for a brief instant, one must stand for hours in line in the biting cold.

The respects of the diplomatic corps, representing countries that recognize the government Lenin founded, were paid by Count Brockdorff Rantzau, German envoy, who took his turn in line and reached the coffin at one o'clock in the afternoon.

In a letter to the Petrograd Soviet, Minister Zinoviov proposed that the name of Petrograd should be changed to Leningrad. The assembly carried the motion amidst an ovation.

MANY CITIES TO HOLD MEETINGS IN LENIN'S HONOR

Success Follows Memorial Plans of Party

Similar meetings in homes of Soviet Lenin, not to be held in leading American cities from Boston to Los Angeles, the national office of the Workers Party announced.

Fifteen thousand pictures of the departed leader are being printed and a special memorial edition of Zinoviev's "Life and Works of Lenin" is being prepared.

Moving pictures of the life of Lenin will be exhibited in all the leading cities under direction of the party.

The following cities are among those which have completed their arrangements and notified the national office:

Boston, January 26, H. M. Wicks, speaker.

New York, February 4, William Z. Foster and C. E. Ruthenberg speaking, at Madison Square Gardens.

Detroit, February 3, C. E. Ruthenberg, speaker.

Chicago, January 29, Ashland Auditorium, Robert Minor, Martin Abern, William F. Dunne, William Z. Foster and C. E. Ruthenberg.

St. Paul and Minneapolis, February 3, James P. Cannon.

Omaha, February 3, Tom Matthews, Rev. J. L. Beebe, W. H. Green and D. Reznik.

Los Angeles, January 27, Ella Reeves Bloor.

noon. The committee wants to know what Zevely did with $80,000 worth of Sinclair Oil company stock and $25,000 worth of Liberty Bonds given to him out of the Sinclair treasury.

Testimony has been that Zevely got this to buy a house on Long Island.

Zevely accompanied Fall to Washington from New Orleans and Fall, after trying in vain to elude newspaper men waiting for him, went to Zevely's house for the night.

Slipping into the capital shortly before midnight, Fall was examined by his physician, Dr. John Wharton.

Fall Very Ill

After the examination Dr. Wharton said:

"Mr. Fall is suffering from a malady that any moment may take his life. He is a very sick man. I hope and feel sure that he will insist on appearing before the senate public lands committee on Monday to answer any charges against him."

Fall hobbled into Zevely's house on a cane. His face was shrunken and hollow.

"Boys, I'm a very sick man and I have nothing to say," he told newspapermen as he went in.

"Would you wish to answer intimations that you received an additional $100,000 in connection with the leases?" he was asked.

"I don't know anything about that," Fall said.

"Some intimations seem to have been given that another $100,000 was loaned you."

"Boys, I can't say anything now."

Committee Not Satisfied

The committee is not satisfied with the testimony of Edward L. Doheny who yesterday said that he had loaned $100,000 to Fall on a personal note without security in November 1921.

None of the members of the committee would indicate whether they intended to reject or accept Doheny's proposal that President Coolidge appoint three experts to determine whether his leases on naval oil reserves number one and two in California were lawfully and honestly negotiated.

They want to hear Zevely and Fall, first.

Doheny Weeps

With tears in his eyes at the memory of Fall's "hard luck," Doheny told the committee the whole transaction was purely a piece of friendship. He described himself as an irresponsible, improvident oil prospector, with a big heart who open handedly told his friend Fall that whenever he needed money to "come to me."

He regarded it about as other men would regard a $5 or $10 loan, he said.

A little later Doheny said he confidently expected to make $100,000,000 out of one of the California naval oil reserve leases granted him by Fall.

Fall was confined to bed today by order of his physician, Dr. John Wharton.

Dr. Wharton said there was congestion in Fall's chest and a high fever, due to a freshly contracted cold.

Wharton said he hoped Fall would be sufficiently recovered by Monday to appear before the senate investigating committee.

A statement issued by Dr. Wharton said:

"Upon examination this morning I find that secretary Fall has developed congestion in the chest and is suffering from a severe cold contracted on his journey from New Orleans.

"He has a fever and I have ordered him to remain in bed for the time being."

Sinclair's Brother Wants to Explain

FRANK MUNSEY BUTCHERS THIRD NEW YORK PAPER

Buys and Kills Mail: Workers Need Daily

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—New York will soon have as few capitalist papers as Chicago, if Frank Munsey continues buying them up and liquidating them.

His latest purchase is the Evening Mail, just announced.* This paper will be consolidated with the Evening Telegram into the Telegram and Evening Mail, as the New York Globe, which he recently purchased, was combined with the Sun.

The Mail got into trouble during the war for alleged German ownership and Rumley, its publisher, was indicted. Its editorial line was not so liberal as that of the Globe, under the Bliven regime, but it was far and above ahead of anything under the direction of Munsey.

Three Notches On Gun

Several years ago Munsey purchased and killed the New York Press. There are now three notches on his newspaper-game gun, making more than even the witty remark of a New York editor that "All good newspapers when they die go to Munsey."

Hardboiled reaction is the tone of all Munsey papers. Matter appears in its columns only if Mr. Munsey's editors consider it wholesome for his large steel and chair store interests.

Munsey Papers Worst Prostitutes

The New York Herald distinguished itself, even among newspaper prostitutes by the McCullough cables about Soviet Russia which were discredited even by the stories of the New York Times. Two summers ago the Herald ran a fantastic series of articles on the radical movement in America which showed that the Department of Justice had turned over its files to the staff writer. At the last convention of the American Federation of Labor the Herald correspondent was assistant chief aid to Chester Wright in engineering the publicity campaign against the left wingers which reached its climax with the unseating of Delegate Dunne.

New York radicals do not relish the consolidation of the newspapers into the most reactionary hands but they take comfort in the fact that every half-way liberal paper that meets its death at the hands of Munsey makes the necessity of a daily workers' paper more evident.

Building Trades Council Demands Public Schools Be Made Safe for the Children

The one subject of conversation in union offices and halls yesterday was the campaign of THE DAILY WORKER for safe and adequate public schools. Unemployed workers, who sat around union offices waiting for jobs, expressed keen interest in the subject.

Fathers of school children were particularly interested. Many building trades workers who are competent to judge the safety of buildings said that they have known that their children are going to schools that are fire traps but that they were unable to see what they could do to remedy the situation.

"If we say anything to the politicians about the schools and the need of new ones we are accused of wanting to see new schools built so we can get work," said one carpenter who was in line to pay his dues at the office of Local No. 1, of the Carpenters' Union.

Edward Ryan, president of the Building Trades Council of Chicago said, "I believe that every building in Chicago should be made safe and fireproof. But first of all common humanity demands that all public buildings be made safe. Next to homes should be the safest buildings in the city. That is the first thing that should be done. They should also be made sanitary."

All building trades workers who had seen the DAILY WORKER said that they were glad that it had started its campaign for safe schools because it could not be accused of a selfish interest in demanding new buildings.

Students Aid Campaign.

With the DAILY WORKER campaign against the unsafe public schools hardly under way, pupils who are attending such schools have already manifested an interest in it.

Students from the Medill High School, West 14th Place and Throop St., report that their school, altho a comparatively modern building, is in many ways unsafe and unsanitary. The school which is in the heart of the great slum ghetto serves the district from Harrison to 18th streets, and from Western Avenue to Halsted Street. Its main building was erected in 1895 and additions made in 1897 and 1907. It is a three story frame affair without fire escapes. The lighting is far from good. All day artificial light is required in most of the rooms.

"Fireproof" Laws Ignored.

The interior is not fireproof as is required by city ordinances. The lunch rooms are used as study rooms on occasion and when used as lunch rooms are not clean. Numerous students complain that they have seen roaches in the lunch rooms and that they are so numerous that they crawl on the tables and trays. In the wash rooms, which are seldom clean, there is often no water.

The school has been poorly heated most of this winter. During the cold conditions in the school became so bad that a few of the more unafraid students called a meeting to outline a program of action. This resulted in better conditions. The call to the meeting set down as the demands of the students more light, better wash room facilities, more heat, clean lunch rooms, more lockers so that all students would not be forced to use one locker as they are at present. The meeting was not held because the principle of the school managed to be tipped off about the call of the meeting and the students were not willing to proceed under official scrutiny. The demands, however, were brought to his attention, but nothing has been done about them up until now.

All the pupils attending Medill are the children of foreign born factory and needle trades workers and the students who came to the DAILY WORKER office to tell their story believe that the poor conditions in their school are the result of the indifference of the school authorities to the poor and foreign-born workers who have no way of making their protests felt.

Story of the Brown School

The Brown School, at Warren avenue and Wood street, is housed in one of the oldest school buildings in Chicago. The building is so old that parents of children attending the school have petitioned in a body to the president of the Board of Education demanding that the school be put in proper condition to safeguard the lives of the pupils.

All the president did about the complaints was to send an inspector to the school who pronounced it safe. The School is housed in two buildings, the oldest of which was erected in 1857 and the newer one in 1870. The two buildings are connected by a one-story frame shanty. In order to get from one building to another it is necessary to pass thru two class rooms and a dark narrow hallway.

In both buildings the stairways are narrow winding affairs. The landings are dark.

Fire Escape Is Farce.

The two fire escapes instead of being a safety device are a menace to life. They are merely tubes standing on end with slides inside down which the pupils are supposed to come. The door at the bottom is supposed to open when a weight strikes it, but it is doubtful if the body of a school child would be heavy enough to open them. If the doors failed to open nothing could stop the pupils who were already on their way down from coming on and many would undoubtedly be smothered to death.

Because of this possibility the principal does not permit their use during fire drills. He says, however, that if they were used during a fire by children who were unaccustomed to them, panic would result.

The Board of Education has delayed the erection of a new building for the Brown school because they were doubtful of the future of the neighborhood. Factories were moving into the district and the board thought that the entire district might be given over to manufacture and the school population reduced. Last year the city zoning laws were passed outlawing factories in the Brown school district but nothing has been done about a new school building.

The school has 945 seats and about 1500 pupils. The two shift system has been introduced. The pupils attending the Brown school are the children of factory workers. Altho most of the children come from homes where both the mother and father work the school does not have a lunch room.

A few years ago a new heating system and plumbing system was installed at a cost of $125,000. It is felt by many parents whose children attend the school that the cost of the heating plant will be used as an argument against the scrapping of the present buildings and the erection of a new and modern one.

Parents Afraid of Firetrap.

Because of the general belief among the parents of the pupils that the school is unsafe and unfit for use many parents are taking their children out of the school and sending them to Catholic schools.

A canvass of the neighborhood of the school revealed that the parents of the pupils are hopeless of getting a new building.

The first mother of school children visited by an investigator of the DAILY WORKER said that more than a year ago she had taken her two children out of the school and sent them to a Catholic school. She said that if a new building were put up she would send them back. "I know that children learn more in public schools than they do in the Catholic schools but that school building is not safe. Until there is a new building my kids will go to the Catholic school," she said.

Would Let Kids Die.

A grocer who comes in contact with many of the mothers near the school said that it was generally realized that the school was a menace to life but that he did not see what could be done about it. He had taken it up with the alderman from the district who said that nothing could be done until the zoning law was passed and the future of the neighborhood made certain. Nothing has been done since then the alderman said because the Board of Education has no money. "But most of the parents around here have very little time to worry about the school. If the kids are away from home they are satisfied."

MERRICK GOING BEFORE JURY ON BOMB FRAME-UP

Shoe Owners' Conspiracy Backs False Charge

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HAVERHILL, Mass.—The trial next week of John Merrick before the Superior Court in Salem, Mass., on a dynamite-planting charge following his activities in the Haverhill shoe strike a year ago, bring to memory the Red-Conspiracy frame-up, now discredited, and the Breen dynamite case, when agents of the shoe bosses confessed that they had planted the dynamite themselves in order to discredit the strikers.

Merrick was arrested two weeks after the finding of the "bomb" in Haverhill. After the necessary time for a newspaper propaganda barrage against "communists" and "dynamiters" the police staged a raid on the room of the young strike leader and later in the police station produced bits of wire, solder and clockwork which they swore they had found there. Curiously enough, the arrest followed almost immediately an announcement of the head of the Knipe Bros.' firm of a $5,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the man who planted the bomb.

Merrick was held under $20,000 bail, later reduced to $15,000, which was finally secured by his friends. He returned to the automobile shop which he had opened up after the shoe firms blacklisted him for organizing activities. He is married and has lived in and near Haverhill all his life.

Shoe factory owners regard the conviction of Merrick as very important to their open shop program. The defeat of the frame-up is equally important to the labor movement. The case has been investigated carefully by the Workers' Defense Conference of New England and the facts of the frame-up revealed. A defense fund drive is now being carried on by the Lawrence General Labor Defense Committee, 180 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

Wharton Charges Railroad Labor Board in Bribery Plot to Smash Bona Fide Union Organizations

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Correspondent)

Connivance with a campaign of bribery to destroy all bona fide labor organizations on the railroads is charged against the majority of the U. S. Railroad Labor Board by Member A. O. Wharton in dissenting from a decision relative to representation of train dispatchers employed by the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Co.

The "total disregard of the rights of the employes, according to Wharton, warrants a most emphatic protest against such unheard of abuse of authority.

"Under the decision of the majority," says Wharton, "the carrier, with the full knowledge that the majority of the board is in sympathy with the idea that it is powerless to prescribe any procedure, may initiate and install a company union offering the equivalent of a 940 increase per month for employes as a bribe to vote for such organization while at the same time refusing to accord any concession to the same employes so long as they elect to be represented by a bona fide labor organization."

This decision carried to its logical conclusion would permit the railroads to spend over $900,000,000 a year out of funds derived from high freight rates for the purpose of supplanting real unions with company unions.

The case submitted to the board by the American Train Dispatchers' Assn. involves the attempt of the Union Pacific to establish company unions on all its lines. The Oregon road is one of its subsidiaries. First the road got the labor board to establish rates of pay for train dispatchers and to abolish two weeks' vacation with pay which had formerly been established by agreement between management and the train dispatchers' organization. It then turned around and offered these train dispatchers higher pay and restoration of the two weeks' annual vacation with pay provided they surrendered their right to representation by the organization they had voluntarily created and accepted as a substitute the company union created by management.

The proposal to change representation was first submitted with the board by the carrier. Yet the board ordered a secret ballot to determine whether the men wished to be represented by the national organization or by a company union which had previously no existence. The train dispatchers asked the board to prevent the carrier's open use of bribery and economic coercion by including in the ballot a statement that train dispatchers would receive the same treatment regardless of the form of organization they voted for. But the majority of the board refused on the ground, as stated by Chairman Hooper in a supporting opinion, that:

"The carrier in this case has obviously reached the conclusion that as a matter of economic and efficient operation it can afford to pay its dispatchers more money if it is permitted to deal exclusively and directly with them" and that dispatchers must be left free to weigh this fact in reaching their decision.

Such a cynical statement of the open shop view that corporations can afford to pay more for subservient spineless employes, by the chairman of a tribunal, the country's leading arbitration board, would be enough to discredit that board if it had not already thoroly discredited itself by a series of decisions showing unmistakable bias toward the employer's viewpoint. In this case one representative of the public, Mr. Hanger, could not stomach such open partisanship, but the decision was carried by the vote of the advocate chairman plus that of Judge Barton who has never failed to show his partiality for the employer's position.

Free Lunches For Starving Doctors Latest in Germany

By The Federated Press

BERLIN.—Free lunches for doctors are the latest form of charity in Berlin. The lot of the German medical man is such that hundreds of physicians, if not thousands, are literally starving. The average German is so impoverished that he considers the luxury of a visit to the doctor the last luxury that he can afford.

Already countless physicians have gone into other professions. Thus the other day one appeared at my house to sell me some steel engravings by celebrated German masters, for a commission on these," he said, "is bigger than all my medical fees put together."

Other physicians are taking jobs as bank clerks, as scribes in public offices, as floor walkers and what not. And as for young graduates, they find the cost of purchasing medical instruments so prohibitive that they must first work at some trade for a few years before they can return to their chosen field of human knowledge.

But meanwhile there are those men of medicine who remain in the profession and who have just enough to live on and too much to die. It is for these that special doctors' feeding kitchens are being established. The doctors are to have wholesome food, supplied by the various foreign relief organizations, especially the Austrian, either at a ridiculously low cost or else entirely free of charge, depending upon the circumstances of the physician in question.

Alien Foe Plans to Destroy U. S. As World Melting Pot

WASHINGTON.—Chairman Albert Johnson of the house immigration committee confirms The Federated Press' statement of a week ago that the purpose of the proposed new legislation is to destroy the melting pot of racial stocks in America, as the asylum for political refugees in this country has already been destroyed.

In the current Outlook he declares "that the name melting pot is a misnamer and that the asylum idea is played out forever," is one of the conclusions reached by himself and his committee.

He proposes that relatives such as husbands or wives, parents or minor unmarried children, and even grandparents, of aliens already here, shall be admitted. He claims that 85% of all immigrants coming in the past 10 years have come to relatives, and that other dependents than those enumerated above should not be admitted under any quota.

COAL MINERS! Talk To Your Convention Thru Daily Worker

Coal Miners! Your convention is on at Indianapolis, Ind. It will be responsive to your needs if you will talk to it, talk to it in loud and emphatic tones.

You can do this thru your paper, THE DAILY WORKER. You can do it every day. You can make yourself heard.

Every day THE DAILY WORKER goes to the convention at Tomlinson Hall, at Indianapolis. The miners' delegates are reading it, from first page, first column, to last page, last column.

If you will write to THE DAILY WORKER, telling your needs, the delegates will read your letter.

One of the big things you are interested in is unemployment. If you don't work there is no pay envelope. If you don't work, there is nothing with which to pay the landlord, the grocer, with which to buy the things your family needs. How do you get along? How do you make both ends meet? What do you demand?

Tell it to the delegates at Indianapolis. Tell it to your highly paid officials, whose salaries go on the whole year around.

Write about all the other great prbolems confronting the coal miners of this country. Your letters will be published in THE DAILY WORKER and read by the delegates at your convention at Indianapolis. Write to the Editor, The Daily Worker, 1640 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

COMMUNIST CHILDREN'S COLUMN

BED TIME STORY

By ROLAND QUILLAN.

Now once there dwelled in the state department at Washington, D. C. a full grown beard, on which was hooked a full grown man with very petty ideas. The official duty of this man, dear little children, was to sign passports for the Bahamas and the castles and so many other things, above all to assume a dignified appearance. This he did fairly well.

Now it happened that across the sea in far away Russia there dwelled other men with beards, but these were little comrades. Comrades who had kept pace with their beards so that they had great and fully grown beards. Their one great idea was to live at peace with the world.

So they sent greetings and friendly overtures to Washington with a desire to establish trade relationship and general friendly relations among two hundred and fourty million inhabitants of the globe.

Now when the man with the beard in Washington received the Russian note he jumped five foot from the floor—that at least, dear children, is what has been said. He then yelled, as it is reported, "Eureka, Eureka, I have it; them dirty Bolsheviks are trying to overthrow the Wall St. government. Curses, and damn, I'll get them yet."

It was then, my hearers, that he broadcasted the wail of woe to the effect that the whole country, because of instructions from Moscow, were going to plant the red flag on the White House. The answering echo, dear children, to this wail of woe knocked the props from under the sounding board in Washington. The echo was a loud guffah heard thruout the land.

It was voted the best joke of the season. Yet in spite of the original, my children, for it had been pulled before, yet not in a manner that evoked such laughter.

Now children, the moral of this story is that if you want to be real funny buy a false beard and try to save the country from the wicked reds.

"Constructive" Leaders

After reading the report and recommendations of President John L. Lewis to the convention of the United Mine Workers, it is not hard to understand why the capitalist press is loud in its praise of his "moderation" and "constructive" tendency.

Brother Lewis dealt neither with the question of wages or unemployment, but he manfully recommended an agreement covering a period of years to replace the present yearly contracts. From the capitalist press goes up a howl of approval. Such an agreement, peacefully entered into, would, according to Brother Lewis, convince the national government and the public that the coal industry "was making a sincere attempt to put its house in order."

The tender care manifested by union officials, such as Lewis, for the dear public that thinks of the miners only when they go on strike, is symptomatic of labor officialdom's attitude.

It visualizes the wage-earners as partners in industry and believes that all the trouble over wages, hours and conditions of labor is due solely to misunderstanding. They have not the slightest conception of the real state of affairs, which is that workers are, not partners in, but slaves of modern industry.

They always challenge the corporations, when the rank and file force them to fight, not as workers, but as American citizens who are being deprived of some guaranteed right. They make their fight on this basis, they organize on this basis and on this basis the power of the organized labor movement has steadily declined.

Brother Lewis infers in his remarks about the industry putting its house in order that the coal miners are in some measure responsible for the disturbances. He is trying to throw a mantle of respectability around himself and his henchmen, place the blame for strikes and so forth on the rank and file, insinuate himself into the good graces of the employers and capitalist press and lay a foundation for long term agreements that the employers will violate whenever the possibility of so doing appears.

There is no question but that the United Mine Workers face a serious situation and that the increased production of non-union coal, the 60,000,000 tons or more in storage at present, together with the thousands of unemployed miners, make a strike a ticklish undertaking.

No labor organization, however, has succeeded in strengthening itself by doing something that the employers dearly desired, and if the press is to be believed, the operators will be quite willing to enter into longer agreement if no increase is asked.

The organization of the coal miners has not been hastened by the attacks upon and expulsions of the more radical elements and right now there is but one thing that will defeat the plans of the coal operators for the destruction of the union. That one thing is the extension of the union to unorganized fields, but so much time has been spent in heresy hunting by Brother Lewis and his administration, that this important matter has been lost sight of.

We are afraid that the crusade against the reds will not be taken by the operators as evidence of virtue and that they will be just as hard-boiled with the miners as they were in the good old days when the United Mine Workers of America was known as a rebel organization.

Press Swallows Lies

The utter unreliability of the capitalist press on important issues has never been better shown than by the flood of outright lies which filled its columns during the recent conference of the Communist Party of Russia and the congress of the All-Russian Soviets.

At these conferences a discussion of the economic and political situation is carried on with a frankness and disregard of what is called public opinion without precedent in the history of governments. Nothing, bad or good, is concealed and there is no reason for any newspaper correspondent to be uninformed.

Based on the slender fact of differences of opinion in these conferences the capitalist press of America had Trotsky staging a revolt, Trotsky in hiding, the Cheka dynamiting his residence, his arrest and execution; the Russian Communist party was split, Budenny had seized control of the Red Army, the Soviet government was crumbling, the nation was in chaos and confirmation of these wild stories was hourly expected.

The death of Lenin seems to have had a sobering effect upon some of the world's champion liars; it was more luck than they expected. Now, in the Chicago Journal of Commerce, we discover Francis McCullagh of Kutchkavitch fame, denying in toto the stories of his colleagues. He is in Warsaw and has evidently been consulting Poles who have some glimmerings of sense.

He says:

"It is * * * certain that most of the current rumors concerning Trotsky are without foundation in fact. For instance, the report published Jan. 16th, that Trotsky had been arrested was untrue. The story evidently originated in anti-Bolshevik circles in Berlin or Paris, but telegraph inquiry sent from here by the Polish foreign office to the Polish embassy in Moscow elicited the reply:

"Nothing is known here of the reported arrest of Trotsky." Neither is there a word of truth in the report that Budenny is on the side of Trotsky and has sent the Soviet government an ultimatum or in the one that Trotsky's distrustful colleagues are keeping him confined in his house under strict supervision.

The wish for the collapse of the Soviet government is, of course, father to the thought and no evidence of friction is too slight for the capitalist press to take up and magnify, hoping against hope that the workers and peasants government which has resisted the attacks of capitalist enemies within and without for seven years may be really crumbling and leaving the field clear for the enslavement of the Russian masses by the chop-licking bourgeoise of the world.

The hope is vain. Even the death of Lenin has caused nothing but grief and given rise to a new determination.

Casualties of Peace

The statistical market is now clogged with shiploads of reports indicating the great prosperity of the employing class in 1923. To make a perusal of these voluminous reports one has to wade thru billions of dollars of profits on paper.

Occasionally the investigator is fortunate enough to come across a report showing the price paid by the workers for producing these fabulous profits for the capitalists. Such a report is the one issued by the New York State Industrial Commissioner, Bernard L. Shientag, on the extent of industrial accidents.

This report is most instructive. It shows the other side of the ledger in our industrial system. It shows the casualties of peace suffered by the workers. In the last fiscal year one out of every twelve workingmen in New York State was injured. Out of every 3,000 workers in the Empire State one was killed, while at work, "or died from injury or disease suffered or contracted while at work," in the year ending June 30, 1923.

The price paid by the workers for enriching their bosses is getting bigger and bigger. In the first six months of 1923 the number of casualties suffered by the industrial workers increased 25 per cent over the number in the corresponding period of 1922. The increase over the same period of 1921 was 30 per cent.

In the main these terrible conditions forced on the wage workers arise from the greed of the capitalists for gigantic profits. Many industrial experts agree that two out of every three industrial accidents can be avoided. In recent years the campaigns of speeding up of production and the inadequacy of safety measures taken by the employers in order to maintain their profits have particularly aggravated this critical condition.

This is typical of the conditions prevailing thruout the country. This ghastly situation reminds one of the World War in which one out of every 3,000 American workers fighting over there lost his life. Indeed, the casualties of peace under capitalism are more and more approaching the casualties of war. The uselessness and inefficiency of capitalism are becoming increasingly and painfully evident.

Prosperity For Some

There are thousands of unemployed clothing workers in the city of Chicago. An official of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers declared last week to the DAILY WORKER that the offices of the union have been besieged by tailors out of work seeking financial assistance.

The manufacturers were also anxious to secure relief. They had the usual hard luck story. They are making no profits. But the Chicago Journal of Commerce in its issue of January 1, published the annual report of the firm of Alfred, Decker and Cohn, Inc. which shows a net profit for the year ending October 31 of $837,899. That is a neat sum.

Messrs. Alfred, Decker and Cohn can go to the opera and perhaps take a trip to Palm Beach during the cold spell and the unemployment period, to recuperate for the task of exploiting the clothing workers when such capitalistic activity again begins to pay in the clothing industry. Meanwhile the needle slaves can bless their stars that they are living in a "free country" and not in "barbarous Russia" where the workers are solving the problem of running industry for the benefit of the workers.

What Congress Wants to Do With Foreign-Born Workers

(Note—The following article is the first of a series in which the Workers' Party publicist, Comrade Engdahl, discusses some pending legislation before Congress, directed against foreign-born workers who wish to come to this country and those in this country.)

By C. E. RUTHENBERG.

The Vestal Bill.

Representative Vestal, of Indiana, has introduced in the House of Representatives one of the most far-reaching bills directed against foreign-born workers.

This bill does not only provide for the usual limitation of immigration, the examination of immigrants before being granted permission to enter the United States but also provides the means of taking care of the foreign-born workers who are now in the United States. Section 30 of the Vestal bill reads:

"To facilitate the registration of identities, it shall be the duty of all aliens residing in the United States and all aliens sojourning in the United States to register in such United States judicial district before such officer of the Immigration Service as may be designated by the commissioner general, with the approval of the Secretary, and such registration shall include the full name of the alien, his nationality, age, personal description (including height, complexion, color of hair and eyes), date and place of birth, marital status, name and place of residence of spouse and children, if any, name and place of nearest relative in the United States and of nearest relative abroad, date and place of arrival, and, if thru a port, the name of the vessel on which he arrived; and at the time of registration the alien shall also furnish to the officer such photographs as may be required by regulations prescribed under authority of this Act. Every alien so registering shall be issued a certificate of registration with a photograph of the alien permanently attached thereto."

Under this section of the Vestal bill every foreign-born worker in the United States will have to carry in his pocket a certificate of registration containing his picture. Should the duplicate of this certificate be lost by the Department of Labor, the bill provides this shall be prima facie evidence that the foreign-born worker failed to register and shall be forthwith deported.

Not only does Representative Vestal want to put upon every foreign-born worker the duty of registering, but he provides that the foreign-born worker shall pay for the registration, for a fee of $5 is to be paid to the officer who registers the foreign-born in the United States.

In order to get the full significance of this registration and photographing provision of the Vestal bill applying to the foreign-born workers who have been in the United States as long as five years, one must consider in connection with it another bill which is pending before the House of Representatives.

Deportation for "Engendering Ill Feeling"

This bill is introduced by Representative Romjue, who is from Missouri. It provides in Section 5 that

"Any person not a citizen of the United States, while within the jurisdiction thereof who shall attack or seek to engender ill feeling against the institutions of the government in the United States shall, in addition to being subject to penalties provided by law therefore, be immediately deported from the United States either before or after discharge of sentence for the commission of said offense, as in the opinion of the legal authorities of the United States is deemed proper."

What is "engendering ill feeling against the institutions of the government of the United States"? Almost any kind of discontent voiced by an alien would come under this provision. Certainly, an alien who participated in a strike, for instance, in a strike of the United Mine Workers of America or the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and found an injunction issued against his union and protested against this injunction, would be charged with "engendering ill feeling against the institutions of the government of the United States."

The Vestal bill and the Romjue bill taken together would achieve for the employers of the United States what they desire and wish to achieve—that is, to make it impossible for the foreign-born workers in this country to organize a strike or participate in any struggles for their betterment by holding over them the constant threat of deportation should they participate in such struggles.

Penal Slaves to Be Sweated By Wage Payments

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ALBANY, N. Y.—Inmates of New York state prisons are to receive wages, if Governor Smith's recommendations to the legislature go thru, but the men in jail will have to work harder and longer.

The extension of the working day for penal slaves is recommended in the report of the Adolph Lewisohn committee, which the governor says he is taking as his guide.

One and a half cents a day is the wage under existing conditions, but Governor Smith has discovered that this is virtually no wage at all, and that it leads to sabotage and inefficiency. Under the new proposal there would be sliding scales according to industry and ability. Thirty cents would be deducted for maintenance and the rest would be split, 50 per cent going to the state and the remainder to the prisoner.

The prisoner's prospects for parole would depend on his industrial record, Governor Smith stated. At present the state of New York has to buy many supplies from outside concerns employing free labor. Under the new system it is believed the prisoners will double production and make these outside purchases unnecessary.

...PT (An American Story) By WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD

Everything was in full swing in the ...ster saloon when I dropped in one night in the Winter of '09. The billiard, pool and gambling tables were all running. A roulette wheel, a faro-game and two stud poker games were furnished with plenty of...

Calling up the stranglers to have a drink, I said to Ben Hastings, the bartender, "Who is the man by the roulette table. The man sat huddled with his hat, drawn down over his eyes. Ben replied, "That is old Mc... don't let much get by but he usually pull his haul for a stake of mor...

I beckoned to him; he came shuffling up, glancing his left back a little, as if saying, you don't want to get me, I want to keep you in view. I ordered over to the faro layout, and he followed me. I bought a stack of chips and piled them on the queen. "Silver," I said to the dealer. Picking up the cards he shuffled them, and began another round of drinks. As I was watching the actions of the miners who had come with me on the Tyrell-Miles sailing confidently to McCrea, the dope-fend.

Nearly every mining camp has its corner saloon. The one I mention here was located in Silver City, Idaho. A little town built in a narrow gulch between Florida and War Eagle mountains. Florida and War Eagle were the mighty guards over the entrance to the camp, with the foundation in the bed of the creek. Main street, the only street, ran, or, by the grace of the early settlers, it was supposed to run, in a straight line from the mouth of Florida Canyon to the mouth of War Eagle. The saloon was located on the corner of Main and Broadway, the principal of the two streets of the town. The red light district occupied the rear street, populated by white, black and Chinese women.

Cabins and little houses, the homes of the married miners, were scattered about the surrounding mountain sides. The snow fell deep that winter and there was little to mark their locality except the stove pipes and an occasional chimney, sticking up thru the snow.

The following morning as I was going to work I passed McCann's Dead Gulch. A light was shining thru the window.

That morning the old dope-fend was arrested at the stage office. He had gone early with a box to be shipped to Salt Lake City. The sheriff was waiting for him. Took both box and the box to his office for examination the box was found to contain high-grade ore, that would assay several dollars to the pound.

McCann was locked up charged with grand larceny. A scoundrel, called Tennessee, whom he had sheltered in his cabin, had squealed on him. Mac was facing a serious situation. Conviction would mean a long term in the penitentiary. This chase of the dilemma did not worry him. He was thinking of the tortures he knew he would suffer if deprived of the drug that for years had made life endurable for him.

About mid-day the Sheriff came to the cell-door, saying "Well Mac, how are you? With trembling voice, "I'm a little shaky, must have some medicine. On account of my nerves I have taken morphine pretty regularly. You know one who has used as much of it as I cannot get along without it. You can get it at the drug store next to the post-office. Tell him its for me, he knows what I'll need for the night. You'll do that for me won't you sheriff?" "Sure, sure, I know your condition. By the way, Mac you know the Mining Company have no intention of cinching you. But we've got to have the names of the men who gave you the ore. The stealing of rich specimens has been going on for a long time. We'll put a stop to it now. Who are the fellows?" Mac looked the sheriff square in the eye "I cannot tell you." was his answer. The sheriff turned and walked away saying, "Alright, I'll see you later."

It was growing dark. Mac's every nerve was vibrating. His brain was hot. He trembled as with the ague. He knocked on the grated door with the tin cup. The sheriff came. Mac said, "Did you get that stuff for me?" "No, I've been busy." But, encouragingly, "I will before the store closes. You know the names of those men, do you Mac?" "Of course I do," came the response in a shivering tone. "I thought you did," the sheriff remarked. "I'll get the morphine for you to-night."

The hours and minutes dragged and thumped. Mac paced the cell, now and then steadying himself against the wall. With all his force he tried to quiet the pangs of brain and nerve. The sheriff's promise gave him strength to fight against insanity and what he thought was approaching death. At some monstrous vi-ions he screamed out in agony, and so wore the night away without a wink of sleep.

Morning found Mac clinging to the bars. His face white, his body limp. The guard came with his breakfast. Mac braced himself to say, "You get me some. You can get it." The guard with a laugh said, "You'll have to wait till the sheriff comes; I can't leave here any more than you can."

The sheriff came late. Mac was still leaning against the grated wall, the food untouched in the pan on the floor. "Well, Mac, how are you?" Startled by the voice, he straightened up, staggered back, tripped on the food pan, slipped and fell. He dragged himself to the door, pulling himself first to his knees and then to his feet. Putting a scrawny, scarred arm thru the bars, he groaned, "Give it to me, give it to me. God! Sheriff, I'm dying." The sheriff pulled the short blue bottle from his pocket. The white narcotic filled it to the cork. Spasmodically Mac's shrivelled hand clawed for what he knew was surcease from his terrible agony. Mentally and physically, he had already nearly collapsed. The sheriff smiled, "Don't be in a hurry Mac, you'll get it. You never wanted the stuff so bad before, did you?" Mac's eyes were filmed. His face was ashen white. The fingers on his bare arm that protruded thru the bars opened and closed nervously. "Give me a little. Just enough to ease my head, I'll go mad." "You can have it Mac; but I must know the men who gave you the ore." Mac did not raise his head, but said, "You can kill me, but I cannot tell you. It is their wives and children that I am thinking of." He pulled back his hand. The grip of the other relaxed, and he sank in a miserable heap on the floor.

The company doctor was called, resuscitated Mac with a little brandy, but was deaf to his pleadings, and would give him none of the narcotic. The vile craving was gnawing viciously at every fibre and tissue of Mac's body. His brain squirmed, his skin creeped. Death would be his certain release, but it would not come. There seemed to be nothing but torment, torture aggravated by the sheriff with the little blue bottle.

A few days later they led Mac into the court room more dead than alive. The prosecuting attorney asked him who the men were that were involved with him in the theft of the ore. He muttered, "I cannot tell you."

Mac was found guilty of grand larceny. Sentenced to seven years of hard labor in the Boise Penitentiary. He died there while serving his time.

They said he would sell his soul for a dose of morphine, but he stood the tortures of the damned, and sacrificed years of his life for—loyalty.

WORLD'S WORKERS HAVE PROGRAM ON IMMIGRATION

...ll the question of immigration is ...ed at the Congress, and to ...ntatives of the Red Inter... Unions on the sub... ...ganization. This is ...ed at the ...ng of the General Council of the International of Labor ...ions, held in Moscow from June ...th, 1925. The resolution ...s as follows:

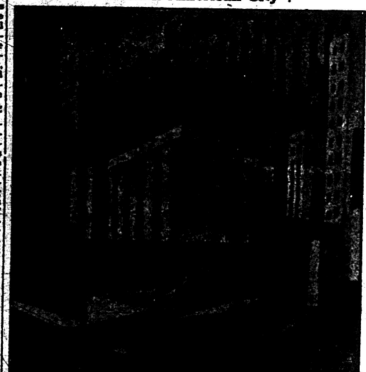
1. The Amsterdam Labor Union ...ternational, independent organizations ...d political opportunistic with the ...A. The ...ureau will collect statistical mate... dealing with the number, sex, ...and profession of immigrants and ...grants. These inquiries and activities ...ld the possibility of a minute study into the problem of migration.

In all countries of immigra... special committees comprising ...sentatives of the nationalities ...the largest percentage of ...ers together with representa... from the labor union central or ...the organized minorities sym... ...ing with the R. I. L. U. must be formed. It is the aim of these ...ittees to work out organizatory ...s and to effect a propaganda ...ign creating brotherly connections ...d solidarity between the immi... and the home elements.

Similar committees are to be es... established in the most important cen... of immigration and in the places of ...ture.

2. Periods of disturbance and ...ation are favorable for conflicts be... ...ween home workers and immigrants. ...employers and authorities making ...se of such opportunities excite na... ...ionalist tendencies with a view of ...ulsing and destroying working ...class solidarity. To avoid these dan... ...gers and so frustrate ruling class ...schemes, the Immigrants must be ...given a guarantee that their rights ...and interests will be protected like ...those of the home workers. With that aim, the immigrants should, legally or illegally, according to the particular countries' legislation, be induced to participate in the work of strike committees.

3. The entire labor union press of the countries of immigration, but especially the press of the labor unions' federations directly interested in the matter, must systematically deal with the problems of immigration, reserving sufficient room for the treatment of this item. The articles in question should be written in the language of the persons dealt with. Wherever the possible, a special periodical for the immigrants in each country should be issued. Connections, however, must already to that end have been taken up with the revolutionary unions and the Communist Parties in the countries concerned alike with immigration and emigration.



Modern American City.

From a painting by Louis Lozowick.

5. Immigrated workers may in no case form distinct trade unions. They must, on the contrary, enter the local organizations on exactly the same conditions as the home workers.

The labor unions must create special language groups for those that are not acquainted with the language of that area. Wherever deemed useful, said groups may form their own clubs for propaganda and education. These groups are obliged to find out the most suitable forms of organization for attracting foreign workers, especially those temporarily living in the country, to the labor unions.

6. In the home labor unions' local sections, labor chambers, etc., rooms should be reserved in which immigrant workers can meet.

7. In addition to the problem of uniting the immigrant workers with the help of the labor unions' organizations and the questions of insurance against accidents, invalidity, age, etc., the organizations endorsing the R. I. L. U. principles must also give much attention to the utilizing of the co-operative societies on behalf of the immigrants.

8. Immigration into Soviet Russia is of special importance. Offers of immigration are being received from workers, technicians, engineers, etc., of various countries. Altho the present economic situation does not allow of a big influx and an economic utilization of emigrants, nevertheless, qualified workers are badly needed for restoring the economic life. The emigration bureaus of the organizations attached to the R. I. L. U. must study the question of emigration to Soviet Russia. The bureaus must register all petitions and communicate with the corresponding organs in Soviet Russia as well as with the Russian labor unions. The bureaus should give special attention to the immigration of technicians and engineers ready to serve the proletarian Republic.

9. In the trade unions not affiliated to the R. I. L. U. a lively propaganda should be developed on behalf of the immigrants' protect...n.

The private institutions, such as employment offices, etc., that live by sucking and tricking the immigrants, must be mercilessly combatted, and if possible abolished.

Views on Some of the Big Events of the Week

Brass and Cash

Whatever one may say of our own capitalist class, no matter how much one may denounce the American employers, all must agree that our capitalists at least have the brass. And that is why they have the cash, too.

This seems to be the era of super-bonuses for the powerful capitalists by the Government. A person, nowadays, doesn't get the chance to put away his paper and finish reading about one huge grant by the Government than another edition of the same newspaper is rushed to him with the story of a new and more gigantic bonus given to the bossing class. But I must know the men who gave you the ore." Mac did not raise his head, but said, "You can kill me, but I cannot tell you. It is their wives and children that I am thinking of." He pulled back his hand. The grip of the other relaxed, and he sank in a miserable heap on the floor.

Of course, there always follows an investigation to serve as a sort of a moral blanket to hide the multitude of sins that are committed in such profitable transactions.

Now it is another shipping steal. The Shipping Board has just sold seven high grade ships, of the President type, to the labor-hating Dollar Steamship Company of California for less than four million dollars. These ships cost the American workers and farmers $30,000,000. Then the steamship Los Angeles was sold to the Los Angeles Steamship Company for $100,000 after the Shipping Board wisely invested close to three million dollars merely for installing improvements on it.

This surely looks like good business. It undoubtedly is a monument to that oft-heralded capitalist virtue of private enterprise. Then, to seal these profitable contracts to the capitalists, Chairman Farley of the Shipping Board hands in his resignation. The matter is closed. The last prayer of the departing Chairman Farley is that the details of the contracts cannot be made public because such publicity might injure the companies in competition with their foreign rivals.

This is a mighty clever game, isn't it? When you haven't a leg to stand on, call in the flag, national pride, and what not. Patriotism still is the last refuge of the worst scoundrels. Our capitalists and their lickspittles in their Government at Washington surely have the brass to commit such brazen holdups in broad daylight. But that is precisely why they have the cash and own the government, body and soul.

When will the workers and farmers kick these capitalist buccaneers into the alleys of history?

Civilizing Porto Rico

Many of us may recall that one of the lessons most forcefully impressed upon us in our school days was that the United States alone of the nations of the world played the role of the Good Samaritan towards its weaker neighbors. The pictures given us of the happy lands we made out of the Philippines, Hawaii, Cuba and Porto Rico are still green in our memories.

Now, since this is the open season for investigation, let us do a bit of prying into some of these beautiful pictures painted for us by our poor school teachers, who very often unconsciously propagate the most poisonous imperialist frauds. Let us take, for example, one of these lands made happy by our marines, bluejackets, or khaki boys.

Taking a good look at Porto Rico, which has been in the brutal grip of the ugly civilizing hand of Wall Street for twenty five years, we find a totally different picture from what we were given by our good-hearted teachers in school. The the Stars and Stripes proudly wave over Porto Rico, more than half of its children of school age are not in school. More than half of its population of ten years and over are illiterate. Most of the people, the working masses, live in thatched huts having wretched sanitation. The seasonal requirements of the American capitalist-controlled sugar and tobacco crops have created a great group of migratory workers who have no homes of their own, are almost completely dispossessed. Their children are deprived of the slightest opportunity of being educated. The steady rise and development of the great sugar and tobacco plantations controlled by Wall Street, are driving the poor farmers off the grazing and agricultural areas and making them wage-slaves in the worst sense of the word.

Translating these miserable conditions for which the exploitation of Porto Rico by our imperialists is to a large extent responsible into the sufferings of the every day life of the workers we find that the death rate here is about twice as high as it is in the United States. The hospital conditions are deplorable. Rickets (mulnutrition), tuberculosis, malaria and hookworm are reaping a bumper crop amongst the exploited masses.

Yet our imperialist historians will swear themselves blue in the face that we are civilizing Porto Rico. And they are right. Capitalist civilization invincibly translates itself into fabulous profits for the capitalists and ghastly misery for the workers.

Nailing Their Own Hides

The political atmosphere of Washington is reeking with graft and corruption. One can hardly walk a street in the Capitol without being in danger of walking into some news sewer, without being splashed by the filth of some exposure.

"Smelling committees" are on the job investigating every thing under the sun and almost every section of the great green globe of ours. Picking up a Washington evening paper one finds the following instructive headlines: "Senator Walsh Infers Fall is Grafter"; "Senator Pokes Fun at Polar Flight"; "McKellar Flays Traction Companies on Fares"; "Hughes Gives Data in Soviet Inquiry"; Wood, in Fear, Lets Up on Filipinos."

What's all this terrific noise about? Why are these "gentlemen" and senior and junior senators from Maine to California going after each other hammer and tongs? Why are they trying to nail each other's hide on the door of their own political shanties? There must be some deep going reason for senators to look into matters ranging from Moscow to the Philippines and from poor Washington street cars to oil wells in Wyoming.

The facts are these: A national election is on our heels. There is a great volume of discontent. The capitalist political parties of all shades and stripes are now vieing with each other in the game of throwing mud in order to capitalize as much of this discontent as possible for the sake of getting control of the government administrative machinery out of the hands of one capitalist political clique and into the hands of another employing class clique. The variety and number of the investigations, investigators and investigated only reflect the present conflicting interests among the various layers of the ruling class. The vagueness and indistinctness of the present rifts within these sections of the owning class of the country is best mirrored in the chaos and general purposelessness of the whole puppet show now going on in Washington.

But let no one take these fights too seriously, important as they are. None of these capitalist politicians is willing and ready to go out to swing the axe against the system responsible for this diseased condition. They are only nailing each other's hides for their immediate petty party advantages. They will go thus far and no further.

British Colonial Problem

Followers of Zaghoul Pasha, whom the English rulers of Egypt have kept in jail until recently, have been returned as a majority in the Egyptian parliament.

In India, the followers of Nahatma Gandhi, who is likewise experiencing the blessings of British democracy in prison, despite almost impossible restrictions on their suffrage, have piled up a majority in the Indian government.

All of which would indicate that Great Britain would have to inaugurate a new colonial policy and weaken the empire or lose some colonies and likewise weaken the empire. J. R. Thomas, the new colonial secretary, is going to have his hands full of a number of things.

TREASURES ON THE WORKERS' BOOKSHELF

By Max Bedacht (Alfred A. Knopf, N. Y. City.)

French and Italian industrialism and that in November, 1914, he started the Popolo d'Italia, the sole aim of which was to endeavor to win the workers and petty bourgeoisie to the side of the industrialists in favor of war against Germany.

Odin Por says nothing about the economic and political forces that brought about the weakening of the government, nothing about the part played by Giolitti in disarming the workers after the evacuation of the factories in September, 1920. There is not one word about the causes of the temporary unity between Giolitti's agrarians and the industrial fascisti after Mussolini had, a few months previously, adopted the slogan "Socialist Giolitti." Finally he neglects to tell about the inner contradictions that are today rending Fascism in Italy; nothing of the conflict between agrarian "squadrismo" and the original industrial Fascism. He refrains from telling his readers how Mussolini descended the ladder of violence on the eve of seizing power as a matter of defense of industry against the agrarian onslaught.

There still remains the task, for some comrade, of writing a book on Fascism. Such a book ought to be written for the purpose of clearing up much confusion in the minds of workers regarding this phenomenon. Many Communists see grave symptoms of opportunism in the reactionary methods of Fascism. Such people are superficial and those who simply utilize a popular label to stigmatize anything they dislike. Such a procedure is not scientific. Fascism is only possible under certain economic and political conditions and a real analysis of the rise of Italian fascism would help to form a correct attitude toward this movement.

While Odin Por reveals nothing of Fascism, he does reveal a great deal of himself. He is a guild socialist and proclaims the doctrine that Fascism and guild socialism are perfectly compatible. Odin Por is evidently a Fascist propagandist who says Fascism "can have no prejudice against any of the various parties if it confines itself to the dogma of national welfare." National welfare in this case being the welfare of the capitalists of the heavy industries.

This self-revelation of Odin Por is valuable for Communists inasmuch as it teaches us that when dealing with opportunists of every variety in the United Front we must relentlessly criticise even the meek and mild guild socialists, for unless they are avowed Communists, accepting the discipline of the Party, they are all potential murderers of the working class. At the critical moment when the working class enters decisive struggles we can always expect our liberal aristocrats, yellow socialists and sentimental professors whose hearts ache for the exploited workers, to embrace Fascism or some other form of violent reaction that tries to throttle every vestige of working class expression. The worst feature of such specimens is that they murder the working class while professing friendship for it. Such people object to open dictatorship of the proletariat, but their simple souls embrace the bloody dictatorship of capitalist hirelings so long as they are assured that it is in the interest of the nation or some other bourgeous entity.

As for the book, Fascism, by Odin Por, it is a waste of time for any worker to read it. I wasted my time reading it, which ought to suffice for the whole Party.

The Problems of the British Labor Party

By ALEX BOLGAR.

NOT only has the English Labor Party thru its election victories become the most important political factor of its country, it has also become a deciding factor in the sphere of world politics. It is to be expected from it, that as in national problems, so also in international problems it will take an active part and help in the solution of much which its predecessors failed to solve. These problems, in their scope and complexity offer to the Labor Party not merely a large field of action in which it can demonstrate that it knows how to conquer, but also that it knows how to turn its victories to good account, they also involve many dangers which, if ignored, can produce a critical turn in the victory. Let us attempt to examine more closely a few of these points.

1. With regard to the inner political problems of the Labor Party, the most important thing is its position within the party machinery, its relation to the other parties, and the measure of unity within its own ranks. For upon this depends the question whether the Labor Party can provide a promising Labor Government, whether it feels itself able to meet the new turn in the political situation, and whether it is in a position to meet all the dangers which in the nature of things exist. All these questions merge together in the problem of a Coalition Government. The party is perhaps being decisively influenced in this direction not only by its party opponents but also by its own right wing in a very definite manner, besides by the demands of Parliamentarism which it has always respected and those of opportunism, which is not always to be avoided. On the other hand, this same Parliamentarism alone, would make it possible for the party to remain outside the Government, ignoring the persistent encouragement of the opposition parties, and continuing the role of opposition party, perhaps a more useful and less thankless one at the present juncture of affairs. This would perhaps also be a more representative policy for the left wing of the party, which regards the socialistic development of the party as menaced by the excess of trade union bureaucrats, and late liberals. It is strongly within their recollection, that is the Scotch section and the leaders of the Independent Labor Party, that during the war period whilst the Labor Minister was toasting with the king, they themselves, also as "guests of His Majesty," were sitting in prison.

A second point hitherto unexplained is that, assuming the loyal support and benevolent neutrality of the Liberals, what would be the attitude towards the Labor Party, of the bureaucracy, the police, the army and navy, and the industrial and commercial apparatus? The Labor Party is in this respect thoroly optimistic, but whether the officialdom, for the most part reactionary, of the Foreign Office and Treasury will not create sabotage against the Labor Government and the City will undermine its credit thru its great international influence, causes concern to many far-seeing Labor Party politicians in England as well as abroad.

2. Similar conjectures arise when one considers more closely the attitude of the Colonies to the central Labor Government in the great British Empire. Only a few weeks ago one saw at the Empire Conference the significance of the power of the dominions and colonies within the Empire. Is after all the whole turn in English politics during the last weeks a direct result of the Empire Conference, in which the independence of the colonies showed itself in a very clear light, and an indication of the decay of British Imperialism? Still at this conference the most important personality was the South African prime minister, General Smuts, who only ten months ago aroused much criticism when his barbaric suppression caused a rising on the part of South African labor. But is it then to be assumed that the spirit which evinced itself in Smuts' activities and which was not restricted to South Africa alone, would be more favorably inclined towards a central Labor Government than it was towards a Conservative one? There are certainly a number of Colonies with very strong Labor Parties, but whether they possess enough strength to avert an attack, if only an economic one, against the governing party of the motherland, remains to be seen.

3. Continental politics also present no little difficulty for an English Labor Party. Certainly the Labor Government is much more favorably placed in this connection than an imperialistic one or one which is continually influenced by the war and the Treaty of Versailles, nevertheless many insurmountable obstacles can be put in the way of a Labor Government in discussion with France, in active participation in the reparations question, in the revision of the Peace Treaty, in connection with Fascist Italy, all of which are unavoidable problems. To these may be added the unavoidable consideration which must be paid to certain questions, perhaps not so important in world politics, but none the less significant for a Labor Government, such as the consolidation of secession states, which has already been embarked upon by the English, the reform and moderation of many League of Nations decisions which have been instigated by French Imperialism, etc. But an English Labor Government has a particular duty relative to Germany, whose most pressing problem—that of the Rhine and Ruhr—demands immediate and active consideration from the side of England, not in the sense of a naive European internationalisation of the Rhineland such as might be the proposal of a discreet Labor Commission, but that of a Labor Government which also has the prime duty of considering the welfare of the workers in other lands.

4. Further, the British Labor Party is the leading organization of the Socialist Labor International and thereby plays the same part as the German Social-Democracy did in the Second International. It is also very similar to it in idealistic respects, but in political judgement, in adaptability, in qualification for statesmanship considerably superior to the German Party. Whether in regard to its international obligations as the government party of the chief country in Europe it fail in the present situation as the German Social Democracy Party did in 1914, depends in large measure upon how far the class conscious opposition within the Labor Party can influence the actions of the Labor Government. Trade Union leaders and ex-liberals alone will not be in the position to conform with these international demands and a rupture in this sphere would also cause considerable damage to the remaining activities of the Labor Government.

5. But what is most clear and least contestable, on the part of its opponents also, is the policy of the Labor Government and also any other government with respect to Soviet Russia, which has already been made known. The complete diplomatic recognition of the Soviet Goverment must be taken for granted in the policy adopted by an influential Labor Party and will also be supported by the middle class trade and industrial parties. The recognition of Soviet Russia is indeed already a demand expressed in the circle of Employers. If the former Government from political reasons did not fulfill these demands, it is certain that many of their supporters will be thankful in secret to the Labor Party if they can set up organized diplomatic and economic relationship between England and Soviet Russia.

The Whole German Working Class Is Hungry

NOT FOR AMERICA ALONE

"Are you really going to have an English Communist Daily in the United States?" is often asked by friends. Such a question has come to the ears of the writer and his associates in the editorial staff of the DAILY WORKER in almost every city of the country. It is asked by workers, by sympathizers, by friends of the movement, by those who are in touch with the labor movement and by those who are not. It is asked by those who are in favor of the Communist movement and by those who are opposed to it. It is asked by those who are in favor of the DAILY WORKER and by those who are opposed to it. It is asked by those who are in favor of a daily, by those who are in favor of a weekly, by those who are in favor of a monthly publication, by those who are in favor of a quarterly publication, by those who are in favor of a yearly publication, by those who are in favor of no publication at all. To the question, "Are you really going to have an English Communist Daily in the United States?" the answer is always the same. It is the same whether the question is asked in New York or in Seattle, in Boston or in Los Angeles, in Chicago or in Portland, Maine, in Portland, Oregon, in Cleveland or in Minneapolis, in Detroit or in Duluth, in Pittsburgh or in Butte, Montana, in Philadelphia or in Denver, Colorado, in Milwaukee or in Kansas City, Missouri, in Cincinnati or in Omaha, Nebraska, in Baltimore or in Salt Lake City, Utah, in Buffalo or

Why the Farmers Fail

By WILLIAM F. KRUSE

THE virtually bankruptcy of large sections of rural population is of such serious portent to the politicians, especially to presidential candidates, that it is not to be ignored. At first the tactic was to deny that the farmers were badly off, the Republicans maintained that they were prosperous but didn't know it, while Christian Science prosperity was not suitable for eighty cent wheat and costs twice that to raise, so a new tactic was devised.

The Montana Department of Agriculture has found out the real reason why some farmers are still "broke" and they don't have to blame the Democrats, either. It's all "To-be-sure-but-on-the-other-hand" stuff. In an article in the Montana Farmer, a publication of the Department of Agriculture, the reason why some farmers are poor is given. It is because they are poor farmers. Some farmers are poor because they are poor farmers. Some farmers are poor because they are poor farmers. Some farmers are poor

Daugherty in Flight to Florida as Oil Expose Threatens Job

Alarm Spreads Thru Official Washington Circles as Senate Probe Links Cabinet With Oil

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The hasty departure of Attorney-General Daugherty for a Florida resort, the statements of Senator Walsh and others calling attention to the failure of the attorney-general to act, the recalling of Archie Roosevelt to the stand, the now irrefutable proof that Senator Fall lied to the investigating committee concerning the passage of money between himself and Sinclair, the offer of Doheny, thru his attorney, to surrender the oil leases from which he admits he expected to make $100,000,000 and the growing conviction here that the end of the sensational disclosures is not yet in sight has the capital in a fever of expectancy.

More official reputations are due to be shattered as the investigation proceeds is the belief here. The recovery of Senator Fall and his tesimony is anxiously awaited.

INQUIRY INTO TEAPOT STEAL IS LURID PROBE

New Sensations Keep Capital on Tiptoes

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON. — Back-tracking over the long, devious trail of false and half-true testimony already given concerning the Teapot Dome and other naval oil leases, the senate investigating committee today was on the eve of new discoveries and more sensational disclosures.

Albert B. Fall, the central figure in the biggest scandal since the Ballinger-Pinchot case, was still sick in bed at the home of J. W. Zevely, Harry Sinclair's man who testified yesterday he gave Fall a total of $35,000 in June 1923.

Some of the senate committee predicted that Fall, convicted wreaky of having lied several times in his testimony will be too sick to testify Monday.

These developments were in prospect today in advance of the senate committee's meeting at 2 p. m.

New Developments

1.—Disclosure by Archie Roosevelt and G. D. Wahlberg, former employes of Harry Sinclair, of the full story of the "$68,000 cancelled check" for the "six or eight cows" which Wahlberg and Roosevelt had a conversation about before they both resigned from Sinclair's employ.

2.—Possible decision by the senate committee to put one and possibly two members of the cabinet on the witness stand.

3.—Probable examination of Senator Smoot, Utah, by the committee on a number of points including his reason for opposing the swearing of Fall when the latter testified before the committee.

4.—An intimation that if Fall ever takes the stand again, he will deny he got the $100,000. F. L. Doheny told the committee he loaned Fall.

5.—Warning by Senator Walsh, leader of the investigation, that unless Harry Sinclair returns voluntarily from Europe to answer questions, his mother will be put on the stand.

Smoot to be Grilled

The probable questioning of Smoot, who is a member of the committee, and of the two cabinet officers, Denby, secretary of the navy, and Daugherty, attorney-general, excited more interest than any impending development except the appearance of Fall himself.

Senator Walsh wants to know why Fall was not put under oath when he testified the first time. It was then

DOHENY WILL RETURN ALL OF THE LOOT

Panic-Stricken Looters Ready to Disgorge

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—E. L. Doheny, lessee of two naval oil reserve lands offered today to cause cancellation of his contract leases at any time congress may desire.

Doheny testified on Thursday that he loaned former secretary of the interior Fall—from whom he obtained the leases—$100,000 on a personal unsecured note.

The offer to cancel was made in a statement read to the senate Public Lands Committee this afternoon by Doheny's counsel, Galvin McNab of San Francisco.

After McNab had presented Doheny's offer, the note which James W. Zevely said yesterday he obtained from Fall in return for a $25,000 loan was submitted to the committee.

The note was offered by G. T. Stanford, counsel for Harry F. Sinclair, who leased Teapot Dome.

It read:

"Twelve months after date I promise to pay James W. Zevely the sum of $25,000."

Senator Walsh of the investigating committee insisted that the note be left in possession of the committee for a few days.

"Isn't that unusual." Stanford protested.

"No," said Walsh, "we have the note and we will keep it for a while before making copies of it."

Jobless, Starving, Nearly Freezes to Death from Exposure at St. Louis

ST. LOUIS.—John Stevens, 58 years old, was picked up on the street in an unconscious condition by the police and taken to the city hospital, where he died shortly afterward. Physicians said death had resulted from hunger and exposure to the extreme cold. He told the police he had been tramping the streets in a vain search for work.

Additional evidence will be required to convince Oliver Hunt, a laborer, that a wave of prosperity is sweeping this country. He is in the city hospital receiving treatment for badly frozen feet. Hunt said his feet were frozen in an unsuccessful hunt for a job. He was penniless when taken to the hospital.

Zero weather threatens many other unfortunates in St. Louis whose "right to work" seems to have been abrogated.

Jim McLachlan, Imprisoned Mine Leader, from Canadian Prison Cell, Had Great Influence on Convention

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—James McLachlan, veteran leader of the coal miners of District 26, Nova Scotia, refused bail while awaiting action on his appeal from a two year prison sentence following conviction on a charge of "seditious libel" preferred by tools of the British Empire Steel Company attacked by the Lewis machine, from his lonely cell influenced the rank and file delegates to the Indianapolis convention to such an extent that

Two Million Jobless.

BERLIN.—Two million workers are out of jobs in the occupied area of the Rhine and Ruhr valleys.

In the unoccupied area, too, the situation is a desperate one. There are now 1,447,000 unemployed and 1,825,000 part-time workers. The unemployment doles amount to only about 60-80 gold pfennigs (15-20 cents).

MOSCOW.—The body of Nicolai Lenin was interred today in a temporary mausoleum in the Red Square where sleep the heroes of the revolution.

Every form of activity ceased for five minutes throut of the vast territory that was once the czar's, but now belongs to the workers and peasants of Russia, while the body of the world's greatest revolutionist was placed in its resting place.

All trains, telegraphs and telephones ceased operation while the boom of a hundred guns—the salute of the Red Army and the revolution to its leader—shook the air. All larger cities fired one hundred guns, twenty-five rifle shots were fired in the towns and in the villages, and thus all of revolutionary Russia at

Eighty-seven Miners Slaughtered By Company Greed In Terrific Gas Blasts in Illinois and Pennsylvania

Lives of 87 more workers in the hazardous coal [industry] have been snuffed out in two terrible gas explosions in Williamson county, Illinois, and Indiana County, Pennsylvania, dispatches to the DAILY WORKER relate. Thirty-eight was the total dead in the Johnston City, Ill., disaster, according to latest reports, and 49 at Shanktown, Pa.

The disasters came within 24 hours of each other. Word from Indianapolis says the delegates to the United Mine Workers' convention are stunned by the news.

If the reports that these disasters are due to preventable gas conditions are borne out, the deaths of these miners are [but] another damning count in the indictment against the coal industry of America which slays its workers at three times the rate of the British mine industry, where unionism has enforced adequate safety conditions.

Mine Owners' Neglect Brings Big Toll of Dead

(Special to The Daily Worker)

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill. (Williamson County).—Thirty-two bodies lie stiff and stark in the morgue where they were dragged from the wrecked corridors of the Crerar-Clinch Coal company mine. Six more are believed to have been slain by the terrific blast and rescuers are batiling their way thru the shattered workings in search of the remains of their fellow-workers.

Dark rumors that the company has been neglecting the usual precautions against gas are causing the miners to insist that a rigorous investigation be made. The county coroner and Martin Bolt, state director of mines, have commenced a probe.

Died In Agony.

Gas which flooded entries 11 and 12 a mile away from the 200-foot level of the east mine was responsible for most of the deaths. The contorted attitudes of the dead men tell of the agony with which they succumbed to the suffocation which they vainly strove to avert by wrapping water-soaked coats about their faces.

In three cases fathers and sons died together. Pete Keck and his son, Joe; Governor Smith and his boy, Robert, and Marion Bryant and his son were found in the same workings, dead from suffocation.

Tells of Smoke and Flame.

So terrific was the blast that the memories of survivors are still confused as to just what happened. One of the clearest stories comes from Hubert Ponchel, who is lying badly burned on a hospital cot:

"I was at work with my stepfather, Louis Lucas, and two other men when the explosion came," he said.

"There was a blast and a gust of gas, smoke and flames swept down upon us.

"We dropped to the floor. I grabbed my coat; wrapped it around my face and crawled on my stomach, inch by inch, for 150 feet, to get out of the danger zone.

"I reached the main entry but was unable to go any further. My lungs seemed as if they would burst. My head had been burned and it throbbed like a trip-hammer.

Calls from Dying Man.

"As I collapsed and lay on the floor I saw another miner about 50 feet away. He waved his hand feebly and cried for help. I tried to get up on my hands and knees and go to him but I couldn't make it.

"Clouds of smoke and gas were slowly enveloping him as I killed the light in my lamp and tried again to go to him. I finally lost sight of

NEXT DECISIVE BATTLE SET FOR NORTH MEXICO

Workers in Capital Face High Living Costs

By BERTRAM D. WOLFE
Staff Correspondent of the Federated Press

MEXICO CITY.—The next decisive battle in the rebellion will be fought in the north of the republic where the counter-revolutionists have sent powerful detachments to assume the offensive in a desperate effort to take possession of the railroads connecting the capital with El Paso and Laredo, in order to capture the ammunition coming down from the United States to the federals.

The government has suspended traffic to El Paso in order to move troop trains but the Laredo line is running on regular schedule. At the same time, the federals are resuming the offensive on the eastern or Vera Cruz front.

Mexico City Peaceful.

Aside from price fixing commissions and daily published price lists, life in the capital shows no signs of the fact that a large portion of the country is torn by civil war. Theaters, movies, stores, business, everything is running as usual. Occasionally the excited whispering of a little knot of foreign or domestic "dudes" (dudes) stops at a band of virile looking, newly armed but ununiformed workers or peasants passes down the fashionable boulevard of the Paseo de la Reforma, but for the most part the ill-wishers talk as freely as the well-wishers of the present government.

The price fixing commissions resulted from the skyrocketing of prices by the Cachupins (Spaniards) who own the entire grocery and meat and provision trades here, and the consequent threat of "direct action" on the part of the workers.

Face Economic Misery.

Economic misery is slowly settling down upon the country as the result of the civil war. To the textile factories, already closed for many months, have been added sections of the railroads, mines, the petroleum fields, and factories of every description as the tearing up of rails, burning and dynamiting of bridges, disintegration of train service and embargo of counter-revolutionary areas, slowly destroys the transportation fabric of the nation.

The textile factories may provoke an acute class conflict. The Confederacion General (labor syndicalist) which is dominant in the textile industry, has decreed factory seizure as a means of compelling the resumption of work in this industry. The shutdown here is in large part artificial and much older than the new military rebellion.

The textile men closed their factories to compel the government to lower its tariffs on raw cotton and to compel the workers to accept lower wages. The "red" unions, as the anarchist unions are called, have decided to exhaust all other means before resorting to factory seizure. The "yellow" unions oppose this measure but join the reds in advocating a joint conference of the workers, the government and the factory owners.

Statement of Nova Scotia Miners, Issued to Convention, Containing Damning Facts of Their Betrayal, Raises Storm and Puts the Lewis Machine on the Defensive

Complete Statement of Nova Scotia Miners

To the Delegates of the International Convention.

The undersigned delegates, representing the Locals in District 26, having been denied the privilege of making a reply on the floors of the Convention to the statement of President Lewis pertaining to matters in District 26, are forced to take this means of stating our side of this question before our Brother Delegates, and strongly appeal to their sense of fairness; we ask each other to give this statement his careful consideration.

At January 1st, 1922, when the Operators put into effect a wage reduction of 37%, the officers of District 26, were President Robert Baxter; Vice-President W. P. Delaney; Secretary-Treasurer J. R. McLachlan; International Board Member, Dan Livingston. This Executive Board of District 26, made application for an injunction restraining the operators under the Industrial Disputes Act from putting any reduction of wage into effect.

Challenge Lewis

This application was granted and the operators were restrained from putting this reduction into effect. The Supreme Court, however, set aside this injunction and the reduction of wages went into effect.

We challenge the International President to produce any evidence that he advised the District 26 officers to come on strike at that time or made any offer of support to the Miners of District 26.

Miners Rejected Reduction

Notwithstanding President Lewis' sneering remarks in his speech that his only regret was that he had not ordered a strike in January 1922, we wish to point out that the Canadian law absolutely prohibits under severe penalties any labor organization from calling a strike without first having the dispute submitted to a conciliation board. The Executive in Dist, therefore, immediately applied for a Board of Conciliation, which was granted. This Board, known as the Gillen Board, investigated the matter of wages, and handed down an award providing for a minimum rate of $2.86 instead of $2.44 as posted up by the operators, and providing a contract wage with 82% reduction instead of 37% as posted up by the company. The miners in Nova Scotia, indignantly rejected this award and this brought on a special district convention at Truro, Nova Scotia in February 1922, and at this special convention, John P. White was present as the International Representative.

Extract From Minutes

We now quote from the minutes of this special district convention:

President Baxter stated that we were confronted with the big question of wages. I desire to deal with this question face to face with it at present. The whole question resolves itself into one of force. Force is the thing we have to rely upon at this time I have just returned from the International Convention and from an interview with President Lewis and I desire to place before this convention the amount of force at our disposal.

"The President continuing, stated that when President Lewis was asked the amount available for District 26, if we had a strike, stated that we only get our share, equal to the amount given to other districts. Secretary fixed the amount at $10,000 per week, and after April 1st, Secretary Green had stated there would be none at all. International Board Member Livingston stated that he desired to concur with the statement of President Baxter but the amount of $10,000 was a lump sum that would be given us and may have to be spread over a week or a month.

Barrett Also Present

"Delegate Barrett stated that he was present at the interview with Lewis and Green and the report given by Livingston and Baxter was correct. The International Union had been spending huge sums weekly on strikes all over the districts which had strained the financial resources of the International Union. Besides this the revenue of the International Union had to be cut into on account of large bodies of men being idle. President Baxter then called upon John P. White to address the convention. In his address, he outlined the terrible conditions of unemployment prevailing for nearly a year past in very large sections of the United States and stated that large reduction of wage rates had been made.

"President Baxter stated that John P. White had a telegram while at the International Convention from D. H. McDougal, asking for a meeting. The meeting was arranged to take place in Montreal. John P. White then outlined the proceedings between him and representatives of the company, and read a proposition submitted by the company which did not materially differ from that already in effect at the mines excepting by agreeing to the inclusion of about three of the Union. Brother White read a telegram from President Lewis, instructing him to come here and stating the International Union's position in regard to strike or otherwise.

Telegram Read

"The following is a copy of the memo read by John P White, at the Truro convention, February 24th, 1922.

"Memo of Position Taken by the Company.

In the event of the men being willing to accept the Gillen award as a basis, the company would be prepared to have its representative join with a representative of the men to make an adjustment in the rate of the low paid men by which the $2.85 named in the award would be increased to $3.00 per day, and the application of the reduction for 20% to the datal men so rearranged as not to bring any adult labourer below the minimum rate of $3.00 per day. For example, the underground labor class formerly getting $3.80 and reduced by application of the 20% under the Gillen award to $2.68, would not be lower than $3.00. Moved and seconded that five of the committee be appointed to draft a suitable reply to the statement submitted from the company by John P. White this morning with the view of getting into negotiations. Motion carried. The following were appointed a committee to draft a reply: Baxter, McLachlan, Roberts, Delaney and John P. White. The meeting then adjourned."

Telegram Rejects Reduction

"President Baxter called the convention to order at 10 A. M. The Secretary read the telegram drafted by the committee appointed for that purpose at the close of the afternoon session yesterday and which read as follows:

"Truro, N. S., Feb. 24, 1922
D. H. McDougal, Vice-Pres.,
British Empire Steel Corp.,
Montreal.

Statement submitted by you to John P. White, as your ultimatum upon which you are willing to enter negotiations unsatisfactory. We suggest a meeting with your representatives Monday, taking into consideration our phases of the present situation with a view to immediate settlement.

Signed by Robert Baxter, W. P. Delaney, J. B. McLachlan

"In the afternoon session President Baxter read the following telegram:

Montreal, February 25, 1922
Robert Baxter,
U. M. W. District 26,
Truro, N. S.

Replying your wire twenty fourth have no agreements already fixed prevent either Mr. Wolvin or myself being in Nova Scotia, at this time but we expect to be in Montreal all week and would be prepared to see you there. A number of our officials from Nova Scotia are now in Montreal.

Signed by D. H. McDougal."

"The convention then adjourned and the executive accompanied by John P. White, went to Montreal to meet the operators. The result of this meeting was that the following circular was issued to the Novia Scotia miners:

CIRCULAR

Brothers: In our endeavor to secure a reasonable contract with the British Empire Steel Corporation, we, the Executive Board, District 26, were successful in securing an extension of the old contract for one month. Again meeting in Montreal, December 15th, 1921, a deadlock was reached and it is necessary to ask the Minister of Labor for a Conciliation Board. The same being appointed and to function in Halifax, January 17th, 1922. A majority decision favored approximately 5% increase over wage rates put into effect by the different companies operating. This proposition having been submitted to the members of our Union, was rejected by a vote of 10,003 to 486. A convention was then called in order to formulate what should now be the policy of the district. The convention finally decided that the district executive board, in company with John P. White, should proceed to Montreal to meet representatives of companies and ascertain the best arrangement to be arrived at. After three days negotiations with the committee refusing to accede to propositions put forth by us, the attached proposition was agreed to by a majority of the district executive board, to be recommended as a basis of settlement.

"We are prompted in making this recommendation because of statement put forth by delegates to international convention and also by international representatives of the resources of the International Union at the present time, and the meeting held on April 1st, in all districts of the United States. These statements were conveyed to you by the delegates to the Truro convention and we feel that in the best interests of all concerned, the offer of the companies should be accepted.

Signed by Robert Baxter, W. F. Delaney, Angus McPee, Lewis McCormick and W. J. McKay.

Montreal Proposal

The members of District Executive Board of District 26, having been authorized by a district convention held in Truro, February 23rd, to the 25th, to interview the management of the corporation and ascertain the best terms it would be empowered could offer as a basis for settlement of the wage question, the following was mutually agreed to:

1. The management has already accepted and put into effect the rates recommended under the Gillen award and in addition thereto has stood for adjustment of the datal rates between the minimum rate of $2.85 per day and certain other higher rates and agrees to increase the minimum datal rate to $3.00 per day.

2. The companies will not object to including in the wage agreement of employees in the general machine shops and shop fixers employed at the collieries. A committee equally composed of representatives of the companies and the men to decide on what others of the employees excluded on January 1st, should be included in the scope of the agreement.

3. The conditions of the Montreal agreement to remain in force in all particulars except as regards the rates of wages and as herein modified.

The terms above written to become effective between the first of January 1922 and 30th of November 1922, when ratified by members of District 26, both sides to agree to meet 20 days before the expiration of the agreement for the purpose of arranging a new understanding.

International Officers Responsible

We wish to point out right here that the above proposal agreed to by the above executive members and John P. White, was not signed or agreed to by J. B. McLachlan or Board Members Hall or Rega, and was unanimously rejected by the miners in Nova Scotia.

At this time the annual district agreed to have the wage dispute again investigated, and a new board, known as the Scott Board, was appointed, and in a short time made an award, giving practically the same scale of wages.

At this time the annual district convention was called at Truro, Nova Scotia, and again we quote from its minutes:

President Baxter's Policy For Nova Scotia

"Just previous to the last special convention held in Indianapolis, Indiana, February, 1922, the Policy Committee in discussing the situation of District 26, concluded that owing to the possibility of our having concluded an agreement before March 31st, and that because we would not be much of a factor in the struggle about to take place, they were agreed to give us sufficient scope to make the best bargain possible, always bearing in mind, that circumstances might change, allowing if necessary the forces of the organization to be concentrated upon this field at some future date. It being the concensus of opinion that altho we might accept a reduction, it would in no way undermine their position in the United States. Such rule has worked to our advantage in the past and I have no hesitation in believing that it is still a good method for the present."

Secretary-Treasurer J. R. McLachlan strenuously opposed this policy and the following resolution was adopted:

Resolution No. 9

"At a special meeting of Local Union 4519, held in Friday, June 16th, this local requests the Truro convention to go on record to the effect that the handling of the Scott Board recommendation was due to the conduct of the majority of the Executive officials, who took the stand from the very first, that the miners could get no more pay than $3.00 per day, and who pleaded the case of the miners in a deliberately inefficient manner in order that the miners would not get a better recommendation from the Board.

Censure Asked

"And we hereby request the Truro convention to censure all those executive officers who by their own

tion of 20%, the miners of Nova Scotia refused to work under such decision when they knew that they had the backing of the United Mine Workers.

McLachlan's Fine Record

In conclusion we do not expect any unanimity of opinion as to the political views held by McLachlan and the Nova Scotia miners.

We emphatically, however, that when President Lewis attempts to associate McLachlan with any wage reduction in Nova Scotia, he is not speaking in accordance with the facts. In all his long career, for over twenty years, McLachlan has always set his face like first against any and all wage reductions. His record as a labor leader is available to any who may care to and speak for itself. The very fact that McLachlan is now in jail thru his activities on behalf of the miners and not in any cushy job, is proof of his devotion. This mean attempt of President Lewis to distort the facts and to lay on McLachlan the odious charge that McLachlan was ever in favor of a wage cut is bitterly and hotly resented.

Lewis' Contemptible Tactics

In all the history of conventions no meaner & blacker episode has occurred than that in which President Lewis after distorting the facts in the wage disputes in Nova Scotia, produced the minds of the delegates against the record of the miners of Nova Scotia, and then proceeded to get a snap verdict without giving any delegate an opportunity to give the real facts.

The Damning Facts

The charge of President Lewis that we took wage reductions lying down, is a lie, and is an outrage against the record of the Nova Scotia miners, who, as our official records show, fought to the limit of their resources against the onslaughts of the operators, aided and abetted by some of our officers and John P. White, the International representative.

Lewis Fought for Operators

We make the counter-charge that President Lewis deserted the Nova Scotia miners, delegated his part to John P. White, whose actions are set out in this statement, failed to send us any financial aid in our desperate struggle, and only jumped into our struggle in 1923, at the request of the operators, and set up in office his own flunkey who all thru the piece have stood for wage reductions, and who have been decisively voted out of office by the rank and file. We appeal to our brother delegates to see that our district is given a fair measure of justice.

We ask only that we be given back our autonomy; that we be given an opportunity to elect our district officers; that we be accorded the same measure of justice, the same rights, the same moral and financial assistance in our struggle against our operators that is given to other districts of the United Mine Workers.

Work Daily for "The Daily"!

Lewis Protects Corporation

We wish to point out that President Lewis has failed to mention the violation of contract on the part of the company. This violation consisted of a reduction of the coal cutting rate from 12.4 to 12c per ton, and we quote Neal Ferry, who expressed his opinion while in Nova Scotia, that the operators had violated the contract.

Lewis Upholds Traitors

The strike of 1923, came under the disapproval of President Lewis, who ordered the men back to work, revoked the district charter, deposed the officers and set up as provisional officers Baxter, Barrett, McCormick and Delaney, who as our documents show consistently since January 1st, 1922, advocated and advised the acceptance of a wage rate of $3.00 per day. In spite of the protests of the Nova Scotian miners, those same men who as we have conclusively shown stood for the acceptance of low wages, are still in office under the sanction and approval of President Lewis.

We wish also to point out that on the 16th day of this present month, when the operators posted a reduc-

MINERS PROTEST FOR McLACHLAN AND ALEX HOWAT

Good Spirit Is Shown at Mass Meeting

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—A mass meeting to protest against the expulsion of the officials of District 26, and the methods used at the convention by John L. Lewis, to shut off debate on the resolutions, requesting a fair hearing for their case was one of the features of the miners' convention.

Stirring speeches were delivered by many delegates and it was the opinion of the meeting that no greater disgrace could be fastened on the miners' union than to allow good union men to be outlawed from the organization because of their loyalty to their class.

See Victory for Howat

A determination to fight for the Nova Scotia miners and for the reinstatement of Alexander Howat, was expressed. It is the general opinion that the fight for Howat's restoration to his former status in the union will be successful this time. There is tremendous sentiment in his favor and unless a steamroller that can crush mountains under its heel is employed, it is not considered likely that the official opposition can longer succeed in keeping Alex out of his rightful position.

A collection was taken up to defray the expenses of the meeting. It amounted to $29.00. A further collection was taken to defray the cost of publishing the statement of the Nova Scotia miners. The mystery of the source of the funds used in spreading official propaganda is at last solved. It comes out of the pockets of the workers.

Farrington Calls Lewis "Loose"

Considerable amusement was caused at the meeting when J. J. Watt read correspondence that took place between John L. Lewis and Frank Farrington, in which the terms used in referring to each other were anything but polite. Mr. Farrington referred to Mr. Lewis as a "louse," and Mr. Lewis was not slow in retorting. This was listened to with interest, considering the united front now existing between the two officials.

that he said emphatically he never got a cent from Doheny. Sinclair if any one connected with either—testimony which has since been contradicted by Doheny and Zevely, Sinclair's man.

Had Fall been under oath when he made his statement the matter would have been more serious, as it is he was merely "mistaken."

Smoot, who at the time was chairman of the committee had he didn't think it was necessary to swear Fall.

Smoot Close to Doheny

If Smoot is called to the stand, he will be asked to give the reason he requested Doheny to "see me alone in my office after you've testified." Smoot passed a note to that effect to Doheny when the latter was before the committee the other day and then explained he wanted to ask Doheny about a "wild cat" oil up Doheny was looking into. This explanation does not satisfy.

As the scandal grows, the committee is being flooded with tips and rumors connecting this and that official with the case, most of them unsupported by tangible evidence.

Denby and Daugherty, however, had official connection with the leasing of the naval oil reserves and for that reason it is likely they will be asked to tell the committee under oath whether any evidence came to their knowledge that would indicate anything irregular or wrong from the leasing deal.

The White House statement that President Coolidge does not see there may have been "criminal action" and that it will be punished, has convinced government circles that there will be not let up in the probe.

Archie Called Back

Archie Roosevelt, son of the former president, and C. D. Wahlberg, former personal secretary to Sinclair, were called back to the witness stand today at the request of Senator Smoot.

Roosevelt previously testified that Wahlberg had told him of suspicions that all was not right with a certain "$68,000 cancelled check" said to have been written by Sinclair. Wahlberg denies this and said he only mentioned "six or eight cows" instead of $68,000 and that he never mentioned cancelled checks.

Senators expect that re-examination of Roosevelt and Wahlberg will reveal a new sensational story" and ascertain the true significance of the check.

The Daily Worker learned that some members of the investigating committee have been reliably informed that Fall, who is now ill in Washington, "will never admit" he took $100,000 from Doheny on a personal note.

Some of the investigators also are determined to trace the authorship of a mysterious document purporting to tell whether Fall got $100,000. This was handed to Senator Walsh recently by a clerk of the committee and all efforts to ascertain where it came from have proved unavailing.

City Orders Survey of Firetrap Schools Exposed By Daily Worker But Official Whitewash Is Feared

Following the DAILY WORKER'S expose of appalling firetrap school buildings endangering the lives of thousands of Chicago children Mayor Dever announced that a fire prevention survey will be made by representatives of the fire department, the board of education and the building committee.

The fire survey is to include every one of the 300 school buildings in the corporation limits, including the ancient firetraps exposed by the DAILY WORKER.

Every stage of the investigation will be followed by the DAILY WORKER. Parents of children in the South Chicago factory district fear that the latest inspection is for the purpose of putting the official O.K. on many buildings previously declared unsafe. This fear is aroused by the fact that the board of education, the very body that is responsible for the present calamitous condition, will take part in this investigation of itself.

"WHITEWASH IS FEARED.

The danger of a whitewash of the buildings in the factory workers' district which were built long before modern fire-prevention methods and where many children are on a part time basis while others jam the school buildings beyond safety limits is all the more evident in the light of the assertion of Charles M. Moderwell, president of the Board of Education, that there is very little to investigate.

Mr. Moderwell's statement, which seems intended to allay the agitation that has been aroused at the firetrap expose is addressed to parents, teachers and children and assures them that "there is no cause for alarm."

In contrast, Mayor Dever admits he is troubled by the situation.

The facts are that Chicago school buildings in the Industrial districts, where the children of the workers live, have flagrantly neglected the fire prevention laws, and a disaster causing loss of hundreds of lives may come any day. So far most of the attention of city officials in their much heralded safety campaign, has been directed to theatres and other privately owned buildings, which have been threatened with closing unless they obey the ordinances.

Won't Criticise His Bosses.

Edgar Martin, recently appointed architect of the Board of Education, told a reporter for the DAILY WORKER that he had nothing to say for publication on the question of new school buildings for Chicago. He said that since he was only starting on his new job that he did not like to say anything that would reflect on the men who were formerly in charge of that work. Martin will be put in charge of both the engineering department of the board and the architect's office.

Martin did not care to comment on the reasons for his appointment.

ALL SOVIET RUSSIA SILENT AS LENIN IS LAID TO REST

the grave of Lenin in a last token of respect, love and regret.

Just before the five minute period of silence this message went over every telegraph city and hamelt in Russia: "Lenin is dead but his work goes on."

The radio orchestras played "The Internationale," the crimson banners of the Red Army dipped and the ceremony was over.

The services in Moscow began at 9 A. M. Up to the moment the guard of honor and the pallbearers came for the casket an apparently endless stream of mourners filed past. Thousands cried out "Ilyitch! Ilyitch!" (Lenin's real first name) as they passed the casket.

Krupskaya, Lenin's wife, sat near the casket, quiet and composed, but pale as the corpse of the man whom more than any one else aside from starved for the revolution, dodged the czar's police and fought for the cause the revolution he lived to see victorious.

The body was placed in the mausoleum so that a mirrored reflection of it in the committee hall on the outside. The brain and heart of Lenin with his manuscripts will be preserved in a Lenin museum already established by a decree of the Soviet government.

The mercury was 25 below zero as the preparations for the funeral began, but the crowd, which has been gathering since early morning, continued to increase until its outermost limits were lost to the eye. All of Moscow had turned out to pay a last tribute to the dead leader.

In all Russia today there is no other sound than that of mourning.

THRONGS TO GATHER TUESDAY NIGHT AT MEMORIAL TO LENIN

Union meetings are showing so much enthusiasm over announcement of the Lenin Memorial meeting scheduled for tomorrow night that Ashland Auditorium is expected to be filled.

Special features in addition to the noted speakers include moving pictures from the life of Lenin and music by the Freiheit Singing Society.

The first speaker, who will tell of Lenin and the role of the communist party which he led, is William Z. Foster. Then comes C. E. Ruthenberg, William F. Dunne, Robert Minor and Martin Abern.

Arne Swabeck, district organizer of the Workers Party, will preside.

Memorial in New York

NEW YORK CITY.—Police reserves will be sent to handle the huge crowds expected at the Lenin Memorial meeting in New York, Monday evening, February 4th.

William Z. Foster and C. E. Ruthenberg will tell of Lenin's life and work and moving pictures will complete the story.

Other Lenin Memorial meetings will be held in the following cities:

New York, Feb. 4th, William Z. Foster and C. E. Ruthenberg, speaking, at Madison Square Gardens.

Detroit, Feb. 3rd, C. E. Ruthenberg, speaker.

Chicago, Jan. 29th, Ashland Auditorium, Robert Minor, Martin Abern, William F. Dunne, William Z. Foster and C. E. Ruthenberg.

Omaha, Feb. 3rd, Tom Matthews, Rev. J. E. Beebe, W. H. Green and D. Benik.

Boston, Los Angeles and several other cities have already held their Lenin Memorial meetings.

MINERS' CONVENTION EXTENDS SYMPATHY TO BLAST VICTIMS

for the dead brothers and their bereaved families.

Telegrams concerning the mine disaster near Johnson City were read yesterday before the convention of mine workers and the convention went on record as extending its sympathy to the bereaved families of the miners.

A number of delegates to the convention were from the district where the disaster occurred and resolutions were adopted, and sent to Johnson City, the resolutions are as follows:

We, the delegates representing the miners of Johnson City, Ill., in convention assembled, are deeply grieved to hear of the sad misfortune of our comrades, the Miners workers. We sincerely regret our inability to view the remains and pay the last tribute of respect to the memory of our fellow workers and citizens.

To the bereaved relatives and friends of our departed comrades we extend our heartfelt sympathy. Our thought and compassion are with you in this dark hour of affliction, and we commend you to the Almighty, who alone can comfort you in this dark hour of anguish and sorrow. And we pray that the miners be with you in this sad hour of bereavement, is our prayer.

C. Hopgood, Local No. 711.

John R. Woods, Local No. 3192.

The scala committee of the convention finished its deliberations, but no official report was made. It was learned from a reliable source that the main demands will be for a four year contract with a 20 per cent wage increase, and the recognition of the 6-hour day in principle.

The Nova Scotia miners lost their appeal to the convention, after the administration had mobilized all of its strength for this purpose. The issue was one of life and death for the Lewis administration because, in the discussion of the case, both sides had made the Lewis policies the point on which the whole question hinged.

Altho defeated, the Nova Scotia district and its supporters gained a moral victory. The unnecessary hazards that go with non-union mining, and its inefficient gas inspection.

A shock was heard at 3:30 p. m. The fan house was destroyed, and the fan wrecked. Fresh air could not be pumped to the rescuers who rushed into the mine at once, and they had to work in relays, almost fainting before they could be relieved.

Water Rises About Rescuers

Falls of rock jammed up the entries and made passage almost impossible. Rising water impeded the rescuers still more. The first set of rescuers had penetrated the workings only a short distance when they met six men staggering out. Late at night the rescuers located one body—unidentified.

him and the rescuers pulled me out. The other man was dead."

Those who ran inhaled the gas and were suffocated. Many lives were saved by Jim Reaves, an old track-layer, who shouted to the others to "take it easy."

Shirts as Gas Masks.

Muffled to the eyes in their shirts, used as improvised gas masks, they walked a mile and a half to the main shaft. The corpses of those who tried to run soon found dotting the pathway by the rescuers later.

Forty-five miners who gathered in entry No. 1 which they curtained off were saved and communicated with rescuers later by telephone.

Two hundred and ninety of the men in the mines when the explosion occurred reached the main entry and were lifted to the surface in safety.

A hundred miners formed themselves into rescue squads to hunt for the 60 still missing, more than half of whom it was afterwards found had perished. Thru the smoky, gas-filled darkness of the underground passages they groped.

Hundreds of men and women braved the zero weather—waiting breathlessly for the remnants of their loved ones that would be salvaged from the blistmingling storms.

Herbert McCullough, mine manager, and Jesse Ford, "face boss," were among the first bodies identified dead. Mrs. Jessie Caplinger, whose husband was killed 12 years ago in a similar accident, was a pitiful figure at the mine mouth. Two of her four sons, Clyde, 17, and Wilson, 19, were among the dead.

Union President Loses Son.

Paul Phillips, president of local union No. 1239 of the United Mine Workers of America, barely escaped with his life when the accident occurred. Hearing his son had not been seen, he rushed back. The boy, Philip, Jr., was later brought up dead.

It was not until midnight, ten hours after the accident, that most of the injured were brought up. Most of them were found unconscious and were revived by the pulmotors carried up by the four physicians who accompanied the searching party.

The disaster happened in Williamson county, 12 miles from Herrin. Miners from that city rushed to Johnston City and offered themselves freely for rescue service.

Many Dead in Pennsylvania.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANKTOWN, Pa.—Forty-nine more lives are believed to be added to the toll the mine industry has taken in the last two days. The latest list of victims comes from the Barnes and Tucker Coal company's mine here which was shattered by a mysterious gas explosion.

Rescuers have almost given up hope of finding any traces of more than one body of a prospector.

Deadly gas still lurks in the workings and the water is rising rapidly.

Where Union Was Fighting

The explosion occurred in Indiana county, just north of Johnstown, where District 2 of the United Mine Workers of America has been waging an organization fight to free the industry from the unnecessary

Miners' Convention Deeply Moved by Struggle of Nova Scotia Miners

they stood and fought for justice for him and the Nova Scotia district.

The miners know McLachlan's fighting record and they knew that the he might have made mistakes they were mistakes of head and not of the heart.

Thanks Forced to Be Given.

When Philip Murray, Vice President of the United Mine Workers of America, and Mr. John L. Lewis's right hand man, rose to speak there being considerable dissatisfaction with the disposition of the resolutions demanding a fair hearing for James B. McLachlan and Dan Livingstone in their offices from which they were deposed, he indicated that Lewis preferred to bend before the storm of revolt that was surging thru the convention rather than permit it to break its official power.

The sentiment against the autocratic treatment accorded to the Nova Scotia delegates was not confined to the floor. The progressive or radical wing of the convention. The fact is that dissatisfaction was reaching up to the official family, and while there is no reason to suppose that Mr. Lewis had a change of heart over the matter, there is every reason to believe that he saw the handwriting on the wall and that a Howat case was perhaps brewing for the convention without adding to it that of the imprisoned battler, Jim McLachlan, and his associates.

Murray At the Wheel.

Philip Murray was the man at the wheel when the roller was turned loose on the convention, so it was rather fitting that he should be obliged to do penance for his sins, and his action was an implied concession that his conduct was unwarranted. That is putting it mildly, of course.

The fact is a rank and file convention. The great majority of the delegates are coal diggers. They work at their trade. They did not come to the convention to crucify anybody and be given a fair chance to judge they can be depended on to vote according to their convictions. They were not to be led and in my opinion the very fact that Jim MacLachlan is now behind the prison bars for his stand by the miners of Nova Scotia and the workers of Canada and of this country as well, goes right straight to the heart of every delegate on the convention floor who is not attached to the official machine or whose mind is "made up" in advance.

There is a great human side to the case of the Nova Scotia miners which appeals to the emotions of these honest toilers. Most of them may have been in strikes. In some parts of the country a reign of terror under anti-feudal conditions still prevails. The few remarks made by Fred Mooney, of West Virginia, brought forth a response to everyone heard him. The miners know that Jim McLachlan went to jail, not for himself, but for the cause, for fighting the capitalists of Nova Scotia represented by the British Empire Steel Company. Betrayers of labor don't go to jail. They are no miner so simple that he does not know that. The miners at this convention are not as much concerned about whether McLachlan obeyed the law as is John L. Lewis, who sneered at the "brave and noble" McLachlan, as he was referred to in many resolutions.

Lewis Has Big Mistake.

Many of the miners know that the law is made for the bosses and against them. They all know that instinctively. And they know that a man who is true enough to his class to go to jail for them does not deserve to be cut adrift by Lewis, who is served so well while those who were too proud to fight the coal barons' government in 1919 stood behind the convention platform and jeer at their imprisoned fellow worker.

John L. Lewis committed a tactical blunder of the first water when he so bitterly denounced Jim McLachlan for alleged violation of the laws of the John Bull empire, when did it become a crime for a representative of organized labor to speak a word in behalf of those who elected him or who are striking to offset against the organized capitalist pirates who own the government and the courts? Alex Howat went to jail to kill the Kansas Slave Act of Kansas, and he killed it.

John L. Lewis had him expelled from the United Mine Workers for his pains. In 1919 when the miners went on strike against the United States government issued an injunction prohibiting the officers of the union from performing their functions as such. Lewis defied Wilson and, even after the executive council of the American Federation of Labor voted to co-operate in winning the strike, hoisted the white flag of surrender and declared he was an American citizen and would not fight his country. Samuel Gompers, reactionary tho he is, expressed his disgust with this action of Lewis and at the Denver convention when the latter challenged him for the presidency of the American Federation of Labor openly jostling Lewis for the honor, went away from a fight.

Miners Have Spirit.

The miners have the spirit. It is very much in evidence at this convention. It is a spirit that will not be downed by the machinations of Lewis and his henchmen. It is a spirit that will not be downed by the machinations of Lewis and his henchmen. It is a spirit that will not be downed by the machinations of Lewis and his henchmen

DAY'S PAY DRIVE FOR RUTHENBERG APPEAL BEGINS

Ohio Comrade Starts Gifts to Win Fight

History repeats itself. To a South Slavic branch belongs the honor of making the first unit of the Party contribution of Chicago to turn in six dollars to the Labor Defense Council for a full sheet of Ruthenberg Appeal Coupons. Michael Sarich of Dillonvale, Ohio, forwarded the money. When the Defense began its great "One Day's Pay Drive" last year, it was also a South Slavic branch which was the first to respond.

Following receipt of these first returns for Appeal coupons, money has begun to come in from all sections of the country. While the amount received is still relatively small, owing to the short time the coupons have been out, it is already evident that the comrades are enthusiastically supporting the campaign to push the Ruthenberg Appeal thru to a victory.

In a typical letter, Comrade L. Lagedin, secretary of the Boston Lettish branch writes: "I received your Ruthenberg Appeal Coupons and will do my utmost to sell them."

S. A. Pollak, organizer of the Bronx English branch, New York writes laconically: "Please mail our branch 15 more sheets of Ruthenberg Appeal Coupons." Similar letters are being received every day.

Chicago of course, was able to make remittances for coupons before other localities. The first party unit to respond here was the North Side English branch, Comrade Michael Halter turning in $6 for a whole sheet, three days after it had been issued to him. HOW MANY APPEAL COUPONS HAVE YOU SOLD?

COAL MINERS! Talk To Your Convention Thru Daily Worker

Coal Miners! Your convention is on at Indianapolis, Ind. It will be responsive to your needs if you will talk to it, talk to it in loud and emphatic tones.

You can do this thru your paper, THE DAILY WORKER. You can do it every day. You can make yourself heard.

Every day THE DAILY WORKER goes to the convention at Tomlinson Hall, at Indianapolis. The miners' delegates are reading it, from first page, first column, to last page, last column.

If you will write to THE DAILY WORKER, telling your needs, the delegates will read your letter.

One of the big things you are interested in is unemployment. If you don't work there is no pay envelope. If you don't work, there is nothing with which to pay the landlord, the grocer, with which to buy the things your family needs. How do you get along? How do you make both ends meet? What do you demand?

Tell it to the delegates at Indianapolis. Tell it to your highly paid officials, whose salaries go on the whole year around.

Write about all the other great problems confronting the coal miners of this country. Your letters will be published in THE DAILY WORKER and read by the delegates at your convention at Indianapolis. Write to the Editor, The Daily Worker, 1640 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

Amalgamated Sends Russia Cable Sorrow

Heartfelt condolences to the Russian workers who are mourning the loss of Nicolai Lenin were sent last night by the Chicago Joint Board of the Amalgamated Garment Workers to Moscow, care of Foreign Minister Chicherin.

The cablegram reads:

"Accept our deepest sympathy. Our 40,000 members join you in mourning the loss of our great comrade and leader, Nicolai Lenin."

The entire joint board stood in solemn silence in memory of Lenin. No labor organization in America has worked in closer sympathy with the ideals of the Russian workers than the Amalgamated Garment Workers, who have not only co-operated in word, but in deed by the Russian American Industrial Corporation's activity in rebuilding the needle trade industries of Russia.

Another tablegram was dispatched by the Joint Board to Ramsay MacDonald, labor premier of England, at 10 Downing street, London. The MacDonald cablegram reads:

"Accept our heartiest congratulations upon your advent into power as a labor administration which comes as a climax after many years of struggle. We wish you success in the arduous task which lies before you."

Needle Workers Give Concert.

Needle workers of Chicago are giving a concert and entertainment on Feb. 16, for the benefit of the workers expelled from the International Ladies' Garment Workers by the Sigman and Perlstein machine. A Rittleman of the Jewish Federation in New York is expected to address the meeting. Tickets are 25 cents and may be had at Room 307, 156 W. Washington St., or at 3733 W. Roosevelt Road.

Passing the Buck.

ST. LOUIS.—Concurrent with the wholesale closing down of Illinois mines, the retail price of coal advanced here in one week 25 cents a ton. Another advance is predicted. It is difficult to place the responsibility, as both the jobbers and the retailers pass the buck.

Letters to 'The Daily'

The Finest Paper Yet.

To The DAILY WORKER: Will state our daily is the finest paper yet produced for an working slaves. Keep the good work up. I'll do my best to get some workers to subscribe.

Enclosed please find an editorial taken from the Sioux City Journal of Jan. 23. Read it, and see if any lackeys of Big Biz can stoop any lower than this editorial does. Yours for a Workers and Farmers Republic. August Nelson, Sioux City, Iowa.

Has Read It Already.

To The Daily Worker:—As one who has already read "A Week" I wish to recommend, if for no other than humanitarian reasons, that "A Week" be run in daily installments. Those who recommend a weekly installment of "A Week" have no idea what lies between the covers of this book, otherwise they would not conceive that anyone had the endurance to wait a whole week for the next installment.—Rose Rubin.

Plan for Second Story

To The Daily Worker:—My vote is that you print "A Week" daily. Get ready now with another story to replace "A Week" when it ends. I would suggest that you ask the readers to suggest the next story.

I am very pleased with the Daily Worker; the material is good; editorials excellent, make up good.—M. Shapiro, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Finish One—Start Another

To The DAILY WORKER: Just a line to state that I desire to see "A Week" published in daily installments. I consider the sooner one novel is published, another started, the better. Charles Bayles, San Jose, Calif.

Daily Worker Is Necessity

The DAILY WORKER is a necessity for a Kansas City comrade who sends cash for a six months' subscription, saying:

"I am having a very hard time; had no work this winter, but I scraped up my last money for the paper."

Scab Suffers Heavy Loss.

ST. LOUIS.—The Benish Restaurant, Inc., has lost $3,000 in business as a result of union picketing, according to the company's plea for an injunction against the waitresses' union. The Benish concern operates a noted scab cafe downtown and recently opened a branch in the western part of the city. The union girls have been vigorously picketing the place, advising patrons and prospective patrons that the hash factory is an open shop. The officers and several members of the local union are named in the petition.

Labor Against Mellon Plan.

ALBANY.—The New York State Federation of Labor distributed, Jan. 21, to every member of the State Legislature a circular in which they are requested to vote against the resolution by V. Murphy, Republican member of the Legislature, in which Congress is urged to accept the Mellon plan for a cut in taxes. In the circular the State Federation states that the tax reduction being planned holds out great advantages only for the wealthy.

COOLIDGE GIVES BANKS FIRST AID; FARMER NOTHING

Wheat Belt Banks Failing Right and Left

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—The Coolidge administration is speeding up its plans to aid the banks in the wheat belt. The plans are being accelerated because of the failure of the big Guaranty Trust company of Kansas City, which has just been taken over by the state finance commissioner because of a shortage of working capital resulting from a surplus of corn loans.

As a first step a syndicate of metropolitan bankers of the middle west will be formed by the government to underwrite loans in order to relieve the credit situation.

Nothing for Farmers.

No direct relief for the farmer himself is in view for the immediate present. The administration will instead seek to restore working capital to the banks who hold mortgages on the farmer's lands and equipment.

Invitations to the bankers have already been sent out, following a conference between Secretary Hoover and Secretary Wallace with President Coolidge. Governors of the affected states will also be invited.

South Dakota Banks Aided.

The Treasury department announces that Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the War Finance corporation wires that a branch agency of the corporation had been opened at Sioux Falls, South Dakota, to relieve the strain on local banks.

* * *

MUSCATINE, Iowa.—The Iowa state banking department closed the Citizens' Savings bank of Letts, Iowa. A surplus of bad loans to impoverished farmers was the cause.

* * *

CHICAGO.—"Unless farming is made more profitable in this country it is going to languish and if it does the entire nation will suffer," said ex-Governor Lowden at the La Salle Hotel.

* * *

BISMARCK, N. D.—The state bank examiner announced the closing of the Farmers' State Bank of Church's Ferry and the Security Bank of Oberon bad farm loans, the cause.

* * *

SIOUX FALLS, S. D.—The Prespo State Bank at Prespo, S. D., has closed. Plans to reorganize the Sioux Falls Trust & Savings Bank, which failed last week, are being made.

Just Goody Goody Pictures Suit the New York Censor

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ALBANY, N. Y.—The motion picture commission presented to Governor Smith of New York a report for its work for the last year, and recommended that the censorship on moving pictures be increased instead of abolished.

For the year 1923 the commission deleted parts of 586 films. It would have deleted many more parts, but for fear of public opinion which is against the stupid activities of censors.

In the report the commission indicated three kinds of motion pictures which it considered bad:

1. Films in which criminals are unpunished.

2. Those which show that idlers and immoral persons live in luxury. People seeing this luxury which they cannot afford are actuated to immorality.

3. Those pictures in which sin is presented in an attractive manner and goodness and good habits are depreciated.

Danger In Work For Oil Kings In California Field

It is dangerous to work for Doheny and Rockefeller in the California oil fields. Statistics from the United States Bureau of Mines show the hazards of the oil game as now conducted. In all 4,108 accidents were tabulated during the years 1921 and 1922, about two-thirds of the total number of accidents. The 4,108 accidents caused a loss of 274,8228 working days or an average of 67 days for each accident.

"The increasing danger to life and limb involved in the drilling for and the production of oil and gas, has become so great that it is clearly evident that everything possible must be done to keep it within the narrowest possible limits," comments the bureau.

But it is a long way from comment to action.

Warning Against Faker.

NEW ORLEANS.—State Labor Commissioner Woods has warned laborers against a "labor agent" who is recruiting men for positions with the Roxana Petroleum Co. at Buenos Aires, Argentina. A wire to the main office of the company at St. Louis brought the information that no agent was authorized to recruit labor here. There are many men in the south out of employment. The labor has changed a lot for small-leg scabs of them.

Palo Alto Woman Assails Cowardly Whipping of Kids

Public protest against the whipping of boys in the Palo Alto, California, high school by members of the Stanford University R.O.T.C. "Horsewhipping of boys by officers of the R.O.T.C. at Stanford University," a leaflet just issued by Allen Parr over the signature of the Humanist Educational Committee at Palo Alto, California.

"Consider the difference in size between a grown man and a young child's body. Consider the effect of a giant over twelve feet tall stood over a man or woman and dealt out blows for infractions of plain-made rules, the parent might realize what he now does to children. He probably does not know either the pain, the physical injury, the nervous shock, the mental effects, nor the effects upon the other children in the family."

Injury to the heart is sometimes permanent from the brutal punishment which parent's inflict, continues the leaflet. Words of hate and resentment engendered in the child, who takes it out on his fellows or the household pets.

Plan to Organize Scab Restaurant Jobs in Chicago

Members of the Amalgamated Food Workers of Chicago are called together in a general membership meeting Wednesday, Jan. 30, at 3 p. m. at 214 N. State St., for the purpose of planning an organization drive on the culinary workers of this city.

The meeting will take up three phases of the organization issue: (1) The plan of organization; (2) The financing of the plan; (3) Selecting organizers to take charge of the work.

A roll call of all members present will be taken. Membership books will be required.

The organization leaders believe the season favorable for a successful union drive that will build up a culinary organization here equal to that in the restaurants of New York.

More Offers to Make Fertilizer at Muscle Shoals

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Two offers to produce fertilizer at Muscle Shoals have been formally laid before the house military affairs committee.

One was the offer of the Union Carbide (company, New York, to make 100,000 tons of fertilizer a year, the company to pay $1,650,000 yearly rental for the plant and purchase of the nitrate.

The other was a proposal to make 50,000 tons of fixed nitrogen a year, to be sold to farmers at eight per cent profit. It was submitted by the Southern Power Companies associated with the Alabama Power Company. These concerns previously submitted an offer covering lease of the power at Muscle Shoals. Both offers cover a fifty year period.

Communists in Thuringia Go on Hunger Strike

(By The Federated Press)

WEIMAR, Germany.—Twenty-six political prisoners, members of the central executive committee, Communist party of Thuringia, have been lying in jail here since Nov. 21 without being able to persuade the authorities to bring them to trial. No indictment was issued against them.

These 26 politicals went on hunger strike on Dec. 30. The military commander, Hasse, learning of this, wrote the attorney general that such action on their part would only lengthen the confinement of the politicals, and that he now ordered them to be placed in solitary confinement.

Robots Must Produce More.

BERLIN.—Germany's salvation lies in producing more, both quantitatively and qualitatively, according to Kurt Sorge, president, League of German Industrialists. Requested by Hugo Stinnes of Berlin daily, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, to write a New Year's message for its readers, who are mostly recruited from the business class, he joins the general chorus of capitalists who clamor for longer hours and harder work on the part of the wage slaves.

Trade Revives In East.

SHANGHAI.—Arrival of 6,500 tons of Black Sea wheat at Vladivostok destined for Harbin and Siberia, together with an expected cargo of Russian naptha from Batum, Transcaucasia, shows a revival of soviet trade in the far east. Restoration of pre-war schedules on the Trans-Siberian railway will soon be announced.

St. Louis Painters Ask $1.50 Hour.

ST. LOUIS.—Demands for a five-day week, eight hours to constitute a day, and a wage scale of $1.50 an hour have been presented to the contractors by St. Louis Painters' District Council, speaking for about 1,200 craftsmen. The proposed scale would become effective March 15.

RIGHT WINGERS STRANGLE UNITY AT WASHINGTON

Unrepresentative Meet at Capital Is Fizzle

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A resolution attacking the united front farmer-labor conference scheduled for St. Paul, May 30, was jammed thru the so-called Unity Conference at the Hotel Hamilton here at a special session to which progressives were not invited.

The St. Paul conference was condemned by the handful of right wing delegates present because the Federated Farmer-Labor Party had been invited.

At the regular session the resolution was defeated and tabled after a fight by William Mahoney, editor of the Minnesota Union Advocate, of St. Paul, and J. A. H. Hopkins, chairman of the Committee of 48.

The Washington Unity Conference turned out to be a small and unrepresentative affair. Delegates from Workmen's Circle, No. 506, Washington, were barred as "communistic" tho the Workmen's Circle branch of Baltimore was represented thru a Socialist delegate. A clergyman from Annapolis helped to swell the attendance to the sum total of eight.

Exclusion of the Washington Workmen's Circle was purely arbitrary and no report was made to the convention by the credentials committee. The right wing of the meet was Charles Mahoney of Washington, D. C., a decided contrast to the more progressive nameake of St. Paul.

Washington progressives are going on with their plans to take part in the St. Paul conference. Their numerical strength is much greater than the Socialist group that sought to strangle the local united front movement.

William Mahoney, of St. Paul, announces that reports from all parts of the country show an increasing support for the program of coalescing the farmer and labor movements of this country and he is confident of a united front conference May 30th that will initiate a powerful movement of American producers.

Seek Substitutes for Negroes.

NEW ORLEANS.—Advices received in this city state that "unofficial" representatives of North and South Carolina are in Denmark endeavoring to induce immigrants to settle in the south to take the places of Negroes who refuse to live under the modern industrial conditions. The minister of agriculture at Copenhagen has not yet decided whether he will advise Danes to emigrate to the land of sunshine and oppression.

Rich Fail to Pay Taxes.

ST. LOUIS.—Fred Hoffman, head of a large coffee company, has been arrested here by government agents for alleged failure to make an income tax return for 1922. About fifty other big business men face arrest unless they heed summons to appear before the collector of internal revenue. Hoffman is alleged to have failed to make a return on his income for 1922 and repeatedly ignored summons to appear before the federal commission.

China's new railroad police, consisting of 20,000 men, has been installed ostensibly for the purpose of guarding trains against the bandits. However these so-called watchmen will be used ruthlessly by all railroad companies against striking workers, as witness the shooting of 30 striking railroad workers in Hankau at the beginning of the year.

AMALGAMATED IN LENIN EULOGY SENT TO WIDOW

R. A. I. C. Also Radios Sympathy to Moscow

By FREDERICK EUH
(Staff Correspondent of the Federated Press)

NEW YORK.—On behalf of the Russian-American Industrial Corp. Sidney Hillman, president, and Jacob S. Potofsky, secretary, have sent the following cablegram to Madame Lenin:

"The Russian-American Industrial Corp. is deeply grieved over the loss of the greatest workers' statesman of all times. Accept our profund sympathy in this hour of bereavement."

At the same time, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America have dispatched the following message by radio to the Council of People's Commissars of Moscow: "We join you in your grief at the death of labor's premier. The A. C. W. lays its wreath on the bier of Nicolai Lenin. With firm hand and clear vision, he piloted Russia thru many dangers into the haven of safety. The memory of labor's greatest statesman will forever remain fresh in our hearts."

In a supplementary statement to The Federated Press, Sidney Hillman said:

"I have had the pleasure of meeting Nicolai Lenin on various occasions. Irrespective of whatever differences of opinion there might be with regard to the soviet government's policies, there can be no question in anyone's mind that Nicolai Lenin was one of the great outstanding personalities of the century and the greatest statesman that ever arose from the ranks of labor. His genius and integrity were matched with an unusual sense for reality. Lenin had his mind on actual accomplishments, and service in the cause of labor. History might have chosen to shape the course of events in the Russian republic differently if not for the personal influence of Lenin. He was throughout a servant of the people and because of this he was entrusted with an amount of confidence unusual in the annals of great leadership. The new economic policy was the last great achievement of Lenin's genius. It tended to, and had accomplished to a large degree, the rapprochement between the workers and peasants of Russia, thus establishing a government for the masses."

In a leading editorial to be published in the organ of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, The Advance, Lenin is compared to Lincoln.

Here's a Plan to Send the Daily Worker to All of Our Class War Prisoners

Israel Blankenstein sent the DAILY WORKER, from his prison cell in the Western Pennsylvania Penitentiary, at Pittsburgh, $3 toward a security fund. We of the DAILY WORKER felt proud enough of that $3, and the letter that accompanied it, to publish his letter in our second issue. His $3 was a contribution, when to contribue meant to go without comforts for two weeks.

The business office of the DAILY WORKER wanted to put his name on the subscription list for a year's subscription. They didn't. Because they could not afford to put every political and class war prisoner on the list they did not put his name on.

The Daily Worker for All?

But the business office has worked out a plan whereby every political prisoner's name can be sent to the Daily Worker for a year. Here is the plan:

If you want to have the political and class war prisoners kept in touch with what is going on outside send $3 to the business office of the DAILY WORKER and we will pay the other $3 and put a political prisoner on the list for a year's subscription to the DAILY WORKER. If you want a particular prisoner to get the subscription you would give, tell us his name and what prison he is in and we will see that he gets the DAILY WORKER. If you are willing to let us use our judgment as to who to send the paper we will be glad to do that.

We want every prisoner to get the DAILY WORKER, but until all the prisoners are on our subscription list we think that it would be best to get copies to as many different prisons as possible.

Who will be the first to send a year's subscription to a political prisoner?

Here is a list of a few of the political and class war prisoners:

In San Quentin state prison, San Quentin, Cal.: J. B. McNamara, Tom Mooney, Mathew Schmidt, Harry Williams, Jack Law, George Ryan, Frank Sherman, C. A. Drew.

In the state prison, Moundsville, W. Va.: George Barrett, J. C. McCoy, John Collins, Lige Clint, Bill Estep, Steve Collins.

In the state prison at Charlestown, Mass.: Bartholemeo Vanzetti.

In the county jail, Dedham, Mass.: Nicola Sacco.

In the state prison, Huntsville, Texas: Charles M. Cline and J. N. Rangel.

In the state prison, Walla Walla, Wash.: Bert Bland, Tom Nash, Britt Smith, W. F. Mondy.

In the state prison, Folsom, Cal.: James Price, Louis Allen, John Hisa, Joe Wagner, H. C. Duke.

Three dollars will send the DAILY WORKER for one year to any man on this list or to any other political prisoner in the United States.

If you want to send $3 for a year's subscription to the DAILY WORKER for a political prisoner and later pass into prison, we will send the DAILY WORKER for one year free.

If you expect to go to jail, here is a plan that will give you a year's reading matter free.

Form Committee to Aid Victims of Polish Tyranny

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—Thru the initiative of the Jewish Federation of the Workers Party a temporary committee has been formed to help the victims of Polish reaction and Fascism consisting of the following comrades: A. Bittleman S. Dun, H. Daniels, M. Halpern, Wattenberg, Palmy, E. Epstein, M. Epstein, Fritzsch, Katalf, Krammarski and Reisen. Comrade M. Winchevsky was elected treasurer and Trubenaching, secretary.

The committee decided to call a conference in New York to which all organizations whose membership is made up of workers of Poland will be invited. At the conference plans will be laid for the relief of the revolutionary working class organizations in their struggle against Polish Fascism.

There are thousands of workers in America who received their political education in Poland. Now when Polish Reaction is fighting with all its power against the revolutionary workers' organizations, arrests the best workers, closes workers' societies and clubs, it is the duty of all workers from Poland to help the martyrs in this heroic struggle.

Permanent relief committees of Polish, Ruthenian and workers of similar nationalities are urged to send their contributions immediately to Relief Committee for Victims of Polish Reaction, H. Teubenaching, secretary, 47 Christie St., New York, N. Y.

Gompers Fights Russian Entrance to World League

By The Federated Press

WASHINGTON.—While Samuel Gompers' latest official utterance describes the British Labor party's foreign policy as one calculated to please the international financiers, the Communists and Mussolini, his statement was issued before it became known that Ramsay MacDonald will proceed to reorganize the league of nations so as to admit Russia.

Gompers has merely issued warning to the world that Russia must not be permitted to enter the league.

The president of the league of nations according to Clemenceau, Poincare and Baldwin, the chief of the American Federation of Labor is expected soon to show unwillingness to stand any longer as a league advocate, if the league is to be opened to all governments alike.

Word has reached Washington that the International Federation of Trade Unions, at whose head stands J. H. Thomas, new minister of colonies in the British cabinet, will in all European countries support the new British program as to the league's reorganization. This fact postpones the reconciliation of the present officers of the American Federation of Labor to the idea of American membership in the International Federation of Trade Unions.

CANADIAN LABOR PARTY PLANS MEMBERSHIP FOR NON-TRADE UNIONISTS

By The Federated Press.

MONTREAL.—The Canadian Labor party is to throw open its doors to those not connected with organized labor, if a recommendation passed by the Montreal assembly of the party is adopted. These non-trade-unionists, it is proposed, will be admitted as members at large. The suggestion is professedly taken from the practice of the Labor party in Great Britain.

The Montreal assembly has chosen L. M. Dupont as president for the coming year, while G. A. Tourangeau is French recording secretary and A. Zavalsicoff, English recording secretary.

The Canadian Labor party is the political organization formed two years ago under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

FASCIST RULERS FIGHT EUROPE'S RAIL WORKERS

Wage Slashing and Outlawry in Many Lands

While the railroad workers of Great Britain are striking against their profiteering bosses the conditions of the railroad workers on the continent are fully as bad as the conditions the English workers struck against. In many countries on the continent Fascist rule outlaws strikes. The working force on most of the roads have been cut, hours lengthened and the standard of working conditions lowered. A report of the conditions of the railroad workers in various countries is subjoined.

Switzerland.

The Swiss government is reducing its staff, lowering wages and also making a determined attack on the eight-hour day. Last May the general management endeavored to extend the working day to nine hours and longer, while 3,000 less workers were employed than in the previous year. The organized workers were able to fend off this attempt for the time being; but they are now threatened with an even more drastic attack upon their working conditions.

Czecho-Slovakia.

Slowly the few advantages which the Czecho-Slovakian railroad workers have gained for themselves by years of struggle had been wrestled from them. The bill passed in the Czecho-Slovakian government, to conduct the state railroads as a private enterprise," swept away the last vestiges of protective legislative for railroad workers.

Holland.

The Dutch government has made a number of changes in the wages of the state railroad employees, these changes losing naturally all to the disadvantage of state employees. The government has now introduced a four grade system with disastrous affect upon the already scantily lined pocket-book of the workers. Wages of Dutch tramwaymen have also been reduced.

Belgium.

After the general strike of last May, in which the Belgian post, telegraph and railroad workers fought so heroically but were betrayed by the reformist leaders, the Belgian parliament is now projecting the enactment of a bill forbidding all government employees from striking.

France.

After defeat of the great strike in 1920, 25,000 French railroad workers were discharged, and, during 1921 and 1922, another 50,000 were dismissed. Now 15,000 more have been taken from the French railroads and sent to the Ruhr. The Minister of Railroads has taken advantage of this shortage of hands to declare necessary an extension of the working day.

Italy.

Brutal persecution, mass dismissal, wage reductions and the 12-hour day —such are the fruits of the Fascist rule for Italian railroadmen. The Black-shirts go so far as to follow the movements of dismissed railroadmen, who have been active union men, in order to prevent them getting jobs in other branches of industry. As the government also refuses to issue to such workers the necessary permission to emigrate, these men are practically condemned to years of unemployment and hunger.

Bulgaria.

Even before the advent of fascist rule in Bulgaria, the personnel of the Bulgarian railroads was reduced from 18,520 to 17,160, and the wages reduced to 31 per cent of the pre-war rate. Instead of the eight-hour day the Bulgarian workers received the 16-hour day.

Germany.

In Germany, except in Bavaria, fascism is not yet officially in power. But the lot of the railroad workers there can hardly be differentiated from that of their brothers in the fascist-ruled countries. The 8-hour day exists but as a formula, various amendments to the 8-hour rule having virtually destroyed it. The German railroad worker finds it impossible to live, even in the most frugal manner, on his wages, which are about one-twenty-fourth of the American railroad workers' wage, and one-twentieth of the British. Not only for the railroad workers, but for all workers in Germany things are rapidly approaching a crisis in the land of the Stinnes dictatorship.

Norway.

In their amendment to the 1920 8-hour-day law, the masters have perpetrated the following joke on the Norwegian railroad workers. This is how "hours" are to be reckoned in future:

For light work 1½ hours equals 1 hour; for traveling time 1½ hours equals 1 hour; for waiting time 4 hours equals 1 hour.

However, the Norwegian railroad workers do not seem much to appreciate this form of humor. In Norway the high cost of living bonus has also been done away with; and, during the last 18 months, wages have been reduced to about 30 per cent.

Canada.

The Halifax Chamber of Commerce has demanded that the wages of Canadian railroad workers be placed upon the basis of the lowest paid workers in industry. These gentlemen have also demanded that "all superfluous workers be dismissed."

South Africa.

In South Africa we have the same story of a systematic reduction in wages. Practically all the advantages gained by the South African railroad workers during the war and the period immediately following it, have been lost.

Germany Presents Chapter for Brass Check Journalism

(By The Federated Press.)

BERLIN.—An interesting supplementary chapter must be written to Upton Sinclair's "Brass Check" as the result of a libel suit tried these days in Berlin. The Vossische Zeitung accused the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung of libel and won out—that is, before judgment was pronounced, the "Allgemeine" agreed to retract and to beg the rival's pardon.

But that was not the important thing about the trial. The significant fact that developed was that Hugo Stinnes, the Gary of Germany, works thru straw men in operating and controlling the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, thereby avoiding personal responsibility yet having all the benefits that come to his undertakings from owning such an important organ of public opinion; and secondly, that the editor of his sheet naively declared that much of the material therein published never went thru their hands.

Hibben Demands Senator Produce His "Protests"

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK.—Senator James W. Wadsworth, chairman senate committee on military affairs, has issued a reply to many protests reaching official Washington circles, concerning the trial of Capt. Paxton Hibben, reserve officers' corps, whose expulsion from the army is being considered by a military court. Hibben is charged with cherishing unorthodox political opinions.

Wadsworth asserts that many members of the reserve corps protested against Hibben's proposed dismotion. The senator implies that the military hearings were the spontaneous act of a committee of officers.

In a reply to Wadsworth, Hibben reminds the senator that his case is the subject of a formal investigation ordered by the secretary of war. Hibben challenges the senator to produce the "many protests" to which Wadsworth refers. By finally charges the war department with "furthering the ends of professional patriotism."

Sees No Red Hue In British Labor Party Leaders

"The strike of the railwaymen is one of the critical tests of the working class integrity of the newly formed British Labor Party ministry under Ramsay MacDonald," said Max Shachtman, editor of The Young Worker, in a lecture before the Maplewood branch of the Young Workers League.

Shachtman pointed out the rise of the revolutionary British working class thru the Chartist movement, into a peaceful period of co-operatives, and then the emergence into independent political action. In analyzing the leadership of the British Labor Party the speaker showed that the assumption of power by the party was no real danger to the ruling class of Great Britain.

"Henderson, Thomas and Clynes are imperialists who have promised to maintain the British Empire in all its glory," Shachtman said, "and the rest of the cabinet is not very much better. The only concession made to the left wingers of the Party from the Clyde was the giving of the ministry of health—a very innocuous portfolio—to John Wheatley."

WALLACE FIGHTS TO BLOCK RELIEF FOR THE FARMERS

Coolidge's Agricultural Secretary Unmasked

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is again trying to block the only relief measure for farmers that is under serious consideration in Congress—the Norris-Sinclair government marketing corporation bill. He offers a substitute, in the form of the McNary-Haugen bill, which is supported by the Wheat Growers' Association representatives. This McNary-Haugen measure is denounced as a "red herring" by Benjamin C. Marsh of the Farmers' National Council, in a public statement.

"Secretary Wallace three years ago proposed the Farm Products Export Corporation bill introduced by Senator Norris," said Marsh, "and endorsed the revival of the War Finance Corporation, which has saved some banks but has been of little benefit to farmers.

"Wallace now ignores the fundamental principles that farmers must get cost of production plus a reasonable profit, and substitutes a differential calculus fourth dimension mathematical scheme to determine what price farmers are to be paid for their products.

"His bill proposes to leave gamblers and profiteers in charge of handling farm products consumed in the United States, and so it is a blow at consumers of farm products, while farmers are to take the losses on farm products dumped abroad.

"The Norris-Sinclair bill provides the machinery for any legitimate proper activity, which might be conducted by the government under the Wallace proposal and avoids the nationwide bureaucracy Secretary Wallace seeks to establish under the pretext of helping the farmers."

The Cabinet Banditry

The more the Teapot Dome matter is stirred by the senate investigating committee the more by the noisome is the smell that arises. The noxious fumes seem to take a malicious delight in curling about the head of practically every prominent member of the administration from the president down—and when one starts to go down from Coolidge into the personnel of his cabinet one can sink to very low depths indeed.

President Coolidge, as vice-president, was a member of the cabinet that decided to peddle the naval oil reserves; Secretary of the Navy Denby approved the leases and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt signed them for him. Secretary of the Interior Fall conducted the negotiations and received a $135,000 honorarium for his services from Doheny and Sinclair. Attorney-General Daugherty, that staunch defender of the constitution, consulted in his official capacity as to the legality of the transaction, let the good work go on. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, engaged in lowering the taxes of himself and other multi-millionaires, made no protest. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace was too busy staging milking contests with Magnus Johnson to pay any attention to the deal. Secretary of Labor Davis, the bootblack of the administration, in arranging for the finger-printing of all foreign-born workingmen for the convenience of the corporations, overlooked the fact that gathered around the present administration is a gang of 100 per cent. Americans whom the evidence shows are at all times ready and able to purloin anything except a red-hot stove or a cellar full of water.

It seems fairly certain, from the testimony given before the senate investigating committee, that since the appointment of the forces of sweetness and light personified in the Harding group now in the Coolidge administration, everything in Washington with two ends to it and of any value has been in hourly danger of mysteriously disappearing.

To us this occasions no surprise except that some of the thieves have been caught with the loot concealed about their persons; this is rather unusual and constitutes the real sensation. The theft of rich natural resources has been going on for many years and most of those who have grown wealthy and powerful from the proceeds of such robbery are held up to the American youth as examples of American thrift and enterprise.

If any of the Coolidge-Fall-Daugherty-Roosevelt-Sinclair-Doheny outfit are stripped of their loot and sent to jail -a possibility that arouses enormous skepticism in us—it will not be as punishment for their crimes against the nation.

It will be solely and simply for being careless; so careless that the official agencies of American capitalist enterprise are held up to the ridicule of the mob.

They have committed the unpardonable sin against the capitalist system not against its moral code.

They have been found out.

Impotent Officialdom

Meyer Perlstein, Vice-President of the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, must be given credit for originality if nothing else in arranging an alibi for the deplorable conditions in that section of the Chicago garment trades over which that union has jurisdiction.

According to interviews with Meyer, featured by the capitalist press, the loss in union membership in this territory is due, not to the campaign of persecution, slugging and expulsion that he has carried on against the left wingers in the union—members of the Trade Union Educational League and the Workers Party included—but solely to the fact that girl members of the union are too susceptible to the advances of dance-hall sheiks and lounge-lizards hired by the employers to wean the girls away from the union.

Meyer says that the activity of these personable under-cover men reduced the membership of the union something like 40 per cent and speaks sadly of the attraction that a patent-leather shoed and haired individual in bell-bottomed trousers has for his female followers.

Being in the ladies' clothing trade, Meyer does not know that bell-bottomed pants have gone out and are no longer worn by the nifty dresser but that is neither here nor there.

What we are interested in is the utter asininity of a responsible union official who gives such slush to the enemy press.

Perlstein and Sigman, international president to whom Perlstein says he has sent an SOS for aid in this critical situation, the time for the union leaders who are the blame for the present rank and file for their own failures, Perlstein's interview is sufficient proof of that.

They have deliberately, with the backing of the Daily Forward, cut to ribbons from the body of the Ladies' Garment Workers Union the best fighting blood of the organization and without which it will degenerate into a mutual admiration society presided over by mentalities who whine over such trivial occurences as those mentioned by Perlstein and who, if not checked, will make of the organization a laughing stock of the employers, the capitalist press and militant workers.

When labor officials begin telling their troubles to unsympathetic capitalist papers and ridiculing the material out of which unions must be built they confess a mental bankruptcy more complete than even the most bitter critic would have charged.

Renegades--American and British

Remorseful renegades are not welcomed back to the fold in England with any great display of warmth if we can rely upon comments in the Daily Herald on the decision of Robert Blatchford to forsake the capitalist press, into whose service he went at the outbreak of the war, and return to the Labor Party.

"I'm tired of all this dirty business of lying about the Labor Party and similar tactics," says the unctuous Mr. Blatchford now that the Labor Party is in power.

Letters to the Daily Herald, in discussing this striking change of heart, display a lack of sympathy with the mental agonies long endured of Mr. Blatchford that might be emulated with profit to the workers in the United States.

Says one correspondent:

"I believe and hope that all true socialists will view the return of the prodigal Robert Blatchford to the Labor fold with distrust and apprehension. Blatchford (himself not innocent of those tactics which now disgust him when practiced by his late paymasters) has been too long in the opposing camp for us to regard his volte face as a change of heart."

Another says:

"The war came as a blow to Labor. It killed the DAILY HERALD as a daily. Many Labor publications ceased; others dragged on a hand-to-mouth existence. Robert Blatchford deserted the apparently sinking ship and went to the Yellow Press, whose masters reviled bitterly the Labor Party and its aspirations.

"Now Labor is getting powerful. The circulation of the Daily Herald is rising every day. To it have been added Labor weeklies and monthlies. Propaganda is strong; also, there is going to be a Labor Government. Now, after seven years with the Yellow Press, Mr. Robert Blatchford says: 'I am tired of all this dirty business of lying about the Labor Party and similar tactics,' and resigns.

"Seven years. It took a long time. I hope I'm of a forgiving nature, but seven years!"

In the United States the Blatchford type is represented by the Wallings, Wrights, Spargos and Russells.

Two of these safety first gentlemen who rallied to the Wilson-Gompers standard are now coolly ensconced in jobs with the American Federation of Labor; their main task is to slander those who did not sell out to the American imperialists in 1917 and warn both the labor movement and the dear public of the approach of the red menace.

We must confess that some things are done better in Great Britain.

Approving Brother Lewis

Additional evidence comes to hand daily to prove that Brother John L. Lewis is playing just the kind of game the coal operators and other employers like to see him play.

The Chicago Tribune is a canny sheet that can scent danger for the class it represents for a considerable distance. It is equally competent in discerning the waning of a menace.

Speaking in an approving manner of the recommendations of Brother Lewis to the convention in Indianapolis, the Tribune says:

As president of this organization, John L. Lewis has naturally acquired a reputation as a stormy petrel. Yet in fact he has been a competent and reasonable leader*of late all labor has been showing a tendency to reasonNot long ago the union read communist agitators out of its ranks. It has printed an expose of radicals. It has taken a flatfooted stand in favor of Americanism and against Bolshevik influence.It was generally conceded that the miners' convention would demand shorter days, shorter weeks, a wage increase of 10 to 20 per cent and speedy nationalization of the mines.

These expectations are now pleasantly disappointed. The convention has unanimously adopted Mr. Lewis' report, which displays commendable moderation.

There is little that we can add to this proof of the admiration of the employers and their press for Brother Lewis except to say that they know whereof they speak.

When the capitalist press expresses satisfaction with the policies advocated by the president of the largest union in America, a union that operates in a basic industry, it can be considered fairly certain that someone is getting the worst of the bargain and that it is not the employers.

Crude accusations of "selling out" and "betrayal" have weak sound beside such statements by the enemies of the miners' union and the rest of the American working-class.

HARDING LETTERS PROVE COOLIDGE LIED

Solid Opposition to Delay of May 30th Conference

CAL AND HIS CABINET ALL IN OILY MESS

Administration Rocked by New Exposures

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The late President Harding and his entire cabinet, including Coolidge, were drawn into the Teapot Dome scandal today when Senator Walsh, Montana, read to the Senate two letters which disclosed:

That President Harding had complete knowledge of the plans of Secretary of the Interior Fall to lease naval oil reserves to private oil interests and that this policy had his full endorsement and approval.

The whole matter was repeatedly discussed at meetings of the Harding cabinet, Presidents Coolidge in a statement issued a few days ago denied responsibility on the ground that the oil leases had not been discussed in cabinet meetings.

Walsh's dramatic disclosure was made soon after the senate met at noon today. Walsh began by charging that Fall was not alone responsible for leasing of the oil reserves, which has since developed into the greatest scandal since the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

Walsh then read in support of his charges a letter Fall wrote President Harding in which Fall said the whole policy was discussed by the Harding cabinet.

Whole Cabinet Involved

A letter from Mr. Harding, transmitting to the senate Fall's letter and other data regarding the Teapot Dome and other leases, disclosed that Mr. Harding included in responsibility for the leasing policy not only Fall and secretary of the navy Denby, but himself, for he said the whole question of policy involved had been submitted to him in advance on its adoption and that it had at all times had his complete approval.

"We have it upon the word of Secretary Fall that before these leases were executed, not only the leases themselves, but even the question of legality of the leases was discussed before the cabinet," said Walsh.

"I am fully appreciative of the fact that anything said by former Secretary Fall or anything to be said must be taken with a certain degree of doubt."

The Teapot Dome scandal was transferred today from the investigating committee to the floor of the senate when the Walsh-Caraway resolution for immediate cancellation of the Teapot Dome and California No. 1 leases was to be presented, with a demand for its adoption.

Panic in Old Guard Ranks

Unless unexpected pressure is applied to prevent administration senators from voting for the resolution, it will be adopted. The only possibility of its defeat or postponement lay in the fact that some administration leaders thought congress

SOME WHITE WASH JOB THIS TIME

It'll Prove Too Big, Even for Coolidge.

Need Coolidge to Prevent Changes, Schwab Declares

VIENNA.—Calvin Coolidge is the choice of Charles M. Schwab for president of the United States, the steel manufacturer declared while on a commercial mission here.

Conditions in America are too prosperous to make a change desirable, Mr. Schwab continued. His only complaint was at the lack of surplus labor. The employment condition would cease for buyers of labor, the visitor said he believed, when the proposed bill for selective immigration, went thru, permitting admission of efficient workers and rejecting "undesirables."

Defrauded of More Millions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Alleging that citizens of 15 states have been defrauded of millions thru Texas land companies holding property in the lower Rio Grande district, Senator Heflin, Alabama, today introduced a resolution for a senate investigation. R. B. Creager, republican, national committeeman from Texas, is president of one of the companies.

Twin City Labor Opposes All Postponement of May 30th Meet to Suit the Plans of the Politicans

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Worker)

Minneapolis, Minn.—The proposal to postpone the National Farmer-Labor convention, called for May 30th, at St. Paul, to suit the convenience of politicians who still remain in the republican and democratic parties, is meeting with the most determined opposition of the militant and progressive elements of the Twin-City labor movement.

Practically every influential leader of the Minneapolis Trades and Labor Assembly has already declared himself against the postponement. The danger of dissolving the class movement of the city workers and exploited farmers into a Bull Moose hodge-podge from the capitalist parties, is clearly seen, and the supporters of the genuine class party have sounded the alarm and taken steps to exert all their strength to prevent it.

A conference of twenty leading labor progressives held here last night voted unanimously to oppose postponement and appointed a committee to inform William Mahoney of their attitude and to request him to stand firm for the holding of the Farmer-Labor convention before the conventions of the republican and democratic parties.

Active Unionists Approve Delay

"We want as broad a movement as possible" said R. D. Cramer, editor of the Minneapolis Labor Review, "but it must be built on the strong foundation of the class interest of the city workers and the working farmers. The new party must be neither a sect nor a swamp. It must be a rank and file movement controlling its leaders and not a group of politicians manipulating a mass of workers and farmers for their own advantage."

I. G. Scott, labor alderman; R. S. Wiggin, assistant County Attorney, member of the City and County Employe's Union. Dan Stevens, Secretary of the Trades and Labor Assembly, and many others, spoke emphatically on the question: "If we wait for the so-called progressives who still remain in the capitalist parties, we will wait forever," said R. S. Wiggin. The people we have to pin our faith in are those who have already taken a stand for a class party. There are enough of us now to make a real powerful national Farmer-Labor Party. We do not need to wait for anybody."

"We have only one question to answer," said Dan Stevens. "That question is, what kind of a party do we want? If we want a genuine class party representing the class interests of the workers and farmers we must support the rank and file convention on May 30th and protect it from the machinations of middle class politicians."

St. Paul Stands Pat.

Similar sentiments were expressed by leaders of the St. Paul movement. C. N. Hathaway, business agent of

DENVER F. L. P. MEET BOOST FOR MAY 30

Opposed to Any Delay or Any Exclusions

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DENVER, Col.—The farmer-labor conference of western and southwestern states closed an enthusiastic two days' session here today. It adopted unanimously a resolution endorsing the St. Paul conference, on May 30, endorsed the plan for a united front of all workers' and farmers' organizations, and sent the following telegram to Senators Johnson and Shipstead, and to William Mahoney, refusing assent to the proposed postponement of the May 30th conference:

"Conference Farmer-Labor representatives western and southwestern states in session Denver today unalterably opposed to any change in date Farmer-Labor party convention called May 30th, Twin Cities shall proceed under call as issued.

"Signed: Morten, Chairman.
"McArthur, Secretary."

The following is the text of the resolution endorsing the St. Paul conference:

"Regional conference western and southwestern states, Farmer-Labor party of United States, sends greetings to honest labor organizations and progressive groups in states not represented and expresses hope and belief that in present muddled economic and corrupt political conditions of country there may be no obstacles to complete unification of progressive farmer-labor efforts now in progress.

"We favor a United Front of all progressive, political and industrial groups entitled to meet in Twin Cities, May 30, for the purpose of organizing a permanent continentwide party of useful people in behalf of platform and candidates favoring fundamental economic and political changes necessary to restore peace and prosperity to distressed people of the United States.

"We endorse action of conference which called convention for May 30th and urge all progressive groups to take part in its deliberations.

"The Farmer-Labor parties which will meet in Twin Cities as the result of the call issued for May 30th convention constitute a constructive political force standing for certain well-defined public policies not embodied in platforms of old political parties. We feel that in taking the initiative in this movement for a unified national Farmer-Labor party, our representatives deserve commendation and hearty support."

Rape Exclusion Policy

Passing upon a suggestion made from the floor that the certain radical groups be excluded, the conference unanimously went on record against any such action by adopting the following resolution:

"A demand having been made in this conference for the exclusion of certain groups from participation in May 30th convention, we feel that the action of the St. Paul conference in calling a convention including all groups subscribing to platform without discrimination is final and that we have no jurisdiction to bar any groups or suggest any exclusion."

Work Daily for "The Daily!"

LEWIS GANG COULDN'T OUST HOWAT'S MAN

By JOHN FITZGERALD.
(Staff Correspondent of The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Surprise that quickly turned to anger was shown in the United Mine Workers' Convention when what was obviously an overwhelming vote against the report of the credentials committee unseating John McGraw, representing three locals of District 14, Kansas was announced as sustaining the committee.

The battle raged for two hours over the question whether McGraw, who fought the Industrial Court law, was guilty of having worked a mine during the strike called by the international. There was no evidence submitted to prove this contention or anything else reflecting on his character except that he had leased a small mine and his brother-in-law had pumped water out of it for six days.

Reverse of Nova Scotia.

Inasmuch as one of the charges made by Lewis against the Nova Scotia miners was that they had allowed the property of the operators to deteriorate by refusing to man the pumps it would seem that McGraw's brother-in-law did not violate any laws of the United Mine Workers.

No charges were preferred in his local union against McGraw. He is a delegate to the Central Labor Union in Pittsburgh, Kansas.

McGraw defended himself against the charge and said that the real opposition against him was aroused because of his fight "against Governor Allen's slave law." It was quite evident that the majority of the delegates were of the same opinion. When the vote was taken on the motion of the committee it appeared to be defeated overwhelmingly but was announced by the machine tellers as 950 for the report and 750 against.

Storm of Protest.

In a second the great mass of miners was on its feet shouting for a roll-call. When the chairman gavelled the delegates to order the count was again disappointing. The necessary 20 per was not counted.

The majority of the delegates were by no means satisfied and not since the steam-rollering of the Nova Scotia appeal by Philip Murray has there

MANY STILL PASSING THE LENIN TOMB

Flowers and Wreaths Are Heaped Over Grave

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Jan. 28.—In a marble tomb by the Kremlin wall, the body of Nikolai Lenin lay enshrined today, while tens of thousands, unable to get near the ceremonies of burial Sunday, passed in endless procession.

Flowers and more than six hundred wreaths were heaped high about the mausoleum where workmen toiled on scaffolding in the high construction shed, completing the tomb.

At 4 p. m. Sunday while bells tolled, guns roared and bands blared the Internationale, Lenin's body was taken to the appointed place. Powerful radio broadcasting stations caught the mighty dirge and sent the sounds, symbolic of the nation's sorrow at its chieftain's passing to every wireless station in the land.

Brave Bitter Cold

The weather was frightfully cold. Thousands were frost bitten, including the chief of police.

As Lenin's body was placed in the vault, scores fell, many unconscious. They would have frozen to death if first aid men had not rushed to the rescue.

Leon Trotsky, whose arrival by plane had been expected, did not appear, owing to illness.

Million in Funeral Ceremony

Nearly a million Russians are estimated to have taken part in the four-day procession past the body of Nicolai Lenin as it lay in state on the red dais in the House of Unions.

Five Die in New York Cold Wave; No Rich Found Among Victims

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—New York shivered with the coldest weather it has known in years today as the weather bureau promised milder temperatures and an opportunity to thaw out frozen pipes.

Death of five persons was attributed directly to the near zero weather.

In Perth Amboy, N. J., Stephen Senior, aged recluse, was found frozen to death in his shack. He was clad in rags.

Serfdom to be Revived by Congress as Status of Foreign-Born Workers

(This is the fourth of a series of articles which The Daily Worker is publishing on the laws which are now pending before Congress, directed against foreign-born workers who wish to come to this country and those who are in this country.)

By C. E. RUTHENBERG.

Probably the most far-reaching bill directed against foreign-born workers coming to this country and those already in this country has been introduced by Representative Lineberger of California. His bill is House Bill No. 4089.

It proposed that the foreign-born workers coming to this country in the future and those already here shall be attached to certain industries as the serfs were attached to the land in feudal times.

During the period of feudalism each serf had his little tract of land assigned to him on the estate of some feudal lord. He was unable to leave this land; he lived and died there and the children who came after him were attached to that same tract of land and compelled to labor there for the benefit of the feudal lord.

The Lineberger bill provides that each immigrant coming to the United States and all foreign-born workers already here shall "be notified as to what location in the jurisdiction of the United States they will be permitted to go to, to remain, until the provisions of this act and other regulations as to aliens and citizenship are complied with." Further along, this law provides that "each immigrant shall remain in a respective district until such a time as he shall become a citizen or is deported, unless he can satisfy the Department of

Probe Boomerang Hits Employers' Combine

By FREDERICK KUH
(Staff Correspondent of The Federated Press)

NEW YORK. The latest anti-labor offensive of New York employers has collapsed. The investigation bomb which was to rip the lid from the state labor department, has proved a squib. Strutting on the stage last week with grave charges of waste and political favoritism against the labor department, the Associated Industries have withdrawn publically and officially their accusations, half-mumbled an apology and retreated hastily in the hope of avoiding an inquiry into their own intrigues.

As anticipated by The Federated Press, the tables were completely turned against the manufacturers who fear lest their rout at the hands of the department should wind up with an exposure of the Albany lobby, kept by the forces of reaction in New York. The State Federation of Labor is pressing for a probe of those who have had received his fraudulent facts.

The thirty business men, summoned to explain their charges, passed the buck to Daly and maintained an embarrassed silence throughout the proceedings. Their counsel, Sutherland, asked that the complaints of improper administration of the state fund and maladministration of the workmen's compensation law be stricken from the records.

The employers, loath to speak, confessed their charges to be unfounded. Several even forgot themselves so far as to praise the work of State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag, against whom their attack had been directed.

When the employers' attorney, Sutherland, asked permission to inspect labor department records, Governor Smith informed him that he should have investigated before preferring charges against the department. "You've pulled a boner," Sutherland was told. "Why not admit it?"

During the continued hearing, the governor will inquire into the employers opposition to a bill which would reduce non-compensated pay in case of workers' illness or injury from 14 to 7 days.

A group of legislators is insisting that a committee be appointed to shed light upon the Associated Industries' lobby and its activities in hampering reform and labor legislation.

Even the conservative New York Times recognizes the collapse and humiliation of the employers' campaign.

Convict Alabama Militiaman for Murder of Miner

HAMILTON, Ala.—Robert L. Lancaster, sergeant in the Alabama National Guard, was today convicted of second degree murder in the lynching of William Baird, union miner. It carried a penalty of eighteen years imprisonment.

Conviction of Lancaster means that seven other guardsmen, accused of complicity in the lynching, will now go to trial on the same charge.

Baird, a union miner, was taken from jail at Jasper, Ala., on Jan. 18, 1921, by masked men and shot to death. He had been arrested for killing a gunman who had previously killed Baird's father-in-law, Jesse Northcutt.

Miners' Delegates Hear 'Bill' Foster Reply to John Lewis

(By The Federated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—William Z. Foster, Secretary of the Trade Union Educational League and member of the executive committee of the Workers Party, in a speech delivered here to an audience of miners' delegates and a small army of uniformed policemen replied to the attacks made on him and the progressive wing of the trade union movement in America by John L. Lewis and the reactionary officialdom of the United Mine Workers of America.

Several capitalist reporters were present and one of them remarked that Foster's clear logical speech, that appealed to the intelligence and not to the emotions of his hearers, was in striking contrast to the hokum peddled by John L. Lewis and William Green at the miners' convention. Foster discussed the labor party issue, amalgamation and the presence of the police, seemed to lend vigor to his delivery.

A coal digger sitting near the writer remarked to another miner, "They say Foster is out to disrupt the unions. Do you think if he was they would have the police watching for him to put him in jail? No, they would give him a fat salary." His comrade agreed. A reporter remarked to another, "He certainly knows what he is talking about."

At the conclusion of his speech Foster paid a tribute to Nikolai Lenin, the great leader of the Russian revolution, and the audience unanimously passed a resolution regretting his death.

"The miners," said Foster, "were the leaders of the American labor movement but some of the actions of this convention would leave a blot on the banner of the miners' union. While the British workers had progressed far enough to assume the reins of government, the workers here in America had no representation in congress except a few union card men elected on the democratic or republican tickets, who were oftentimes more reactionary than the out and out capitalist representatives.

"While John L. Lewis and his cohorts were waving the red flag in Tomlinson Hall and chanting the hymn of hate against Moscow and the Russian workers the very first act of the Labor government in England was to recognize the Soviet government and send an ambassador to Moscow.

"Yet the miners' convention, under the influence of John L. Lewis, passed a caricature of the real thing and then, after a cabbage of greetings to the British Labor Party for doing something they themselves were opposed to.

"Amalgamation," declared Foster, "means industrial unionism, and the the United Mine Workers of America owes its present prominent position principally to the fact that it is industrially organized, the convention passed a resolution which upholds the Gompers' dogma of craft unionism.

"The progressive workers in the other unions will not thank the miners for this," said Foster.

Many of the delegates who saw Foster for the first time were surprised to see a mannerly man greet with a smiling face who immensely enjoyed some of the witty remarks that fell from his lips every once and a while.

"Hell, he looks all right to me," declared one stalwart coal digger, "and by J— he has the real dope."

"Why did not John L. Lewis organize the unorganized territory instead of pounding some of organizers into Illinois and other sections that were 100 per cent organized?" asked Foster. Then he answered the question. "Because he was fighting Frank Farrington. He wanted to burst Farrington's machine. Now they have made up after both called each other thieves, Lewis also sent his payroll gang into Brophy's district while the Tennessee, Colorado, and other coal regions are left outside the union."

The resolution that was passed by the convention on the recognition of Soviet Russia was a disgrace. It could be passed in the United States Senate and even Charles Evans Hughes would vote for it. While Borah and other mild progressives are standing for unconditional recognition of the Soviet Republic what a disgrace to see the United Mine Workers of America, the leading battalion of the American army of laborers, worrying over the payment of Wall Street's debts, the money that was lent by Morgan to the czar of Russia to crush the Russian people."

The speaker explained the attitude of the Trade Union Educational League on dual unionism. "When the miners threatened to split over their treatment in the Somerset coke region, it was the progressive wing of the union and Tom Myers, Bill Guller, Joe Manley and others that prevented the secession. And when Rinaldo Capellini gets up on that convention floor and attacks Joe Manley by intimation he attacked a man whose shoes he contemptible renegade and traitor is unworthy to clean." The mention of Capellini's name was greeted with boos.

Foster paid a tribute to Alexander Howat. He gave Howat credit for killing the Kansas Industrial Relations Court and for doing more for the miners and all American labor when he did that than any other labor leader in this generation. Foster, the speaker concluded, and fight for progressive measures and clean out the reactionaries.

Strikers Reject Compromise Plan of Barney Myers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GREENSBURGH, Pa. Barney Myers, chairman of the strike committee for Kelly and Jones company plant, was unable to persuade the rank and file to accept his settlement plan at a meeting in Odd Fellows' Hall, and the 1,400 men who have been on strike for eight weeks against a 10 per cent cut will continue to stay out.

The Myers' plan was for the appointment of a new committee of 12 —which would be empowered to make an authoritative settlement. It was rejected because the strikers feared a cut would be accepted. The new committee, which has taken an uncompromising stand, will be retained.

This is the second strike the Kelly and Jones workers have conducted during the last year. The men are not organized in any union.

Greensburgh is the capital of the notorious scab country of Westmoreland, the only bituminous mining community in Pennsylvania which pays a fifty cent rate and more average of production during the 1922 strike.

Borah Gets Good Laugh From Hughes; Cites Wholesale Lies

WASHINGTON—Senator Borah was compelled to laughter, when Secretary Hughes, in his annual report, so easily by the anti-Russian propagandists, took their "red plate" and their garbled version of an official publication of months ago in Moscow. He wonders at the lack of faith in Charles Evans Hughes in his reckless manner in our relations with the people of Russia.

"Remarking that he has exhausted the American press for the past week and found at Section 2, 60 lines of matter, and that the points cited, relating to Russian affairs, which afterward were acknowledged to be false, he said that an unprecedented amount of "wholesale lying" about Russia had recently been going on.

Wants Facts

He declared that newspaper correspondents in Moscow had shown by their every testimony that the United States cannot in any sense be considered as speaking for or directing the policy of the Russian government. Moreover, it was quite clear that Lenin had discouraged the notion that international revolution was now furnish facts, and if the senate foreign relations committee fails to afford an adequate investigation, he will insist that his committee on education and labor take us the issue.

Rosta Issues Statement

NEW YORK — The Russian Telegraph Agency, New York office, responding to queries regarding the controversy as to the connection between the Russian government and the Third International—injected by Secretary of State Hughes into the question of Russian recognition—elicited the statement to the Italian government made Feb. 27 last by Verovsky, late Russian trade representative in Italy, saying that the two were "not united by any bond or any engagement," and reading as follows:

Communist Party Independent

"With regard to the Communist International, which is a propaganda association having its central offices in Moscow, it constitutes an organization completely independent of the Russian government, which is not united to it by any bond or any engagement. In its activities, and those for which it is responsible, it is limited by the common law of the land. Its action is limited to its public declarations expresses sole'y its own point of view; the soviet government does in no way responsible for the declarations and the actions of this organization, just as no other government is responsible for the actions of political parties working on its territory in conformity with its laws."

The N. Y. Times lost no time in getting a "translation" of the alleged offending Stekief acticle which is said to have appeared in the Nov. 7, 1923, issue of Izvestia, on the occasion of the opening of the fourth congress of the International and celebration of the fifth anniversary of the Russian republic, in which Stekief is reported to have referred to the "bond" between the two.

No Proof, Says World

In connection with the U. S. state department's statement issued with a translation of the same article, The World, however, calls upon Hughes to return to his original charge of al'eged revolutionary "instructions" to the Workers Party of America, and the real issue involved. It says that what Hughes is called upon to prove is whether the Russian government is now engaged or has within any reasonable time been engaged in promoting revolution in the United States." That is not what the Zinoviev document, issued the other day by the state department, was supposed to prove," says The World editorially. "The document is unconvincing because it is not yet certain that it is genuine. . . . The combined assurances of Mr. Hughes, Mr. Daugherty, and Mr. William J. Burns do not, without further corroboration, prove the genuineness or the significance of the Zinoviev instructions to the Workers Party of America. That proof has still to be furnished the American people."

BRITISH-U. S. MACHINISTS IN CARD DISPUTE

Try to Get Immigrants Into American Unions

(By The Federated Press)

LONDON—British machinists, finding that America cannot be compelled by their organization to transfer to join the International Association of Machinists. If they do not sign up with the American union voluntarily there is no way of forcing them to do so, altho efforts are frequently made by their old organization to put them in touch with the American officials.

This is the answer to General Secretary J. T. Cooper, Liverpool, Amalgamated Engineering union, to the charge made by an American union official and published recently in The Federated Press that the British union is not co-operating with the American union in getting its members to transfer and to stay organized when they cross the Atlantic.

The American official was E. J. Lever, business representative, district No. 1, International Association of Machinists, with offices at Philadelphia. Lever had pointed out that by agreement the British organization had shut down its branches in the United States and Canada while the American union was permitting all British members entering or resident in America to transfer their membership without charge. Lever said the Britishers neglected to transfer and were depressing wages in America by working in unorganized shops at wages far below the union scale.

Lever Repeats Charge.

PHILADELPHIA.—Repeating his charges in stronger terms, J. Lever, local business representative, International Association of Machinists, in a statement of the British Amalgamated Engineering union as an evasion and denial of facts

"Our definite charge against the A. E. U.," Lever says, "is that they do not definitely instruct their immigrant members where and how to find the office of the nearest metal trades unions on their arrival in the United States. The men should have that information but they are not given it when they leave England. It is apparently common practice among branch secretaries of the A. E. U. to brush aside requests from members for this necessary information with the remark that 'there isn't much to join in America in the way of metal trades unions.' No wonder the A. E. U. members refuse to transfer here upon their arrival.

"The Philadelphia office has corresponded for over a year with the British headquarters on this point without results. The British official seem to persist in their card transferring policy for the sake of the small pension assessments that flow into their treasury from their members in America who do not transfer."

UNITED STATES AND OTHER POWERS HALT CHINA-RUSSIAN PACT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKIN—The United States and other great powers, unofficially but no less effectively, are blocking the recognition of Russia by China. Formal protests have not been made but the Chinese regime has been given to understand that it will find itself in more trouble than it is at present if de facto recognition is extended to the Soviet government, according to statements made by both Chinese and Russian spokesmen.

This attitude of the United States and other powers is an open secret here and one foreign minister quite frankly stated that he had made this clear to the Chinese government.

Opposition to the recognition of the Soviet government by China is based on two facts. The first is that as soon as recognition is had the Soviet government will take over and operate the Chinese Eastern Railway. The great powers feel that this would endanger their claims against and interest in the railway and would seriously damage their prestige in China.

The second reason is a matter of class and diplomatic jealousy. Other powers merely maintain foreign ministers at Pekin, but it is known that if Russia is recognized she will send an ambassador who would then be the ranking member of the foreign diplomatic corps—the real governing body in China so far as important matters are concerned.

America is the country held most to blame by the Russians for the delay in recognition.

Soviet spokesmen claim that in the speech made by Jacob Schurman, American minister to China, on the Chinese railway situation at Harbin last September he interfered in an unwarranted manner with Russian and Chinese affairs. The speech was made with the full knowledge and approval of the United States government.

FORT DODGE LABOR LISTS NON-UNION PLASTER PRODUCT

By The Federated Press

FORT DODGE, Ia.—The Trades & Labor assembly has sent the following circular to all central bodies affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and to The Federated Press and DAILY WORKER for publication:

"The U. S. Gypsum Co., the Cardiff Gypsum Co., the Western Gypsum Co., the American Gypsum Co., and the Universal Gypsum Co., manufacture Universal Hair Fibered Plaster, Plymouth Cement Plaster fibered, Plymouth Cement Plaster fibered, Plymouth Wood Fiber Plaster, Plymouth Stucco, Plymouth Molding Plaster, Plymouth Wood-fiber No. 20, Acolite Wood Fiber Plaster, Reground Stucco, Acolite Cement Plaster, Iowana Cement Plaster fibered, Plymouth Cement Plaster Wall Plaster Fibered, and unfair to organized labor.

"All these companies operate gypsum mines and mills in the vicinity of Fort Dodge, Ia., and started an open shop fight against local unions of the Intl. Union of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers July 1, 1921. At this time the Universal Gypsum Co. and other companies refused to meet union men and are running nonunion mills. We ask your co-operation in advertising the fact that these companies are unfair to the Intl. Union of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers and the strike of the Gypsum Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers is indorsed by the Fort Dodge Trades and Labor assembly."

Miner Delegates in Mass Meeting Mourn for Lenin

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The following resolution on the death of Nicolai Lenin, was passed unanimously last night by a mass meeting of delegates to the convention of the United Mine Workers:

WHEREAS; within the past few days the world has been shocked to hear of the death of Nicolai Lenin, Premier of Soviet Russia and one of the greatest political figures in history, and

WHEREAS: Lenin, thru his clear understanding of capitalist society, his profound militancy, and his unswerving loyalty to the toiling masses, has contributed enormously to the foundation of the world's first Government by the workers, and

WHEREAS: in common with progressive workers all over the world, we feel the loss to our cause by the death of this great leader; therefore be it

RESOLVED: that this mass meeting of delegates to the Convention of the United Mine Workers of America express our sorrow by renewing our determination to push onward with the great task of the emancipation of the working class.

The meeting was attended by more than three hundred delegates and was addressed by speakers who told of the achievements of Lenin and the Soviet government of which he was the head.

GAS EXPLOSION KILLS 15 IN TWO-FAMILY COTTAGE

Blast in Pennsylvania Claims Five More

PAWTUCKET, R. I.—A final police check-up today showed 15 persons were killed in a gas explosion which destroyed a two-family cottage here Sunday morning.

The police report said a daughter of Michael Conway was awakened by an odor of gas and called her mother, who lighted a lamp. The explosion followed, wrecking the house.

The body of Conway was found in the cellar. It was not known whether he was killed by the explosion or had gotten up earlier and was overcome while searching for the leak.

Gas Blast Kills Five.

FARRELL, Pa.—Five persons were burned to death and five injured, one probably fatally, when fire caused by gas explosions destroyed four homes here Sunday morning. The blasts rocked houses for several blocks, destroyed windows, and were heard for more than two miles.

BRITISH-RUSSIAN PACT MAY MODIFY COOLIDGE POLICY

President Waits Outcome of Borah Probe

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON—Recognition of Soviet Russia by Premier MacDonald's labor government will have no direct effect on the policy of President Coolidge, a spokesman for the White House declared, but it is believed in capital circles that the administration will be more cautious than before in its pronunciamentoes against the soviets.

Recognition by the British government means that the most powerful nation outside of the United States has shaken hands with the Soviet Government, it was pointed out.

President Coolidge's spokesman says the White House is waiting for the evidence that will be revealed by the coming hearings before the senate committee headed by Senator Borah, before a fuller statement of policy is made.

The Idaho senator is frankly gratified by the action taken in Downing street, in favor of the Moscow administration.

"It is a statesmanlike and courageous thing to do," he declared. "It marks a distinct break with the bitterness, the hatred and the intolerance of war times. It points to a new moral and spiritual regime.

Pointing out that the loss of life since the war has been almost as great as during the war, because of "narrow, bigoted, vindictive policies in international affairs," the senator concluded.

"The premier of England is leading a way from these policies. It is a humane and wise program. And, as all such programs, it is also a good business proposition."

BURNS' AGENCY GETS MARINES AT $7 PER DAY

Navy Dept. Starts Investigation of Practice

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Employment of United States marines by the Burns detective agency in direct violation of naval regulations is being investigated under personal supervision of assistant secretary of the navy Roosevelt.

The investigation followed arrest of ten marines by Maryland police after they had ejected drivers of eight Washington taxi-cabs, at a lonely spot in Maryland and had driven off with the cabs.

Roosevelt assigned Captain John H. Clarke of the marine corps to investigate the marines story that they were hired by the local officers of Burns Detective Agency and that they then obtained two days' leave, hired taxicabs and ordered the drivers to go to Marlboro, Md.

Under Board Direction.

Naval regulations specifically prohibit granting of leave to any enlisted men id engage in any work, for money, which civilians ordinarily perform.

The marines, when captured, said the local Burns office directed them to have the cabs driven into Maryland, so that they could be seized to satisfy writs of attachment which could not be served in the District of Columbia.

"Bill" Burns Innocent As Usual.

D. C. Henderson, head of the local Burns office, today admitted hiring the marines, not only for this purpose, but for other work. Anderson, said he paid the marines $7 a day and expenses.

W. J. Burns, head of the Department of Justice Investigation Bureau, said today he knew nothing of the matter, as he had severed connection with the detective agency which he founded, turning it over to his sons when he entered the government's service.

ESTHONIA IN GRIP OF BIG INDUSTRIAL CRISIS, MARK SINKS

REVAL, Esthonia.—The little republic of Esthonia is in the throes of a severe industrial crisis.

The Esthonian mark is sinking in value. There is a scarcity of ready cash. Many banks are compelled to shut down or curtail activities.

One of the things that has the Esthonian financial life hardest is the fact that the government has issued an order similar to that in Germany, by which banks may only sell foreign exchange at the official rate established by the government. Firms having payments to make to foreign manufacturers are unable to secure the necessary foreign exchange.

A further factor is that certain farmers are sabotaging production. The harvest has been particularly poor and Esthonia must import grain from abroad.

As in other countries many importers here profited by the catastrophe of the German mark before its stabilization and brought large stocks of German supplies. They now find that they are glutted with their wares. Hence many firms are going bankrupt, while home manufactures are being curtailed and the workers thrown upon the streets in large numbers. The big cotton spinning mills of Reval are working only four days a week.

Hand in hand with the depreciation of the Esthonian mark and the curtailment of production goes a alarming rise in the cost of living.

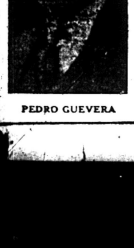
Philippine Labor Leader to Speak From Platform With Ruthenberg



PEDRO GUEVERA

Voices of Philippine and American labor will be raised together Friday evening, February 1, when the Hon. Pedro Guevera, speaks from the same platform at Schoenhofen's Hall, Milwaukee and Ashland Avenues, with C. E. Ruthenberg, Jay Lovestone and Tom O'Flaherty.

"Freedom for the Philippines," will be the subject. Guevera was the founder of the seamen's union in the Philippines and led the first big strike in the islands. He is resident commissioner from the Philippines and delegates to congress.

The Philippine visitor is conducting a vigorous campaign to make congress carry out the promise made 20 years ago that the islands would have national independence. He is particularly interested in refuting the propaganda which General Leonard Wood is sponsoring regarding the ability of the islanders to govern themselves.

BRITISH COLONIAL POLICY HAS NOT BEEN WEAKENED

Threat of Force in Message to Indians

By CYRIL LAMBKIN
(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—Three weeks before he adorned office, Ramsay MacDonald sent a message to India dealing with the attitude of the British Labor party toward the Indian colonial problem.

This message has now been published and one paragraph of it has been loudly approved in Tory circles while among the left wing labor elements it has come in for much criticism. The paragraph in question is as follows:

"I can see no hope in India if it becomes the arena of struggle between constitutionalism and revolution. No party in Great Britain will be cowed by threats of force or by policies designed to bring government to a standstill, and if sections in India are under the delusion that, that is not so, events will very sadly disappoint them."

This is the expression of the traditional British colonial policy and with J. H. Thomas holding the Colonial portfolio the most rabid imperialists now see no cause for alarm because of lack of firmness in the labor party colonial policy.

The message in its entirety reads:

"I watch sometimes with no little anxiety the progress of affairs in India. During all my political life I have anchored myself firmly upon the conviction that if progress is to be well rooted it can only be carried on by what is called political or constitutional ways.

"We have seen in our own generation all sorts of revolutionary movements which seemed to be successful, and which have broken contacts with the past, but in the end, after much physical suffering and the creation of evil tempers and a vicious spirit, they have had to return to pick up contacts that have been broken, and to apply the very principles they had rejected.

"I can see no hope in India if it becomes the arena of a struggle between constitutionalism and revolution. No party in Great Britain will be cowed by threats of force or by policies designed to bring government to a standstill, and if sections in India are under the delusion that this is not so, events will sadly disappoint them.

"I would urge upon all the best friends of India to come nearer to us, rather than to stand apart from us, to get at our reason and our good-will.

"I deplore the evidence of a backward spirit in some sections here, but let no one misread the causes and effects. When appeal is made to revolutionary methods, whether those methods are an active or a passive force, reaction toward the opposite extremes is bound to come, and men and parties of the most sincere good-will are hustled off the stage, while two forms of reaction, that of the right and of the left, kick and tear and sweat against each other until the failure of both has been demonstrated.

"I know that the approach and good-will should be mutual. My appeal is, therefore, not only to the Indians, but to the British authorities as well."

The reference to "policies designed to bring government to a standstill" is interpreted here as a warning to non-resistant followers of Mahatma Gandhi and his policy of non-cooperation. Gandhi is now serving a six-year sentence for leading the non-cooperative movement that seriously hampered the British administration.

Lewis Induces Convention to Approve Ouster of Jailed District No. 26 Officials

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (By Mail).—President Lewis has again succeeded in having the report of the resolutions committee adopted, over the protest of the delegates, condoning the removal of the officials of that district, carried, after several speeches were made for and against the report.

Mrs. Lewis spoke briefly for the report and a half during which he bombarded the Nova Scotia miners with all the gas bombs he could muster. He denounced Jim McLachlan and President Dan Livingston, heads of District 26 for favoring revolution and the overthrow of the capitalist system.

He flourished documents signed by the secretary of the Red Trade Union International, greeting the United Mine Workers of America and regarded this expression of international solidarity as treason to the miners union. When he got thru waving the red flag the majority of the delegates were in a state of frenzy, and the vote against the Nova Scotia miners was a foregone conclusion.

William Green, Secretary-Treasurer, wound up the debate. After he got thru talking and before the delegates could be again "psychologized" by the previous debate was shut off and the vote was taken. Approximately three hundred delegates stood up in behalf of the Nova Scotia miners.

The debate revealed the total lack of class consciousness on the part of the administration leaders. Never was there a word uttered in condemnation of the brutal action of the British Empire Steel Company by the Lewis supporters. They had no protest to make against the use of soldiers, police and armed stool pigeons. No, their wrath was roused against the violation of the sacred contract which was stained with the blood of the steel slaves of the British Empire Steel Company, the same pirate concern that the miners of District 26, were toiling for. The Lewis machine almost wept tears over the dangers to property involved in allowing the water to seep into the mines of this company. Think of it! Millions of dollars worth of wealth belonging to the capitalists might be destroyed! What of the steel slaves, the brothers of the miners who were clubbed and bayoneted? Let them suffer, they were members of another union and solidarity in the eyes of the Lewis machine means solidarity with the capitalists and not with the workers.

While John L. Lewis was prancing back and forth on the stage at Tomlinson Hall and being applauded by the capitalist press for his success in holding the radicals in check, Jim McLachlan was behind the bars in a Canadian prison for defending his class at the expense of his freedom and Alexander Howat was preparing to face a grievance committee of the International for similar conduct in Kansas. The defenders of the money power versus the defenders of human rights and the rights of the working class!

The debate on the report of the resolutions committee was continued from the previous afternoon session. Alexander McIntyre was the first to take the platform and made numerous to support his contention that the deposed officials of District 26, fought relentlessly against accepting a wage reduction.

He was followed by John P White, former International president and now district president who was also active while the miners were paying him his salary. His speech consisted chiefly in a eulogy of himself and a sketch of his life from humble surroundings to his present prosperity of which he boasted. His language was cautious and perfectly "sane." He declared he would be derelict in his duty did he not come to the assistance of John L. Lewis, whose acts were criticised. He denounced Jim McLachlan and his associates, and in the name of unionism continue to support the conservatives of the present administration.

Delegate Joe Morris, president of District 13, and a former radical, in fact was elected in Iowa, because of his radicalism, outdid the old line reactionaries in heaping condemnation on the heads of those who now stand for progress in the labor movement. He went so far as to defend Tom Lewis, now a mine owner, declaring that capitalist flunkey's integrity was assailed when he was president of the union and turning around to John L. Lewis, said, "and John when you took over office the first thing you did was to sell them out." There was some applause tho the statement was made ironically.

Morris challenged the Nova Scotia miners to leave the U. M. of A. saying that they were a liability, rather than an asset. He reiterated that the Nova Scotia miners remained at work in the interests of the United States were on strike tho he knew quite well that there was a law in Canada prohibiting under severe penalties in calling of a strike until an appeal was first made for a Conciliation Board.

Delegate William Deck, reminded the platform and pointed out that despite the use of the red bogey in order to poison the minds of the delegates against the Nova Scotia miners that they were not expelled from the union because of any demand they made for affiliation with the Red International. He urged the delegates not to allow a dictatorship to be set up in the United Mine Workers of America that would allow John L. Lewis or any other individual who happened to be in office at present to get rid of his opponents at will.

Delegate William Deck, reminded the officials of the union that they were only the servants of the miners and not their masters.

Thomas Kennedy of the resolutions committee stressed the illegality of the Nova Scotia strike. That was the red thread running thru the administration attack on District 26. That it was broken by the sacred contract even when it was violated in spirit if not in letter by the second party to the contract, the coal operators.

Delegate Freeman Thompson, read from a speech, an extract, delivered by Frank Farrington, of District 12, on the Kansas situation in which he declared that some years ago, the then president of the International Union, Frank Hayes, ordered them back and was sustained by the International Executive Board. John L. Lewis's attack on Farrington made a motion censuring the president and the executive board for their action and the motion was carried. It was the same John L. Lewis, declared Farrington, who now crushes the Kansas miners for a similar act. Many delegates reply offered the defense that this occurred fifteen years ago. Since then the laws of organization have changed. And so has Mr. Lewis it seems.

The Lewis machine has successfully steamrolled the Nova Scotia storm. The next and chief test will be the Howat case.

Daugherty Dicks Scurry Vainly for Answer to Borah

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash.—Its a hard life being a department of justice dick here in Seattle. The boys in this branch of Mr. Burns' Bureau of Investigation have been assigned to the task of getting evidence that the Soviets are planning a revolution in America;—this to give Secretary Hughes an answer to Senator Borah's command that he present evidence of his charges to the senate foreign relations' subcommittee. But its hard work.

One of the department sleuths was overheard by newspapermen expressing his troubles as follows: that Secretary Hughes didn't have the evidence that the Soviets were planning the overthrow of the American government, so he asked Attorney-General Daugherty to get it, and he didn't have it, he asked the department of justice to get it, and they didn't have it in Washington, so "its up to us fellows here to get it, or get something, anyhow."

Average N. Y. Wage $27.97

Average weekly wage in New York state in December was $27.97, says the industrial commissioner. This represents a gain of 53 cents over the preceding month. The average is $1.58 higher than in December, 1922. The New York City rate is higher than upstate. Factory workers averaged $28.79 in New York City and non-factory workers $33.40. Women averaged only $19.24 in New York City; $4.00 less in the rest of the state.

John Reed Branch Entertainment

The John Reed branch of the Young Workers League is arranging a literary and musical entertainment for Feb. 24th, at 2733 Hirsch Blvd., and asks that other Y. W. L. branches refrain from arranging anything on that night in order to help them make their affair a success.

Many Frozen to Death as Cold Wave Sweeps over Northern Greece

ATHENS—More than 150 persons have been frozen to death as a result of 20 degrees below zero weather which prevailed in northern Greece, according to messages here today.

The dead include a detachment of 100 Albanians, which was buried in snow in a mountain pass when caught in a terrific blizzard.

Many railways are snowed under and hundreds of cattle frozen to death.

CONGRESS WOULD REVIVE SERFDOM AS ALIEN STATUS

Lineberger Bill Now Before Congress

Justice at any time that it is to the advantage of both himself and the country to be allowed to locate or go elsewhere."

These two provisions taken together mean that every foreign-born worker here or who may come here in the future will, for a period of seven years, be under the absolute control of the Department of Justice. These foreign-born workers will be assigned to certain industries and cannot leave those industries without the consent of the Department of Justice. No scheme of industrial slavery could be devised which would more effectively serve the interests of the employing class of this country. No more effective strike-breaking agency could be set up than that which is set up under the Lineberger Bill.

The bill goes even further in its provision directed against all foreign-born workers. Those who have and those coming to this country in the future must immediately declare their intention to become citizens. They must take out their first citizenship papers within three years or they will be deported. They must satisfy a committee of the Department of Justice that they can speak English. If at the end of a seven-year period they have not completed their naturalization they are to be deported.

The Lineberger law also provides the machinery to enable the Department of Justice to keep track of all the foreign-born workers in this country. In writing this provision Representative Lineberger evidently intended to give the foreign-born workers a mething to be thankful for. For, in a cynical way, he has provided that during Thanksgiving week of each year the foreign-born workers must report to the Department of Justice and register.

Those who know of the attitude of the Department of Justice toward foreign-born workers as shown in the 1919-20 raids in which thousands upon thousands of foreign born workers were herded into prison, starved and mistreated by the agents of the Department of Justice, will realize what it means to have foreign-born workers to be made the wards of the Department of Justice for the period of time until they become citizens of the United States.

One exception is made in the Lineberger law to the rule that foreign-born workers who do not become citizens within seven years shall be deported. Representative Lineberger provides that a foreign-born worker who is over 65 years of age may remain in this country even if he does not learn English well and become a citizen, with the proviso, however, that he may remain only "so long as his actions are acceptable to the Department of Justice."

The section of the law which extends the new rules to apply to immigrants to all foreign countries now already in this country, reads as follows: "All aliens in the jurisdiction of the United States at the time this act becomes effective shall comply with the provisions of this act and all other laws and regulations governing aliens and prescribing methods for becoming a citizen of the United States, and shall become subject in every way to the penalties and provisions hereto and of all other laws upon the subject."

Threatens Whole Labor Movement.

The Lineberger law, if it is passed by Congress, will sound the death-knell of the whole organized labor movement in this country. The employing class of the United States can create an army of industrial serfs attached to certain industries, who must annually report to the Department of Justice, who cannot move from place to place but are dependent for their livelihood upon the industries to which they are assigned, wages can be forced down to the starvation point, hours of labor can be increased, organization can be prohibited and the employers rule supreme over the lives of not only the foreign-born workers but of the native born alike. With such an army of serfs it would only require an order from the Department of Justice to move them from one industry to another in which there is a strike of native born workers and thus break that strike.

It would seem almost inconceivable that such a law could be seriously proposed to the Congress of the United States, but that it is seriously meant is shown by the score of other laws of a similar character, all intending to enslave the foreign-born workers and with them the native-born.

Congress will undoubtedly pass some of these laws unless there is a mighty protest from the labor movement of this country. The substitution of native and foreign-born workers to fight against these slave laws is one of the most important tasks of the hour.

The Workers Party of America has the way in its call for the organization of Councils for the Protection of Foreign-Born Workers. Every labor organization, every organization of foreign-born workers, every political organization of labor should join in this united front movement and thru mass meetings, petitions and demonstrations send the message to Washington that the workers of this country, native and foreign-born, are united against the passage of these slave laws.

Board of Education Whitewashing Itself in Fake Probe While Kids Face Death In Firetrap Buildings

Informal reports of the first day's investigation of the firetrap school buildings which THE DAILY WORKER exposes forced the city to begin show that an effort is being made to whitewash the board of education which has been so criminally careless of the lives of the children in the factory district.

The informal report by Mrs. Barnes, business manager of the board of education, which is investigating itself in co-operation with the fire department and the building committee.

"Not Alarming," Says Burns.

"Conditions are not alarming," insists Mr. Burns, parroting his chief Charles M. Moderwell, president of the board, who said the day before the investigation that "there is no cause for alarm."

Mr. Burns said that four schools had been visited in the first half day, but he would not publish any facts about the survey.

If it were found advisable, Mr. Burns finally yielded, the investigation will be made public, later. He said he had not yet given a written report to the city of the conditions in the schools visited but that conditions were not alarming.

When asked whether inspecting four schools in half a day was "quick work" Mr. Burns said he did not think so as the schools were close together.

No Fire Escapes.

While this whitewashing was going on The DAILY WORKER staff found NO FIRE ESCAPES, as told below.

Such neglect of common safety precautions, imperiling the lives of the children unfortunate enough to live in the poorer districts where the schools are worst, will not go unchallenged by The DAILY WORKER.

The sons and daughters of the workers will not be in daily peril of death because of the callous policy of an indifferent school board.

Fire Escapes Are Aroused

Many trade unionists who have read the articles in the DAILY WORKER on fire trap public schools have said that they will bring the question to the attention of their local unions and ask them to pass resolutions in favor of a school building program that will assure "every child a seat in a safe school."

Nick Dombroff, member of Lodge 478 of the I. A. of M., and A. Overgaard of Lodge 396 of the I. A. of M., said that at the next meeting of their unions they would call the attention of the membership to the present situation in the schools and ask them to pass resolutions on the subject.

Lovett Fort-Whiteman, of the staff of the Young Defenders, said that he was glad to see the DAILY WORKER call the attention of the people to the school situation. "The crowded conditions of the city for the most part we have comparatively modern schools because the districts in which the negroes and Chinese live are new districts. We have, however, a peculiar situation and need. In the schools in the centers where most of the teachers are white, and the parents of the colored pupils do not want to see the children of colored parents and thus the gradual introduction in Crow schools.

Whole Problem Indifferent

The white teachers, are, however, for the most part indifferent in the performance of their duty. The discrimination against colored schools is poor as a result. Recently, on the South side there have been fights between the teachers and the pupils in two schools. In the Wendell Phillips school only last week a group of pupils fought with and beat up the principal of the school.

Rose Karsner, director of the Friends of Soviet Russia, and of Workers Germany, said: "From the facts revealed by the DAILY WORKER it seems that Chicago could learn something from "darkest Russia." There the schools are housed in the finest buildings available."

Wages Mean Jails

Harrison George, who has been in a dozen or more jails and prisons of the country, declared: "The school district of Chicago seem to be in much the same situation as the people who are in prison. Both are housed in rotten buildings, and the children are just as helpless to do anything about it as are the prisoners."

"By fighting for better schools for the kids of Chicago the DAILY WORKER has already justified its existence," Bob Minor, cartoonist and editor of the Liberator, said.

"That the workers' children will get the worst of everything from a school board that does not have a single worker on it is to be expected. Since the workers of Chicago are the vast majority of the people of Chicago, and their children must go to the public schools, the workers should be members of the school board, and the rest should be educators.

"If you will notice the capitalist papers of Chicago, you will see they are devoting most of their attention on the question of unsafe buildings in fighting to the theaters and other privately owned buildings. It is plain that they don't want school taxes raised to pay for new buildings," he added.

Visit Ogden School

No fire escapes were found in the Ogden school at Chestnut and State streets, visited in the course of the DAILY WORKER'S survey, yesterday. This is not in a particularly working class district. Most of the pupils who attend the school are the children of workers. The building was erected in 1884 and, instead of being improved, has steadily deteriorated since then.

The principal, F. C. Donecker, thinks that, since they are following the instructions of the fire department in fire drills, everything is all right in his school. There is a department

Cable Sympathy.

"Our sympathy to the Soviet Union over the loss of the world's greatest labor leader. Close up your ranks. We are with you," cabled a mass meeting of Chicago workers to the president of Russia, Kalenin, at Moscow.

This same meeting also cabled to the Communist International as follows:

"We grieve with the workers the world over grieve with the international labor. Lenin is dead, but his ideals will live with us." The cables were signed by Chicago Workers' Memorial meeting. M. Stolar, chairman.

A musical program was given by Alexander Kaminsky, formerly of the Petrograd Imperial academy, and actors of the Workers and Peasants' theater of Chicago. The meeting was called by the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia.

Amalgamated Hits at High Rents Demanded of the Working Class

"Landlords demand such high rents in working class districts that there is little money left to buy anything else," says Frank Rosenblum, organization department, Amalgamated Clothing Workers. "The workers are unable to spend anything on clothing. This is particularly true of workers on part time. Their rents do not go down with slack work and they have to economize on clothing.

"Our unemployment statistics in the garment trades bear this out. There is small demand for the certain grades of clothing that our union suffers from unemployment as a result. In the cheap grades there would be a busy season. The high grade clothing is holding up well, showing that the prosperous middle and upper classes are not affected. But the lower grades of suits and overcoats of which huge quantities are made, with the rise in rents are in little demand. The workers have no money to buy them after they have settled with their landlords."

Birth Control Wins, In Court.

Birth control advocates have won a second victory in the Chicago courts. The case arose over the refusal of the city health commissioner to permit birth control organizations, headed by Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, to open a proposed parents' clinic. Judge Harry M. Fisher has now overruled the motion of Assistant Corporation Counsel Frank M. Paden to set aside his previous judgment, which was in favor of Mrs. Carpenter's petition for a writ of mandamus compelling Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen to issue a license for the clinic.

Attorney Paden had previously appealed to the Appellate court, and later moved at the request of Archbishop George Mundelein to reopen the case to present further evidence.

Teachers' Union Aids Germans.

NEW YORK.—The executive board of the Teachers' union decided to cooperate in the work of relief for the starving German workers on these three conditions: 1. That relief go to the starving German people. 2. That this relief be given without any political discrimination. 3. That it be administered thru the Teachers' Union of Germany. It was also decided to appoint a committee to take charge of the collection of funds for this purpose.

Special Lenin Features i Wednesday's Daily Worke

In Wednesday's issue of THE DAILY WORKER will give over a large part of our space to special and interesting features bearing upon the life and work of Nicolai Lenin. This will, in fact, be a LENIN MEMORIAL EDITION, that all workers will wish to keep as a memento of the passing of the world's great leader of an oppressed class rising to victory. There will be a special article by Karl Radek and Leon Trotsky, as well as contributions by American Communists.

All comrades in charge of the Lenin Memorial Meetings, or others who wish to order special bundles of the Lenin Memorial Issue of THE DAILY WORKER, should mail or telegraph their orders at once. Orders arriving later than Tuesday night, Jan. 29, cannot be filled.

WORKERS PARTY FORMS MID-WEST JEWISH BUREAU

Plans Active Fight for Foreign-Born

The middle-west branches of the Joint Federation of the Workers Party held a two day conference in Chicago which finished its work Sunday night. The conference organized a Middle-West organization bureau of the Jewish Federation which will have headquarters in Chicago, and laid plans for an intensive organization campaign and the strengthening of the branches of the federation.

The Middle-West Bureau of the federation will be in charge of the city central committee of Chicago and a representative of each of the incidental states acting as an executive committee. The executive committee was authorized to employ a permanent organizer who will tour the middle west and organize new branches of the federation and help branches already organized to carry on their work. A special organization fund to be made up by the branches of the federation will finance the work. The bureau was instructed to call another conference of the branches of the federation in the middle west within a year of the organization of the bureau.

Wire Sorrow For Lenin

The conference opened with the passing of a resolution of sorrow at the death of Lenin and the sending of a telegram to Moscow expressing the condolences of the Jewish workers of America to their Russian brothers in their loss of a great leader.

The national executive committee of the federation made a report of the work of the federation for the year and called on the conference to take action on several important questions facing the federation. These questions include the treatment of the foreign-born workers, and immigration, the recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States, the organization of a Labor Party and strengthening of the branches of the federation.

A. Leonin, national organizer of the federation, reported on his work for the past year and David Rubin, manager of the Chicago office of the federation, reported on the work of his office.

To Organize Jewish Youth

M. Levin of the Jewish Young Workers League called on the conference to urge the branches to help organize the Jewish youth of America.

Resolutions were passed against restrictive immigration and registration of foreign born workers and the conference outlined a plan to carry out the policy of the conference for defense of the foreign-born workers.

Resolutions pledging the support of the federation to the Friends of Soviet Russia and Workers (Communist) Party for funds for German relief were passed. The resolution also called on the Jewish Workers Organization to get behind the Ruhr and W. G. drive.

The following resolution greeting the DAILY WORKER was passed:

"We greet the appearance of the Communist daily in the English language with great joy and promise of full support and co-operation and insist that the DAILY WORKER shall be the first of many Communist papers in English in this country."

ought to await the report of the committee to go into the scandal which has shaken official and political Washington as they have not been shaken for a generation.

Senator Walsh, Montana, who has taken the leading role in investigating Teapot Dome said in a statement that Mr. Coolidge's sudden announcement that he had decided to appoint special counsel to prosecute civilly and criminally, the oil men involved was made after a confidential decision of the senate public lands committee had been reported to the White House.

Coolidge Sticks on Committee

Walsh intimated that some members of the committee had hurried to Mr. Coolidge and advised him to "beat the committee and the senate to it" with the idea of staving off senate action today on the Walsh-Caraway cancellation resolution.

Walsh, however, intends to go on today with his effort to get the cancellation resolution adopted. If it is blocked, he pointed out, everybody will know the reason.

Mr. Coolidge may today appoint the bi-partisan legal commission he announced would investigate and prosecute either civil or criminal charges in connection with the naval reserve leases.

John W. Davis, former ambassador to Great Britain, Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of war, and Samuel Untermyer are mentioned as among likely selections.

Oil Also Sticks to Christian Who May Not Get Job

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Members of the 17 members of the Senate committee on interstate commerce have agreed to hold up, indefinitely, any action on the nomination of George R. Christian, Jr., former private secretary to President Harding, as a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

Their reason for this refusal to accept Christian is that he is reactionary, and was a member of the Fall-Forbes-Daugherty-McLean group that surrounded Mr. Harding. Moreover, he is not considered to be equipped to perform the duties of the office. The Commission now has two liberal and two reactionary members; he would throw the balance against the public interest.

While refusing to consider Christian, members of the committee are urging Mr. Coolidge to name either Charles Lyman, of Wisconsin, former secretary of the National Board of Farm Organizations, or W. T. Chantland, of Iowa, a former attorney for the Commission, to the place.

WORKERS AND FARMERS IN SOLID OPPOSITION TO MAY 30TH DELAY

the Machinists District Council and secretary of the Working People's Non-Partisan Political League, declared the proposed postponement to be a menace to the entire farmer-labor class movement. "It would be the greatest folly," he said, "for the rank and file class movement to gamble its whole future on the prospective future action of political adventurers in the ranks of the capitalist parties. This is precisely what the postponement means. William Mahoney has made a serious mistake in allowing politicians at Washington to induce him to even consider such an idea. I am sure that he will withdraw the proposition when he sees how strongly the rank and file feel on the question."

J. Emme, delegate of the St. Paul Labor Assembly to the A. F. of L. Convention, said: "I am flatly against any suggestion of postponement. We want a class party. Let us go ahead on May 30th and organize for it. If anyone does not come with us it will only be because they do not stand for the things we stand for. We will hurt us to go along without such people."

Statement by Manley.

Joseph Manley, secretary of the Federated Farmer-Labor Party with headquarters at 805 Pioneer Press street, in a statement to the DAILY WORKER on the action of the Denver Farmer-Labor conference, said:

"The clear-cut statement of the Denver conference in opposition to any postponement of the May 30th convention and declares action against the exclusion of the Federated Farmer-Labor party and other more radical elements is, of course, very gratifying to us. More than that I think that our organization can truthfully say that we are in a large measure responsible for the rapid crystalization of a bona-fide movement of workers and farmers for a class political party.

"That is what we stand for and work for and our members in South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Minnesota, Illinois and other states can, I think be proud of the successful efforts made by them to halt any attempt at postponement of the May 30th conference, engineered by politicians who wanted to wait to see what the democratic and republican parties would do. We know that they will do—give just enough consideration to the problems of the workers and farmers to attract the support of uninformed and discouraged toilers who still believe in spite of the proof to the contrary that their exploiters' parties are going to lift the burden of low wages and farm mortgages from their shoulders.

"The Federated Farmer-Labor Party believes that the action of the Denver conference constitutes an emphatic repudiation of middle-class leadership and indicates that the workers and farmers political movement is ready and able to stand on its own feet."

Train Man Is Killed.

DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 28.—A train man was killed and several persons were injured when a passenger train and freight train on the International Great Northern railway collided near Overton, Texas, today, according to dispatches here. THOUSANDS SHOUT FOR RED REPUBLIC IN CHICAGO HALL

The drive for the recognition of Soviet Russia and the relief of the starving workers of Germany is being pushed with more vigor than ever in Chicago. That is the result of a meeting held Sunday night at Ashland Auditorium by the Friends of Soviet Russia and Workers Germany.

More than three thousand workers crowded the hall to voice their demand that the United States recognize the Russian soviet government. Speeches by Robert Morse Lovett, Max Bedacht and Max Sillinsky were cheered and the enthusiasm at times delight by the singing of Russian folk songs by I. Kariash and moving pictures of Russia and Germany.

Robert Morse Lovett, who is one of the editors of the New Republic, made the main speech of the evening. "The investigation of the Borah senate committee into the question of Russian recognition has proven secretary of state Hughes a credulous imbecile, he said. "The death of Lenin is a great blow to the Russian people, but the United States needs leaders who match him in sincerity and loyalty if not in other ways, it will have little effect on their government."

At the opening of the meeting after the Freiheit Singing and Mandolin club sang the Russian Funeral March the audience stood for a moment in silence out of respect to the memory of Lenin.

Max Sillinsky pointed out that the United States did not object to carrying on diplomatic relations with the dictatorships in, Italy and Spain but they did object to recognizing a workers' government which dictated in the name of eighty million workers and peasants.

been so much anger against the machine.

This case was considered as a test of the Howat strength and there is no doubt that Howat will carry the convention if the fellers are forced to an honest count.

Nick Perkovitz, of Powell, Ill., had his seat contested because he was not employed in or around a mine. The coal company discharged him for alleged violation of contract but the convention could not see why the coal company had any right to determine the eligibility of a delegate and seated Nick by an overwhelming vote, defeating the committee report. Frank Farrington spoke for the committee, the first time he has pinch-hitted for Lewis. These two cases of contesting seats of delegates known to be Howat sympathizers is a fair sample of the tactics used by the Lewis machine at this convention.

Alex Howat's case did not come up this morning as was expected.

Duncan McDonald, who was attacked by the administration for articles appearing in his paper, appeared at the convention today.

LEGION GUNMEN RAID MEETING IN HONOR OF LENIN

Vice-Commander takes Charge in Person

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILKESBARRE, Pa.—Enslavement is rife in this mining community as an armed invasion which the American Legion made on a Lenin Memorial meeting held under the auspices of the Workers Party. With gunt in their hands the Legion men broke into the hall followed by the city police and drove hundreds of men, women and children out into the icy streets.

The raid was under the direction of William B. Healy, national vice-commander of the American Legion, who took charge in person.

Crowd Boos Legion.

"Hurrah for Lenin!" the crowd shouted, as they were kicked and shoved into the street. They greeted the gunmen with boos. The gunmen cursed them and cursed the deceased proletarian leader in whose honor the meeting had been called.

Orders to salute the American flag which the gangsters and police had tarnished by their conduct, did not fit in with the mood of the crowd at that moment. Saying the hand on his rifle one of the officers of the white guard insisted that one of the women who had just been shoved thru the doors should do homage to the U. S. emblem. She laughed in his face, telling him she wasn't learning patriotism from a gunman. Red ribbons were torn from members of the crowd.

No arrests were made by the police, tho Harry Winitsky and Comrade Benjamin, who were to speak at the meeting, challenged the police chief to arrest them.

Alliance between the Legion and the Department of Justice, so often proved before, was again shown when pamphlets and newspapers seized at the meeting by the raiders was taken in charge by Healy, national vice-commander, who said he would turn it over to the secret service.

The Legionaires were deputized by Mayor Hart, who has been working hand in hand with Wilkesbarre city players in open shop movements.

Free Speech Fight Coming.

Winitsky and Benjamin have served notice on the mayor that free speech will not be destroyed in Wilkesbarre. A free speech meeting will be held next week in spite of illegal opposition.

The Legion's unpopularity has grown immensely as the result of this incident. Most of the rank-and-file service men who came in four years have dropped out and have little more than a society affair composed of former officers, many of whom never saw the trenches and carried no nearer weapon while in service than the wrist watches they wore at their clerical duties.

Shades of Burns, U. S. Secret Service Nabs Fake Dollar

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—A poor Greek refugee rug-weaver in Anatolia made a rug on the pattern of an American dollar bill. He sent the rug to a friend in Akron, O., who finally sold it to a dealer, Mr. Lord, who put it in his show window.

But the secret service of the Department of Justice was on guard over the republic!

Detective Morris Manasse seized the four-foot woolen imitation of a dollar bill, and quoting Section 150 of the penal code, he sent it to Cleveland, from which place it was forwarded to Washington. It was a counterfeit!

Lord wrote his congressman, who appealed to W. H. Moran, chief of detectives at Akron. After a long parley it was decided that the crime of imitating real money had been committed, but that if Mr. Lord would keep the rug in his own home and never display it in public, he might get it back.

Moran said there were lots of precedents for the good job done by his subordinate in nabbing this fake dollar.

Strike of Filling Stations.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Jan. 28.—Striking labor and striking capital today met in an attempt to effect an agreement which would allow Belleville to have gasoline and oil.

All gasoline filling stations here closed Saturday, and most of them remained shut Sunday and today, following a strike of union oil wagon drivers. Non-union filling station owners joined the men who employed union drivers in closing, and not even the motorist who drove after his gas could get it.

Operation of business will be impaired badly if the "filling station strike" continues, business men said.

Chicago T. U. E. L. to Have Report on Miners' Convention, Wednesday

The regular monthly meeting of the Chicago group of the T. U. E. L. will take place at the Wicker Park Hall, 2040 W. North Ave., tomorrow (Wednesday), 8 P. M.

William Z. Foster will report on the developments in the Miners' Convention. This meeting will also have a report on the last year's progress of the League in Chicago by the Secretary. Officers of the League for the coming year will be elected at this meeting. Every militant trade unionist should be present.

The Power Column

THE DAILY WORKER is a great double-powered machine, or rather it is a combination of two great machines. Coming into existence for the purpose of building up a great militant labor movement in America.

To accomplish this purpose THE DAILY WORKER must be a real Labor newspaper, full of news, militant and inspiring, and besides THE DAILY WORKER must have behind it a vast army of militants to push it and to see to it that it gets into the hands of ever more and more workers.

That is why it is said THE DAILY WORKER is a double-power machine, each dependent on the other, the one the news machine with the editors and the reporters as its mechanics, the other the distributing machine with the business managers and the office staff as its mechanics.

For the editorial and news machine to produce the product that the workers of this country desire it is necessary for the workers who are most interested in THE DAILY WORKER and the movement it serves to supply the news of the activity of the labor movement all over the country.

That is why the editor of THE DAILY WORKER asks thru the columns of the paper for the workers to send in the news of what is happening in the shops and factories and in the party in their locality. This paper is the paper of the working class because the working class not only owns it and manages it but also writes it.

For THE DAILY WORKER to live and grow it is necessary above all things that the business machine function properly. The militant men and women who secure the subscriptions for our paper, who do the real propaganda and organizational work in their constant efforts to increase the circle of DAILY WORKER readers are the ones who feed the business machine with fuel. They are the ones who really make the wheels of the machine go. They are the ones who really supply the power of THE DAILY WORKER. In this column twice a week, every Tuesday and Friday will be discussed the problems of these militants who make THE DAILY WORKER possible. That is why it is called THE POWER COLUMN.

Starting with this issue and continuing on Friday and every following Tuesday and Friday this column will contain suggestions for the betterment of the management of the business end of THE DAILY WORKER. The column will be open to anyone who has a contribution to make to the others who are participating in the task of building up THE DAILY WORKER circulation. If there are some who have a novel or particularly successful way of securing new readers for THE DAILY WORKER we want to know about it, so that we may thousand other DAILY WORKER boosters. If there are some who have made extra good records in increasing THE DAILY WORKER circulation all of us want to hear about it to give us all additional encouragement and stimulation.

Organization.

There is one matter which outshadows every thing else in importance. If THE DAILY WORKER is to be made into the powerful, influential paper which it ought to be, we must have an organization of the militant DAILY WORKER boosters as the very heart, the life-giver of the militant labor press. We know that wherever there is any labor movement there are live wires who are giving it its energy. We want to organize these live wires,—one of them at least in every section of the movement, in every section of every industrial community, one at least in every unit of the party. We know that with these organized behind THE DAILY WORKER into a solid army of DAILY WORKER patriots, we will have built a foundation for our paper so strong that no attack, no unfavorable circumstances will be able to destroy or undermine it.

Already some hundreds of militants have been made DAILY WORKER representatives in their districts. Within the next few weeks there should be at least one DAILY WORKER agent in every part of the country, working in an organized manner to build the basis of a militant labor movement in the success of the militant labor press.

RECRUITS ARE WANTED FOR THE DAILY WORKER ARMY. Get a Post-Card now; address it to THE DAILY WORKER and write, "I want to help make THE DAILY WORKER grow."

Flogger Will Tell the Names of Ten in K. K. K. Riot

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—H. E. MacBride, one of the mob which flogged James Holland and John Murry, I. W. W. organizers, at Port Arthur, Texas, during the Ku Klux Klan riots of June 30, will divulge to the grand jury the names of ten men who participated in the flogging fray.

The American Civil Liberties union here terms MacBride's impending statement "a victory for traditional American freedom of thought and expression." MacBride's disclosure to be made on Feb. 4 in Galveston county, is expected to strike a severe blow to the klan's lawlessness.

Nation wide attention was drawn to the Port Arthur events when the klan's persecution of Wobblies evoked an I. W. W. campaign to invade that Texas town.

Letter Carrier Hits Mellon's Hope of Monopoly of Mails

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Edwin J. Gainor, president, National Association of Letter Carriers, replying to the attack upon government ownership of the rail and even the postal service made by Representative Underhill of Massachusetts, declared that the postal service is the only one for which prices have not been raised in the past ten years.

"Ten years ago a letter traveled for 2 cents and a passenger was carried on the railroads a mile for 2 cents in many states," said Gainor. "Today the average charge for mail service is lower, while the cost of railroad service is about 80 per cent higher than in 1914. That is our answer to his suggestion that Mr. Mellon, as an individual by mass man, could save the public a lot of money if locks were put on the mail carrying privilege."

MUSSOLINI JOKE PARLIAMENT TO BE DISSOLVED

Fascisti Have Scored No Successes in Power

(By The Federated Press)

ROME.—Italy's next election had been fixed for April 6 and parliament—the parliament which Mussolini and his fascist friends have reduced to a flimsy joke—will be dissolved in a few days.

The election is a mere formality, calculated to lend the seal of respectability to the Black Shirts' dictatorship. It has already been decided by the arming of a strong fascist militia and the elimination of all non-fascist elements from the immense civil service.

Suggestion by Moderate Socialists, that the opposition would unite to boycott the election has been answered by threats from the fascist war council. The issue is between an armed horde of Black Shirts and the un-armed millions of workers, peasants, small traders and shop-keepers.

A small clique within the middle class, consisting of bankers and heavy industrialists, are paying the black shirted pipers. The bulk of the middle class is itself in the role of Cinderella.

Gradually the truth about the much-heralded fascist successes is leaking out. Their only actual attainment has been to adapt themselves to the old system in existence when they grasped power. They have succeeded only in damaging the prestige of the Italian state by such barbarous acts as the slaughter of children in the Italian bombarment of Corfu. They have abolished the workers' May day, proportional representation, the inheritance tax and all those meager social reforms which previous liberal governments had instituted.

Little is said today of fascist "economies," of which we heard so much during Mussolini's earlier days. Prior to the fascist government, the state's deficit was being reduced at the rate of two million lire annually. Financial reports for 1923 show that the fascist rulers failed to continue this saving. Their budget shows a static deficit.

One institution is thriving under Mussolini's rule: that of corruption. The disclosure of illicit sales of railroad material, emanating from wartime, has resulted in the persecution, not of the guilty fascist official, but of the fascist general who revealed this scandalous affair. Report tells of an underling in the state department, who having slept too late to catch his train, ordered a special train to be made up for his special use.

Little criticism of the government is more widespread than ever. The it is seldom heard above a whisper, the fascist press and the castor oil regime—the its political and economic policy have proved a fiasco—remains strong behind the military force which it has conquered.

FOSTER ANALYZES INDUSTRIAL CRISIS IN LABOR HERALD

February Issue Completes Paper's 2nd Year

By CYRIL LAMBKIN.

The more intelligent workers in the Labor Movement of America perceived years ago the decline of the trade unions, a decline which assumed serious proportions about two years ago, following the industrial depression of that time. The ebb tide of a dam to stem the tide. The Trade Union Educational League was organized not only to stem that tide, but to reverse it, if possible, and make the waters of trade unionism flow into new channels. The Labor Herald, the official organ of the League, was eagerly welcomed and trusted.

The Labor Herald for February, which completes the second year of its existence abundantly justifies the trust placed in it by the militant workers of America.

Warns of Bankrupt Leaders

It opens with an exceptionally lucid analysis of the present economic period by Wm. Z. Foster. He proves conclusively that there is impending a new industrial crisis, which will be taken advantage of by the employers to engage Labor in a new terrific struggle in order to wipe out, if possible, whatever advantages the workers still enjoy thru their weakened organizations. He predicts that the bankrupt leaders will pay their usual traitorous role in that struggle. Finally, he points to some new policies which are required by the new conditions, in additions to the present general policies of the League. To miss this article is to miss the most important analysis of the new developments taking place in our economic life and the problems that they present to the workers who are determined to make the American Labor Movement intelligent and powerful.

Earl Browder, in a review of the second year of the League, very interestingly tells of the organizational development of the League, following the first year of missionary and propaganda work. He gives an account of the frantic efforts of the trade union bureaucrats to halt the progress by campaigns of lies and expulsions, and predicts for the new year greater struggles and corresponding important successes.

The magnitude of the problem of organizing the metal miners is set forth by Wm. F. Dunne, for many years one of the trusted leaders of Organized Labor in the heart of the copper country, Butte, Montana. His account of the heroic struggle of the old union, the brutality of the Copper Trust, the treachery of dishonest officials and the mistakes of well-meaning radicals, constitutes a lesson which no progressive worker can afford to skip.

Tells of Brutal Struggle.

Excellent articles on The Movement for Autonomy in Canada, by Tim Buck, on the Coming Struggles in Britain, by Harry Pollitt, one of the struggles for strike by the Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, already having materialized; "RAIL" in Russia, by Robert W. Dunn; the Menace of Vicious Immigration Laws, by Ben Gitlow, and several other articles and incisive editorials, offer the usual wealth of material one has come to expect of the Labor Herald. One must not forget the remarkable tribute paid the T. U. E. L. by A. Losovsky, general secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions.

Who will contradict the statement that the Labor Herald is the most instructive and most inspiring labor journal in America?

Women Heavy Smokers

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Women smoked seven billion cigarettes in 1923, according to the National Tobacco exposition in session here, so it was decided there should be something new and special in cigarettes beneficeth for malady. That's why varicolored cigarettes, anything to match any gown came into vogue today. Verse sermon, peach blossom, black and crimson are among the popular shades.

The Industries for the workers!

N. Y. Judge Rules For Company In Machinist Case

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 28.—A permanent injunction against members of Eureka Lodge 482, International Association of Machinists, from picketing the plant of R. Hoe and Co., manufacturing printing presses, has just been issued by Judge Fehd, B. Strong in the special term of the Supreme Court here.

The Judge's decision is based on the contention that the strike against the company was a violation of a contract entered into between it and the union.

Attorneys for the union showed, however, that there was no contract in existance at the time but merely a memorandum dealing with wages and conditions of labor drawn up for convenience between the date of the expiration of the old agreement and the negotiations of a new one. The strike, the union claims, was called because no agreement had been reached. In the face of these facts the judge decided for R. Hoe and Co.

German Masses Are Endangered by Efforts at Economy

(By The Federated Press)

BERLIN.—In the general effort at effecting economies in the governmental and administrative apparatus of Germany, many institutions are being reduced in such a manner as to endanger the population. A case in point is the public health and hygiene department.

The number of visiting nurses in the closely crowded tenement districts has been reduced to one for every 10,000 children of school age. Tuberculosis is again on the increase after having been reduced materially thru the vigilance of the visiting nurses and physicians.

In some of the city hospitals of Berlin the patients have been ordered to bring along their own bed linens, by way of bringing down administration costs. This means unequal treatment of patients, for only the best situated among them can bring linens.

An examination of children in the proletarian section of Neukelln, in Berlin, showed that 41 per cent of the children under one year of age, 60 per cent between 2 and 3 years, 70 per cent between 3 and 4 years, and 86 per cent between 4 and 5 years, are under weight.

N. Y. Lenin Memorial Will Hear Russian Symphony Music

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—Monday, Feb. 4, is the day when the class conscious workers of New York and the vicinity will gather in a mass demonstration, at Madison Square Gardens, to pay their respects to the greatest man of our time—Lenin.

The Lenin Memorial Meeting which will take place at the largest hall in the city—Madison Square Garden—will be the greatest event in the history of the revolutionary labor movement in this country. Foster and Ruthenberg will be among the speakers.

The Lenin Memorial committee has been successful in securing the Russian Symphony Orchestra with Modest Altschuler as conductor. The orchestra will render a musical program fitting for this occasion.

Admission will be twenty-five and fifty cents.

Probe Grade Crossing Horror.

HAMMOND, Ind., Jan. 28.—A coroner's investigation was started today in the death of four persons here yesterday in a grade crossing crash. Mrs. Beatrice Doner 28, her two children, one an infant, and Robert Paterson, 18 Moline, Ill., were killed.

Perking Has Plan.

George W. Perkins, international president of the cigar makers' union says that life insurance companies will be organized, owned and controlled by labor unions within a short time. He believes that is the logical step following labor banking

CESAR FRANCK'S MOURNFUL MUSIC HEARD IN CHICAGO

Symphony Orchestra to Render Bach Next

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

A purely orchestral selection, with out a soloist, was played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra Friday and Saturday. The concert opened with the fourth overture to Beethovens "Fidelio." In its fiery yet formal classic spirit the overture closely resembles the familiar "Leonore Overture No. 3."

The symphony of the week was Cesar Franck's justly famous D minor. The first movement is painted in gray orchestral colors of subdued, dreary grippe, and opening with a maxes suggestive of something more passionate. The second movement is a revery, a sort of half dream, but shot full of melancholy. The last section continues the spirit of the second, but rises to a climax in which the themes that seemed so sad before are treated in a triumphant, heroic fashion.

Ettore Panizza, the opera conductor, took time out from his labors at the Auditorium long enough to direct the first performance in America of an original theme with variations. It is supposed to interpret the spirit of Russian music, but as Russian art it smacks too much of Italian. The work is a good example of the varying moods that a single short musical idea can be transformed into.

The prelude to Lohengrin followed. The prelude to Lohengrin is a long, ethereal ecstacy of religious mysticism. Just as religion has retarded and warped scientific thought, it has contributed immeasureably to the development of art, and thru this mystic and ecstatic art expression has been able to keep its grip on the minds of men.

The Bacchanale from Tannhauser was played. This is a frenzied and weird dance of Venus and her adorers, ending in a sensuous, erotic slow movement.

The love scene from Richard Strauss' opera "Feuersnot." (The Need of Fire), which concluded the program, is a brilliant and magnificent piece of music, but no more suggestive of the passion of love than Liszt's music inspired by children's reading by the W. C. T. U.

Next week the orchestra plays a concerto for orchestra by Bach, and a symphony by Bruckner, and Carl Friedberg, pianist, will play the Beethoven fifth concerto for his instrument.

Left Wingers Win Place on Ticket of N. D. League

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILLISTON, N. D.—Resentment of farmers at the failure of old party movements to meet the agrarian crisis led to the nomination of A. C. Miller for governor and Thos. Kinnaholt, for sheriff, at the nominating convention of the Nonpartisan League here. Both men are left wingers.

The state convention of the league will be held Feb. 6, at Bismarck, and plans will be made there to unify the forces that are working for the election of candidates representing the farmers and workers and independent of the old-line political machines.

Tom Ayres, candidate for the U. S. senate on the Farmer-Labor ticket of South Dakota, and Joseph Manley, secretary of the Federated Farmer-Labor Party, will be present at the state convention. Charles Taylor, Montana state senator, is expected.

MERCIFUL FIRE GOD STAGES BLAZE ON WEEK-END HOLIDAY

Fire of undetermined origin Sunday destroyed St. Anthony's Parochial School on West 28th Place. The fire started on the third floor which is occupied by grammar grades and spread to the second floor.

The first floor was saved from damage by fire but suffered from water. Luckily the fire happened on Sunday when the school building was not being used or loss of life would have been certain. The fire spread so rapidly that as soon as the first engine company arrived a special alarm calling out more fire companies was sent in.

The companies called out by the special alarm fought the fire for more than an hour before it was brought under control.

The fire served to show what could be expected if a fire were to break out in a public school during school hours. St. Anthony's school was housed in a comparatively modern building but burned like tinder. Many of the public school buildings of the city are twice as old and not as well equipped with fire escapes and exits as had the school building been in use undoubtedly great loss of life would have resulted from the fire.

CITY AND FARM LABOR IN MEXICO WIN OVER FASCISTI

Workers Attack White Guards in Rear

(By The Federated Press)

MEXICO CITY.—Farmers' and workers' organizations continue to pour men into the federal army, General Barbosa is landing a party of irregulars consisting of armed peasants in the state of Vera Cruz announce that they will prevent counter-revolutionaries taking refuge there. They state in their message that they know which side gave them the land and which side is trying to take it away again.

One-fifth of the army of 50,000 was involved in the counter-revolution, according to the war department. Volunteers, consisting mostly of peasants and to a less extent of workers, have now raised the federal army to 70,000.

Fascisti Draft Workers' Leaders.

When the workers at Rio Blanco, near Orisabe, in the fascisti district, went on strike, their leaders were drafted into the rebel army and sent immediately to the front and their strike meetings were declared counter revolutionists against the conspiracies and broken up. Eulalio Martinez, organizer, Mexican Federation of Labor, was one of the first to be so drafted, but after being sent to the front escaped to the federal lines.

Fascisti Blockade Tampico

De la Huerta has declared a blockade of the government port of Tampico, which will be enforced by the battleships Tampico, Agua Prieta and G3 which fell into fascisti hands with the seizure of the port of Vera Cruz.

The object of the blockade order is to prevent the landing of American munitions for the government, but it is expected that such ships will be escorted by American men-of-war so that the blockade will probably not be effective. It will, however, furnish an excellent pretext for international complications later on the part of damaged nationals of the many countries having merchant shipping connections with Tampico.

Politicians Enjoy Exemption

The majority of the Deiahuertista deputies in the national congress still main here in the capital, enjoying their parliamentary privilege of exemption from arrest and blocking the work of the congress. J. Perez Artiz, Mexican Federation of Labor, issued a statement that if the government didn't proceed against these deputies, the workers of his organization would resort to "direct action."

A motion, which carried unanimously, to put the chamber of deputies into "three days' mourning for the death of Felipe Carrillo, assassinated governor of Yucatan, evoked a bitter speech of Deputy Luis N. Morones, Labor party leader, in which he declared that "direct action" would be used by the workers of the country to drive out the fascist deputies if they did not voluntarily go to join the counter revolution. He promised that the labor movement would exact vengeance for the death of their beloved leader.

Propose Legion Censorship

SAN FRANCISCO.—The California posts of the American legion are about to launch a "drive for citizenship education" in this state. Between 1,500 and 2,000 legion members have been enrolled as speakers and organizers. Recent attempts by the legion to censor history text books are a sufficient indication of the brand of "citizenship" which will be advocated. "As we fought over there," says State Commander Collins, "we'll fight over here to arouse every American to his duties toward his nation and state."

Wants It Weekly

To THE DAILY WORKER: In my opinion "The Week" should be printed in weekly installments.

A workingman has hardly time enough to read thru the most important news, let alone stories or novels, especially those of us who read the Federation papers, find it quite a job to get thru with a couple of papers daily. If "The Week" is so interesting that we all ought to follow it up, then give it to us on Sunday, when we have ample time for reading.—Charles Schwartz, Revere, Mass.

Thornton Case Dismissed

BAKERSFIELD, Cal.—The criminal syndicalism charge against Felix Thornton has been dismissed. Thornton, who was arrested in December, 1922, was held in jail almost a year, until the recent reversal of his conviction, which aroused much attention as a blow at the criminal syndicalism law.

The growing weakness of the law is shown now by the dismissal of the case without a new trial.

START SECOND SEMESTER OF WORKERS' SCHOOL IN NEW YORK CITY, FEB. 4.

Do you want to become a more successful fighter in the American Labor movement? Do you want to obtain that power that results from knowledge? If so, then come to the Workers' School, 127 University Place, New York City.

New courses in various political, economic, historical and trade union problems will begin on February the 4th. Competent, experienced teachers are engaged as instructors.

It is the duty of each worker to reserve 2 evenings for educational purposes.

The Workers' School endeavors and aims to utilize education in the struggle for the liberation of the working class.

Comrades and sympathizers, do your duty for the movement. Come to the Workers' School.

K. K. K. to Unhood If Atlanta Klan Wins Its Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ATLANTA, Ga.—Abolition of the mask will be demanded at the convocation of klansmen of the nation, called by former Emperor E. Y. Clarke, to meet Feb. 26 to "kill or cure" the "invisible empire."

Atlanta Klan No. One, the "mother" klan, made this clear in announcing that it had taken over preliminary plans for the congress of klansmen.

"We are convinced that the mask has been abused and has put the order into disrepute and we favor its immediate elimination," a statement of the "mother" klan said.

The Atlanta klan announced also that it would make an effort in the convention to radically change the system of electing officials and other phases of organization.

Gompers at 74 Feels Like Forty; Still Unchanged

WASHINGTON.—Samuel Gompers, celebrating his 74th birthday, announces that he feels just the same as he did when he was 40. He further added that he is so energetic that he couldn't keep still if he wanted to.

Progressives in the labor movement agree with both those assertions. They point out that when he was 40, the 20th century was in full blast and Sam to all intents and purposes is still in the 19th century. And his statement that he couldn't keep still even if he wanted to was borne out at the Portland convention where he was perpetually interrupting proceedings for lengthy speeches, expressing the same sentiments he felt when he was 40.

COAL MINERS! Talk To Your Convention Thru Daily Worker

Coal Miners! Your convention is on at Indianapolis, Ind. It will be responsive to your needs if you will talk to it, talk to it in loud and emphatic tones.

You can do this thru your paper, THE DAILY WORKER. You can do it every day. You can make yourself heard.

Every day THE DAILY WORKER goes to the convention at Tomlinson Hall, at Indianapolis. The miners' delegates are reading it, from first page, first column, to last page, last column.

If you will write to THE DAILY WORKER, telling your needs, the delegates will read your letter.

One or the big things you are interested in is unemployment. If you don't work there is no pay envelope. If you don't work, there is nothing with which to pay the landlord, the grocer, with which to buy the things your family needs. How do you get along? How do you make both ends meet? What do you demand?

Tell it to the delegates at Indianapolis. Tell it to your highly paid officials, whose salaries go on the whole year around.

Write about all the other great prbolems confronting the coal miners of this country. Your letters will be published in THE DAILY WORKER and read by the delegates at your convention at Indianapolis. Write to the Editor, The Daily Worker, 1640 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

The Daily Worker Will Start Publishing "A WEEK" ON FEB. 16

Read This Letter Carefully!

To the Readers of THE DAILY WORKER:-

Dear Reader:-THE DAILY WORKER has been advertising that the great Russian Novel A WEEK by Iury Libedinski will be published serially in the columns of THE DAILY WORKER. We are now happy to announce that this wonderful book which every worker in America will want to read will be published starting February 16. Whether the installments will be published weekly or daily will be for our readers to decide.

We know that every one of our readers are looking forward with a great deal of pleasurable anticipation to A WEEK. We know that none of the rapidly growing army of DAILY WORKER readers who already feel that no day is complete without THE DAILY WORKER, will now more than ever want to assure themselves that they will not miss a single issue.

But we wish to call to your attention that many who are now getting THE DAILY WORKER regularly are those whose subscriptions for the weekly WORKER were transferred over to the Daily. Most of these subscriptions will expire on February 14 and shortly thereafter. If the number of your address label is No. 352 or lower, or if the date on your address label is 3-1-24 or less, that means that your subscription will expire on or before March 1, 1924 and that you will not continue to receive THE DAILY WORKER after that date.

During the first few days of the publication of THE DAILY WORKER so many subscriptions came into our business office that not all of them could be placed on the mailing list at once, with the result that some subscribers were forced to undergo the hardship of doing without some of the issues of THE DAILY WORKER. Even now many subscriptions are still coming in with the request that "the subscription be started with the very first issue. I do not want to miss a single issue," write hundreds of subscribers.

We expect that the same thing will happen again; after A WEEK has begun in our columns, we will be deluged with hundreds of requests for back numbers, which we will be unable to fill. A word to the wise is sufficient. Order your DAILY WORKER NOW. If your subscription expires soon or if you are unfortunate enough not to be a subscriber, fill in the coupon below and send it in to assure yourself of receiving the first installment and every installment of A WEEK.

Fraternally yours,

THE DAILY WORKER,

Lost--Several Halos

Two days ago THE DAILY WORKER predicted in this column that if the Teapot Dome investigation was allowed to proceed the entire Coolidge administration, including the president himself would be found to be involved in the most odiferous affair since the Grant administration peddled the public lands to the railways.

Today Washington dispatches show that we were correct; not only has the whole cabinet been found to be up to its neck in the rich and oily ooze of the Teapot Dome but President Coolidge himself has been shown up as an unusually clumsy prevaricator—an individual who voluntarily makes statements in direct contradiction with documents, which he must have known were extant, and which are signed by the now dead hand of his predecessor.

Letters made public today, signed by the late President Harding, show conclusively that contrary to Coolidge's statement, the matter of the oil leases was discussed not only once but many times by the entire cabinet and that no member of the cabinet is in a position to disclaim responsibility.

These are certainly tough times for the super-patriots like Daugherty, Denby, Davis and Hughes who have been throwing the crimson dust of the red menace in the eyes of the American people while the rest of the gang was quietly and efficiently gathering up and secreting everything of value left ungrabbed by previous administrations.

Attorney-General Daugherty, who has been so assiduous in hounding workingmen harboring unorthodox ideas and who spent many thousands of dollars out of the public treasury to railroad Communists to jail in Michigan, never has been moved by any suspicious circumstances to use his high office to protect the property of the United States stolen by his colleagues.

Secretary of the Navy, Denby, than whom there is none more worried over the helpless condition of this weak and unprotected nation in case of enemy attacks, complaisantly allows the oil for his dear navy to be peddled for a song to private speculators under conditions that make a sure supply of fuel impossible for the warships manned by his gallant gobs.

Secretary of Labor Davis has been going up and down the land pouring into the ears of the shivering patrioteers his tale of the nefarious activities of the alien workingmen who come here not to build but to destr-r-roy by r-r-r-red r-r-r-revolution our free American institutions. During the excitement occasioned by his rovings, with his knowledge and, it is to be supposed, his consent, natural resources to the minimum value of $100,000,000 taken from the public domain.

And what of Secretary of State Hughes, the white-petaled flower of everything respectable, who, almost single-handed, has been keeping the Bolshevik hordes from descending on our shores? He, so his admirers claim, has one of the great legal minds of this generation. It is unfortunate but true that his master mind was so absorbed in combatting the efforts of Communists and other citizens to secure recognition of the Russian workers and peasants' government that he had not the time—perhaps not the inclination—to point out to his erring colleagues of the cabinet a legal—and therefore righteous—method of acquiring the Teapot Dome swag.

Yes, we think the collective activities of the members of the Harding-Coolidge cabinet in connection with the Teapot Dome steal merit but cannot stand further investigation. Our opinion of the bandit band behind which hides the Standard Oil Company and the House of Morgan, has never been very high. Caught this time before they could wipe off the oily smears acquired in their latest acquisitive adventure they have done the American people a great favor—they have destroyed many of the illusions concerning the high integrity and purpose of American capitalist government and have placed it in a category that the American people are familiar with—the one that includes distillery robbers, prohibition enforcement officers, real estate sharks, oil-well promotors and other shady enterprises.

Without being unduly optimistic we believe it is safe to say Attorney-General Daugherty will conduct no more anti-communist crusades while the teapot continues to bubble.

Join the Workers Party!

"Savior's" Strike Snag

The cries of friends of the "revival" who have been rewarded for their expressions of sympathy with positions of power in Washington, D. C., to postpone the Farmer-Labor convention, called for May 30th in St. Paul, until after the conventions of the capitalist parties, have not met with any great success to date.

The conference of farmer-labor groups of the western and southwestern states, meeting in Denver yesterday went on record emphatically as opposing any delay. In Minneapolis the labor forces have taken the same position and it is probable that the whole campaign of vacillation and delay engineered by politicians will fall flat.

The very strenuous attempts to postpone the conference, originating in Washington with some safely progressive senators like LaFollette, Shipstead and Johnson, raise the question of just how much longer the workers and farmers of the United States are going to allow gentlemen of this caliber to be the dictators instead of the servants of the movements that put them in office.

The delay urged is solely for the convenience of elected officials and not of the workers and farmers who will have to raise the funds for organization and publicity work and carry on the hard routine work of election campaigns. The proposal was to have made it easier for these officials to throw their lot in with the workers and farmers without reservations or—if some risk seemed to be attached to this procedure—to decide to remain safely ensconced where they are.

The men who cling to this safety-first policy are not the type that the workers and farmers want to speak and fight for them. This does not mean that in the present stage of development of the farmer-labor political movement we may not have to accept such individuals for candidates but it does mean that we accept them for what they are and entertain no illusions concerning their essentially middle-class ideology and affiliation.

LaFollettes, Johnsons, Shipsteads and other middle-class politicians of this type may furnish candidates but they cannot and must not be allowed to furnish programs and leadership.

To allow the control of the farmer-labor movement to be in the hands of this element means that it is ham-strung before the start of the race and never can be anything else than a feeble off-shoot of the capitalist parties.

This is not the sort of organization that the workers and farmers of this nation want and need. They must have and they will have a mass political party expressing their needs as a class and with the control of the movement in the hands of the economic organizations of the workers and farmers.

This prospect does not please those middle-class messiahs whose political fortunes are their first consideration and whose yearning for respectability forces them to denounce as menaces to "peaceful evolutionary progress" the rural and industrial workers to whom, however, they appeal for support when attacked by the spokesmen of the big capitalists.

The LaFollettes, Shipsteads and Johnsons are quite willing to do a little something for the workers and farmers if by so doing the workers and farmers can be prevented from doing something for themselves.

The May 30th convention is an attempt on the part of the workers and farmers to do something for themselves.

In this fact is found the explanation for the hostility it has aroused among the middle-class politicians and for the attempts to delay and sabotage it by the exclusion of groups such as the Federated Farmer-Labor Party which wants and intends to have a party of and for workers and farmers and not a party of and for middle-class office seekers.

Fall's Mistake

"If you have tears, prepare to shed them now," seems to be the motto of the witnesses appearing before the Teapot Dome investigation committee.

E. L. Doheny, multi-millionaire oil operator, told of how, moved to compassion by the misfortunes of Senator Fall, he had loaned him $100,000 without security. Mr. Doheny wept, so overcome was he with heartbreaking sorrow.

He expected to make $100,000,000 out of the lease Senator Fall gave him, he testified, so it would appear that in spite of his tears, his sorrow was only on a one-tenth of one per cent basis.

Senator Fall is also on the verge of tears, according to Washington dispatches, and he, at least, has reason for sorrow. Had he insisted on at least a 10 per cent commission, he probably could, at prevailing Washington prices, have bought the entire investigating committee.

Lenin, says the capitalist press, was a fanatic and a terrorist who did not let lives or anything else stand in the way of victory.

Ye, more than a million workingmen and women in Moscow stood in the bitter cold for hours to do homage to his memory. They knew him and loved him and somehow this silent throng of workers makes the well-fed press agents of the system Lenin fought seem small and petty.

The Negro in the Industries

By LOVETT FORTWHITEMAN

The Negro was originally brought to America as a slave to labor and produce wealth for the ruling class. Since the abolition of slavery he has been forced to the bottom of the American industrial system, based on the principle of race discrimination, from the privileged class of workers, and has been exploited by this industrial class even principally by trade union of persons who because of some minor offense have been committed to prison, but had the choice of coming into the American colonies and settling; bankrupted persons, also in order to escape disgrace and often imprisonment, fled to the colonies; and many from the slums of the English cities, London, Liverpool, Edinburgh, Dublin and others, who, as the result of a sort of a moral cleansing, during the time were carried into the colonies.

These persons placed themselves or were placed, for a number of years, in the service of members of the land-owning class in the colonies but no one could be indentured for life; and thereby lay the weakness of the system. At the end of the period of service, the indentured servant could also become a land-owner. The African could be bonded for life, and at the same time was easily adapted to the rigors of toil on the tobacco plantations.

For 250 years, African slavery was maintained in America. The emancipation of the Negro was a mere transfer from chattel-slavery to wage-slavery. It is traditional to regard the Negro as the lowest form of labor, and therefore, the Negro is employed in the most menial capacities. The Negro is the last to be employed and the first to be discharged. The Negro is the last to be organized in the trade union movement and the first to be attacked by the agencies of public opinion. Due to the fact that the Negro is denied membership in the trade union movement, he is compelled to enter the field of competition with white labor, thereby creating a surplus labor market, which is used by the employing class to break strikes when the white worker goes out on a strike.

The Urban League is a national Negro organization supported by the capitalists. It is a huge labor employment agency, supplying the Northern industrial centers with cheap, unorganized Negro labor from the southern states. This organization does not encourage labor-union-ism among Negroes; it does not; and probably no institution today in American life is more inimical to the development of a harmonious understanding between the working class of both races than this Urban League.

The Negro worker, because he is unorganized, works longer hours and for less pay than the white worker. Economically to the advantage of the employing class than the Negro is kept out of the unions. The Negro is a potential scab. This fact, is not of great importance, but as an industrial class one of the most important in the world. And yet, its relative position today in American life is such that he can be a serious menace to the success of any working-class movement having a new society for its goal.

The Negro constitutes more than one-half of the industrial strength of the South; more than one-seventh of that of the entire nation. In the South he is dominant in the cultivation of tobacco, cotton, rice, sugar-cane and in the production of molasses and sugar. His industrial importance is beyond his number when compared with other races. The social experience of the Negro in America qualifies him for a competent and important part in any working-class revolutionary movement.

At present great masses of Negroes from the South are coming North, finding employment in the packing industries, mills, factories, and on the railroads. They are being paid less than the whites, and this accuses the animosity of the latter, because it certainly tends to reduce his standard of living. And race riots have sprung primarily out of just such conditions. But by now experience should have taught us that bloodshed is no solution for this problem. Only organization, wider organization that shall include all workers regardless of race or color.

The Worst Enemy of the Working Class

By JAY FOX

"I heard a speaker say the other night," said Henry Dubb, "that the capitalist press is the worst enemy of the working class, that it poisons the minds of the workers against progress and teaches them to look upon their capitalist exploiters as their real friends, which the speaker said they are not. What do you know about that, isn't it the bunk?"

"If I needed any more proof than I have already that you are the bunk," said the union man, "it's right there in your question. You are a full grown man of average brains, a native son and all that, and yet you think the wolf the lamb's best friend. Where is your intelligence, a native per American brother? It is the intelligence of the boss I see percolating through your wool. How did it come about that you think the same thoughts and boost for the same ideas and the same candidates as does your boss? You certainly didn't get the dope direct from him. He wouldn't speak to you if you met him on the street, and you would be afraid to address him, anyway. What right has a boob of a buck private to accost a general of industry?

"Your boss don't have to waste his valuable time talking to you. He has a more efficient method of innoculating the brains that read the newspapers. So he has an understanding with the newspaper bosses—they both belong to the same amalgamated union, the Chamber of Commerce—and that worthy brother turns the trick for him. So you are doped, chloroformed, befuddled and made an ass of by the newspapers and you don't suspect it in the least, because you have been fed on the drug from infancy. Before you were able to read the newspapers you imbibed the bosses' dope from your parents and teachers, who were themselves well chloroformed before you were born and ready to take you in hand and begin your education the moment you arrived.

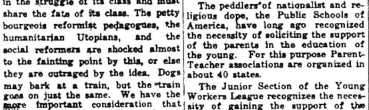
"Take a look at yourself in the mental mirror and see what a perfect picture you are of your parents and teachers. It is, indeed, your boast that you have not departed from the beaten path of your sires. You would count it a disgrace to have done so. You never think to question your child dope and say to yourself, 'maybe this isn't so.' You never put up your mental dukes to the infernal balderdash the papers pass out to you. You gulp it down even as the hog swallows his swill.

"Is it any wonder with you at home? You are pot feeling as well as you would like to feel. You lack many of the home comforts you feel you ought to have. You don't dress as well as you might. And the car you have in mind to buy when your job is more secure and the boss responds to your mental suggestion and raises your wages, is a far off dream. Somehow you feel you are not getting a square deal; still you make no move to better your lot. Worse still: You are helping the boss to keep you where you are. You are acting as your own jailer. You join the boss in condemnation of those of your fellow slaves who wish to help you out of your prison house of wage slavery.

"In the prisons of this country there are hundreds of your fellow slaves, sent there because they have raised their voices in your behalf; because they have said you should have better meals, finer clothes, a comfortable home, a car, and a job that would be your own, instead of being the property of the boss who can fire you at his pleasure. The newspapers told you these men are your enemies and you have learned from you dad—which you haven't got. And you believed the cursed lies, you rummy."

"WOT?" said Henry, "you have gone past me proper and I suppose I'm all coming to me. Now tell me, what do you want me to do?"

"I want you to read a workers' newspaper whenever you can get one, so you can learn your own side of the great question of life. And, above all things, Hegry, learn to think for yourself."



WHAT, THEN, DOES COMMUNIST ACTION MEAN?

Article No. 7

We Communists assert that the child must be enrolled as a fighter in the struggle of its class and must share the fate of its class. The petty bourgeois reformist pedagogues, the humanitarian Utopians, and the social reformers are shocked almost to the fainting point by this, or else they are outraged by the idea. Dogs may bark at a train, but the train goes on just the same. Of much more important consideration that we must ourselves understand our aim and purpose. The inclusion of the working class child in the struggle of its class is our aim and goal. To attain this aim we do not require academic theses or rules of conduct, such as in England Thomas Anderson issues to his working class schools in Glasgow. The class instinct is the first connecting link between young and adult workers, and mind will evidence essentials; will be easy to understand if we approach the children as friends and comrades. No books can give us such live facts as the children themselves supply. Only from these original sources does the Junior Group Leader learn what he needs to know and what he must do in his work—and this only after he has eliminated all the reverential respect of the children and become their friend and equal. Blind respect for the adults is one of the first things which we remove in Communist education.

There will be another storm of indignation over this. "The Communists want to destroy the home sweet home and the relations between parents and children." As if any such thing as a real home existed in the working class! The family as "home sweet home" was long ago abolished by capitalism. The working class family is nothing but a common household for eating, sleeping, and living.

(Watch for Article No. 8 "The new relations between adults and children.")

Junior Section to Line Up Parents

The peddlers of nationalist and religious dope, the Public Schools of America, have long ago recognized the necessity of soliciting the support of the parents in the education of the young. For this purpose Parent-Teacher associations are organized in about 40 states.

The Junior Section of the Young Workers League is the newest necessity of gaining the support of the working class parents for the Junior Section. Hence the children of the Junior Section are now organizing parent's conferenceca. These parent's conference will discuss the life and work of the children in the Junior Groups. At each meeting of the parent's the children will arrange a revolutionary entertainments with small playlets, etc. Many parents do not fully understand the role of the Junior comrades in the struggle within the Public Schools. These conferences will be the means of clarifying the parents as to this important role. Working class parents! Line up behind the Junior Section! Back up the fight of the Juniors against Nationalist and religious propaganda in the Public Schools! Fight with in Juniors for the complete abolition of child labor!

THE MINER

By Maxwell Bodenheim

Those on the top say they know you, Earth—they are liars. You are my father, and the silence I work is my mother. Only the sun knows his father.

We are alike—sweaty, inarticulate of soul, bending under thick knowledge, defiant about with my brothers when above you.

Like most children we soon forget the parents of our souls.

But you are ugly grip at avarin—we pay for the little noise of life—

We steal.

Youth Views

By HARRY GANNES

Another Opium Dispenser.

Exploitation of the working class is not confined to mechanical process. The workers are treated as machines on the books of the capitalists, the bosses do recognize that their ally, the Lord, has supposedly endowed the toilers with brains.

The facts of life make these brains feel bitterly toward the exploiters; and were they to be left to natural and logical development there would be little need for Intensified agitation on our part. Experience has taught the beneficiaries of this system that mental poison is a necessary anti-dote to revolutionary thought.

The young workers, flung precipitously into production, come up most sharply against the realities of exploitation and slavery. They feel it most keenly. Their minds are young and supple and their energy is not yet exhausted. The youth crave enjoyment and sports.

When the Chicago Y. M. C. A. informs us that $1,108,307 was raised in one year for the expansion of its work, and that it already values its worldly possession in the sum of $7,000,000 (in this city alone) we know that the bosses are not so foolish as we sometimes picture them, and can take advantage of a cheap method of reaching the youth as a preventative of discontent. They pay the bill.

What harm is there in the Y. M. C. A.? is a serious question that union men often ask. In New York, for instance, the union railroad workers will tell you that there is a magnificent hotel built for them by this organization. It affords them cheap rooms and meals. Well, not all doctors use the crude method of Mussolini in administering castor oil. America is famous for its sugar-coated opiates.

But we can still remember that the British and American Y. M. C. A. co-operated in furnishing scabs for eastern railroad companies during the shopcraft strike. Ask the local in St. Lawrence, Mass., about it.

Amalgamation means strength!

LENIN

By H. M. WICKS

Upon the occasion of the death of men who have made their mark upon the history of the world it is customary then to declare that they have taken their places in the history of the world; the movement having passed on to other things and the passing of time has given us a clearer perspective of their work. This hesitation to pass final judgment has been corrected by history. Its correctness was due to the fact that until this era, the era of the proletarian revolution, the prominent figures of history could not make a stand the significance of their part in the class struggle. Just as it is impossible to estimate a man for what he says of himself so it has been impossible to estimate the struggles of classes by what the dominant figures thrown upon the pages of history have said about themselves.

But this necessity for postponing judgment does not hold with Lenin as the embodiment of the proletarian revolution. The most striking difference between the present revolution and past struggles is that the revolution by the working class fully understand its mission and its place in history. It neither deludes itself by concealing its real purpose in a cloak of high-sounding terminology, nor does it drag its inspiration from the past. Its vision depends upon a realistic view of the tasks of today. Thus Lenin as the foremost figure in the first triumphant struggle of the proletariat, knew precisely the historical significance of the victory of the Russian Bolshevik. The he probably gave scant thought to his own individual role in the struggle, his colleagues even in his life definitely proclaimed his place in history.

The comments of the capitalist journalists upon his passing contain nothing but the old platitudes about the future determining his place in history and, with few exceptions, they convey the idea that they hope the passing years will diminish his importance. Intellectually bound to their past they cannot comprehend the significance of Lenin. One thing is certain and that is that none of the spokesmen of the ruling class will erect monuments to his memory.

As each ruling class derives its justification from the past naturally it erects monuments to the reactionary. Its emoluments and praise are bestowed upon those who endeavored to keep the world in the darkness and slavery. The reward of most people into whose mind the light of a higher organization of society has penetrated is to be put on the rack, the stake or the dungeon. Such would have been the fate of Lenin and the Bolsheviki if they had failed. History was on their side and combined with the indomitable will of a leadership thoroughly versed in the fundamentals of the proletarian movement they won.

Lenin, the foremost leader of this first movement in history that is fully conscious of its mission, has passed from the scene of action and his study of life is now ready for definite telling. There is nothing that can be learned in the future about his activity that we do not know today. His place is definitely fixed as the embodiment of the epoch of the world proletarian revolution. That the ruling class of today does not recognize this fact is of no concern to the proletarian historian. The latter will write the history of the future.

But what of those who strut the stage of history as the representatives of the dying capitalist order? What of the pompous statesmen who revile the name of Lenin? In the future memory of them will perish in merciful oblivion. The few whose names appear on history's pages will be remembered only in connection with shame for to assail Lenin and the movement that he represented. Their children will blush with shame to bear their names.

But ten thousand years from now the name of Lenin will adorn the pages of the world's history as that of mankind toward a higher form of society. The memory of Lenin will be the nearest approach to immortality that is known. The man who makes his impression upon his own time as Lenin did has indeed lived all subsequent time. That is all the immortality that any one can desire; that is more than any other man of this age will achieve.

Today his body lies beside the Kremlin walls. There let it rest forever, while the path to it is worn deeper and deeper by the feet of millions upon millions of the citizens of a new society who come to pay a tribute to the memory of this invincible revolutionist who led the first great assault upon the last slave system the world will ever see in order to rescue humanity from a hideous and debasing thralldom.

Let the Gods Laugh.

Judge E. H. Gary of the Steel Corporation has just left on a tour of the south and before he started an intimate associate suggested to him that it would be an opportune time for him to begin work on his autobiography.

"No," said Mr. Gary, "I am taking a Bible along with me and I want to study it all I can."—Wall Street Journal.

FLOUR CITY LABOR RAPS MAY 30TH DELAY

Payroll Rule Halted in Miners' Convention

DAUGHERTY, DENBY, DUE FOR DISCARD

Too Much to Carry for Candidate Cal.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Attorney-General Daugherty and Secretary of the Navy Denby are slated for the discard, is the prediction freely made by senators closely in touch with the developments in the Teapot Dome investigation.

Well-informed political observers are of the opinion that ousting of these two oil-dome twins will come too late to save the Coolidge administration but believe that the president's hand has been forced by the recent disclosures.

It is a matter of record that Denby joined Fall in recommending the transfer of the naval reserve oil lands to the jurisdiction of the department of the interior over the protest of naval engineers.

On Record in Senate

On April 21, 1922, Denby, in a communication to the senate, said that "at the suggestion of the secretary of the navy, the President of the United States, directed the secretary of the interior to take over the administration of lands in the naval reserves in consultation and cooperation with the secretary of the navy."

After this, Denby signed the Teapot Dome lease giving these properties to Sinclair and the Number 1, naval reserve lease to Doheny.

Before the senate investigating committee, Denby claimed to know very little about these leases, but senators hold that as the official watchman of the naval oil reserves it was his duty to guard them and that he cannot escape responsibility for their loss and the subsequent scandal.

Daugherty Under Suspicion

No one, apparently, is willing to entrust the handling of any proceedings, criminal or civil, to Attorney-General Daugherty, and a knowledge of this strong feeling against the head of the administration's legal department is believed to have been a factor in prompting President Coolidge to announce his readiness to appoint special prosecutors if criminal proceedings should be necessary.

Senators are emphatic in denunciation of the part played by Daugherty and his departure for Florida, while the administration is quivering from the shock of one of the greatest scandals in American political history, is considered highly significant.

When action is taken next week by the house and senate on the cancellation of the oil leases it is practically certain that all legal measures will be taken entirely out of Daugherty's hands.

See Coolidge as Target.

Overnight developments in the oil lease scandal, now engaging official Washington at all hours, made it appear today that President Coolidge may become a direct target of attack of those who are demanding a complete cleanup in the present investigation.

The President, it was reported, is inclined, at present, to stand by his cabinet members. Friends of the President in the Senate represented him as feeling that charges that have been

"Daily Worker's" Summary of Oil Mess Disclosure

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—Here is the story in skeleton of the Teapot Dome and other naval reserve leases:

On May 31, 1921, President Harding, urged by Secretary of the Navy Denby and Secretary of the Interior Fall, transferred the navy oil reserves from the navy to the interior department.

July 21, Fall and Denby signed contracts with H. L. Doheny for exploitation of reserves One and Two in California.

April 7, 1922, Fall and Denby signed leases with H. F. Sinclair for Teapot Dome reserve, a 9,481-acre tract in Natrona county, Wyoming, containing roughly 22,000,000 barrels of oil.

April 15, the senate, having heard of the Teapot Dome lease, which was not officially announced, asked for copies of all leases.

April 21, Senator LaFollette, in a resolution, called for a complete investigation.

April 29, senate ordered investigation.

January 30, 1922, senate public lands committee hired experts to see whether it was true oil was draining out of Teapot Dome.

March 4, Fall resigned from cabinet.

October 22, senate committee began hearings, following report of experts.

October 23, Fall, before committee, said he was proud of leases.

October 25, Denby told committee leasing was "a routine detail," and he knew little about it.

December 27, the all senate committee has borrowed $100,000 from E. B. McLean, publisher, to buy ranch, and will not get a cent from Sinclair or Doheny.

January 11, 1924, McLean at Palm Beach, testified Fall got checks for $100,000, but returned them uncashed, saying he had arranged to get money elsewhere.

January 21, Archie Roosevelt and G. D. Wahlberg, Sinclair's personal secretary, told of suspicions that Teapot Dome lease was obtained by corruption and said Sinclair had gone to Europe secretly.

January 22, Fall subpoenaed.

January 24, Doheny said he loaned Fall $100,000 on unsecured note.

January 25, J. W. Zevely, Sinclair's man, said he loaned Fall $25,000 and advanced $10,000 for expenses of trip to Russia.

January 26, President Coolidge announced he would appoint special counsel to investigate and to prosecute civilly and criminally any wrong-doing. Doheny offered to cancel leases on California reserves.

January 28, senate prepared to demand immediate cancellation of leases.

New $17,000,000 Oil Scandals Capital Sensation

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A new sensation involving the navy department appeared this afternoon when Chairman Butler of the House naval affairs committee, summoned Secretary Denby and several naval officers to appear tomorrow for questioning in connection with charges of alleged illegal expenditure of some seventeen million dollars in oil royalties.

It's All Right for England,

WASHINGTON.—Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, when asked for an opinion as to the entrance of the British labor movement into political power in the government, said: "It is a remarkable achievement. I see no reason why the taking of political control should dampen the ardor of British trade unionists for unionism."

Militants Organized for First Time in Miners' Convention

"The progressives are organised behind a definite program for the first time in the history of the United Mine Workers of America," said William Z. Foster, just back from the Indianapolis convention.

LEWIS GRIP ON UNION IS WEAKENING

Militants Win in Hard Fought Battle At Indianapolis

By JOHN FITZGERALD

(Staff Correspondent of The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—John L. Lewis and his machine received a crushing defeat when, after a stormy session, the convention voted down the report of the constitution committee headed by Van Bittner.

The constitution committee report recommended non-concurrence in resolution 115, from Pursglove, W. Va., calling for the election by referendum vote of all organizers and field workers. The resolution specified that these officials should be prorated according to the numerical strength of the nationalities composing the membership of the union.

Machine Beat by 30 Votes.

After John Hindmarsh, of Riverton, Ill., had delivered a telling speech against the report of the committee, James Watt, of Springfield, one of the progressive leaders in the convention, took the platform and, amid encouraging cheers, moved the previous question. The previous question carried by a large majority and the vote on the committee report was then taken. The count was 730 in favor and 760 against.

The administration then staged a demonstration for a roll call and many of the progressives voted in favor of it declaring that the great majority of the local unions had pledged their delegates to work and fight against the appointive power clause in the constitution. They predicted that the amendment providing for the election of international organizers would carry by a heavy majority.

Whole Day for Roll Call

The roll call may take one whole day or even longer. If it ends in a defeat of the administration it is the opinion of both administration and progressive delegates that the power of John L. Lewis in the United Mine Workers is broken.

Wild Rumors

Shortly after Chairman Van Bitner of the constitution committee began to read the report, Delegate Savage, secretary of the Ohio district, moved that the convention go into executive session allowing only press correspondents to remain. The reason given was that divers persons of "red" proclivities, not delegates, were voting. Rumors were spread that 300 "reds" had been imported from Pittsburgh the previous evening.

The motion carried and all visitors were ordered to leave the hall with exception being made in favor of wives of delegates.

Capellini Unpopular.

Rinaldo Cappellini, president of the anthracite district, until his election an enemy of the Lewis machine, does not appear to be very popular at this convention. He was howled down when he tried to put Delegate Oates of Pittsburgh in a corner. Oates expressed in no uncertain terms his disgust with the attempt of Cappellini to come to the rescue of the hard pressed administration.

Delegate Prentiss, colored, in appointee, upheld the appointive power clause, declaring that colored men would be discriminated against in the election of organizers.

An outstanding charpcteristic of this convention is the superb loyalty of the appointed organizers to the Lewis machine. As Delegate Hindmarsh pointed out, they support the administration on every issue, big and little.

Lewis Squawks.

After the previous question had been carried Lewis tried to state that he had been given no opportunity to state his views but the delegates did not want any more oratory.

Duncan McDonald spoke here Monday night to an audience of three or four hundred delegates and replied to attacks made on him by the convention. His speech was witty and instructive and he was loudly applauded.

Alex Howat was an interested member of the audience.

OVERFLOW LENIN MEETINGS HELD IN LOS ANGELES

Huge Demonstrations in Many Cities

"Two overflow meetings, expressing condolences of Los Angeles workers with the Russian workers over the loss of our great leader, Lenin, were held here Sunday afternoon," says a message from S. A. Baker, secretary of the Workers Party in Los Angeles.

"For over two hours," the message continued, "1,500 workers listened to speeches in five languages, expressing undying devotion to the ideals for which Lenin lived and died. The meetings were held under the auspices of Workers Party, Local Los Angeles."

A successful meeting was held in Denver at Machinists" Hall, the same date.

New York's meeting in Madison Square Garden, Monday evening, February 4th, will be one of the biggest events the city has seen in months. Speeches by C. E. Ruthenberg and William Z. Foster will be followed by addresses from well-known citizens of the metropolis. The Russian Symphony orchestra and moving pictures of the life of Lenin will add to the features of the evening.

Chicago's great meeting in Ashland Auditorium comes just too late for this issue of the DAILY WORKER, but it will be described in the following issue.

Other Lenin Memorial meetings, next week, are listed as follows:

Big Philadelphia Meeting

Musical Fund Hall, 8th and Locust street, Saturday evening, Feb. 2.

The following speakers will address the meeting: Ludwig Lore, Editor Volkszeitung; W. W. Weinstone, Eastern District Organiser of the P. S. R. Scheeno Epstein will speak in Russian, and M. Olgin, Philadelphia manager of the Freiheit, will be chairman.

A large Russian Orchestra will supply appropriate music.

Twin City Memorial

Other Lenin memorial meetings will be at:

Minneapolis, Richmond Halls, Sunday, Feb. 3, at 2 p. m., with James F. Cannon, W. S. Wiggins, assistant county attorney; Norman E. Tallentire, speaking, and H. D. Kramer, editor of the Minneapolis Labor Review, presiding.

St. Paul, Labor Temple, Sunday, Feb. 3, at 8 p. m. James P. Cannon and Norman H. Tallentire, speaking.

Detroit, Arena Gardens, 5810 Woodward ave., Sunday, Feb. 3, at 2 p. m. Speakers: Dennis Batt and C. E. Ruthenberg. The Ukranian and Russian choir will sing the Russian revolutionary funeral march.

CIVIC FEDERATION AND GOMPERS UNITED BY MUTUAL SOVIET FEAR

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Samuel Gompers has called upon Chairman Borah of the senate subcommittee investigating Russian-American relations, to permit Gompers and some of his associates in this country to testify.

It is the purpose of this group, back of which is the National Civic federation, to argue that recognition of Russia would endanger the conservative leadership of American labor, and turn the workers over to victimization at the hands of Communist agitators. They maintain that the existing leadership of the A. F. of L. is the safest bulwark of existing social institutions in the United States.

Legion Takes Over City Government of Wilkesbarre, Pa.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

"WILKESBARRE, Pa.—The local post of the American Legion, which broke up the Lenin Memorial meeting in lawless fashion, has been given the authority by Mayor Hart to decide what meetings shall and shall not be held in future.

This decision was made at a conference with the mayor when Harry Winitsky and Herbert Benjamin, representing the Workers Party, declared that they would insist on the right of free speech in Wilkesbarre.

Legionaires at the conference tried to intimidate the workers' representatives and seemed to be on the point of attacking them physically.

All meetings demanding civil liberty will be dispersed, the mayor and legionaires declared, unless they have the Legion's permission.

The labor men will contest this outrageous fascist rule.

MINNEAPOLIS UNION MEN FOR NO DELAY

Insist on Holding of May 30th Convention

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Unanimous endorsement of the May 30 convention, an emphatic declaration in favor of a national class Farmer-Labor Party and unqualified support of the Minnesota Farmer-Labor Federation, were the outstanding features of the meeting of the Hennepin County Committee of the Workers' People's Non-Partisan Political League held here last night.

Wm. Mahoney of St. Paul, editor of the Minnesota Labor Advocate, recently returned from Washington, gave an impartial summary of the arguments for and against a postponement of the May 30 Farmer-Labor convention, stating that the conference of farmer-labor groups of the western and southwestern states held recently in Denver, had gone on record for the May 30 meet as scheduled and against any postponement. The report of the action of the Denver conference carried considerable weight with the delegates.

Militants Fight Postponement.

I. G. Scott, socialist alderman and a member of the Plasterers' Union; R. S. Wiggin, member of the City and County Employees' Union and assistant city attorney; Frank Miller of the Machinists Union, and Robley D. Cramer, editor of the Minneapolis Labor Review, all made telling arguments against any postponement of the May 30 convention.

The opposition to the May 30 convention was few in number and poorly organized; it made some feeble attempts to block the landslide for May 30 by attacking the radicals in the style of the capitalist press, but these tactics had no effect on the overwhelming majority of the delegates present.

Candidates endorsed for committee offices by the delegates opposing any postponement of the May 30 convention were elected unanimously by acclamation.

The new officers are: Scott, chairman; Drake, vice-chairman; Miss Myrtle Cain, financial secretary-treasurer.

The meeting was in its entirety the most emphatic endorsement of the work for a class Farmer-Labor party yet given by the progressive labor elements in this city.

Radio Monopoly Charged

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A radio monopoly is charged by the federal trade commission against eight corporations listed as "violating the law" against unfair competition in trade. Practically all radio equipment and service comes thru this gigantic combine, the government charges. The accused corporations are: The Radio Corporation of America, General Electric, American Telephone and Telegraph, Westinghouse, Western Electric, International Radio, United Fruit and Wireless Specialty companies.

Johnson City Mine Horror Due to Deadly Fire Damp From Workings

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The explosion in the McClintock mine at Johnston City, which resulted in the death of 33 miners and injury to eight, was caused by fire damp, forced out of an abandoned working, becoming ignited from an open miner's lamp, in the opinion of Director Martin Bolt of the State Department of Mines and Minerals. Bolt has just returned from making an investigation of the explosion. Bolt is in Belleville on official business today.

A probe will be made to discover whether the laws relating to gas inspection had been followed out before the disaster.

PRESS PLAYS UP LEWIS DRIVE ON "BILL" FOSTER

Not Foster But Principles," Says Kennedy

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The United ... between the reactionaries in ... labor movement and the capitalist ... was again demonstrated this afternoon when the local papers here ... out with big headlines featuring ... passage of a resolution at the convention of the U. M. W. of A. attacking William Z. Foster, secretary ... the Trade Union Educational League, who spoke here a few days ago.

The resolution originated from a local union in Taylorville, Illinois, and was introduced by one Ben Williams, a staunch member of the "payroll" brigade. It charged Foster with seeking to dictate his policies to the United Mine Workers of America and several other high crimes and misdemeanors.

Kennedy Urges Concurrence

Chairman Kennedy of the resolutions committee recommended concurrence with the resolution, on the ground that the resolution came from a "legitimate" source and also that the United Mine Workers union was perfectly well able to take care of its own affairs. He declared that the committee was not inspired by any animus against Foster personally but against his principles and methods.

Foster and the things he stands for did not lack support in the convention. Delegate Thomas Parry of Illinois took the platform and in well chosen words paid testimony to the great work Foster did and is doing for the American labor movement. He referred to his leadership in the steel strike and the organization of the stock yard employees in Chicago, and asked that Foster be given the privilege of the floor to answer the charges against him.

Foster Defended

"William Z. Foster is not a disruptor of the American labor movement," declared Delegate Parry, "and I challenge any man on the floor of this convention to prove it. The things that he stands for are the things that the American working class want and the hatred that he has earned from the capitalist class is the best testimony to his worth to the labor movement."

The report of the resolutions committee was adopted by a safe majority, the payroll vote being an important nucleus which can always be relied on.

Capellini, Broken Progressive Reed Leans Against Reactionary Lewis

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (By Mail).—When Rinaldo Capellini, president of District 1, United Mine Workers of America, came to bat for the administration against the radical element at the convention, a deep feeling of disgust swept thru the sophisticated portion of the gathering, that portion that understands the art of changing progressives into reactionary henchmen.

Capellini is not an intellectual, neither is he a thug. At least not in appearance. His English is by no means perfect, but he has a good voice and can appeal to the emotions of his hearers very effectively. He is not a strong man, but he has an emotional appeal, and his empty sleeve lends pathos to his words. He reminds one somewhat of Michael Davitt, the great Irish Land Leaguer, in this respect. Of course Davitt was not a renegade. Capellini is.

Nobody doubts but that the young Italian mine leader was won over by arguments other than those that appeal to the intellect. But there is a difference of opinion among those that knew him when he cherished a book full of newspapers clippings containing attacks on him by John L. Lewis and the mine owners' for his activities in behalf of Alex Howat and the radicals in power. Some believe he was at that time a sincere progressive. Others believe that he was only catering to the progressives and once having gained office that he felt safe to dispense with his radical camouflage.

Capellini was the possessor of three automobiles and well furnished home before he was elected as president of District One. He was given the automobiles by the miners who looked up to him as a sincere and honest leader.

Capellini Outdoes Brennan

His opponent, William Brennan was considered a reactionary but it is safe to say that Brennan could not deliver a more vicious tirade against the progressive elements in the miners union than Capellini did last week.

When Capellini "wined and dined" the Communists in his district, he was under no illusions as to what they stood for. They told him what they stood for and nobody talked more vigorously than he did for progressive and radical measures, the program that he spurns today. What has happened in the meantime to account for the right-about-face?

Those who claim that Capellini was always a reactionary in disguise, point to the fact that he had his headquarters in Mulligan's barroom, his several automobiles and his comparative affluence. But merely meeting his friends in a saloon would not convict him of playing double in spite of John L. Lewis's objection to having anything to do with a bartender, other than a manufacturer, a mate business in accordance with the rules of the Bartender's' Union.

Something Happens Behind Scenes

The writer was informed by those who were acquainted with him after his election that he held to his convictions such as they were until the meeting which took place in Scranton, which among other matters decided the matter of the legality of his election as president of District 1, against his opponent William Brennan, conservative.

Something happened behind the scenes there that must have made a very strong impression on Mr. Capellini. Our readers may remember that at the beginning of that session Hallsboro Hoban, of Scranton, took the platform and flayed the radicals and eulogised Mussolini and the Italian Fascisti. Capellini after some difficulty took the platform and told the bishop where to get off at and denounced the Fascisti as enemies of the labor movement. John L. Lewis had not then arrived.

His Voice of Protest Stilled

When Mr. Lewis appeared and worked up the miners into a frenzy against the radicals that almost resulted in the murder of Joe Manley, Alex McCarthy and his wife, perhaps Capellini felt that he was up against a buzzsaw.

He did not raise a voice in protest against the murderous attack on people he had entertained as guests in his home, but allowed the mad fury created by Lewis to spend itself when he could with a few words have stopped the disgraceful scene.

Mr. Harris considered Capellini's election as president of District 1. Capellini was appointed a member of the scale committee of the anthracite region. Ever since he has been sending men back to work when they went on strike in the usual "regular" manner. His conversion to the "safe sane and conservative" policy is complete.

How long will he be able to hold his strength with those who elected him? So long as he can do that he will find room in the Lewis machine. But the general opinion is that his political career as leader in District 1, will be as short lived as his career as a radical.

Jewish Comrades In N. Y. Lead Fight for the Foreign-Born

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—The Jewish Federation of the Workers' Party in New York City has sent out a call inviting the United Hebrew Trades to take part in common action to combat the repressive laws being planned against immigrants. A similar invitation had already been sent to the central committee of the right and left Poale Zion and to the Jewish Socialist Federation.

A provisional committee will direct the fight of the Jewish laboring masses for the protection of the foreign born against repressive measures. In this provisional committee there will be representatives of locals of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, the bakers, painters, carpenters and many other unions, and also representatives of the Workmen's Circle and of political labor organizations.

A series of big protest meetings are being planned to take place in all parts of the city. A special leaflet has been issued by the Jewish Federation as a part of the campaign against the exception laws which are being planned.

Dick Trails Dick Thru Vice Dens of Old New York

NEW YORK.—Police Commissioner Richard Enright doesn't trust his own dicks, so he is using two special and very secret squads of detectives to watch the others. Just now the men who shadow the shadowers are on the trail of the vice and liquor battalion, known as the reorganized Special Service Division.

It seems that chastity and sobriety is not the invariable rule among the dicks whose duty it is to keep New York pure and sober, and some there be who prefer dalliance in the houses of sin to the cold water of the police patrol wagons with arrested ladies of easy virtues and handcuffed bootleggers. So Enright is following the motto of "set a dick to catch a dick."

But who will shadow the shadowers of the shadowers."

COMPERS WILL BREAK LANCE ON SOVIET SHIELD

Invites Himself Before Reopened Hearings

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON. — With the hope of turning the tide against the sentiment for Russian recognition, Samuel Gompers, conservative leader of the American Federation of Labor, has called upon Senator Borah for permission to testify before the committee investigating evidence of Russian propaganda in this country. The committee opens its hearing today or tomorrow.

Gompers asks that several of his associates appear with him. These may include James Duncan, vice president of the federation, Matthew Woll, chief spokesman for Gompers and Chester Wright, renegade Socialist and chief engineer of the Gompers' red-baited publicity.

The A. F. of L. hierarchy will maintain that their organization, as now constituted, is the strongest bulwark of existing social institutions in the United States, and that recognition of Russia will threaten the dominance of conservative labor policy in this country. At the Portland convention of the Federation, Matthew Woll declared that recognition would assist such movements as that represented by William F. Dunne, who had just been unseated.

Duncan is the "Russian expert" of the official family of the federation. He was a member of the Elihu Root mission to Russia in 1917 and enjoyed the confidence of the leaders of the provisional government. He also was chosen by his colleagues to speak before the Petrograd Soviet. His subject was the "Union Labor" and he spoke for an hour and a half on this safe and sane theme to the astonishment of the delegates of the Soviet, who had just overthrown czarism and capitalism.

Represent Civic Federation

Behind the Gompers' forces lurks the American Civic Federation, arch foe of Russian recognition.

Senator Borah is not enthusiastic about the continuance of the hearings, being more interested in bringing the subject of Soviet recognition direct before congress, but he has consented to give the state department and its friends another opportunity to present some of the evidence that they have failed to adduce so far.

Friends of Russian recognition will get the floor and be given an opportunity to reply to the charges that have been made against them.

Party Spokesmen May Appear

The Workers Party expects to have the opportunity to nail the lies against Soviet Russia and Communists made when the senate subcommittee resumes its hearings on the recognition of Soviet Russia. Senator Borah, after a visit from C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the party and Jay Lovestone, said he would take up their request to appear before the committee with his colleagues and expected quick action. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, is expected to send Ellis Searles, author of his anti-red publicity, as a pinch hitter for the reactionary forces. Lewis's original intention, it is learned, may be given up as the result of the strength of the labor and progressive forces at the miners' convention.

It was Senator Borah's intention to adjourn the hearings permanently and throw the whole case before the senate but demands of witnesses to appear have caused reconsideration. Borah feels that Secretary Hughes has made no case as yet, but he will continue the hearings till opportunities to present evidence have been exhausted.

N. Y. Unions Will Raise $10,000 for German Relief

NEW YORK.—The conference for the relief of German workers, called by local New York Friends of Soviet Russia and of Workers' Germany was a huge success. Two hundred and fifty delegates, representing labor unions, fraternal organizations and working class political organizations, pledged themselves to raise $10,000 for German relief. Already $3,000 has been raised and an additional $900 was pledged at the last conference meeting. A new executive committee of seventeen members, all of them hard workers, was elected. The New York branch of the F. S. R. and W. G. is all set for a hard winter's work.

The Friends of Soviet Russia and Workers' Germany national office in Chicago has just received a cable report of the recent meeting of the International Workers Relief organization, which was held in London. The Friends of Soviet Russia and Workers' Germany is the American branch of the International Workers' Relief.

At the London meeting 210 delegates from all over the world laid plans for carrying on German relief. The parliamentary committee of the British Labor Party was represented at the conference. The conference pledged the entire resources of the International Workers' Relief, which did such fine work during the Russian famine, to the work of relieving hunger in Germany this winter.

PREACHERS FIGHT FOR FREE SPEECH IN K. C. PULPITS

Insist on Right to Call Courts Crooked

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Ministers of Kansas City united today to battle against efforts of courts to curb free speech in the pulpits."

Practically every minister in the city came to the support of Rev. Burris Waters, pastor of the Budd Park Christian Church who, after attacking delays and other "loose" methods of courts in dealing with criminals, was hailed before Thad B. Landon, circuit judge, and severely reprimanded for criticising the courts.

Judge Landon demanded Rev. Waters prove his statements that "juries are fixed," and then told the minister that encouragement of criminal classes comes, not from laxness in court methods, but from violation of laws by church members. He charged many of Rev. Waters' congregation were breaking the prohibition law.

Rev. Waters characterized Judge Landon's efforts to curb his speech was a "reversion to the ancient days of oppression when the prophets were banished, tortured and imprisoned because of their criticism of civil and political evils."

"If the time ever comes when any man is denied the right to discuss the conduct of courts, then freedom will have ceased," Rev. Waters told his congregation.

A score of other ministers delivered sermons Sunday on the incident, all backing Rev. Waters' statements.

Judge Landon refused to make any answer to the ministers today and indicated the incident was closed as far as he is concerned.

What's This? The LaFollette Crowd Remembers Farmers!

WASHINGTON.—The La Follette group in the senate today appealed to American farmers to show constructive interest in measures pending before congress by their relief.

In a manifesto addressed to "farmers of the Northwest," nine progressive senators declared that relief is largely on farm relief matters without guidance from the farmers themselves.

They called on the farmers to hold old time precinct meetings in their localities, adopting resolutions stating clearly what kind of relief they desire, sign and forward them to Washington.

Senators who signed the manifesto were La Follette, Wisconsin; Ladd and Frazier, North Dakota; Brookhart, Iowa; Howell, Nebraska; Johnson and Shipstead, Minnesota; Wheeler, Montana and Dill, Washington.

General Strike Is Threatened in Argentina Friday

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUENOS AIRES.—All Argentina may be tied up by a general strike Friday morning, involving railway workers, dockers and seamen, building tradesmen, chauffeurs, retail clerks, newspaper compositors and miscellaneous crafts.

The labor unions declare they will walk out if the government attempts to put into effect the new pension law under which the workers will be assessed 9 per cent of their wages the first year and 5 per cent thereafter.

February 1 is the last day for putting into effect the new law and if the government yields to the strike threat and fails to institute the pension scheme by that date the law is automatically dead.

Magnus' Curb Is Decked by Eleven Cars of Old Crowd

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON.—Eleven limousines were standing at one time, one day, in front of Senator Magnus Johnson's little house in the suburb of Tacoma Park, here, while wives of the standpat senators and cabinet members made calls. The rule until now—when the administration needs to get support from the progressives at any price—has been that wives of new members must call first on the wives of the old crowd.

The use of the White House car, offered to Mrs. Johnson, was declined.

STEEL WORKERS RESISTING DRIVE ON FOREIGN-BORN

Pittsburgh Meeting on March 9th

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Workers of Pittsburgh and the surrounding steel and coal areas will stage a monster demonstration March 9 for the protection of foreign-born workers. Many labor organizations, the Workers Party and the Defense Council, will participate in the preparations for the meeting. The steel workers and coal miners of this district are much interested in laws Congress is contemplating against the foreign-born workers.

Congressman Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York will be one of the speakers at this meeting. Mr. LaGuardia has been very active in the fight made by progressives and insurgents for the liberalization of the reactionary rules governing the House. Colonel LaGuardia has also consistently fought all restrictive immigration legislation and has incurred the enmity of many of the Old Guard reactionaries in his party.

This meeting of March 9th will be one of the many meetings and activities arranged for by the Workers Party and the labor organizations cooperating with it in the fight for the protection of foreign-born workers.

A LETTER TO AMERICAN WORKINGMEN

By NICOLAI LENIN

(This was the first direct word that came to the American people from Nicolai Lenin after he became the recognized leader of the proletarian revolt. Early efforts to get it past the censorship lines evidently failed. It arrived in this country in August of 1918.)

Moscow, August 20, 1918.

COMRADES: A Russian Bolshevik has participated in the revolutionary movement for many years already. During all this time, however, I found no opportunity to write a letter to you. Now I am grasping this opportunity joyfully, for I want to speak to you about Russia, as far as it concerns the attitude of American imperialism toward Russia.

[illegible] Deported at Brest-Litovsk [illegible] the Anglo-French and American governments accepted the Soviet government's proposal to [illegible] Prinkipo Islands, Russian [illegible] were promised equality [illegible] were forced upon Soviet Russia. [illegible] Soviet government [illegible] Russia [illegible] Western [illegible] more daring in [illegible] Soviet government [illegible] peace negotiations [illegible] a free hand to [illegible] Russian people. It lay [illegible] of the Allied countries [illegible] negotiations [illegible] of a government [illegible] sent to throw [illegible] the Russo-German [illegible] the whole world, [illegible] they may live, [illegible] with [illegible] Russian people [illegible] in the Eighteenth and the civil war in the Nineteenth Century. Industry and commerce in 1870 were in a [illegible] worse condition than in 1920. But where can you find an American so pedantic, so absolutely idiotic as to deny the revolutionary and progressive significance of the American civil war in 1860-1865?

The representatives of the bourgeoisie understand very well that the overthrow of slavery was well worth the five years of civil war, the depth of destruction, devastation and terror, that were its accompaniment. But these same gentlemen and the reform socialists, who have allowed themselves to be swayed by the bourgeoisie and tremble at the thought of a revolution, cannot, nay, will not, see the necessity and righteousness of a civil war in Russia, the it is facing a far greater task, the work of abolishing capitalist wage-slavery and overthrowing the rule of the bourgeoisie.

Bourgeoisie Used Terror

We are accused of having brought devastation upon Russia. Who is it that makes these accusations? The brain-bearers of the bourgeoisie, of that same bourgeoisie that almost completely destroyed the culture of Europe that has dragged the whole continent back to barbarism, that has brought hunger and destruction to the world. This bourgeoisie now demands that we find a different basis for our revolution than that of destruction, that we shall not build it up upon the ruins of war, with human beings degraded and brutalized by years of warfare. O, the inhuman hypocrisy of this bourgeoisie! Its servants charge us with the use of terroristic methods. . . . Have the British forgotten their 1649, the French, their 1793? Terror was just and justified when it was employed by the bourgeoisie for its own purposes against feudal domination. But terror becomes criminal when working men and poverty stricken peasants dare to use it against the bourgeoisie. Terror was just and justified when it was used to put one exploiting minority in the place of another. But terror becomes horrible and criminal when it is used to abolish all exploiting minorities, when it is employed in the cause of the actual majority, in the cause of the proletariat and the peasantry, in the cause of the working class and the poor peasantry.

Mass Slaughter in World War

The bourgeoisie of international imperialism has succeeded in slaughtering 10 millions, in crippling 20 millions in its war. Should our war, the war of the oppressed and the exploited, against oppressors and exploiters cost a half or a whole million victims in all countries, the bourgeoisie would still maintain that the victims of the world war died a righteous death, that those of the civil war were sacrificed for a criminal cause.

But the proletariat, even now, in the midst of the horrors of war, is learning the great truth that all revolutions teach, the truth that has been handed down to us by our great teachers, the founders of modern Socialism. From them we have learned that a successful revolution is inconceivable unless it breaks the resistance of the exploiting class. When the workers and the laboring peasants took hold of the powers of state, it became our duty to quell the resistance of the exploiting class. We are proud that we have done it, that we are doing it. We only regret that we did not do it at the beginning, with sufficient firmness and decision.

Force Must Be Met With Force

We realize that the mad resistance of the bourgeoisie against the socialist revolution in all countries is unavoidable. We know too, that with the development of this revolution, this resistance and revolt in the proletariat will break down this resistance and in the course of its struggle against the bourgeoisie the proletariat will finally become ripe for victory and power.

Let the corrupt bourgeois press trumpet forth its lies that is made by our revolution out into the world. We are not afraid of our mistakes. The revolution has been exploited and foully held down by the clutches of want, of ignorance and degradation for centuries should conduct its revolution without mistakes. The dead body of bourgeois society cannot simply be put into a coffin and buried. It rots in our midst, poisons the air we breathe, pollutes our lives, clings to the new, the fresh, the living with a thousand threads and tentfolds of old customs, of death and decay.

We Learn By Mistakes

But for every hundred of our mistakes that are heralded into the world by the bourgeoisie and its sycophants, there are ten thousand great deeds of heroism, greater and more heroic because they seem so simple and unpretentious, because they take place in the every-day life of the factory districts or in secluded villages, because they are the deeds of people who are not in the habit of proclaiming their every success to the world, who have no opportunity to do so.

But even if the contary were true —I know, of course, that this is not so—but even if we had committed 10,000 mistakes to every 100 wise and righteous deeds, yes, even then our revolution would be great and invincible. And it will go down in the history of the world as triumphant. For the first time in the history of the world not the minority, not alone the rich and the educated, but the real masses, the huge majority of the working class itself, are building up a new world, are settling the most difficult questions of social organization out of their own experience.

Every mistake that is made in this work, in this honestly conscientious co-operation of ten million plain workingmen and peasants in the recreation of their entire lives—every such mistake is worth thousands and millions of "faultless" successes of the exploiting minority in outwitting and taking advantage of the laboring masses. For only thru these mistakes can the workers and peasants learn to organize their new existence, to get along without the capitalist class. Only thus will they be able to blaze their way thru thousands of hindrances to victorious socialism.

Mistakes are being made by our workmen in their revolutionary activity, which in a few short months, have placed practically all of the larger factories and works under state ownership, and are now learning, day to day, under the greatest difficulties, to conduct the management of entire industries, to reorganize industries already organized, to overcome the deadly resistance of laziness and middle class reaction and egotism. Stone upon stone they are building the foundation for a new social community, the self-discipline of labor, the new rule of the labor organizations of the working class over their members.

Pioneer Work

Mistakes are being made in their revolutionary activity by the Soviets which were first created in 1905 by the gigantic upheaval of the masses. The Workmens' and Peasants' Soviets are a new type of state, a new highest form of democracy, a particular form of the dictatorship of the proletariat, a mode of conducting the business of the state without the bourgeoisie and against the bourgeoisie. For the first time democracy is placed at the service of the masses, of the workers, and ceases to be democracy for the rich.

Hollowness of Bourgeois Democracy

While the old bourgeois democratic constitutions, for instance, proclaimed formal equality and the right of free assemblage, the constitution of the Soviet Republic repediates the hypocrisy of a formal equality of all human beings. When the bourgeois republicans overturned feudal thrones, they did not recognize the rules of formal equality of monarchists. Since we here are concerned with the task of overthrowing the bourgeoisie, only fools or traitors will insist on the formal equality of the bourgeoisie. The right of free assemblage is not worth an iota to the workers and the peasant when all better meeting places are in the hands of the bourgeoisie. Our Soviets have taken over all usable buildings in the cities and towns out of the hands of the rich and have placed them at the disposal of the workmen and peasants for meeting and organization purposes. That is how our right of assemblage looks—for the workers. That is the meaning and content of our Soviet, of our socialist constitution.

And for this reason we are firmly convinced that the Soviet Republic, whatever misfortune may still lie in store for it, is unconquerable.

It is unconquerable because every blow that comes from the lowers of madly raging imperialism, every new attack by the international bourgeoisie will bring new, and hitherto unaffected strata of working men and peasants into the fight, will educate them at the cost of the greatest sacrifice, making them hard as steel, awakening new heroism in the masses.

International Revolution Delayed

We know that it may take a long time before help can come from you, comrades, American Workingmen, for the development of the revolution in the different countries proceeds along various paths, with varying rapidity (how should it be otherwise!). We know full well that the outbreak of the European proletarian revolution may take many weeks to come, quickly as it is ripening in these days. We are counting on the inevitability of the international revolution. But that does not mean that we count upon its coming at some definite, nearby date. We have experienced two great revolutions in our own country, that of 1905 and that of 1917, and we know that revolutions can come neither at a word of command nor according to prearranged plans. We know that circumstances alone have pushed us, the proletariat of Russia, forward, that we have reached this new stage in the social life of the world not because of our superiority but because of the peculiarly reactionary character of Russia. But until the outbreak of the international revolution, revolutions in individual countries may still meet with a number of serious setbacks and overthrows.

Soviet Russia Invincible

And yet we are certain that we are invincible, for humanity will not emerge from this imperialistic massacre broken in spirit, it will triumph. Ours was the first coming to break the chains of imperialistic warfare. We broke them with the greatest sacrifice, but they are broken. We stand outside of imperialistic duties and considerations, we have raised the banner of the fight for the complete overthrow of imperialism for the world.

We are in a beleaguered fortress, so long as no other international socialist revolution comes to our assistance with its armies. But these armies exist, they are stronger than ours, they grow, they strive, they become more invincible the longer imperialism with its brutalities continues. Workingmen the world over are breaking with their betrayers, with their Gompers and their Scheidemanns. Inevitably labor is approaching communistic Bolshevistic tactics, is preparing for the proletarian revolution that alone is capable of preserving culture and humanity from destruction. We are invincible. The proletarian Revolution is invincible.

THE FATHERLAND AND THE SECOND INTERNATIONAL

By NICOLAI LENIN

(Lenin wrote this article on Nov. 1, 1914. The idea of the Third International is expressed for the first time in this article.)

THE question of the fatherland—this is meant for the opportunists—cannot be considered properly while the concretely historical character of this war is ignored. This was is an imperialist war, that is, a war of the epoch of the most advanced form of capitalism, the epoch of the consummation and end of capitalism. The working class first has to "establish" itself within the national frame-work, says the Communist Manifesto, while pointing out at the same time the limits and conditions of our recognition of nationality and fatherland as the indispensable forms of the capitalist system as well as of the capitalist fatherland. The Opportunists distort this truth; and that which holds true for the epoch of capitalism's start, for the transfer to the epoch of the end of Capitalism. But Karl Marx speaks clearly and distinctly of this epoch, and of the tasks of the working class in the fight to destroy, not feudalism, but capitalism. He says: "The workers have no fatherland." It is clear enough why the Opportunists are afraid to recognize this truth of Socialism, or why they are afraid, for the most part, even to take it openly into account. The Socialist movement cannot be victorious within the old framework of the fatherland. It creates new, higher forms of human co-operation, for the justified needs and forward looking endeavors of the laboring masses of every nation-

TROTZKY'S MESSAGE

"With the light of Leninism in our hand, we shall find the true road, by collective thought and collective will."

Lenin

By SIMON FELSHIN

In the Children's Homes
The orphans are weeping
For their father, who is dead.
The men of the Red Army
Stand at attention.
The men of the Red Army
Who never bow their heads
Are bowed with grief.

I am standing in the snow,
I am there in Moscow.
We are eight abreast waiting
My heart is lying in the snow
Waiting to see Lenin.
I go by and look at his face,
It is the last time,
Our leader is lying dead

I know in Russia
Humble women are wailing.
Men are weeping.

I know in Russia
The peasants are grieving.
Because Ilyitch is dead.

In the whole world
There is mourning
In the homes of the poor
A rending cry arises from the lower depths.

The cautious ones in our midst say:
"We must make Lenin's retreats."
We reply:
"First make Lenin's advances."

Our enemies say:
"Lenin, the dictator."
Our answer is:
"Lenin, the leader."

The wiseacres say:
"It's all over with Russia."
But we answer:
"Leninism lives."

Lenin on De Leon

Told By ARTHUR RANSOME

LENIN said he had read in an English Socialist paper a comparison of his own theories with those of an American, Daniel Le Leon. He had then borrowed some of De Leon's pamphlets from Reinstein (who belonged to the party which De Leon founded in America), read them for the first time, and was amazed to see how far and how early De Leon had pursued the same train of thought as the Russian. His theory that reprsentation should be by industries, not by areas, was already the germ of the Soviet system. He remembered seeing De Leon at an International Congress. De Leon made no impression at all, a gray old man, quite unable to speak to such an audience, but evidently a much bigger man than he looked, since his pamphlets were written before the experience of the Russian Revolution of 1905. Some days afterwards I noticed that Lenin had introduced a few phrases of De Leon, as if to do honor to his memory, into the draft of the new programme of the Communist Party.

THE LIGHT OF LENINISM

the destiny of European culture. If there are not a series of successful revolutions, the war will be followed by other wars—the myth of the "last war" is a fist, injurious fairy-tale, a opium "mystery." Today or tomorrow, after the present war if not during it—in this war or the next year, the proletarian banner of civil war will rally, not only hundreds of thousands of class-conscious workers, but also millions of semi proletarians and petty bourgeois at present misled by chauvinism, who are not only terrified and disgusted by the frightfulness of war but are being taught, enlightened, awakened, organized, steeled; and they will be prepared for war against the capitalist class of their "own" country as well as of "foreign" countries.

The Second International is dead, vanquished by Opportunism. Down with Opportunism and long live a Second International purified of "deserters" as well as of Opportunism!

The Second International has done its share of useful work of preparation in organizing the proletarian masses during the long "period of peace," during the cruelest of days, of enslavement and the most rapid capitalist advance in the third part of the nineteenth and the beginning of the twentieth century. Upon the Third International devolves the task of organizing the forces of the working class for the revolutionary onslaught against the capitalist government; for civil war against the capitalist class of all countries, to secure political power and the victory of Socialism!

LENIN THE REALIST - - -

By KARL RADEK

LIKE everything else in nature, Lenin was born, has developed, has grown. When Vladimir Ilyitch once reviewing, after glancing through a collection of his articles written in the year 1908, which had just been published, my smile aroused his interest and he examined with a laugh: "It is very interesting to read what foolish fellows we were!" But I do not intend to measure the stature of Lenin, shall at the age of 19, 30, or 40, with the shall of that man who governs over the one-sixth part of the earth's surface as Chairman of the Council of Peoples' Commissaries. Here it is not a question of Lenin as a human being, human being P. Axelrod, one of the fathers of Russian Social-Democracy, who knew Lenin from the beginning of his activity, once said to me: "I feel at times," he said, "as if I were looking at a chess player who is playing against himself. Lenin is the master of the Russian revolution. Not only was he an organizer and the inspirer of the revolution, but he knew what he had to do and how it was to be done. He was constantly thinking about the next step, and when he had taken it, he was not satisfied, but was already thinking about the next one. He was not content with the fact that he had led the party to victory, but was already thinking about how to make use of this victory for the next step, and then for that to follow. He was not satisfied

DRAG OUT BODIES OF DEAD MINERS; PROBE DEMANDED

Rescuers Fight Way Thru Gas and Water

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BRANKTOWN, Pa.—Groping thru gas filled corridors with the water reaching about the boots, rescuers are digging out one by one the bodies of the victims of the blast explosion that took more than forty lives in the Barnes and Tucker Coal company.

Thirty-six bodies have already been brought to the surface and stretched out in an emergency morgue at Star Ford, near here. Recovery of the bodies has been delayed by the almost insurmountable difficulties in which they are working.

Four May Be Buried Alive.

Possibility that four other men are still entombed and alive is arousing the rescuers to the most determined efforts, tho they are exhausted by 12 hours of exhausting toil, broken by meager periods of rest.

Officials of the United Mine Workers, District No. 2, are demanding a probe of the disaster that will unearth all the facts of the gas conditions that snuffed out the lives of their 40 fellow workers. State mine inspectors are expected to start their inquiry today.

• • • •

Hold Inquest Today.

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill.—The coroner's inquest this morning into the causes of the deaths of the miners who lost their lives in the terrific gas explosion in the east mine of the Crerer-Clinch Coal company is eagerly awaited by the population of Williamson county.

Witnesses will be called to tell of gas conditions immediately preceding the disaster. It is charged by miners that mining laws have been ignored by the company in the past.

Men who escaped uninjured will appear in person at the inquest and depositions will be taken from survivors who are confined to their hospital cots by burns and the effect of the gas fumes.

Rescuers are still penetrating the shattered workings of the 280-foot level in the hope of recovering the bodies of six men still said to be missing.

Johnston City is wrapped in gloom over the awful disaster. Nearly every family is connected by ties of friendship, if not of blood, with the victims of the catastrophe.

West Frankfort Miner Killed.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill.—Vernon Burton, 30, died in a hospital here, a few hours after he was caught under a fall of coal in mine Eighteen of the Industrial Coal company. He had a wife and one child.

Both Daugherty and Denby Are Due for the Discard made against them are not yet sufficient for arousing indignation.

One resolution, however, has already been introduced, demanding the impeachment of Denby.

Senator Walsh is scheduled to take further direct action against Denby today.

As a consequence, Senator Caraway, for one, is prepared to turn the guns directly upon the White House. "Mr. Coolidge was the first vice-president to sit with the cabinet. Senator Walsh has called the senate's attention to the Fall letter of June 1923, in which the then secretary mentioned that the oil leases were discussed at cabinet meetings.

"Where was Mr. Coolidge while the cabinet was discussing the legality of the 'Teapot Dome lease'" Caraway intends to ask.

The investigating committee refused this morning to accept an invitation to go to Fall's house to question him.

Upon the suggestion of Senator Walsh, it was decided that physicians who have been attending Fall will appear before the committee tomorrow to give an opinion as to when Fall's health will permit him to appear.

Oil Dome Twins.

With the attack shifting from former Secretary of the Interior Fall to Mr. Coolidge and two members of his cabinet—Secretary of the Navy Denby and Attorney General Daugherty—there were indications that the administration was preparing to strike back at those critics who are trying to fasten responsibility on the Coolidge regime for what happened in the late President Harding's term.

Mr. Coolidge will not at present ask either Denby or Daugherty to resign, the White House intimated to the senate that he do so, it was stated at the White House, after the president had conferred for two hours with a group of senate leaders he summoned last night.

Washington's Greatest Sensation

By LAURENCE TODD.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—F. L. Doheny, confessing his unsecured "loan" of $100,000 to Secretary of the Interior Fall—given in cash and sent to Washington in a satchel carried by Doheny's son, at a time between the planning of the disposal of the naval oil lands and the making of the lease of the two California naval reserves to his concern—was the first of the major characters in the Teapot Dome scandal to face Senator Walsh's committee after the McLean and Roosevelt disclosures.

Doheny is a former mining prospector—weak and flabby of appearance, and given to protecting himself by boasting that he is "just an improvident, irresponsible, old-time prospector," of generous impulses and ready to lend a hundred thousand or a million of his ready money to an old-time friend like Fall. He chokes back a sob when he speaks of Fall's hard financial luck—"after he has tried all his life, like myself, to acquire money."

Committee Room Hounded.

Senators and congressmen and scores of newspaper correspondents crowd the committee room, listening for every word. Gavin McNab, lawyer to Doheny and "Iron Boss" of Democratic politics in California, sits beside him, hands trembling, waiting to put in a helpful word as to secret conferences in New Orleans with Fall, and as to proposals made in New Orleans that Doheny talk things over with Sinclair's lawyer, Zevely. Senator LaFollette, whose resolution led to the unmasking of this gigantic robbery of the public domain by Fall and his friends smiles quietly as he hears Doheny protest that the naval reserve lease was not considered by Doheny's manager to be "worth a nickel." Doheny testified a month ago that he ought to clean up $100,000,000 on the deal.

Doheny's Poor Memory.

Walsh gently asks Doheny why he sent $100,000 from New York to Washington in cash, and by his own son. Doheny cannot remember whether that was his own idea or Fall's. And about the date of the loan, with reference to the date of negotiating the lease.

Doheny began by saying that it was long before the lease, and his company knew nothing of the loan, and hence could not have been influenced by it, and that there was positively no relation between the two things.

Walsh reminds him of Admiral Robinson's testimony, showing that the whole scheme for getting rid of the naval oil reserves was decided upon in the council of the navy department at about this same time.

Spectators gain a sense of impending climax when Walsh asks Doheny whether he has conferred with any members of the senate committee since reaching town, and then demands the contents of a note which Senator Smoot has handed to Doheny. The note reads: "I want to see you in my room." Smoot laughs uneasily.

Suspect Daugherty.

Senators whisper back and forth. They remember that Walsh has told the senate that Attorney General Daugherty is "under suspicion" in this case, and that Walsh has not said that Daugherty is the only suspect. They smile when Doheny's offer to return his oil lease is read by McNab. The thing is hung on a proviso that a special commission to be named by the president shall first find that the lease was improperly secured—in other words, that the senate shall surrender the inquiry into the hands of the administration to which the suspect belongs. Daugherty is to be questioned with regard to his dropping of legal suits involving title to oil lands now held by Doheny.

Women's Minimum Wage Test Case.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The fate of the minimum wage for women in California may depend on a case now before the supreme court, involving the Golden Gate Canneries Co. of this city. The first victory of the controversy lies with the cannery, in a recent decision by Attorney General Webb of this state.

Should Be Success.

To THE DAILY WORKER: I think that THE DAILY WORKER is full of pep and it published the real stuff not the rot the capitalist papers print. There is no reason in the world why it should not make a great success.—Benjamin C. Chass, Pittsburgh, Pa.

British Actors Win Case.

LONDON.—Actors organized as the Joint Protection Committee of the Entertainment Industry, familiarly called the Actors' Association, won a victory in Justice Russell's court, when the judge upheld the right to induce theaters to break contracts with the plaintiff, the producer of a revue.

Syndicalism Jury Deadlocked.

UKIAH, Cal.—The jury in the criminal syndicalism trial of Oscar Erickson is deadlocked. The jury will probably be dismissed before long and a new trial ordered. No charge except membership in the I. W. W. was made against Erickson.

Turkey Goes Back to Liquor.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—Without a dissenting vote, the Turkish assembly abandoned the nation's prohibition experiment, adopting Ismet Pasha's scheme for restoring state monopoly of liquor.

Men, Measures and Motions at the Coal Miners' Convention

The Fourth session was quite tame. Mr. Lewis was in the chair most of the time, and the effect on the audience was electrical. Everyone on the great stage was escorted from the stage and shook hands with a smile. Several delegates were seen taking notes. No doubt this will be considered of sufficient importance to report back to their local unions as an outstanding event.

Delegates to the convention acted in silence for one minute at the convention to express their sorrow for the victims of the mine blasts in Johnson City, Illinois and Shanktown, Pa. The miners are accustomed to such incidents, approximately ten lives being sacrificed daily to the greed of the coal barons who hesitate to apply the necessary precautions to guarantee safety.

It was learned today that the local union in Johnston, Ill., which had jurisdiction over the fatal mine, called the attention of the state mining inspector to the unsafe condition of the mine. No attention was paid to this request and many lives are now sacrificed for this criminal negligence.

On recommendation of the resolutions committee one thousand dollars was voted to the defense fund of the Tom Mooney Moulders Defense Committee.

Rena Mooney addressed the convention briefly and was given an ovation out of respect for the brave man who is behind the bars in Saint Quentin. It is a pardonable digression to say here, that the Mooney case is a standing indictment of the American labor movement. Had the reactionaries who control that movement taken any real interest in his case, the capitalist government of California would have been compelled to release him long ago. The radicals saved him from the gallows and organized whatever was done to bring his case before the public. Now, the labor lieutenants of capitalism from Gompers down, donate a thousand dollars occasionally for his defense, as a sop to public opinion.

It the labor leaders were half as interested in freeing Mooney as they are in crucifying workers who violate the "sacred contract" with the boss under exceptional conditions, Tom Mooney's friends would not be obliged to depend on the tender mercies of some hypocritical political faker who may happen to have the power of liberty or servitude over that gallant battler for the workers' right.

A long resolution favoring more playgrounds, another in favor of the Kelly Bill now before Congress in behalf of better conditions for postal clerks and a diluted resolution against injunctions finished the report of the resolutions committee.

A resolution demanding that membership in the miners' union be limited to miners' sons and those in unorganized territory was voted down. The wage scale committee is said not to be in agreement over the demands to be made on the operators when they meet in Florida next month. John L. Lewis is known to favor a long term contract with the present wage scale, while the six hour day is recognized as a matter of principle. If the 20 per cent wage increase is pressed at the outset it is considered merely as a counter to the silencing of the demand for the six hour day.

A resolution was passed urging the withdrawal of all troops from occupied Germany. The German workers were entitled to political and economic freedom, under capitalism of course.

The fight on the part of the administration forces to refuse Delegate Perkovits a seat at the convention revealed the capitalist psychology of these individuals. The chairman of the committee is from the north of England, and while the writer does not hold him personally responsible for his physiognomy, John Mossop, the individual referred to, bears a striking resemblance to the hale and hearty John Bull, whose picture appears on a certain brand of British cigarettes. A typical English squire, he never expressed the slightest concern, for the miners whose livelihoods were involved in the decision of his committee, but he fell backwards in his extreme consideration for the interests of the employers. And he did this without a trace of malice. Just a reactionary fossil whose mind has not taken on a new impression for half a century.

Nick Perkovitz hates the capitalist system with a hatred that is hell. And the feeling between himself and all the coal companies that ever had the pleasure of hiring his pick is mutual. There is no love lost between them. He feels toward a coal operator much the same as a cat feels toward a dirty little mouse.

Mossop Gets Confused

When asked a question involving the human side of the coal miners' work, Chairman Mossop appeared quite confused. He never thought of Perkovitz as a human being. To Mossop the militant coal miner was an animated attachment which was a necessary adjunct to the handle on a pick or something to hang a lamp on, so that enough energy could be brought to bear on the pick to produce coal, not to provide Perkovitz with food clothing and shelter but simply to fulfill the terms of the contract. Any other aspect of the case left Mossop as ill at ease as a seal on dry land.

Delegate Hindmarsh astounded him by asking if the credentials committee solicited any information outside of that provided by the defeated candidate for convention honors from the Dowell local. Mossop seemed to think this was insulting, positively so. What had information to do with the case any how? It was enough that Perkovitz is a movement in the end, regardless of minor victories the machine may win thru its payroll vote.

"The Indianapolis administration," continued the secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, "stands before the labor movement at this convention utterly bankrupt of all plans for the salvation of the union in the present desperate crisis. The only plans for the strengthening of the union thru organization of the stratigic open shop fields and closer cooperation with the rest of the labor movement came from the left wing opposition.

"Middle of the road progressives are strewn by the wayside," declared Foster. "Only the left wing is lined up in opposition to the reactionary administration.

S. P. Opposition Shattered.

"The left wing opposition is drawn from the rank-and-file delegates. All the office holders who might otherwise be sympathetic have been whipped into line by the machine. But the left wing has the machine so worried that they are the one subject of discussion.

Foster forecast the old Socialist Party opposition within the union and its lack of a definite program and he pointed out how this Socialist Party opposition had been shattered by the process of driving out the sincere ones and absorbing the others into the machine.

Big Sentiment for Howat.

"I was much impressed with the sentiment for Howat. There are so many delegates lined up for him that he may conquer his way back into the union in spite of John L. Lewis. Lewis is not so strongly entrenched as some radicals think. An organized progressive movement can clean out the international union and put thru its own policies. That is the big thing about this convention. The progressives are organized and they are on their way to victory. It may take time, but they have taken the initial steps necessary."

LENIN ABOUT MAC DONALD

"You cannot stop a revolution."

Altho Ramsay MacDonald will try to at the last minute. Strikes and Soviets. If these two habits once get hold, nothing will keep the workers from them. And Soviets, once started, must sooner or later come to supreme power."

Minneapolis Makes Good

The workmanlike manner in which the militant trade unionists of the Minneapolis labor movement dealt with the attempt of middle-class politicians to postpone the Farmer-Labor convention scheduled for St. Paul, May 30, and thereby create confusion in the ranks of the workers and farmers will bring joy to the heart of everyone who sincerely desires to see a national class party of workers and farmers getting its first fighting experience in the arena of the 1924 campaign.

The DAILY WORKER is out to build a solidly organized, class-conscious and well-disciplined Farmer-Labor party; it knows that the task is too big for it alone, and for the Workers Party of America whose official organ it is.

It therefore welcomes such able assistance in the movement to which it is committed as was rendered on last Monday evening by the militant trade union elements who, tho they may not see eye to eye with us on many things, are for the Communist policy of the united front against middle-class politicians, reactionary labor union officials and the capitalist system.

Our comrades in Minneapolis have reason to be proud of the efficient manner in which the offensive against the May 30 convention was halted.

The result of the attempt to postpone the May 30 convention has been to strengthen the movement in the Twin Cities, to bring closer all elements sincerely committed to a national class party and to prove to the LaFollettes, Shipsteads and Johnsons with considerable conclusiveness that leadership and skill in practical maneuvering are not solely in the possession of middle-class senators fortunate enough to be elected by workers and farmers.

We believe that the action of the Minneapolis meeting will do much to convince William Mahoney, editor of the Minnesota Labor Advocate, who broached the postponement proposition, that he has made a mistake and seriously under-estimated the strength of the sentiment for the convention which he was largely instrumental in calling in his home town for May 30.

The Monday night meeting was not only a victory for Minneapolis militants. It was also a victory for the national Farmer-Labor party movement.

A continuation of such efforts will make certain the consummation of the efforts for the formation of a national Farmer-Labor party in St. Paul, May 30.

The Den of Thieves

A New York judge waxed indignant in sentencing the head of one of the metropolitan bucketing firms. This wizard of finance was given a sentence of from six months to three years in the penitentiary. Judging from our experiences with such sentences on the sons of the wealthy, we are sure that this will be a maximum sentence of six months.

What was the crime of this "bucketeer"? In the judge's charge we find a rather interesting explanation. At one juncture the judge explained: "This man's firm operated bucket shops, and they were dens of thievery! Pitiable stories have been told me by customers, some of whom have been widows who lost all they had. I cannot overlook what has been going on in Wall Street. I believe the place is rotten to the core."

This is rather strange. We have always been told that Wall Street was the sanctum sanctorum of individual initiative, of capitalist success, of the greatest achievements of American enterprise. Why this complete right about face? When does success become sinister?

The trouble is just this: Rabiner got caught. If Rabiner had not been caught, his activities would not be sinister. The judge would not have said a word about the poor widows who were losing every cent in their efforts to reap to fruits of individual enterprise. If Mr. Rabiner had succeeded in escaping for a number of years longer, who knows what he might have been given the job of Secretary of United States Treasury. There is nothing that succeeds like success—especially in Wall Street.

Just as a helpful suggestion to members of what will go down in history as the "Teapot cabinet," we quote the following from one of George Ade's Fables in Slang:

"One time an investigating committee was about to Get Something On Him for Dallying with the Profiteers, but he Donned a Fresh White Tie and made a speech about Our Heroic Dead on a Hundred Battlefields and most everyone said that such a Thunderous Patriot could not possibly be a Crook."

"The World" Is a Liar

In a correspondent of the New York World, last December, visited Moscow, Petrograd and slandering the Soviet Republic.

The other day, writing up the hearings on Soviet Russia conducted by Borah's sub-committee, this correspondent allowed his imagination full play.

Quoting his story, appearing in The World of January 22nd, we read: Mamaev, Death Company Secretary Regarding Hughes's Secretary Hughes made known thru Hilton Young, Chief of the Eastern European Division, that confidential information upon which this attitude was based would be supplied the committee—but only in secret session. It was explained that otherwise the lives of the State Department's informants would be imperilled."

The question in dispute before the Senate Committee was whether the American Communists were being financed by the Third International. The State Department charged, but could not prove it. Borah demanded that the State Department make good its charge or withdraw it and cease spreading misinformation. The World correspondent was present thruout the whole tussle between the State Department witness and Senator Borah. It was a vital point in the proceedings. Every newspaper man was on the job to get a big story.

The next morning the writer showed The World's report to the Associated Press man and he was revolted by its outright lies. The DAILY WORKER correspondent then consulted the stenographer's official minutes on this point. We find on page 83 of the proceedings the following record of what actually was said: "Senator Borah: 'You state now that your fear is that the life of the party who conveyed you the information would be imperilled?'

"Kelley (State Department): 'No, sir; I state that there is certain information of which the sources cannot be disclosed that is available to the committee in executive session.' Senator Borah: 'Of course, the Committee may do as it pleases, but I do not want any secret information myself. You may proceed.'"

Here we have it. The World correspondent is just a plain liar. He was merely serving the capitalist owners of his job. This incident simply shows that the workers must have their own press, that the workers cannot trust even the most liberal of capitalists newspapers. The workers must have their own press to serve them as the capitalists have their press serving the employing class.

Gompers' Democracy

We are not going to recite all the anti-democratic acts of Mr. Sam Gompers. But the other night after the State Department fired its first gun against the movement for American recognition of Soviet Russia, Mr. Gompers and his agents held a "rousing rally" in the Capitol against the resumption of normal relations with the First Workers and Farmers Republic. At this meeting, addressed by a gentleman traveling under the rather modest name of Mr. Sensinoff, and posing as an advisor of the defunct Kerensky regime, there occurred an incident typifying the democracy Mr. Gompers and his ilk stand for.

After Mr. Sensinoff had delivered his weird tale of the horrors of Sovietism, a delegate to the Central Labor Union of Washington, Mr. Primoff, got up and requested that both sides be heard and that someone be invited to address the Central Labor Body on the other side of the Russian recognition case—in favor of Russian recognition. Forthwith, E. F. McGrady, one of Gompers' legislative advisors, and others, leaped to their feet in a mad attempt to stop the treasonable remarks of delegate Primoff. These aristocrats of the American labor movement, who have shed so many tears in behalf of the rights of freedom of speech and press for all pogrom hooligans and counter-revolutionists in Russia showed their hand.

They showed by their threat to have Primoff withdrawn as a delegate from one of the Federal Employes' Unions, that they believe in democracy only when it serves the interests of the exploiters and enemies of labor. Mr. Gompers' agents in putting the lid on delegate Primoff, exposed themselves completely as being advocates of capitalist democracy—of that fraudulent democracy under which the workers are exploited, their strikes are broken, the farmers are dispossessed, and the mass of people kept in subjection. Mr. Gompers and his friends in this meeting unmasked themselves as enemies of genuine democracy—working class democracy.

Resentful Renegades

All of the renegades, John Spargo among them, who ran to the shelter of capitalism when this country went into the world war, have been writing articles to show that Soviet Russia and the Communist Party of Russia have forsaken communism and gone back to capitalism.

Now that renewed efforts are being made to force recognition of Soviet Russia by the House of Morgan government of our fair land these same renegades are filling the capitalist press with articles showing that Soviet Russia has abolished private property in natural resources and want to have us do the same thing.

Traitors are hard to satisfy.

Now is the time for admirers of President Coolidge to dig up his articles on the menace of radicalism in our schools and colleges to prove that he could not have been connected in any discreditable manner with the theft of the naval oil reserves.

BALIEFF OFFERS OPTICAL MIRACLE ON GARRICK STAGE

Chauve-Souris Successor Has Many Surprises

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN

Balieff's second bill at the Chauve-Souris, in the last week at the Garrick theatre, is a series of surprises in stage setting. In spite of much that is new and the much talked of verbal scrambles of Mr. Balieff, the principal appeal of the show is to the eye, and the credit for these optical miracles must go to Soudekine, the stage designer. Sometimes he surprises us by his abnormities, and then again by the simplicity of his means.

In the sketch entitled "The Duke of Marlborough Goes to War," five priests chant many verses of a song, the melody of which is a glorified version of "We Won't Go Home Till Morning," and the action is carried on by a series of huge and grotesque painted silhouettes in the background.

One number, called "The Chinese Billikens," consists of a Chinese altar, around which are four red billikens, immovable, except for heads and wrists, sneezing rhythmically, while a glorious lady, in Louis XIV dress, who doesn't really belong in the picture at all, dances daintily.

The famous "Katinka" scene a color bomb explodes all over the stage, and somewhat the same effect is produced in the one called "The Barber of Seville." In this last, seven characters from the popular Italian opera sit in a sort of brilliantly colored semicircle. Their bodies are built into the scene, but the heads and arms are their own.

An example of Soudekine's simplicity is in the setting for a Danish dance. The stage holds only a huge silver plate, stood on edge, showing fishing boats painted in blue.

In a few places the show falls flat. These are the sentimental songs, which are a little better than the horrors perpetrated between pictures at our movie "palaces," relieved, perhaps, of some of their banality by the fact that one can not understand the language in which they are sung.

Balieff himself sometimes actually uses a word identifiable as English. His principal effect lies in the way he ends his sentences when one is expecting him to say more.

Musically, the climax of the second bill is in the gypsy scene. Some forty voices join in a great, roaring, bawling wild chorus, as the curtain falls.

British Rail Tie-Up Ends; Victory, Says J. Bromley

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON.—The new labor government cleared its first hurdle thru settlement of the national railway strike which was reached at 5 o'clock this morning after an all-night conference of railway mangers and union leaders.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald learned the news over the telephone before breakfast and left for Edinburg shortly afterwards on a private visit, obviously a greatly relieved man.

J. Bromley, leader of the striking locomotive engineers and firemen, said after the conference broke up:

"The terms reached were most satisfactory. The men will return to work immediately."

Another strike official said the service would be back to normal by night.

The strike lasted just eight days. The men went out on the night of the 20th, after negotations failed. The strike was timed to coincide with wage reductions announced by the national wage board, to which engineers and firemen objected.

The walkout affected some 70,000 men, traffic was tied up on some lines and ran disjointedly and spasmodically on others; there was some violence in Scotland but no casualties. Motor lorries and airplanes were used in great numbers to relieve the situation.

3,000,000 Women at Work in U. S. and Mostly Poorly Paid

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Industrial poisons, social legislation, women workers and labor education were discussed by experts who addressed conventions of the Consumers' league conference here.

Speaking on the subject of dangers, Dr. Alice Hamilton, Harvard medical school, dwelt upon the primitive status of protection against industrial poisons in America. The frequency of lead poisoning is 15 times greater in America than in British potteries, she said. "Meanwhile," added Dr. Hamilton, "the use of dangerous substances in our industries is increasing."

Difficulties which confront the American worker, seeking compensation in case of illness or injury, were described by Mrs. Maud Swartz, National Women's Trade Union league. The worker does not know the law. Often, he does not even understand the language of the court. Mrs. Swartz concluded by indicating measures now being undertaken to aid foreign workers in legal and medical affairs.

Miss Mary Anderson, director, women's bureau, U. S. department of labor, reported 8,500,000 women at work in the United States, and more than 2,000,000 of these married. The speaker described women's situation in American industry as "the most monotonous and most poorly paid."

High Living Costs Hit France Hard; People Dissatisfied

PARIS.—The high cost of living has hit France with a vengeance. France is at the beginning of the same economic crisis thru which the little "neutral" countries had to pass right after the world war, and which Austria and Germany are still facing.

The best index to the dissatisfied temper of the people is the recent demonstration of the Paris policemen who were mercilessly clubbed down by the soldiery.

Following the police, the civil service and government employes of every description are now holding a series of protest meetings, in Paris, Lyons, Angers and many provincial towns. They are urgently clamoring for better pay to meet the rising cost of living.

French Legions Dominate Europe But Franc Drops

PARIS—France has taken the position formerly occupied by Germany in Europe. The legions of France are now superior in numbers and efficiency to the armed hosts of the Kaiser before the fatal August day in 1914, when the goose step of Wilhelm's army corps shook Europe.

In spite of a declining birth rate, France hopes to maintain her present military hegemony by military alliances all the way from Belgium in Western Europe to Poland in Eastern Europe.

The only fly in the French ointment just now is the Franc. It is falling steadily and while not yet a vaudeville joke like the mark its condition is serious enough to warrant calling in the financial doctors.

Courts for the Orgy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Injunction bill sought by the government to restrain the New York coffee and sugar exchange from speculative dealings in futures, which was refused by the federal court in New York, was also refused by the supreme court today.

In appealing to the supreme court, the attorney general charged that an "orgy of speculation in raw sugar from February to April, 1923 resulted in the artificial increase in the price of sugar from $3.56 to $5.97 per hundred pounds.

SWEET CHARITY

Cleveland has just finished its drive for $4,200,000.00 for the filling of its charity chest, to meet the needs of its destitute citizens for the coming year of 1923. The papers are full of stuff about the poor, and how the "big-hearted corporations" are donating thousands of dollars to relieve the suffering of these unfortunates.

Alongside of the story of the starving workers is the statement that the American Steel pays an extra dividend of 1.1-4 per cent on its stock.

DETROIT, MICH.

READERS ATTENTION

NOTICE—A meeting of the members of the Workers Party in Detroit is called for Friday, Feb. 1st, at 8:00 P. M., in the House of the Masses, 2101 Gratiot Ave., for the purpose of making final arrangements to take care of the Lenin Memorial Meeting, which will be held in Arena Gardens, 5810 Woodward Ave., Sunday, Feb. 3rd, at 2:00 P. M. sharp. An overflow meeting is expected, and an efficient handling of the crowd will require a perfect organization. All Party members will therefore attend the Friday evening meeting to receive their assignment of work for Sunday afternoon.

Additional Facts Unearthed by Daily Worker Show Probe of Firetrap Mere White Wash

The report of the second day's work of the investigation from the board of education, the bureau of fire prevention and building commissioners' office gives further ground for the charge made by the DAILY WORKER that the inspection being carried on by these offices under the direction of the business manager of the board of education is a mere whitewash.

Mr. Daniel E. Burns, the business manager, said the report indicated that "There is nothing to be alarmed about. Nothing startling has been uncovered. All the schools visited by the inspectors passed the inspection all right."

The investigation is being carried on under Mr. Burns' personal direction. Inspectors from the bureau of fire prevention and the building commissioner's office have been assigned to work with an inspector from the engineer's office of the board of education. These three inspectors make their reports directly to Mr. Burns.

A week ago when the bureau of fire prevention made their yearly report to the Mayor they said that a list of public schools which are a menace to life would be sent him. In spite of the fact that two inspectors have been working on the preparation of the list for a week it is not yet ready. Is this list being held up until the board of education white washes itself?

New Architect Appointed

It will be recalled that the board of education appointed a new architect, who will have charge of the engineering department, and the department which handles the repair and remodeling of old school buildings. This appointment followed within a few days the statement of the chief engineer of the board that more than fifty public schools are unsafe and unfit for use.

Since the board of education appointed a new architect and given him control of the engineering department in order to have some one to stand between the public and the man who declared fifty or more school buildings unfit for use?

Visits Fallon School

One of the schools visited by the inspectors Monday was the Fallon school, at Wallace and Root Sts., in the district "behind the yards." The Fallon school has classes for crippled children and is not an ordinary school. Special attention has been paid there to the needs of crippled children. The fire inspectors found every thing "all right."

That they should find every thing "all right" is not surprising since the Fallon school has been devoting itself to these problems. Mr. Burns did not say what other schools were visited by the inspectors but did say that they found every thing "all right" in the schools they did visit.

Yesterday the DAILY WORKER investigator visited the Moseley school, 3724 Michigan Ave. and 24th St. In that school more than a thousand children are accomodated in 24 rooms in 882 seats. Twelve divisions of the school are on the double shift system. The first class attends from 8:00 a. m. to 12:15 and the second from 12:30 till 4:00 p. m.

Built in 1856

The school, a three story building, the original part of which was erected in 1856 does not have either fire escapes or a sprinkler system. The fire extinguishers are of the oldest style and few in number.

The pupils are mostly Negro children. The discipline seems to be very lax.

The stairs are of the winding narrow sort found in most of the older school buildings. There is nothing fire proof about the building. In many of the class rooms a low partition a few feet from the wall serves as a cloak room.

The assembly room is an ordinary class room. The chairs used are not fastened to the floor. The gymnasium is also an ordinary class room with very little gymnastic equipment.

There are classes for subnormal, anaemic and tubercular children. The classes for the tubercular children is an ordinary class room with army cots and in no way adapted for the special use to which it is put.

Lunch Room Inadequate.

The lunch room serves more than 250 children a day and is small and inadequate. The boys' toilet is in the basement and the equipment is of the oldest sort. The place is dark and dirty. Because the boys' play room in the basement is darker and dirtier on cold and wet days many of the boys hang around the toilet, using it as a play room.

Many of the younger children's class rooms are on the third floor. Since there is no fire escape this is especially dangerous. The principal, Leona Thorne, said that she could not see the good of fire escapes as many of the children would not know how to use them. She herself was not sure she could use one, she added.

In contrast to the building used as a school by the children of workers is the Standard Club, across Michigan Avenue. It is housed in a large stone building with fire escapes on four sides. It is equipped with elevators and a magnificent gymnasium that is used about a tenth as much as the school gym. In contrast to the facilities for the tubercular children the club has several sun parlors and a fine roof garden.

Club Furnishes Big Contrast.

Almost any one of the rooms in the club would make two of the school rooms. The school has 21 teachers, the club has nearly a hundred servants. The school has poor lights, the club is well lighted with windows and has the most modern system of indirect lighting.

The school ashes and garbage are piled up in the playground near one of the entrances. The club has its garbage taken from an alley in the rear, far away from the entrance where the members pass. The club has a fine library; the school has none.

The people who belong to the club are rich, the kids who go to the Moseley school are the kids of the workers.

DEFENSE COUNCIL TO TELL SENATE LIST OF OUTRAGES

Pennsylvania Facts to Go Before Committee

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Facts regarding the violation of constitutional rights of free speech by officers of various subdivisions of the United States government will be presented to the senate committee on education and labor of which Senator Borah is chairman.

After a conference with Andrew T. McNamara, president of District Council No. 6, of International Association of Machinists and chairman of the Labor Defense and Free Speech Council of Western Pennsylvania, and Fred H. Merrick, district organizer Workers Party in Pittsburgh, and Jay Lovestone, Senator Borah agreed to have the facts in the denial of civil liberties to Pittsburgh and McKeesport workers presented to his committee when it will open the hearings on his bill making the violation of civil liberties by an officer of the United States government punishable by a fine of $5,000 and imprisonment of ten years.

The Labor Defense and Free Speech Council of Western Pennsylvania, is now gathering all evidence regarding the violation of constitutional rights of the workers and is preparing to put its whole case before the senate committee as soon as it is called. In the meanwhile all defense efforts will be rendered with redoubled energies in the Pittsburgh district.

Members of the Young Workers League in co-operation with The DAILY WORKER, are distributing copies of The DAILY WORKER at various schools in Chicago. Sam Green, who is in charge of the work for the Y. W. L., reports that both the older children and the schools and their parents are very much interested in the articles on the schools.

In South Chicago, near the Thorp school, Green says the parents to whom he gave The DAILY WORKER praised its courage in exposing the school conditions and the point of view of the articles. Many of the people to whom Green gave the papers asked where they could get copies regularly so as to be able to follow the articles from day to day.

LEWIS LOSES CONTROL OF MINERS' CONVENTION

Big Auditorium Is Too Small For Lenin Meet

NICOLAI LENIN MEMORIAL IS HUGE AFFAIR

Every Hall in the Great Ashland Auditorium Filled

Chicago workers filled every hall in Ashland Auditorium last night, jammed the hallways, overflowed into the streets and in the monster Lenin memorial meeting, under the auspices of the Workers Party of America, showed that the death of the great leader and teacher of the working class, even the foreshadowed by many months of illness, has come as a shock to thousands of Chicago toilers.

The stage of the auditorium was a mass of red carnations, wreaths and streamers. They filled the platform and had to be moved so the Freiheit Singing Society, the interpretive dancer from the Studio Players and the speakers could appear.

Show Daily Worker.

Moving pictures of Lenin in action and a reproduction of the first page of the DAILY WORKER carrying the news of his death were shown. The great mass of spectators were of two minds. It wanted to applaud Lenin's picture and the new fighting daily paper of the workers but it felt that the solemnity of the occasion prohibited such a demonstration but as the speakers began to emphasize the message of Lenin and the Third International the audience threw off all restraint and shook the building with their manifestations of approval.

The Young Workers League was much in evidence. Its members took charge of the overflow meetings and sold the DAILY WORKER. Marty Abern, its secretary, delivered three speeches to as many meetings and during the hour it required for the great crowd to leave the building, the members of the League were taking applications of adults for the Workers Party and of girls and boys for their own organization.

International in Character.

The international character of the meeting was evident when Arne Swabeck, district organizer for the Workers Party, announced that speeches would be made in Russian and Italian as well as English. Following these speakers Marty Abern spoke for ten minutes on what Lenin had done for the young workers of the world.

Lovett Fort Whiteman paid a tribute to Lenin on behalf of the negro workers.

Robert Minor, editor of the Liberator, spoke of the love of Lenin for the children and of his interest in the workers problems. He was never too tired or busy, said Minor, to hear the views of workers, peasants and all the humble toilers of great Russia.

William F. Dunne, labor editor of the DAILY WORKER, spoke for ten minutes on the tasks of the Communist movement and the new burdens and responsibility placed upon it by the death of Nicolai Lenin, its teacher.

William Z. Foster spoke on Lenin as the thinker, man of action and strategist of the revolutionary movement. He stressed the point that

FORD SCRAPPED BY PROGRESSIVE PEOPLE'S PARTY

Support of Coolidge Gets Him the Axe

OMAHA, Neb. — Henry Ford's name will not be presented to the national convention of the Peoples' Progressive Party as a presidential candidate, delegates to the convention decided as the convention got under way this afternoon.

Ford's announcement that he favors President Coolidge in the forthcoming election, alienates him from the progressive movement and eliminates him as a presidential possibility, R. R. Pointer, Fort Dearborn, Mich., personal friend and booster of Ford, said.

The convention was primarily called for the purpose of nominating Ford.

Eighteen delegates, representing as many states, were in their seats when Temporary Chairman Roy Harrop, Omaha, called the meeting to order.

Resolutions denouncing the federal reserve system and the Teapot Dome scandals were presented and passed unanimously.

Dirty Work In Secret.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. — The house military affairs committee went into executive session today to decide upon a report to the house on the disposition of Muscle Shoals.

CAPELLINI DISOWNED BY DELEGATES FROM HIS OWN DISTRICT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Rinaldo Capellini, president of District 1, was repudiated by delegates from his own district yesterday, because of his support of the Lewis machine, when Alex Campbell, a delegate from Capellini's own local, voted against the machine on roll-call as did delegates from Pittston, Pa., hitherto regarded as a Capellini stronghold.

Obregon Forces Defeat Troops of De La Huerta

TAMPICO.—De la Huerta fascisti were beaten off after a desperate attempt to capture the Los Naranjo oil fields which were the objective, General Emiliano Menachs was left on the field among the dead.

Wholesale arrests of fascist sympathizers are being made by the Obregon government. Harry G. Rush, a prominent German resident, was among the men arrested.

March on Vera Cruz.

MEXICO CITY.—Orizaba's army has been captured by Obregon's forces and the federal troops are continuing their victorious march towards Vera Cruz, the capital of de la Huerta.

Standard and British oil interests are watching the campaign with intense interest for on its outcome depend their plans. De la Huerta is believed to have sympathy of British and European interests, and should he win the Standard would have to undertake negotiations with him.

Wallace Plan Boosts Living Costs.

ILLINOIS MINERS WILL MOURN FOR LENIN SUNDAY

Many Towns Will Hold Memorial Meetings

Lenin Memorial meetings in Missouri, Iowa and thru the great mining fields of southern Illinois will bring out many thousands of mourners for their beloved comrade who lies under the Kremlin walls.

One of the meetings will be held in Johnston City, Ill., which lies under the crushing sorrow of the great mine disaster but where the miners insist on doing honor to Lenin.

The meetings are arranged by District No. 10 of the Workers Party and are enlisting the co-operation of labor and community organizations. They will form the greatest series of mass demonstrations this tri-state district has seen for a long time.

Sunday evening at eight o'clock, Musicians' Hall, at 3535 Pine street, St. Louis, will be crowded, with John J. Ballam, speaking. Ballam will speak at 10 a. m. the same day at Madison, Ill., at Sakes Hall, and at 2 p. m. at Belleville, Ill.

The other meetings are as follows: Ziegler, Ill., Lithuanian Hall, Sunday, Feb. 3, at 2 p. m., Max Schactman, speaking.

Christopher, Ill., Miners' Hall, Sunday, Feb. 3, 7 p. m.

Collinsville, Ill., Sunday, Feb. 3, at 7 p. m., local speakers.

Johnston City, Ill., Sunday, Feb. 3, at 7 p. m., local speakers.

Miners Sing While Lewis Rages

By JOHN FITZGERALD.
(Staff Correspondent of The Daily Worker)

TOMLINSON HALL, INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 30.—The United Mine Workers' convention adjourned at five o'clock tonight in disorder after President John L. Lewis had lost complete control and had provoked the greatest out burst of indignation yet seen here.

The outbreak occurred when a miscount vote on a resolution providing that large locals should be allowed one delegate for each one hundred members was announced as supporting the report of the constitution committee. The vote as counted by the Lewis tellers was 785 for the committee and 692 against.

There was an avalanche of shouts for a roll call. On the show of hands for a roll call the tellers counted three votes short of the necessary number. The convention was on its feet and bedlam broke loose.

Cries of "recount" and "give us a square deal," came from all parts of the hall. The chairman gavelled for order but without any effect. A delegate from Pennsylvania was assaulted by a sergeant-at-arms, delegates stood on their chairs and a number of delegates started for the platform. Lewis stood smoking a cigar and called on Van Bittner to continue the report, but he could not be heard. Administration supporters called for Van Bittner to go on and yelled "Put it over."

Shouts for a roll call continued. Lewis shouted, "You may yell till you meet each other in hell," and added fuel to the flames. Officials of District 12 are now fighting Lewis on the issue of representation. The gallery cheered and jeered "Let Capellini collect the vote," as Van Bitner kept on reading but no one heard him.

The delegates then began to sing and rang until 5 P. M., when Lewis declared the convention adjourned. The uproar lasted more than an hour and the convention was completely out of hand.

Administration Rocked By Progressive Showing

TOMLINSON HALL, INDIANAPOLIS, Indiana. — By allowing paid organizers to vote in defiance of the constitution, the Lewis Machine defeated the resolution to deprive the president of appointive power by the narrow margin of 157 votes. The unofficial count shows a still smaller majority.

The total as checked up by the administration tellers is 2,106 for the resolution, 2,263 against.

Immediately after the announcement of the vote, following the afternoon recess, Delegate Toohey of District 5 submitted the following motion:

"Inasmuch as in the roll call vote taken, upon the question of depriving the international president of the power to appoint organizers, field workers and others, there were many who voted who were not entitled to vote under the terms of the constitution, therefore, there shall be a committee of five elected from the floor to check up on the vote taken with the records of the organization so that all votes illegally cast may be eliminated from the grand total, and that committee report back to the convention as soon as possible."

Lewis declared this motion out of order and would not allow it to come before the convention.

Invisible Empire Helped

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—With the aid of the payroll vote and the invisible empire composed of "Ku-Klux-sky" locals whose membership is non-existent, but whose per capita tax is paid by administration supporters—the Lewis machine yesterday, defeated a majority of 157 votes in the fight for the administration, and for the appointment of organizers and field workers, as against the resolution calling for their election by referendum vote of the membership. The official tabulation of the roll call vote was 2,263 for the committee report and 2,106 against.

"Carried by the payroll vote and the invisible empire," shouted the Coal Miners! Do You Know James J. Davis--- Foe of Unions and Alien Workers

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

JAMES J. DAVIS, Secretary of Labor, appointed by Pres. Harding, sponsor of many bills calling for registration and finger-printing of foreign-born workers and supporter of others, has been invited by President John L. Lewis to address the convention of the United Mine Workers of America now in session in Indianapolis.

The United Mine Workers of America probably has the highest percentage of foreign-born workers of any union in the United States. These foreign-born coal miners are the backbone of the organization, its best fighting material, never found wanting in the struggle against the tyrannic of the coal operators. Dozens of foreign-born workers have been killed by the gunmen of the coal association in Colorado, Pennsylvania and other states in the struggle for the union.

It is no exaggeration to say that the foreign-born coal miners are the foundation on which the structure of the United Mine Workers rests.

To the convention of the organization these foreign-born miners have suffered for, fought for and built, is invited James J. Davis, open and avowed enemy of the foreign-born working-class population and enemy of the entire organized labor movement.

An enemy of the organized labor movement?

Yes! And John L. Lewis, who brings him to the miners' convention as his guest, knows that Davis is an enemy of the United Mine Workers and the labor movement of which it is a part.

So dangerous to the labor unions is the finger-printing and police registration of alien workers, for the benefit of the corporations, advocated by James J. Davis, that the Portland convention of the American Federation of Labor denounced the Davis plan unequivocally and instructed the executive council to immediately begin to fight with every resource the labor movement could muster against their incorporation in the laws of the land.

Is the term "enemy of the labor movement" too strong a term to characterize a secretary of labor who, in dozens of speeches made before chambers of commerce, associations of police chiefs, rotary clubs and other strike-breaking organizations, advocates laws that will compel every foreign-born worker to have his picture taken, carry a passport on which it is pasted, have his finger-prints taken and report to the police at stated times?

Could the most cunning agent of the employers devise a better blacklist system that is to be enforced by the government itself?

Could any corporation agent invent a better method of blacklisting all active union men, persecuting them, making strikes impossible and breaking up unions?

Yet this is exactly what James J. Davis, guest of John L. Lewis, proposes. As secretary of labor, he schemes to break up unions instead of protecting them.

He wants to reduce the foreign-born workers to the status of criminals, living in constant fear of the police, afraid to call their souls their own. This hanger-on of the most corrupt and reactionary government this nation has ever had, himself an immigrant, carrying out the orders of the House of Morgan and the Steel Trust, declares that the foreign-born workers, who have produced the bulk of this nation's wealth, should be branded, tagged and segregated just as were the black slaves for whose freedom the Civil War was fought.

When John L. Lewis, on behalf of his administration, invites James J. Davis to the convention of the United Mine Workers, he gives tacit approval to the Sterling bill and other measures now before congress containing finger-printing, police registration and deportation provisions.

When John L. Lewis invites James J. Davis to the convention he takes a position directly contrary to the convention of the American Federation of Labor to which he was a delegate and endorses the anti-labor acts and utterances of this enemy of the labor movement against whom, in self-defense, its convention was forced to take action.

If the finger-printing and police registration laws against foreign-born workers favored by Davis are passed, John L. Lewis knows that the United Mine Workers of America will be at the mercy of the employers, their spies and their police.

The rank and file delegates also know this and The Daily Worker hopes that they will make known in a manner that James J. Davis, the enemy of the labor movement, and John L. Lewis, his friend and host, cannot fail to understand, their suspicion of, dislike for and opposition against the strike-breaking laws proposed by James J. Davis in his capacity as representative of the coal operators, the Steel Trust and all the rest of the American capitalist class.

Borah Says Teapot Scandal Has Halted Attack on Soviet Russia

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—Samuel Gompers came, with his personal and official staff of Soviet-smashers, but he was not heard.

Senator Borah did not call the sub-committee on Russian international relations together. Instead, he talked privately with Senator Swanson and Senator Pepper, his associates in the inquiry, and with Mr. Gompers. Presently Borah announced that because the Teapot Dome debate in the Senate was about to start, the Russian hearings would be suspended for a time.

Then Mr. Gompers stated that he was ready, then, or later, but there was no need for hurried action by Borah's committee.

And the Bert Clarke of Logan County, and J. E. Hover of the Department of Justice, and Chester M. Wright and others of Mr. Gomper's party, went home again.

Senator Borah assured the Federated Press afterward that in the course of a few weeks, he will resume hearings, and that Col. Haskell and other men qualified to speak of Russian conditions of recent date will be summoned to testify.

OIL CENTER OF BIG STRUGGLE ON IN MEXICO

Wall Street Decides Payment of Taxes

By BERTRAM D. WOLFE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY.—Oil has become the center of the military struggle in Mexico.

While in Puebla, near the military front, I interviewed a representative of an important American oil company, inquiring especially as to the intentions of the petroleum interests in the matter of payment of taxes. That will be decided in New York," he declared.

"Not in Washington?" I asked.

"Naw, in New York——" and he laughed at my apparent naivette.

"We'll possibly pay taxes to both factions," he added after a momentary pause. "That's what we've always done. During the revolt against Carranza we paid him so much per barrel and we gave the revolting general, Guadelupe Sanchez (the same man who is now fighting against Obregon for the same oil fields) a flat rate of $35,000 a month."

"Could you afford to pay two sets of taxes at the same time?"

"Cinch. Why, look here friend, do you know what a barrel of oil cost us? And what we get for it? Taxes, expenses, labor and all, we can deliver petroleum at one dollar per barrel. That barrel represents 42 gallons of products that sell at an average of 60 cents a gallon. Figure it out for yourself, son."

I did. That barrel that costs them $1, taxes and all costs paid, delivered at the port, sets them something like $25. I thought the Hughes' famous note on "confiscatory taxes" at a time when the tax on oil in Texas was higher than the tax in Mexico.

When I wrote down the figures in question, the interview suddenly stopped. But I had a new vision of the importance of the battles of Tuxpan, Ciudad, Victoria and Huastecas.

The most important center of petroleum in Mexico is the state of Tamaulipas, whose port of export is Tampico. This remains in the hands of the government, but that is Huerta has proclaimed the blockade of Tampico, attempting to make it effective with three of the four armored cruisers that make up the Mexican navy. He hopes thereby to prevent the export of petroleum from Tampico and the payment of revenue to the Obregeral government. Also, if his blockade is effective, it closes the only remaining federal customs house on the Gulf coast. At the same time, he has issued a demand on the oil companies that they pay their taxes to him, threatening them, else, with not recognizing other payments, and threatening Doheny with the destruction of his oil properties if the taxes are not delivered to the agents of the fascisti government.

Russia Free from Teapot Scandals, Says Minister

(Special to The Daily Worker)

OMAHA.—An inspiring tribute was paid to Lenin and a spirited defense made of the Soviet Government by Rev. J. L. Beebe, one of the leaders of the Progressive Party of Nebraska, in his memorial address for Nicolai Lenin at Crounse hall, last Sunday.

"With the rumors that have come to us from Russia, pointing out the alleged evils of that government, there has not been a single explosion like that of the Teapot Dome," the speaker said to deafening applause.

"The government of Lenin was held together by love," said Rev. Beebe. "Under the czars, the government was held together by fear."

Lenin's place in history will rank even higher than that of Washington and Lincoln, asserted W. H. Greene. To this Tom Matthews, added when he took the floor: "Lenin has accomplished more than any other man of his time."

A portrait of Lenin, draped in black, stood on a tall pedestal at the right of the speaker.

Living Cost 73% Over 1913

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Average living costs in typical American cities last month were 73.3 per cent greater than they were in December, 1923, the Department of Labor announced today. The costs were also greater by 1.1 per cent than last September and by 3.7 per cent than December, 1922.

Furniture, clothing and housing showed the greatest percentage of increases.

Protect the Foreign Born!

Lewis Should Thank Red Flag; When He Stopped Waving It He Was Very Badly Licked

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOMLINSON HALL, INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 28.—Without the "red menace" John L. Lewis would be as helpless as—Sammy Gompers. During the first two days of the convention the principal order of business was waving the red flag and counting the millions of rubles that the Soviet government sent over here to "bring about the destruction of the United Mine Workers of America." When delivering the last part of the above excerpt, from Mr. Lewis' harangue, he pressed fingers slightly against both sides of nasal organ and the effect will be similar to that produced when Mr. Lewis ends a speech with those words.

Yes, Mr. Lewis should love every fold of the red flag. Just as soon as he got down to brass tacks and the business of the convention, or what the delegates thought they were coming to transact, he found a different method of diverting attention from real to imaginary issues from Sammy Gompers. But while Gompers gets away with it at A. F. of L. conventions where a rank and file delegate is almost as scarce as virtue in a bawdy house, in this convention there is a different atmosphere. Most of the delegates are workers.

True, there is a powerful and loyal pay roll brigade here. From the highest to the lowest they stand like Spartans with the administration. No charge of ingratitude or of "biting the hand that feeds them," can be leveled against them. But the boys who are more acquainted with the physical properties of a pick, than with the hotel lobbies where many of these organizers are alleged to spend their days organizing the coal diggers, are not always fooled by the tactics of the administration. So long as Lewis dealt with issues that only the more class conscious and politically minded of the delegates could see the value of, he was safe and his "red" fireworks were useful. But when the convention got to where the vital every day interests of the coal diggers were involved, Mr. Lewis discovered that red herrings could no longer avail.

Feeds Place Full of "Reds"

Before Van Bittner began reading the report of the committee of Constitution this morning, delegates from Ohio were spreading the report that there were hundreds of men in the convention hall who were not delegates, but were taking part in the deliberations and voting. The Ohio man was heard to say, "We must clean up this convention before we leave. If we cannot do it any other way, we must use force". Questioned what the trouble was, he replied, that the place was full of "reds" and that he had seen with own "500 more were shipped from Pittsburgh. At this rate, unless transportation broke down to such heavy demands on rolling stock it would only take a little time until the "reds" had things entirely their own way.

That the Ohio lad was not "talking thru his hat" was proved when Delegate Savage, ex-officer of District 6, made a savage attack on those who "were abusing their privileges as guests" and voting. His motion to get into closed session was carried. When the visitors were ordered to leave the hundreds of "alien enemies" dribbled down to three guests who picked up their hats and walked.

The nonsense was for the purpose of influencing the delegates against the progressives and helping to create the impression that the progressive strength was augmented by foreign armies from Pittsburgh and other enemy territory.

This farce being over Van Bittner commenced reading his report. Mr. Bittner is one of the most faithful employees of the International president and is used to do jobs that most of the hardened payrollers refuse to do. The preamble to the constitution which reads as follows was adopted without change:

"There is no truth more obvious than that without coal there could not have been such marvelous social and industrial progress as marks present day civilization.

"Believing that those whose lot it is to toil within the earth's recesses surrounded by peculiar dangers and deprived of sunlight and pure air, producing the commodity which makes possible the world's progress, are entitled to protection and the full social value of their product, we have formed "The United Mine Workers of America" for the purpose of establishing by lawful means, the principles embraced in the body of this constitution."

The miners hear very little of the "full social value of their product" at this convention from those who are now leading it. Not a syllable has fallen from the lips of any one of the leading officials of this convention so far, that would give a visitor the impression that he was at a labor gathering, and not attending a meeting of some member of commerce.

Van Bittner continued reading his report without experiencing any concentration of hostile until he ran up against article nine, section five, which provides that. "He (the International President) may appoint such organizers, field and office workers as may be necessary to conduct the affairs of the International Union."

There were several resolutions on this matter all advocating the election by referendum vote of all organizers and field workers. But when the resolutions were rather loosely drawn up and contained charges that "hundreds" of organizers were wasting their time in organized fields while there were none in non-union territory. When Van Bittner was requested to read the resolutions on the mater and give an explanation for his recommendation to non-concur, he picked out the most loosely drawn and vulnerable and gave as a reason for the adverse recommendation that the resolutions were brought up by "detractors of the administration." This statement was stupid and Van Bittner was jeered at and booed from all over the large hall.

Popping Ticklish Question

Delegate Jimmy Oakes, an old miner and former member of the board, asked Van Bittner if he thought it was right for a man who had six sons, not members of the union, but had taken a business course, that their father, provided he was a district secretary, should have the power to appoint them to office and vote. Van Bittner thought it would be a sorry state of affairs when a father could not put his own sons on the payroll.

Many delegates took action and dignant at this question and expressed themselves as being of the opinion that the matter was one who could put such a question, would make an election look like a mountain in comparison.

Delegate Oates was answered with official indignation but it fell off his shoulders like coal dust. He walked back and forth in front of the platform while shouts of "sit down" came from the payrollers and he continued to hurl pertinent questions at the officials on the platform. He had Van Bittner non-plussed.

What Oates had on his chest was this: William Feeney, secretary of District 4, employed his son as book keeper tho the boy was not a member of the union. The position paid a salary $200.00 a month. The sensitive souls of the payroll brigade were deeply wounded over this defection and Delegate Oates who cashed his last official check on or about January 13, when he was discharged as organizer.

John L. Lewis declared that a more foul insult could not be leveled against a union man than to cast aspersions on him for employing his own son.

John O' Leary, International Board member in Feeney's district, took the platform and defended the appointment of Feeney's son declaring that he was a graduate of international auditors would testify that he was a good bookkeeper. The auditors, like good fellows, arose and did the right thing when they were putting up a united front but the rank and file kept hammering away vigorously.

Capellini Gets Floor Again

Now, there arose in the convention a man who is getting to be known as "renegade." Rinaldo Capellini, president of District 1, who declared a tirade against the reds during the Nova Scotia debate and by the way made an ass of himself.

Capellini tried to do the administration a favor by attempting to rattle Jimmy Oates. "How long have you been on the payroll," he asked Oates. Oates was so long on the payroll that he forget how many half centuries it was since he started in, so he grew quite angry and told Capellini that he would not stand any nonsense from an upstart like him. "Capellini, Capellini," he muttered in disgust. When the tumult and the shouting ceased, Capellini had taken his seat with a very dejected air.

William Feeney, secretary of District 4, came to the platform in his own defense. He asserted that he was the father of two children of whom he was proud. "I have made a bookkeeper out of one of them and I will if I can out of the others. I have not made boot-leggers out of them and that is more than Delegate Oates can say for his," Feeney said.

This rally did not have the slightest effect on Delegates Oates. Those who expected to see him covered with confusion were disappointed. "What the blazes could they do," he piped up "when they were refused work, but bootleg. It was the only available occupation open to them."

Delegate Fred Mooney of District 17, [illegible]

COAL MINERS! Talk To Your Convention Thru Daily Worker

Coal Miner, you are in Indianapolis, Ind. It will be expensive to you—needs if you will talk to it, talk to it in loud and emphatic tones.

You can do this thru your paper, THE DAILY WORKER. You can do it every day. You can make yourself heard.

Every day THE DAILY WORKER goes to the convention at Tomlinson Hall, at Indianapolis. The miners' delegates are reading it, from first page, first column, to last page, last column.

If you will write to THE DAILY WORKER, telling your needs, the delegates will read your letter.

One of the big things you are interested in is unemployment. If you don't work there is no pay envelope. If you don't work, there is nothing with which to pay the landlord, the grocer, with which to buy the things your family needs. How do you get along? How do you make both ends meet? What do you demand?

Tell it to the delegates at Indianapolis. Tell it to your highly paid officials, whose salaries go on the whole year around.

Write about all the other great prbolems confronting the coal miners of this country. Your letters will be published in THE DAILY WORKER and read by the delegates at your convention at Indianapolis. Write to the Editor, The Daily Worker, 1640 N. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill.

JOBLESS FROM CAMP AND FIELD RUSH TO CHICAGO

Migratories Look for Work Here in Vain

Thousands of unemployed workers from out of town are coming into Chicago to look for work, the Salvation Army hotels and the Illinois free employment agency reports. M. t of these men make West Madison and South State streets their stamping ground.

For the most part they are migratory workers who have worked on farms and in lumber camps and on road building gangs in the country and, since winter set in, have started their migration toward Chicago. Earning low wages and paying high prices for board and rooms while at work, they land in Chicago broke or nearly so.

Snow Shovelers Not Wanted.

The municipal lodging house on North Union street is visited by many of them during the course of the winter. Thomas W. Allison, manager of the lodging house, said that this winter has been a particularly hard winter on the migratory workers who make Chicago their winter headquarters. One of the chief reasons given was that this winter has been bitterly cold and almost snowless. Usually migratory workers get a few days work quite often shoveling snow. This winter only 400 extra men were employed by the street cleaning department shoveling snow and then only for a couple of days.

The manager of the Salvation Army hotel on West Madison street said that about 300 men a night sleep there, and most of them are from out of town. They are all looking for work, he said.

Employment Offices Closed

A large number of the offices of the labor agents, which used to line West Madison street, are closed because no one is hiring workers. A few shipments are being made to the ice fields, but the few jobs offered are soon snapped up.

Factory owners are not willing to employ migratory workers, since they will leave in the spring and new men must be broken in. So the migratory workers wander the streets, sleep in the municipal lodging house when they can, or "carry the banner" all night only to wander the streets next day.

In Didn't Work Right.

WASHINGTON.—Senator LaFollette has re-introduced his bill providing for a continuous discharge book for seamen, and for other improvements in the condition of seamen of the American merchant marine.

Andrew Furuseth, president of the International Seamen's union, has been up to Washington this discrimination against union men in the ports of the United States has made a dead letter of the seamen's act and is reducing the men once more to a condition of slavery.

Administration of the seamen's act is under the direction of the department of commerce, headed by Herbert Hoover. This is the same Hoover who recently has been agitating the friendship of officials of the American Federation of Labor, and of progressive senators and congressmen.

Coolidge Agrees With Gary that Consumer Is Goat

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Coolidge was politely advised today by Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, that elimination of the 12-hour day in the industry had increased production costs 10 per cent. Chairman Gary's report is contrary to the things of the presidents of the independent steel companies who last October announced that introduction of the 8-hour day in their plants had not resulted in increasing the cost of production.

President Coolidge advised that the additional costs, listed by Mr. Gary, should be borne uncomplainingly by consumers and the poor ultimate consumer in view of the benefits to the workers."

Soviet Russia to Get 18,000 Fords on Yearly Contract

(Special to The Daily Worker)

COPENHAGEN.—The delivery of 18,000 Ford cars to Soviet Russia has been contracted for by the Danish agent of the Ford Motor company, Harold Lanfikier, thru the signing of an agreement between the company representative and the representatives of the Soviet government in Paris.

The length of time covered by the contract has not been made public, but the purchases of cars this year under the contract provisions will amount to $3,750,000.

Deliveries will be made from the Copenhagen plant.

Landlords Jailed and Fined

NEW YORK.—Hirsch Uren, lessee of the 35 family tenement, No. 816 East 9th Street, was fined $100, with thirty days as the alternative, by Magistrate Cobb in Municipal Court yesterday, after an inspector testified Uren had failed to correct defective fire escapes and unsanitary walls existing since last July.

Radio Loyalty.

MONTREAL, Can.—Sir Henry Thornton, chairman of the Canadian National Railways, wants to install a radio set in the home of every worker on his line so that they would be able to hear the hopes, fears and ambitions of Sir Henry. The radio sets will be sold to employes "at cost."

"Fight Betrayers," Is Miners' Order to W. Va. Delegates

West Virginia delegates to the United Mine Workers' convention are warned to fight the reactionary leadership of the organization and to make no compromise with the betrayers of the 1922 strike-in a message sent thru the DAILY WORKER by members of local union No. 2999 in Wendel, W Va. The message reads:

To the Delegates of U. M. of A., Indianapolis:—Our convention has just started and we miners from West Virginia say in loud and emphatic tones to our delegates to fight and struggle for our benefit.

We want to clean out the reactionaries out of the United Mine Workers' organization. Don't compromise with anybody who was a betrayer in the U. M. W. of A.

We have suffered enough from crooked leaders and we have no more confidence in them.

We cannot forget the strike of 1922 when we were sold out, losing many good members from our organization. We oppose discrimination against men who lead the working class towards better conditions. So we advise you delegates thru the DAILY WORKER.

Charges Ku Klux Klan Would Build for U. S. Monarchy

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—If the Ku Klux Klan is allowed to continue as at present, it will create a monarchy in the United States, E. Y. Clarke, former imperial wizard, declared in a speech last night. Clarke is now appealing for all Klansmen to attend the National Conference in Atlanta, Feb. 26, at which over-throw of the present regime and a reorganization will be attempted.

Clarke said the Klan is "100 per cent Un-American."

Hull Battles Ford.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 30.—Provisions of Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals were attacked in a statement made public here today by Representative Hull, Iowa, republican, member of the house military affairs committee.

The statement, evoked by Ford's refusal to appear before the committee and explain certain details of his offer, assailed "ambiguous provisions" of the proposal.

LEWIS REFUSES AID TO MINERS IN KENTUCKY HELL

Appeal to Convention Sent Thru Daily Worker

To the DAILY WORKER: In response to your invitation to coal miners to make themselves heard thru the columns of the DAILY WORKER, by the delegates at the convention of the United Mine Workers of America, now in session at Indianapolis, Ind., I am asking permission of a little space to present the case of a few thousand wage slaves who belong to a coal field that is not represented at that convention, due to the fact that it has never been organized. The coal field I am referring to is Eastern Kentucky's.

It would be impossible, within the space to which I feel obliged to limit myself, to give anything like an adequate description of the miserable, deplorable and degrading conditions of the poor coal miners in that section. Wages are shamefully low, conditions in the various mining camps where the miners live are filthy and unsanitary beyond imagination, and the tyranny of the autocratic coal operators would make Judge Gary's steel mills seem like a pure democracy.

Defied "Yellow Dog"

I was born and raised in Eastern Kentucky, and I am here in Chicago today because it is impossible for me to find a job in the coal fields along the Kentucky river, owing to the fact that I have been blacklisted because I wouldn't lock my mouth to keep from thinking out loud about unionism, because I denounced some of the slavish conditions under which my fellow wage earners, and because I refused to sign an infamous pledge known as the "yellow dog contract," which all the coal companies in Eastern Kentucky shoved in the faces of their employes about a year ago—because I refused to sign that infamous pledge and persuaded others to refuse to sign it.

The coal miners of Eastern Kentucky resent these conditions. They would like to organize and thus be able to make a successful fight against their tyrannical masters, but receive letters almost every day from friends down in that section. One of the letters, which came a few days ago, gave the information that the coal miners at Stripling, a little camp about fifty miles of Hazard, Ky., the center of the coal field, had gone on strike unorganized as they are, in protest against a 25 per cent wage cut. They are rebellious and would like to break their chains, but the International officials of the United Mine Workers of America sit calmly back, with folded hands, and offer them no assistance or encouragement whatever.

Lewis Deaf to Miners' Calls

The international union cannot plead poverty as an excuse for its inaction in Eastern Kentucky. For months a constant stream of letters has been pouring into the headquarters of the and into the office of the provisional president of that district, at Ashland, Ky. President Lewis treats those appeals with the utmost indifference, while Samuel Pascoe, provisional president of that district—district 30 is created from what was formerly district 29—has held his present position for which he was appointed by President Lewis, for more than four years now, and during that time has made no effort to organize the coal miners in his district or, consequently the coal miners have nearly all, quite naturally, arrived at one of the following conclusions:

Whose Collar Does He Wear?

1. Mr. Pascoe wishes to hold his present position as provisional president a long a possible, he knows that as soon as the miners in that district are organized a district president must be ELECTED from the ranks of the miners by Mr. Pascoe, he believes it to be to his own personal interest to delay organization just as long as possible, and

2. Mr. Pascoe is in a secret conspiracy with the coal operator in that district to prevent organization of the men as long as possible.

Are the men right in their conclusions? It is up to the international officials to exonerate themselves, and to force the district officials to exonerate themselves in the eyes of Eastern Kentucky miners by giving those coal miners an opportunity to enter the ranks of the United Mine Workers of America.

Appeals to Convention

In behalf of the thousands of coal miners who dwell in the rugged valleys of the Kentucky and Sandy rivers, who are daily grinding away their lives for the heartless monsters of greed, without gratitude or sympathy, for a mere pittance, misfortune, whose prayers to the powerful organization of the United Mine Workers of America, have thus far been completely ignored, and for whom no voice can be raised in this convention by their own authority, because they have no delegates there—in behalf of those men and their wives and little children, many of whom sicken and die every year from typhoid and other diseases brought on by the unsanitary conditions in which they are forced to live, I appeal to the delegates of this convention to give to them and their needs the consideration that has been denied them by the executive officers of that organization.—Alonzo Walters, Illinois.

45,000 LOSE PENNSY JOBS SINCE JULY

December Saw 26,185 Laid Off-Work

More than 45,000 employes of the Pennsylvania railroad have been laid off since July when there were 250,312 on the carriers' pay rolls.

The greatest reduction in any one month came in December when 26,185 were laid off. Since Dec. 15, 7,860 have been turned out to look for a job at a time when there are considerably more applicants than jobs.

The layoffs in December have hit shop employes particularly hard meaning a reduction of more than 25 per cent in shop operations.

The present payroll of 205,017 is below that of a year ago when the road employed 229,831 workers in all departments. Reduction in the number of employes is explained by the management on the ground that traffic has steadily declined since the middle of 1923. But there are good grounds for believing that the shop layoffs have been heavier than warranted by reduced business, for the road's percentage of bad-order freight cars has risen from 3.9% in July to 5.4% in November, the latest month for which reports are available.

The Pennsylvania has also allowed its locomitives to get so out of repair as to endanger the lives of engine crews and passengers. Within the month east bound express trains have been delayed for hours because interstate commerce commission inspectors condemned as unsafe locomotives about to pull the trains over divisions in the Indiana region. The inspectors ordered 50 engines out of service at Fort Wayne alone. All of which shows the extent to which an anti-labor management is willing to let its equipmegt run down in order to add to the winter unemployment.

Such figures indicate the insecurity of job which will characterize employment so long as absentee owners are considered as having more rights than the men who actually make railroad operation possible. And in the railroad industry the Pennsylvania, which has talked loudest about the desirability of getting back to the old "family" relationship between employes and management, makes the earliest and most drastic reductions in force.

The right of a man to his job has evidently not been tackled by Atterbury's company union.

Parliamentarians in Germany Grieve Under Fascist Rule

By The Federated Press

BERLIN.—The worm is turning even in the reichstag. The abnormal condition of government by military edict is getting on the nerves of the parliamentarians who so glibly voted away their powers by the state-of-emergency law and who now find that even the person of a member of the reichstag, and of former cabinet minister at that, is not sacred to a military commander.

The occasion for a protest by an important committee of the reichstag—that having to do with fixing the order of business of the house—was furnished by the refusal of the military commander in Munster to permit Wilhelm Sollmann, Socialist deputy and minister of the interior in the Stresemann cabinet, to address a voters' meeting soon after he had left the cabinet. The action of the military excited considerable comment at the time, but apparently nothing more was done about it.

Now the question has come up in the committee on rules and business of the house and unanimously the members agreed that Sollman had a perfect right to speak and that the state of emergency law gives the military no right to prohibit voters' meetings.

The committee further decided unanimously to express the opinion to President Ebert and thru him to the minister of defense that the decree establishing martial law gives no right to anybody to put a general ban on political meetings.

Daily Worker's Exposes Cause Closing of One School Firetrap; Dangers Lurking In Many Others

The DAILY WORKER'S exposs of the perils of the school firetraps that house working class children has resulted in the closing of one building—St. Clement's School at 2524 Orchard street—just closed by Mayor Dever.

This action is calculated to allay public impatience at the whitewashing investigation which the board of education is conducting, with the aid of other departments, of the combustible buildings in factory neighborhoods. The school is closed as "unsafe" at the very moment the board of education is assuring the public that there is "no cause for alarm."

Only forty pupils were in the class rooms at St. Clements parochial school when fire inspectors visited it and found fire hazards so great that they ordered the classes dismissed. Nothing has been done to close public schools which are as bad as St. Clement's, altho in some of them hundreds of children are found.

As an example of what some schools can be the DAILY WORKER publishes today a description of two schools. One school is in a working class neighborhood and the other is in the "swell" Wilson Avenue district.

For the "Best People"

The Stewart school is located at Kenmore avenue near Broadway in the heart of the 47th Ward district. Its building is a large four-story brick, erected in 1906 just as the Wilson Avenue district was becoming a "choice residential section." The building stands in the center of a large lot, permitting light to come in from all sides. The windows are large three-section affairs which are excellent for ventilation as well as light.

The assembly room is a large place with a stage, opera chairs and a balcony. It seats over 400. There are bath rooms which are light and airy. The gymnasium is well equipped. There are rooms for manual training, cooking, science and other special classes, all with equipment of the best. There is also a room and equipment for a sewing class.

The toilet facilities are of the best and most modern sort. In the basement there is a large, clean play room for the pupils to use on cold and rainy days. The basement in this school is well lighted by windows that cover nearly half the wall.

The stairways and halls are fireproof, light and wide. The classrooms are also large and fireproof. The influence of the fine equipment and light, airy building can be seen on the children and their teachers. They seem to take more interest in their studies and look brighter and more alive than children who attend school in old dilapidated buildings.

Fine Sprinkler System

There is a sprinkler system in the Stewart school. In every room and all parts of the halls, there are outlets which would turn on water if ever the smallest fire started.

There are 32 rooms with 1,725 seats and about the same number of pupils in school. There are 43 teachers including those who teach special classes.

The entire building equipment and the attitude of the teachers is an example of what a public school can be.

For the Workers

The Newberry school at Willow and Orchard streets is in a working class district. The original building was erected in 1858 and an addition made in 1895.

The light in the Newberry school is wretched. Artificial light is necessary much of the day. The ventilation is bad. The assembly room is sometimes used as a class room and has only the ordinary loose chairs. The fire department has repeatedly said that loose chairs in assembly halls are unsafe and are likely to lead to and cause panic in case of fire. The gymnasium is an ordinary class room with little equipment. The manual training and cooking classes are poorly equipped.

The toilet facilities are of the most primitive sort. The boys' toilet is damp, poorly ventilated and lighted. The play room in the basement is also used as a lunch room by some of the children and is far from clean.

In the Newberry school the stairways are of easily combustible wood and winding, narrow and unsafe looking. The class rooms are small.

No Sprinkler System.

There is no sprinkler system, only a few old style fire extinguishers could be seen. The building seems to be settling in certain places.

There are 30 rooms with 1,007 seats and about 1,300 pupils. About 150 children attend school on the two-shift plan. There is a slide fire escape of the type that is even more dangerous in school buildings than no fire escape at all.

The entire building and its equipmen and sanitary arrangements are glaring examples of the public schools in a working class neighborhood.

DUNNING ASYLUM CALLED FIRETRAP BY CORONER'S JURY

The coroner's jury of six "prominent citizens" that investigated the fire in the Dunning Asylum for the Insane, a state institution, where 18 persons were burned to death recently, found that "the chief cause of the tragedy was the physical condition of the buildings that burned." The buildings, the verdict said, were frame and without fireproofing and the floors and stairs were of flimsy worn wood that burned easily.

Will it take the verdict of a coroner's jury to arouse the people of Chicago to a realization of the danger their children are facing in public school buildings as unsafe as the buildings that burned at the Dunning asylum with the loss of 18 lives?

RIVER GETS LAD BARRED OUT OF CROWDED SCHOOL

Youngster Victim of Vicious System

While the police were preparing to dynamite the river in an attempt to recover the body of Sidney Shurman, 6 years old, who was drowned while playing on the ice in the Chicago river, near Lawrence ave. and Argyle St., his mother stood by and cried hysterically. "If Sammy could have been in school he would not have drowned. We tried to send him but there wasn't room. He is dead. He is dead."

Tuesday Sammy Sherman and two playmates went from home to play. They wandered to the river and play on the banks. Sammy, older and bolder than the other two, ventured out on the ice. The ice broke and before help could be called he had disappeared. Efforts of police to locate his body had failed up to a late hour yesterday afternoon.

Barred from School.

Sammy's parents had sent their son to the Hibbard school 3244 Ainslie St. last September, but he was refused admittance because there was not enough room. Hundreds of other young children have been turned away from the Hibbard school because of lack of room.

Sammy Sherman's death and the crowded condition of the Hibbard school was blamed on the board of education authorities by Chester C. Dodge, principal of the Hibbard school last night.

"The business department of the school board thinks of nothing but how they can save a few pennies," he said.

"In two years our high school attendance has increased from 700 to 1,400. The capacity of the school is only 1,440, and yet we have 2,100 elementary pupils besides the 1,400 high school students. There are as many children waiting for a chance to get into kindergarten as there are now in classes.

Promises Broke.

"I'm tired. I'm sick. All day I have been at the board rooms pleading for more space, more room.

"Last vacation time they promised to give us portables and additions, to be ready two months ago, at the latest. But nothing has been done. When we returned in September we found things as we had left them in June.

"Repeatedly, I have pleaded. The Kiwanis Club and the Parent-Teachers' organization have pleaded. But nothing has been done. There are as many children on our waiting list as there are in kindergarten classes."

Daniel Burns, business manager of the board of education said that the statements of Dodge that he had asked for portable school buildings to add to the facilities of the Hibbard school was not true.

Washington, D. C., Home of Teapot Scandal, Revealed As Social Sewer

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

WASHINGTON.—Washington's lively social set today was gasping from the sting of the second bitter indictment hurled at it in 24 hours. First, W. G. Harding, former head of the Federal Reserve Board, blamed the suicide of his beautiful daughter, Margaret, to the nerve shattering social pace and the cigarette smoking of Washington.

On the heels of this, P. V. Sokolowski, retiring member of the Polish "Legation staff, flung over his shoulder as he departed from Washington this barred farewell:

"I go back to my country with a disgust for social drinking that I cannot put into words."

Representative Upshaw, who has been leading a fight against drinking in Washington official circles, saw Dr. Sokolowski off at the station, commanded him as a "high toned gentleman," and gave him a letter declaring that he was convinced Sokolowski was simply the "victim of hoked customs of official and social 'hoosenese' on the liquor question."

COMPANY SLEW 33 MINERS, SAYS CORONER'S JURY

Illinois Horror Laid to Crerar-Clinch Door

(Special to The Daily Worker)

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill.—The Crerar-Clinch Coal company is directly responsible for the deaths of the 33 coal diggers slain in the terrific gas explosion last Friday.

That is the verdict of the coroner's jury which has been hearing evidence in the case. The verdict corroborates the correspondent of The DAILY WORKER who told of reports of neglect of safety precautions by the mining company.

Danger signs had been removed from the places where the explosion occurred, the jury discovered. The explosion was caused by a "squeeze" and a fall of coal in an old working.

Witnesses testified the company ignored the hazards which lay in the old workings that so often are accumulating places of the deadly gas. With the extracting of all the readily mined coal from the workings the company officials lost all interest in them and occupied themselves only in exploitation of other workings, instead of regarding the abandoned entries and workings as sources of danger against which the miners must guard.

Intense indignation is felt in Williamson county. The expose of the company's criminal carelessness has aroused more bitterness than anything since the attempt of the employing interests to hang the miners at Herrin, only a few miles away.

"Thirty-three lives have been snuffed out just because the company didn't care enough about the mine's safety to spend the pittance necessary to safeguard them," said a union miner.

"If this is not murder I would like to know what is."

The spell of the tragedy still hangs over the community for nearly everyone was connected in one way or another with the dead. Now the survivors find that their dear ones were sacrificed on the altar of the greed and indifference of the mine operators.

Arthur Ransome Tells How Lenin's Widow Sang Dirge

In a dispatch which throbs with the emotion he himself felt Arthur Ransome, famous British journalist, tells a New York newspaper of the stroll cast over the immense multitude at Lenin's funeral. Nadejda Krupskaya, Lenin's widow, led the singing of the revolutionary funeral dirge.

She had just finished telling in clear, quiet tones of the years of Lenin's life as a leader in workmen's revolutionary circles and the inspiration of his love for all men and women who worked.

"Her voice faded and faltered. One felt the concentration of will with which she controlled it. She spoke to the end before turning from the tribune.

"The orchestra played a revolutionary dirge. It ceased and there was a moment's silence. Then her voice began and the whole of that immense congregation sang the words of the dirge. Tears ran down people's faces as they sang, and long after the song was over there were people praying where they stood, blinded with tears."

Worker Commits Suicide in Cell: Victim of Poverty

(By The Federated Press)

OAKLAND, Calif.—For fifty years Samuel O'Donnel of Oakland had been "honest and upright. He had worked hard for his wife and five children, but fifteen caught him and finally the little family was down to one meal a day, with often Nothing at all for days, while the father looked in vain for work. He had been buying the humble home, and $1,200 was paid on it, with the furniture nearly paid for as well. But he could pay no more, and the mortgage was threatening to foreclose so that they would lose all.

O'Donnel did a desperate thing. He set fire to the house to get the insurance, and sneaked rags were discovered and he was arrested on a charge of arson. Two weeks later he confessed in a pathetic tale. Sympathetic officials had recommended probation. But the disgrace and shame were too much for O'Donnel. The other night he sent for the assistant district attorney. "I can't stand it much longer," he sobbed. The next morning the guard found him dead in his cell.

"Natural causes," said the coroner. "Grief," said officials. "Poverty," says the truth.

Ruthenberg Tells of Councils Formed to Fight Davis' Peonage and Coolidge Registration Plans

So pressing is the danger to the millions of America's foreign-born workers from laws now before congress and from the ill feeling being engendered against them in American newspapers that the Workers Party is devoting much energy to the organization of a movement for resistance.

In an interview with the DAILY WORKER, C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the party, told of the progress made in the formation of Councils for the protection of foreign-born workers. These councils are made up from separate national organizations in each city and have the backing of local labor movements.

First Council Organized!

Organization of the first council has just been achieved in Boston where eight national organizations are represented and two Workers Party organizations.

"If Boston had such an organization during the time of deportations' delirium four years ago, more effective resistance could have been made to Palmer's excesses. The Deer Island horrors, where one man was driven to suicide and others insane and hundreds were penned together under the worst disease-breeding conditions, are grim reminders of the necessity of the foreign born workers banding together, with the support of the rest of the class conscious workers.

Danger Is Pressing

"The danger is immediate." Many radical workers are facing deportation because they dared to think independently and to organize for a better society.

"President Coolidge has recommended the registration of all foreign born workers. This means the ticketing of millions of men and women like criminals. If proposals of certain congressmen go thru they will be fingerprinted and mugged as in penitentiaries.

"Secretary of Labor Davis, backed by the big employers, wants a "selective" immigration law under which workers can be brought here under contract to work in certain industries. Radicals and other "undesirables" would be barred. The others be "selected" to break strikes during emergencies."

The Workers' Party secretary has made an exhaustive study of the legislation now before congressional committees which would take away still more rights from the foreign born workers but he was more interested in talking with the representatives of the DAILY WORKER on this occasion in outlining the plan of organization of the council for the protection of these workers.

Talk Here Councils Are Formed

These councils, Ruthenberg explained, are formed in a practicable manner by using the national units which already exist and combining them for the purposes of solidarity and action.

All the labor unions, fraternal and singing societies of a single language are brought together into language councils for each language. All the language councils are then combined into a Council for the Protection of the Foreign Born Workers.

A national committee, representing all the local councils, will be organized at a national congress, after the movement has been extended further.

"This is an issue that concerns American union men, no matter whether they are foreign born or not," said Ruthenberg with emphasis. "The foreign born workers are being united for the protection of all labor. We urge all of them to unite with the labor union of their craft or industry if they have not already done so and to work for the labor party idea."

U. S. OWNED SHIP HELL HOLE, SAYS SAILOR

Horror Tales Told by Student Who Shipped

(By The Federated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO. — Carrying tales of horrors committed on the crew of the British Shipping board vessel West Islip (Capt. E. Safstron of San Francisco, commander), Russell Seymour, law student at the University of California who shipped on the West Islip for experience, has returned to San Francisco and preferred charges before the shipping board and the U. S. district attorney.

Seymour claims the men were beaten with belaying pins by officers, that one sailor was stabbed with a screw driver by an intoxicated engineer, that the men were served meat infested with maggots and when they protested were placed in irons on the open deck to be attacked by swarms of flies. All this, he states, occurred between here and Newcastle, Australia. There the men attempted to go on shore to complain to the local police. They were referred to the American consul, Romeyn Wormouth. Unable to find him, they came back to the ship, and there were prevented by officers with guns from going ashore again.

Wormouth finally came on board, and Seymour states he saw the consul receive a gift from Captain Safstron. Wormouth insulted the men and refused to aid them. Safstron then discharged the whole crew and left them penniless in Newcastle, where the consul declined any help in securing food or shelter, and left them to shift for themselves as best they could.

Amalgamation Talk at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND.—"Why we must amalgamate our craft unions into industrial unions" will be the subject of an open mass meeting which the English Collinwood branch of the Workers Party will hold next Sunday, at 8 p.m., at Gunn Block, E. 152nd St. and Aspinwall. John Loncks will speak and the chairman will be Anton Vrbanch, who is the chairman of the federated shop crafts here.

Sir Arthur Coming.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 30.—It is reported here in reliable quarters that Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian expeditionary forces in the great war and at present the president of McGill University, Montreal, will be appointed Canadian ambassador at Washington.

LEGION VOWS DEATH TO FREE SPEECH FIGHTERS

Make Promise to Shoot Speakers on Feb. 10

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILKESBARRE, Pa. — Speakers from the American Civil Liberties Union will be butchered by members of the American Legion when they taut the right of free speech in Wilkesbarre, if the threats made by the local post of the American Legion carry out their hysterical threats to shoot down anyone taking the platform at a free speech meeting without their consent.

The Legion men, under the orders of national Vice-Commander Healy, broke up the Lenin Memorial meeting three days ago and say the next time an attempt to speak at a radical meeting will be pumped full of lead. These threats were made at a conference between the mayor and members of the Workers Party, which the Legion attended.

Mayor Hart warns the Liberties' Union that he will use the Legionaires to break up any meeting the union tries to stage.

White "Guard Defied

The Liberties' Union has sent an urgent message to Governor Pinchot demanding that he give adequate protection on Feb. 10 and has also served notice on Hart that the meeting will be held in spite of his threats of violence.

It is considered likely that the Legion, which has practically taken over the police power of the city, may go further than merely breaking up the meeting and will commit acts of bloodshed and violence as at Centralia, Washington.

The speakers who will defy the murder threats of the Legion are Arthur Garfield Hayes, Wall street attorney and liberal who is a veteran of free speech fights in Pennsylvania; Bishop Jones of the Fellowship of Reconciliation and Harry M. Winitsky. Winitsky was hurled from the speakers' platform at the Lenin Memorial meeting which the Legion broke up.

Town Excited

Wilkesbarre is all agog with the expected excitement. Miners declare that unless Pinchot enforces civil liberty they goose is cooked with the workers who put him into power as a protest against abuses by state constabulary and Pennsylvania gunmen under his predecessors.

Hayes went into the closed town of Vintondale, Cambria county, during the 1924 Passaic and Gastonia strikes and driven into police, later turning around and having his assailants arrested.

CROWDS HONOR LENIN WILL FI GREAT N. Y. HAL

Meetings in Many Cit Mourn for Lenin

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—Madison Square Garden, the largest hall in New York City, will be filled to overflowing next Monday evening under the auspices of the Lenin Memorial Committee. Nothing has so stirred the workers of New Yorkers this winter as the death of the great proletarian leader. Every labor organization and radical and liberal movement in the city will be represented in the huge audience.

The New York Times, marveling at the sincere sorrow felt in Russia, says the explanation must be in some essential difference between Russian and American people. H. L. Mencken, editor of the Times visits the Soviet Union on this occasion in outlining the plan of organization of the council for the protection of these workers.

Talk Here Councils Are Formed

These councils, Ruthenberg explained, are formed in a practicable manner by using the national units which already exist and combining them for the purposes of solidarity and action.

All the labor unions, fraternal and singing societies of a single language are brought together into language councils for each language. All the language councils are then combined into a Council for the Protection of the Foreign Born Workers.

A national committee, representing all the local councils, will be organized at a national congress, after the movement has been extended further.

"This is an issue that concerns American union men, no matter whether they are foreign born or not," said Ruthenberg with emphasis. "The foreign born workers are being united for the protection of all labor. We urge all of them to unite with the labor union of their craft or industry if they have not already done so and to work for the labor party idea."

Pardon Granted Fellow Who Tried to Grab Bergdol

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON. — Germany yielded to unofficial American pressure and will free Lieutenant Grafis and his colleagues who were engaged in a kidnapping attempt on Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the draft avoider, it has been learned.

Some time ago Grafis sent a letter to a chicago newspaper asking for money to spend on pardon plea and pleading his patriotic motives without a trace of remorse. He was serving a 21 months' sentence in Mosebach, Baden.

The capturing of Bergdoll has been one of the objectives and excuses for existence of the American Legion. Reports that the Philadelphian has been enjoying huge scoops of beer and the choicest of light opera have been like fire poison to the patriotic spirits of the ex-officers' organization.

READING LABOR PARTY BLOCKED BY S. P. LEADERS

Second Labor Conference Will Reopen Issue

(Special to The Daily Worker)

READING, Pa.—Socialist Party leaders balked action for the formation of a labor party movement at a conference of 70 delegates from all labor unions, working class political parties, co-operatives and other organizations, but the delegates will reconvene shortly to consider the question anew.

The United Front conference of Jan. 26, was brought together thru the local branch of the Federated Farmer Labor Party for the express purpose of the formation of a labor party.

Practically every labor union in the City of Reading was represented. In addition there were representatives from the Socialist Party, the Workers Party, from the Co-operative Society, from the Paine Memorial Foundation and from Workmen Circle branches and sick and death benefit societies. The conference was opened by Wm. Gundrum, a member of the American Federation of Railway Workers.

Socialists Losing Strength.

Charles F. Sands, who followed, pointed out that the workers in Reading instead of making progress on the political field, were retrogressing. He pointed out how recently the vote of the Socialist party in the city of Reading was every year becoming smaller and smaller in proportion to the entire vote being cast. He urged the necessity of a political organization in Reading that would unify the workers behind a common program for a united fight on the political field. He pointed out that the unions in Reading were demoralized and weak, and that in order to build them up, it was necessary to organize the workers not only industrially but also politically. His appeal for the formation of a labor party in Reading was well received by practically all the delegates present.

Gitlow Speaks.

Benjamin Gitlow was then invited to take the floor and speak on the question of the Labor Party. At first some of the delegates of the Socialist Party tried to object but the conference unanimously granted the invitation.

Gitlow pointed out that the movement for the organization of a labor party in the United States was born from the experiences of the workers and was not due to the desire of a few politicians to organize a political party for themselves. The workers in their struggles against their bosses have discovered that they must combat the position of the United States government, the speaker showed.

Some examples he gave were: government suppression of the coal strike, the Coronado decision and the anti-labor decisions by the United States Supreme Court, the case of Alexander Howat and the Industrial Court Law of Kansas, the numerous injunctions issued against workers out on strike and finally the smash up of the railroad strike by the interference of the United States government thru the Daugherty injunction. He then explained that a Labor Party in the United States, if it hopes to be successful, must include not only all economic and political organizations of the workers but must also include in its organization the millions of exploited farmers.

Many Delegates Support.

Delegate after delegate from the Reading labor unions took the floor and emphasized the necessity of organizing a labor party. The Socialist Party delegates, sensing that the Labor Party idea was making progress among the union delegates, made a counter attack against the possibility of the conference going on record in favor of the Labor Party.

J. Henry Stump, delegate from the Socialist Party, manager of the Peoples' Printing company, accredited leader of the Socialist Party in Reading, and their last candidate for mayor, took the floor and made a speech in opposition to the Labor Party and in favor of the Socialist Party.

He accused the provisional committee of trying to put something over on the conference and explained that the conference was called by the Workers Party for the express purpose of injecting themselves into the Labor movement in Reading. He accused the Workers Party of trying to disrupt the Labor movement, declared that a Labor Party would be a party seeking votes and not a party of principles, and ended up by loudly declaring that he was opposed to the idea of the dictatorship of the proletariat and would certainly oppose the organization of a Labor Party such as is proposed since the Workers Party would establish a dictatorship in such a Labor Party.

Raymond S. Hoefzes, editor of the Labor Advocate, a Socialist weekly in Reading, president of the Federated Trade Council and organizer of the Socialist Party, followed Mr. Stump. He opposed in the speech by declaring that he wholeheartedly indorsed every statement in the speech delivered by Gitlow, but declared that the Socialist Party has demonstrated in the past that it is a Labor Party. And he asserted there was no necessity in Reading to create confusion by organizing another Labor Party.

Says Time Is Ripe.

In answer Harold R. John, representative of the Workers Party, stated that the Workers Party was in a position to capture the conference. He showed clearly that the conference was composed of a majority of Socialist Party delegates and that the provisional committee that called the conference invited all organizations in the city of Reading, including those that were known to be decidedly Socialist Party. Since the Workers Party had only two delegates, how could one expect them to put something over on the Socialist Party when the Socialist Party was in a position to take full charge of the conference. He charged Mr. Stump with making an effort to sidetrack the issue of a Labor Party by injecting foreign issues into the conference.

An old Socialist, representative of the Thomas Paine Memorial Foundation, spoke in favor of the Labor Party and wanted the conference to do something in that respect.

Moulders' Delegate a Progressive.

M. C. Kaiser, representative of the Moulders' Union, pointed out that the Moulders' International, at its last convention, went on record in favor of the Labor Party and that he was prepared to take steps to organize a Labor Party out of the conference. Robert Weaver, the other delegate of the Workers Party, spoke for the organization of a Labor Party. R. H. Sallman, a veteran in the Socialist movement of Reading, spoke also of the necessity of organizing the Labor Party.

The conference adjourned to reconvene at a later date to consider the question. However, the Labor Party idea has taken root in the minds of many of the delegates present. The leadership and influence over the unions that the Socialist Party has enjoyed in Reading for the last twenty years is now threatened by their vacillating tactics. Unless the Socialist Party in Reading will willingly go along with the Labor Party movement its influence will be destroyed.

Special Magazine Features

The magazine section of The Daily Worker of Feb. 2, will contain many interesting articles.

William F. Dunne, the labor editor of The Daily Worker, has written a most instructive article on "Political Activity in the Trade Unions."

Max Bedacht, editor of Soviet Russia Pictorial, is the author of an article on the Third Party Movement.

One of the most interesting studies of Lenin and Leninism is contributed by Trotsky in an article entitled "The Russian in Lenin."

An analysis of the present economic situation and its political significance is presented by Jay Lovestone.

Jessica Smith, now in Soviet Russia, has written a special article for The Daily Worker on "The Clara Zetkin Factory."

Among the other interesting contributions is one by Victor Serge on Boris Pilniak.

Young Workers' Tour Being Made in New England

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON.—For a month ending Feb. 27, Max Salzman, national organizer of the Young Workers League, will be in the New England district No. 1. The tour is being arranged with the financial co-operation of the Finnish District Committee, which is sharing the expenses equally with the national office of the Young Workers League.

One to two days will be spent in each of the cities visited. The first night will be devoted to a mass meeting on "The Youth in Industry," and the second one to a Young Workers League branch meeting for organization work.

The final dates are as follows:

Lowell, Mass., Feb. 5.
Lawrence, Feb. 6.
Haverhill, Feb. 7.
Amesbury, Feb. 7.
Lawrence, Feb. 9
Boston (Jewish branch), Feb. 10.
Roxbury (English), Feb. 11.
Lynn, Feb. 12.
Malden, Feb. 13.
Worcester, Feb. 14.
Revere, Feb. 15.
Boston (English), Feb. 16. General membership meeting of the Y. W. L., Feb. 17, 8 p. m. Proletarian club, Roxbury, 8 p. m.
Revere, Feb. 18
Lynn, Feb. 19.
Norwood, Feb. 20-21.
Quincy, Feb. 22-23.
Brockton, Feb. 24.
Providence, R. I., Feb. 26-27.

The co-operation of all party units is being counted to boost the youth movement. The splendid work accomplished in Minnesota, where in seven months 25 branches of the league were organized, is spurring the local comrades on to renewed activity. The Finnish comrades, especially, are awake to the importance of teaching the young, and preparing them for proletarian leadership.

Borah Puts Denial of Federated Press into Probe's Record

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In view of the fact that the State Department Agent, Lieut. Klieforth, filed with the Borah committee a document purporting to show that The Federated Press has been the object of attempted capture "with some success," by the Communists, Senator Borah has agreed to put into the record the explicit denial of this charge, made to him in a letter dated Jan. 23th, by Carl Haessler, managing editor.

"The Federated Press," says the Haessler letter in explanation, "is now in the fifth year, controlled by its eighty labor member editors on a basis of one man one vote. More of our editors belong to the A.F. of L. than to any other group. Seven of our nine directors are A. F. of L. members, as are the managing editor and the business manager. The eighth member of our board is the secretary of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, and the ninth is the editor of the official organ of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

"Apart from donations from American citizens our entire income springs from assessments from member papers and from sales of our news to local unions and individuals."

Haessler offered to appear directly or by representative before the committee.

Start Around the World Flight at Los Angeles, Calif.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The around-the-world flight of the army air service will start from Los Angeles, Calif., instead of from Washington, D. C., or Seattle, Wash., as originally planned, Maj.-Gen. Patrick, chief of the army air service, announced today.

This decision was reached because the Douglas world cruiser airplanes to be used in the flight now are at Clover field, about 15 miles from Los Angeles.

At Bohemian Hall.

Martin Abern, national secretary of the Young Workers League, will speak in English at a mass meeting under the auspices of the Chicago South Slavic branches of the party to be held Sunday, Feb. 3, at 2 p. m., at Bohemian Hall, 18th and May streets. This meeting is a part of the party campaign to increase the party membership and it is expected that many new members will be added to the party as a result of it.

BOSTON FORMING COUNCIL TO FIGHT FOR FOREIGN-BORN

10 Organizations Unite on W. P. Plan

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass.—Boston is the first city to get under way the work of organizing a Council for the Protection of Foreign-born Workers to fight the slave labor laws now pending before Congress.

A meeting has been called at Paine Memorial Hall for Sunday, Feb. 10th, to which all labor unions and organizations of foreign-born workers of the city of Boston have been asked to send delegates. The call for this meeting is signed by:

Independent Workers' Circle; Lithuanian-American Citizen's Club; American-Lithuanian Women's Association; Lithuanian Daughters and Sons Society; Ukrainian Educational Society; Russian Dramatic Club; Lithuanian Women's Progressive Alliance; Russian Educational Club of Newton; Workers Party Branches of Boston; Boston City Central Committee Workers Party.

The call for the meeting on Feb. 10th declares, after reviewing legislation now before Congress that "The entire labor movement of this country must rally for a struggle against these laws. Both foreign-born and native workers must unite in a common organization to carry on agitation and arouse a mass protest against this attempt to enslave the whole working class of this country. For this purpose a Council for Protection of Foreign-Born Workers is to carry on a campaign against all legislation directed against foreign-born workers, particularly against the registration, finger-printing, photographing law and the law proposing selective immigration."

SMELL OF LAND FRAUD LATEST ODOR AROUND ATTY. GEN. DAUGHERTY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON. — Charges of corruption against Attorney General Daugherty are coming at him from all sides. He got stuck in the oily mess of teapot oil an the bids to be the most discredited politician seen in Washington since the days of Ballinger.

Senator Heflin of Alabama, the latest accuser, makes the definite indictment that R. B. Creager, National Republican committeeman from Texas, used his political influence with Daugherty to hush a senate investigation of public land frauds.

Creager, Brownsville, Texas, is president of the Alama Land & Sugar company, and is charged with being interested in companies that looted public lands along the Rio Grande. Creager, with Charles F. Ladd, representing the W. E. Stewart Land company; C. H. Jessup of Brownsville, and C. H. Swallow made a special trip to Washington, Feb. 16th to the senate, and called upon Daugherty and William Hays, then postmaster general, to prevent the investigation.

Creager's reply is to cry "lie" over the long distance.

$100,000 to Hunt Grafters

The senate appropriations committee today voted to report favorably to the senate the House bill, appropriating $100,000 to prosecute oil land cases but attached an amendment making the fund available only if the president submits the names of counsel he has chosen to the senate for confirmation.

As amended, the resolution provides that "any counsel employed by the president under the authority of this resolution shall be appointed by and with the advice and consent of the senate."

The amendment was unanimously agreed to in the committee.

$50,000,000 for Oil Station

Rear Admiral Gregory, appearing before the house naval affairs committee today revealed that the navy department is now working on a construction program providing for the erection of a series of oil storage stations at a cost of $50,000,000.

The senate public lands committee has decided to appoint three medical experts to determine the actual condition of former secretary of the interior Fall, central figure in the naval reserve oil scandal.

Fall Is Nervous

Physicians who have been attending former Secretary of Interior Fall, before the senate investigating committee today, under oath that Fall was suffering from nervousness and that the nervous strain of the committee questioned the physicians fully concerning every detail of Fall's illness.

The physicians again suggested that a sub-committee go to the home of J. W. Zevely, Sinclair attorney, where Fall is staying and examine him there.

While the committee is not anxious to carry out this suggestion, it was understood that some members believed it is advisable to go to see Fall if he is unable to appear within the next few days.

Taking Family to Kusbas.

Life at Kusbas is on a pioneering scale but it is very satisfying, W. H. Kingery, a farm manager for the colony, told an audience at the Workers Lyceum here.

Kingery has great faith in the future of Kusbas. Mines are being extended, timber is being cut and more land is being opened up. He came back to America to fetch his family from Spokane, Wash. They went their way to New York City, whence they will travel to Siberia.

Three Airplanes Crash.

TOKIO, Jan. 30.—Three Japanese navy airplanes collided in mid-air above the Kasumigaura aviation field Tuesday. Two crashed at once, their occupants being killed, but the pilot of the third plane managed to make a safe landing on the bay.

This is believed to be the first time that three heavier than air machines have been in one collision in mid-air.

Beware of Imitation.

From now on Jacob Sienke will leave sword-swallowing to the swordswallowers.

Sienke is in a hospital today suffering from a cut on the right lung. After seeing a vaudeville sword-swallower do his stuff, Sienke tried to imitate him, using a tin scimitar.

Child Slave Commits Suicide

CLIFTON, N. Y. — Because she was forced to work in a cotton mill, 13 year old Anna Ferance committed suicide by taking poison here today. In a note she left her parents she blamed her parents for unpleasant home conditions and forcing her to work.

Another Separatist Slain.

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—The Palatinate Separatist leader, Herr Gumbinger, was shot and killed today, a dispatch from Speyer, to-day.

Plan Good White Wash for Hitler and Ludendorff

BERLIN. — General Ludendorff, Adolph Hitler, and others implicated in the recent fascist uprising in Bavaria will be brought to trial in Munich on Feb. 18.

If some pretext is not found for avoiding this trial at the last minute, it is almost a certainty that the accused men, who admittedly guilty of treason to the German republic, will be whitewashed and allowed freedom to continue their preparations for a counter-revolutionary dictatorship.

The Bavarian courts, where these culprits will be tried, are notoriously reactionary and their function has come to be simply the legal encouragement of treason from the Whites and the imposing of ruthless sentence upon workers and Socialists.

CORPORATION LAWYER PICKED BY PRESIDENT FOR OIL PROSECUTOR

CHICAGO.—Silas H. Strawn, selected by President Coolidge to help make an inquiry into the leasing of the Teapot Dome oil reserve, is one of the best known attorneys in Chicago. While he is considered a Republican, Strawn was a supporter of President Cleveland and backed some of the Wilson policies.

Strawn is senior member of the firm of Winston, Strawn and Shaw. The law firm acts for the Michigan Central, and Chicago & Alton Railroads, the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company, the Booth Fisheries and other large enterprises.

For a time Strawn was president of Montgomery Ward & Co. and at present is chairman of the board of that firm.

Daily Worker to Publish Special Series on Housing

Beginning Monday, Friday, Feb. 1, THE DAILY WORKER will carry a series of articles by Jay Lovestone on the housing crisis.

The Daily Worker has conducted a special investigation of the acute, unbearable housing situation prevailing amongst the poor in New York and other large cities. The revolting conditions prevailing in New York state are typical of the conditions prevailing in every other city and community in the country.

In the light of these facts, articles on: "The Present Real Conditions; High Rents and Low Incomes of the Workers; Big Profits of the Landlords; The Social Effects of Poor Housing; The Tenants' Associations; The Government and the Housing Situation; A Program for Relief.

These articles will be based on the finding of THE DAILY WORKER investigator and on the latest survey made by various tenants' associations, social and government agencies.

Workers Stirred at Great Lenin Memorial Meetings

Lenin had given the revolutionary workers a new estimate of the necessity for organization and discipline in the revolutionary movement.

Arouses Great Enthusiasm.

He aroused great applause when he said that all those who believed in what Lenin believed, the supremacy of the workers and farmers, the need for the overthrow of capitalism, are untrue to the working class, to themselves and to their convictions if they remain outside of the Communist movement which, in the United States, he said, is the Workers Party of America.

C. E. Ruthenberg outlined the development of the revolutionary movement from theory to action under the inspiration of Nicolai Lenin and the Communist International. He told of the struggles of the workers for freedom, exploitation and oppression, but only with the advent of the Russian revolution, he said, under the leadership of the Communist Party, led in turn by Nicolai Lenin, did the workers come to realize that their first step towards freedom was the conquest of power thru the organization of soviets and the establishment of the dictatorship of the working class as a prelude to the Communist order.

Both Ruthenberg and Foster were given tremendous ovations when they rose to speak and at the conclusion of their speeches. The meeting closed with the singing of the International.

Commenting today on last night's demonstration a representative of the DAILY WORKER, William Z. Foster said: "We looked upon the meeting last night as a test of the sentiment among Chicago workers for Soviet Russia, the Third International and the Workers Party of America. We are more than satisfied; the attendance exceeded all our most optimistic estimates."

C. E. Ruthenberg said: "So many applications for membership were received last night after the meeting that we have not yet been able to get them up and classify them. It was a wonderful meeting and I do not believe that the death of any other man in public life could bring out as many Chicago workers as were at Ashland auditorium last night."

Big Demonstration in Boston.

BOSTON, Mass.—The Lenin Memorial Meeting, held under the auspices of the Workers Party in Scenic Auditorium brought out an audience which packed the large hall in which the meeting was held.

The Memorial meeting opened with a musical program given by the combined choruses of the Lettish, Russian, Ukrainian and Lithuanian Singing Societies of the Workers Party, made up of more than one hundred voices. Comrade H. M. Wicks delivered the memorial address in which he pictured the great services rendered to the proletarian revolutionary movement by Lenin.

The result of the meeting was new enthusiasm and support for the principles which Lenin gave to the revolutionary movement of the world.

PAYROLLITES IN RALLY TO AID THE PAYMASTER

Lewis' Parasites Barely Save Selves

ment of the progressives. Desperate efforts were made yesterday by the administration to line up the wavering ones. Delegates were buttonholed and organizers whose meal tickets were at stake could be seen in every corner around the convention hall sweating to convince delegates that they should vote with Lewis. Others could be seen rushing so-called independent voters to the telegraph office to wire for instructions from bosses.

It was reported that trains coming into Indianapolis yesterday carried dozens of henchmen, summoned to come to the rescue of the Lewis Machine.

Farrington Thru In Illinois

The Illinois delegation voted almost solidly against Lewis. It cast 900 votes against the progressive power and only 56 for it. Farrington, Fishwick and Nesbit, president, vice president and secretary respectively, were the only members of the Illinois delegation to vote with the machine.

This is believed to sound the death knell of the Farrington machine at the next convention of the Illinois district.

Alleged progressives in other districts voted solidly with Lewis, John Brophy, the Greenwich Village radical; Thomas Kennedy, ex-socialist; Mooney and Sweeney of West Virginia, all were allies of the reactionaries.

The Nova Scotia delegation cast their entire 59 votes against Lewis. Districts 5 and 11 cast a majority against the administration. District 5 is the bailiwick of the Feeneys, Fagans and O'Learys, who have been making war on the progressives and expelling them from the union.

The use of the "bluesky" locals has been so brazen that delegates here would not be surprised if Lewis should utilize the Sherman dodge expedition to manufacture a few more around the North Pole.

Davis to Speak

The patriotic Welshman, James J. Davis, secretary of labor, is scheduled to speak today to the convention.

A committee, including Enoch Williams, an alleged progressive from Pennsylvania, was appointed by Lewis to escort him from his hotel to the hall. A motion to invite the public to the meeting was defeated carried agaigst a volume of nays.

According to interviews, Davis will congratulate Lewis on revoking the charter of the Nova Scotia miners. He will quote the Nova Scotia miners that they must solve their problems from within and not from without.

This is a covert attack on the progressive elements in the convention, as a majority of the membership is composed of foreign-born workers. There is no we come here for Davis from the rank and file.

The Ku Klux Klan is meeting this week here and boasted that the coal operators have endorsed the efforts of the Klan in quelling strikes and "maintaining peace between capital and labor."

NEW FILM SHOWS SOVIET RUSSIA AT WORK AND PLAY

Showings Will Begin on March First

The third chapter in the motion picture presentation of the history of Soviet Russia will begin its showings shortly after March first. Fifteen thousand feet of film, taken in Russia and Germany, by Wm. F. Cruss are being edited and titled to make an eight reel picture of intense interest.

The first of these films, "Russia through the Shadows," showed the bloody days of war, revolution, and the worst period of the 1921 famine. The second, "The Fifth Year," showing the beginning of improvement in conditions and gave, in general, an excellent survey of the major happenings during the year 1923. The third picture, just taken, "Russia and Germany," will show the land of the Soviets as it looked in the fall of 1923 to American eyes.

Shows Reconstruction Work.

This film shows the reconstruction program well on the road to success and delivers its message, not thru great parades and pageants, but thru the everyday life of the workers themselves. Not merely the big cities are shown, but also the small villages. Industries of all sorts are depicted, iron smelters, oil wells, shoe factories, cigarette factories, locomotive works, fisheries and many others, all in the process of operation, proving untrue the ridiculous charge that only one "model" plant is being shown.

Nor can the charge that the film presents only "show places, maintained for the benefit of foreign visitors," hold water for the picture shows a great government operated asbestos plant on the borderline of Siberia where it took four hours on a freight car and five hours more by wagon over rough mountain trails to reach.

The promise of regeneration held out by Russia's youth is shown in the self-governing children's communes at work and at play. These children are for the most part, orphans saved from death by American and other friends of Soviet Russia. The Youth Parade on International Youth Day is followed by athletic shows in the huge Red Stadium which is shown with its 200,000 visitors from the provinces.

No Note of Sadness.

There is not a note of sadness in the entire Russian section of the film because that note was not heard by the cameraman in all the many weeks his travels. It is otherwise, however, when the German border is reached.

Here are hungry children, and quietly seeking old people. Here are food kitchens, where the International Workers Relief makes use of the German army kitchens to serve Russian food to starving German unemployed. Here we see the workers' guards, the "Armed Hundred" workers revolt, the Rex Saxon government-menaced by the Red Saxon, steel helmet, the Reichswehr marching in, seizing the Parliamentary buildings and the reign of "law and Order" once more begins.

The film is attractive from all angles, and applications for its showing should be sent to the Committee for International Workers Aid, Friends of Soviet Russia, Room 700, 32 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

One of the most encouraging phases of the drive now being conducted in behalf of the German workers by friends of Soviet Russia and Workers' Germany, is that the locals are getting new timber into their conferences.

Big Drive Gains Momentum.

Cities which have joined in the German drive are: Philadelphia, Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago, Flint, Mich., Grand Rapids, New Haven, New York, Milwaukee, Superior, Spokane, Seattle, San Francisco, and Washington, D. C.

The drive has gained momentum and the national office is receiving letters and remittances at the rate of about 100 daily. During the Russian famine this organization collected $930,000 in cash and about $250,000 worth of clothing and medicine. It is expected that much will be collected for the German workers.

An interesting item is the fact that Local No. 419, Carpenters Union, of Chicago, was the first to make a contribution to this German drive. They sent in $50 to the National Office. In addition to this sum, the treasurer, Richard Karhl, collected $10. Comrade Karhl stated that the local will send more money and that it has already about $25 to be turned over, in addition to this fifty dollars, which was appropriated from the treasury of each meeting a collection is taken for the German workers. As soon as they will have a large enough sum they will send their check.

Fribco Rank and File Urge Freeing of J. McLachlan

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—A resolution asking the release of or a new trial for James McLachlan, in Cape Breton county, Nova Scotia, jailed on the barest of evidence, with the sentence for the alleged libel of the provincial police was introduced, and unanimously adopted by the rank and file federation of workers here and forwarded to the Minister of Justice, Ottawa, Can.

The resolution and accompanying letter is as follows:

Minister of Justice,
Ottawa, Ontario, Can.

Honorable Sir: At a regular meeting of our organization, I was instructed to forward the following protest against the conviction and imprisonment and urging the release of a fellow-worker, namely, Brother James B. McLachlan.

We hope you will give this your careful consideration and release said James B. McLachlan.

WHEREAS: James B. McLachlan, late secretary of District No. 26, United Mine Workers of America, was convicted in October, 1922, at Halifax, N. S., on the charge of publishing seditious libel concerning the provincial police of Nova Scotia, and has been in custody in the Halifax county jail since that time, and

WHEREAS: The said McLachlan never having been other than an honest and incorruptible man, striving to better the lot of his fellow-workers and has, at all times, been a law abiding citizen, and

WHEREAS: The said McLachlan having been tried in Halifax, where strong prejudice against him has been fostered for years, in spite of the fact that there was no publication of the purported seditious libel in Halifax, and

WHEREAS: We, as organized workingmen have that time discredited and obsolete law of sedition has been invoked in this case simply because McLachlan's activities on behalf of his fellow-workers for which he incurred the enmity of the powerful British Empire Steel corporation,

We therefore request that you either order his release or direct a new trial for him to take place in Cape Breton county where his honesty and integrity is known and an impartial verdict can be given by unprejudiced fellow citizens. Believing that either of the above courses is the only way in which justice can be given to our fellow-worker McLachlan, we therefore appeal to you, requesting consideration of this claim on the assumption that you are interested in trying to get at the unrest that the injustice of this case has and will continue to produce, unless rectified by you and your office. Awaiting your reply with interest, we remain,

Very respectfully,
E. B. SPENCER, Fin. Sec.

Mussolini Stages Campaign Like Our Movie Directors

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME.—Benito Mussolini has started his election campaign with all the flourish of a moving picture director.

With rockets flying and Roman candles flaring 8,000 Black Shirts carried military banners thru Venetian Square.

"For our fatherland, for Fascism, I swear by the blood of our martyrs that we are ready to kill or to die," shouted the chief in his speech to the electors whose support he is asking for the first time since he trampled his way to power.

Mussolini is calling for a new parliament and vowed his scorn of the politicians in the Chamber of Deputies who have been rubber stamping the decrees of Fascism. He declared that parliament would have granted him an extension of his extraordinary powers but that he hated the old parliament so "swept out that nest of drones."

The dictator assured his audience that the British Labor government could not last and told them, with accent of the most devout patriotism, that he wanted to meet the head of the Italian government for the good of his country and not for his own sake.

Street Carman Is Aroused by Attack on Soviet Russia

Enclosing the front page of The Union Leader, published by the officials of the Chicago local of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees, carrying the American Federation of Labor denunciation of Soviet Russia written by the renegade socialist Chester M. Wright, an indignant member of the union writes the "Daily Worker" as follows:)—Ed. Note.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 24, 1924.

Dear Comrades: Kindly read the page which I have enclosed and please answer the dirty cuss. I don't want to give my name as it may mean my job. You know as well as I what these kidd of skunks would do if they knew who sent it to you. I told the mail man to never deliver another to my door. The mail man is just another one of us so I can trust him 100%.

MELLON'S PLAN AIDS PROFITEERS TO SKIN PUBLIC

Huge Profits Total at Least 17 Billions

By LELAND. OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

(First article of a series)

Millionaire war profiteers will skin out of paying their share of the cost of the war if Mellon's scheme for reducing the taxes of the rich is put over. Huge profits totaling at least $17,000,000,000 have been held undisturbed. Levelling this profit moment when surtaxes would be reduced. If Mellon gets away with his little game just watch these stored up profits pour out in extra dividends.

Corporate income between 1918 and 1920, according to a careful study of income tax figures by the National Bureau of Economic Research's, amounted to the extraordinary total of $55,922,000,000. The major part of this war profits resulting from the exorbitant prices which boosted the cost of the war. After deducting all taxes and all deficits there remained for the absentee owners $39,938,000,000.

If the wealthy owners of industry had chosen to distribute the entire $39,938,000,000 as it poured into the corporate treasuries a larger share of the excessive profits would have been taken by the government in surtaxes. Thus the financiers whose profiteering did so much to boost the cost of the war to unheard of heights would have borne somewhere near their share of the burden. But like good slackers they preferred to draw out in cash only a little over half of the total, approximately $22,000,000,000, leaving $17,000,000,000 surplus profits safe from the people's tax gatherers.

The huge surplus profits stored away by certain leading corporations between 1914 and 1922 are shown in the following table:

	Undivided profits.
Amer. Car & Foundry	$29,379,424
Amer. Can	26,055,876
Amer. Locomotive	26,150,995
Amer. Tel. and Tel.	77,081,609
Amer. Woolen	24,634,762
Bethlehem Steel	97,831,108
Corn Products Ref.	40,588,950
Dupont Powder	74,182,824
General Electric	47,192,585
International Harvester	29,972,784
Pittsburgh Coal	21,061,980
Standard Oil of Indiana	159,108,753
United Fruit	81,277,618
U. S. Steel	442,756,820
Westinghouse	62,612,130

If Wouldn't you like to be a security owner when Mellon's surtax reduction gives the signal for the dividing up of these profits?

If you could examine the stockholders' books of these corporations you would probably locate a lot of the supporters of Mellon's bill in Congress. Of course a part of these totals has been reinvested in the plants, equipment and has served as the basis for stock dividends which were issued after the supreme court had ruled them free from income tax. But the biggest part can still be located in hard cash or in negotiable securities.

To most of us the $30,000,000,000 in dividends already taken would seem a pretty fair haul. In fact the mere figure that the other $17,000,000,000 could fairly be considered as belonging to the people who paid the high prices and accepted the low wages which made such swollen profits possible. That's the idea behind the proposal of the People's Reconstruction league for a progressive tax to be levied on these undistributed profits. Such a tax would help to pay off the national war debt rapidly and would do more to lighten the real tax burden than Mellon's whole program.

Release Him? Sure! He Was Cog in the Wilson War Machine

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Benedict Crowell of Cleveland, Assistant Secretary of War in the Wilson Cabinet, charged with conspiracy to defraud in awarding of army canton ment contracts, was released from prosecution today in the district of Columbia criminal court.

In a lengthy opinion, Justice Hoehling held that "the indictment drawn is not such as that the defendant could advisedly plead thereto in the sense of knowing just what he is called upon to answer."

DOCTORS DUPED BY GIRL WHO IS BLIND AND DEAF

Call Her Victim of Self-Deception

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 30.—Willett-ta Huggins, 19-year-old blind and deaf girl who by great luck found the scientific method what she claimed to be able to see thru her sense of smell and hear thru touch, is a victim of a vicious hysterical self-deception, Prof. Joseph Jastrow, the distinguished psychologist of the University of Wisconsin, said here today.

Without examining Miss Huggins since the experiment ended, that she is able to hear and see in the normal manner, he ventured that she has always been able to see and hear to that extent.

Leading scientists from all over the United States who have been "taken in" by the tests which seemed to show that Miss Huggins possessed occult powers of hearing and seeing thru other than the normal sense organs were victims of the "will to believe," Prof. Jastrow states.

He has made a detailed analysis of Willetta's family and antecedents and states that there would be great reason to suspect that the hysterical phenomena as the girl presents from this study, apart from the sensationalism which attends tests were supposed to have shown. Miss Huggins deceived herself because she did not believe that the limits of her sense of hearing were functioning, he said.

FARMERS DESPERATE, SAY G.O.P.'S ADVISERS; RIGHT! SAYS MANLEY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON.—Reps. following visit with President Coolidge in regard to creating reimbursements for the Coolidge administration.

Reps. Lang and Hersey, with depositors of $1,500,000, failed to open their doors yesterday. The First National Bank of Huron, S. D., the largest of those closing their doors, the Silver City National Bank, the American National Bank and the Silver City Savings Bank, all of Silver City, N. M., and the First National Bank of Tyrone, N. M., and the First National Bank of Lordsburg, N. M., make up one day's list that adds heavily to the worries of President Coolidge.

Farmers and small business men of the districts affected by the failures are said to be making demands upon the administration that cannot be met and the Coolidge political advisers are desperate. Farmers' organizations are flooding the White House, the federal reserve bank headquarters as well as congressmen and senators with telegraphed resolutions of protest that beat the record of any one veteran politician stated to the DAILY WORKER correspondent, that "the old Populist days are here again."

When shown the above Washington dispatch, Joseph Manley, secretary of the Federated Farmer-Labor party laughed and said:

"Our office is also flooded with telegrams and letters advising us of the deplorable plight of the farmers in the stricken territories. The farmers are indeed desperate, and many of them are actually hungry. In many sections the drop in the price of wheat and other farm products has forced them to dump their produce at less than it cost to raise and market it. Bankruptcy is today of farmers as well as banks, not unusual but the normal condition of affairs in the agricultural sections. Harding's promise of normalcy has been more than fulfilled under Coolidge." "No ordinary measures will meet this condition," said Manley.

"Organization for joint action with the workers in the industrial centers is the only salvation for the farmers," continued Manley, "and if the farmers continue to organize at the present rate of speed, following the May 30th convention called by St. Paul, the farmers will be heard from in the presidential campaign as well as in the agricultural states.

St. Louis School Board Is Fought; Hostile to Labor

(By The Federated Press)

ST. LOUIS.—The many sins of the St. Louis school board were laid bare by Maurice Cassidy, secretary, St. Louis Building Trades council, in addressing a conference here on Apprenticeship and Training. The conference preceded the convention of the Vocational Education Association. Cassidy's words were on the proposal to introduce vocational training in the city schools. Manual training is now taught in the high schools.

"The plan for preparing for apprenticeships in building trades or any other trade by school courses is excellent, but our school board first must be divorced from antagonism to union labor," was Cassidy's conclusion.

The St. Louis board of education is hostile to organized labor. The board has a rule practically prohibiting the employment of a teacher who is a member of a labor union. Some years ago it broke up the local organization of the American Federation of Teachers. In one case, however, the board had to make an exception to its anti-union rule by employing a member of the typographical union to teach type setting.

The board's inability to labor unions explains the failure here to teach the trades in the public schools, Cassidy said. "We tradesmen generally are unable to send our children thru high schools and colleges," Cassidy continued. "In many instances we have to put them to work after they finish grammar school to help us fight the high cost of living."

Cassidy asserted that the present scarcity of apprentices was due to inadequate wages paid by employers to beginners in trades and advocated improved apprentice pay as a remedy.

Amalgamated Fights Contractors.

NEW YORK.—The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America have decided to take action against New York clothing manufacturing firms which have been sending out work to non-union contractors in violation of agreements with the union. In connection with this warning to the factory owners, union officials are instructed to be in readines for eventualities.

COMMUNIST CHILDREN'S COLUMN

THE NEW RELATIONS BETWEEN ADULTS AND CHILDREN

Article VIII.

It is sad but true that today the attitude of the proletarian parents—even communist parents—to the children of adults generally to the youth generally) is still purely bourgeois and based on "paternal power." If the children revolt, the parents do not hesitate to use their physical and economic superiority. Just as the worker punishes his comrade-in-reasons, upon his exploiter, so do the children of the proletarians and the bourgeoisie alike depend upon their parents. This economic dependence arouses the master instincts of the parents and forces the child to submit to a form of slavery.

The attitude of the labor organizations, especially of the trade unions is the progressive one—towards the children, youths, and even the younger members of the organizations, proves how deeply the bourgeois conception of the "right of the stronger" is still rooted among the working class. "What does the kid know?" and "Shut up" are such expressions heard in meetings!

But still worse than this is the lack of attention and the lack of comprehension which exists in all the problems of the revolutionary development of the child. Children are universally "loved and pampered, that is true—as long as they do not disturb the adults.

There are even communists parents who keep their children from attending the Junior Groups, or who do not encourage them to attend. We do not want children to be forced to come to our meetings, but communists, at least, should encourage their children to join us. We shall be even more modest: children should not be prevented from coming.

It is perfectly true that many features of the Junior Groups are not agreeable to the parents, especially those who have the bourgeois ideology. The children who come to us gain in self confidence, in in dependent initiative, and in the development of their critical faculties. That observation becomes more keen and espies the weaknesses and inconsistencies of their parents and, naturally, their parents do not relish this. Being themselves the slaves of machines during the day, they prefer to play the role of small gods at home in their petty bourgeois egoism, in their desire for peace and comfort, they do not see the great progress the child is making. They do not see its awakening class consciousness, its new set keen sense of the injustice of the present social system. They do not see that the child is daily approaching them closer, and closer, mentally, that it listens to their conversations with more understanding, and that it shares all their experiences in life. They see only what is unflattering to them, and understand only that they themselves are made uncomfortable. Instead of establishing a bond between themselves and the child, they resent its going to meetings of the groups where it is learning these things that are so humiliating to them. They are annoyed because it gets into trouble with its teacher in the school. Their vanity is hurt—and no pain is more severe than hurt vanity—by the pitiless criticism of the child. There are many conflicts in the life of the parents, especially if their communism is not yet deeply rooted—has not yet become a motive force.

Thus the new relations between adults and children is developing in the Junior Groups and will finally find its way into the homes of the proletarians. There is no economic dependence between the leaders (teachers) of the Junior Groups and the children themselves. The only form of coercion to bring the children into the groups. Inside of the groups there is completely free community. The adult who gathers and works with the children depends upon the confidence and trust of the children. His superiority consists only that of a more experienced elder. It is his principal task to arouse as much independent initiative as possible in the children. Their conflicts in the school, their agitation and recruiting work among their playmates and school fellows strengthens their self confidence and their critical powers.

Children naturally expect and depend upon the support of the adults. The bourgeois educational system utilizes this inclination to make the children conform to rules and regulations which assure the comfort and peace of the adults. Communist education teaches the child to overcome this inclination and to accustom himself to independence.

"Buy the Starving German Children" Workers League Section—Young Workers League.

The Junior Section of the Young Workers League, with its units in 20 cities and its 2,000 members, is conducting an active campaign for their starving young comrades in Germany. The children of each group will elect a committee of the children which will draw up a plan for a money collection campaign. Some of the suggestions which the children offer are: collecting money at all meetings, getting the children busy making home made collection boxes, arranging evenings for the parents with children as speakers, and with revolutionary entertainments furnished by the children, etc.

Each committee of the Junior Groups will elect a young comrade as a representative to the Friends of Soviet Russia (Friends of Workers' Germany) whose duties are will give regular reports there on the work of the children in this activity.

Say Dawes Getting "Satisfactory Start" in German Probe

BERLIN.—Committee of experts number one, headed by General Charles G. Dawes, made what officials described as a "satisfactory start" in its investigation of Germany's finances at a two hour session here today.

Stabilization of currency, establishment of an independent gold bank and investigation of Germany's budget including railways, taxes, etc., were discussed and was said to constitute the chief problems ahead.

GREEK FASCISTI IN OPEN WAR ON LABOR UNIONS

Soldiers and Sailors Are Used as Scabs

(By The Federated Press)

ATHENS.—The workers of Greece are experiencing what a government by the military aligned with the industrialists means. Since September, 1922, a military fascist clique has been in charge of the political affairs of the nation. One of its first acts was to support the attacks of the industrial barons upon the workers' wages.

By their united strength and a rare show of solidarity the workers were able nevertheless to bring about a series of wage increases, although these were by no means commensurate with the increase in the cost of living. No sooner did the Greek drachma begin to improve a bit again, than the whole energy of the bosses, aided by the government, was thrown into cutting the wages. In the tobacco industry alone, which employs 30,000 men and women, wages were cut almost one-half recently.

The miners' wages, too, were to be cut greatly. The miners decided to go on strike. The trade union federation called a general strike in their support. Some 70,000 men responded and held out for over a week.

The government intervened. Sailors and soldiers were used as scabs. The strikers were called up for military service. Meetings were prohibited. Many strikes were arrested. Even machine guns and cannon were brought into play. Finally the trade unions were simply dissolved by the government and their funds confiscated.

By methods such as these the strike was finally broken and for the moment the labor movement is smashed to pieces.

Eight-Hour Day Strictly Adhered to in Soviet Russia

By GERTRUDE HAESSLER
(Staff Correspondent of The Federated Press)

MOSCOW.—Interesting comparisons are being drawn here between the effects of the industrial crisis in Russia and in capitalistic countries. Statistics covering the latter half of the fiscal year April-October show that if industrial crises in Russia, show that the average real wage of factory workers during these months of crisis went up thruout Russia.

Wages of factory workers in Moscow, in October were 10% higher than in July, and in Petrograd 12%. Production increased during this period and the actual number of workingmen employed also increased. In capitalistic countries, industrial crisis carry with them wholesale dismissal of workingmen, lowering of wages, lengthening of the working hour and decrease in production.

The policy of the government does not permit the employers to big industry to dismiss workers during hard times. The factories are run at a loss during crisis, on government credit, and endeavors are made to increase production in order to absorb the unemployed. Wages are kept at the same general level and sometimes increased and the eight-hour day in industry which is fixed by government law, is strictly adhered to.

Elevator Wages Go Up.

NEW YORK.—The higher the scale, as a sticker that does not apply to elevator workers in New York city. According to an agreement just concluded, the wages of elevator operators will rise with the elevators. That is the height of buildings will be a decisive factor in fixing the size of the pay envelops.

THE FREEMAN GREETS THE DAILY WORKER

From The Freeman, January 30, 1924.

Almost simultaneously the American Socialist and Communist brethren have launched fresh journalistic ventures. The Socialists have produced the New Leader, successor to the Leader and Call; and the Communists, under more daring inspiration, have started in Chicago the DAILY WORKER, the first Communist Daily in English. We are glad to welcome these two new organs of information and interpretation of the rival Marxian sects. Each sect includes in its leadership men of broad sympathies and of respectable intellectual attainments, and the they represent only a small majority of American opinion they have a distinct contribution to make to the cause of political and economic intelligence. Both papers are well edited, and the DAILY WORKER has an unusually attractive make-up and displays some brilliant cartoons.

Capellini's Camouflage Is Removed

Rinaldo Capellini, progressive for election purposes, elected in opposition to the Lewis machine District 1 of the United Mine Workers thru support of the radical element, has fallen upon evil days.

So anxious was he to prove his loyalty to the machine that in the open convention he announced he was sorry he had not poisoned certain members of the Progressive Miners' International Committee who had broken bread with him.

What Capellini accomplished by this display of murderous venom was to acquaint the delegates from his own local and his district with the real character of the man they had elected.

On the roll-call on the resolution to change the constitution and deprive officials of appointive power and on the result of which the life of the Lewis machine depended, Capellini voted with the administration, but he could not carry his own local; Alex Campbell voted against the machine.

So did the delegates from the Pittston locals, formerly considered Capellini's stronghold.

This exposure of Capellini before the membership of his own district is a victory.

The Lewis Maching, like almost every other machine in the labor movement, including the Gompers machine, has retained power by bribing, buying and coercing men whom the membership has come to look upon as progressives, by covering its own corruption and inefficiency with a thin veneer of radicalism furnished by traitors to the rank and file. Former members of the socialist party now hold high places in the Lewis administration, their early insurgency completely forgotten.

New blood must flow into the veins of the machine constantly. It keeps a watchful eye on young and able organizers and speakers. It takes them up and gives them good jobs. They become professional office-holders. They look with contempt on their radical former associates.

Without this constant influx of new blood the machine could not live and it is gratifying to know that very early in his career as a cheer-leader for the administration forces, Rinaldo Capellini, president of one of the largest districts of the United Mine Workers, has, by being forced out into the open by the militants, removed all doubt as to where he stands—against the rank and file who trusted him and for the machine that no one trusts—not even its supporters.

The Philippine Crisis

The movement for Philippine independence from American imperialist oppression is making rapid headway. There are several bills in the House and in the Senate proposing various degrees of national freedom for the Filipino people.

There is only one reason for the marked advance that the Filipinos are making towards national freedom. The Filipinos have fought and fought determinedly and valiantly against their enemies. The Filipinos have gone thru two insurrections; one against Spanish oppression and the other against our own imperialist brigands. The only reason that Congress is now considering the question of Filipino freedom is that the Filipinos have struck terror into the hearts of their American oppressors. General Wood is reported to be letting up in his high-handed tyranny because of the resistance of the Filipinos.

It is interesting to note that a tremendous sentiment for Philippine freedom exists in America. The strongest and most ardent advocates of Philippine freedom are, of course, to be found in the ranks of the most militant and revolutionary workers in the United States. The Workers Party has repeatedly pointed out that it is in the interests of the American working class itself that the Filipino people be freed from exploitation by our bankers and industrialists. It is significant that the Federated Labor Unions of the Philippines have been quick to acknowledge the help of the American Communists in the struggle to win freedom for the Filipino nation.

The struggle of the Filipino people for national freedom is only part of the struggle of the oppressed masses of the world against the plunder and tyranny of the capitalist imperialists. The Communist support tendered to the struggling Filipinos is support given to one section of the world front of the workingmen of all countries fighting against their common imperialist enemies.

Beware of Some Friends

The brows of our strikebreaking administration leaders are surely furrowed with care. Disillusionment, unrest, exposure, internecine party strife, and growing discontent amongst the farmers of the northwest especially are but a few of the causes of alarm in the camp of the reactionary Republicans.

Anxiety for the welfare of the farmers has become the bedfellow of even the calm Calvin Coolidge, who a few months ago, told the farmers to go shuffling for themselves. At first one is likely to feel surprised at these paternal efforts to bring succor to the farmers. But a second thought on the Coolidge program of Farm relief dispells all doubts as to what Coolidge and his clique are really after.

A so-called farm relief conference is to be convoked by the Administration. At this conference representatives of the big banks and the biggest business and transportation interests will get together to talk about the farm crisis. Sundry meaningless proposals will be made and palmed off as genuine farm relief measures.

What the burden of the song of these "friends" of the farmers will be is plainly evident from some of their measures that have already been given wide advertisement. A proposal is to be made to refund the loans made the farmers. This, of course, will help the farm bankers but not the farmers.

Another panacea to be offered at this conference of the farmers' "friends" is the establishment of a syndicate of banks in the big cities of the middle west. These banks will work in close touch with the War Finance Corporation of the government and will be directed by the latter. Already several prominent middle western bankers have established such an agency in Sioux Falls. This measure also merely aims to help the bankers who have been hard hit by the agricultural collapse and does not do anything at all for the suffering farmers.

Should the Administration put into effect the above proposals, the farmers, more than ever before, would be at the mercy of the bankers. More than ever before, the overlords of Wall street would have a strangle hold on agricultural finance. These measures only aim to tighten the grip of the big eastern financiers and industrialists on the western agricultural areas.

They spell only more ruin and more troubles for the farmers.

Labor Banking and Labor

Many ardent advocates of labor banking have greeted with joy the spread of the trade union banking movement as a sign of the advent of a new era of labor solidarity.

We are sorry. But we cannot see how close and sinister contact on the part of the respectable labor bureaucrats with the biggest banking interests in Wall Street tends to promote labor solidarity. These wishes may be grand. Yet they militate against the facts and the truth.

Our labor movement has been cursed with numerous jurisdictional disputes—quarrels which are the very life blood and essence of "graft" unionism. Labor banking, tho still very young, has already shown that it is fraught with many serious dangers to the solidarity of the working class. For one thing, it tends to increase the number and variety of the scourge of jurisdictional disputes that is now gnawing at the very heart of our labor movement. Only a few weeks ago, the New York Central Labor Council, which has just gone into the business of labor banking itself, drew up a resolution denouncing the establishment in New York of one of these co-operative banks by Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. The Railway Workers Union was attacked as a dual organization. It was condemned for its interference with the labor banking business undertaken by the local Central Labor Council.

Here we have another fine jurisdictional mess on our hands. The working class has everything to lose and nothing to gain from such competitive activities. We cannot see how even the most overworked imagination can lead one to believe that competition between labor officials for the back door confidences of Wall Street can in any way promote solidarity amongst working men.

Mockery of Militarism

Our military and naval experts now tell us that the recent maneuvers have established beyond a doubt, that the Panama Canal always considered one of the greatest military assets of the country, lies at the mercy of any first class military power.

If the Canal is so poorly defended, why was it is necessary to go thru all these maneuvers to establish its poor military condition?

The answer is easy. Our military and naval experts knew the exact defense value of the Canal before these maneuvers. The joint army and navy maneuvers were simply used to strengthen the growing militarist demands made upon the country by the war hounds and naval watch dogs.

We are told that the country needs more 16-inch guns, a greater air fleet, more submarines and destroyers, more military railroads and it took the combined wisdom of four hundred officers of the army and navy to make these recommendations. There is nothing startling about that. It was a foregone conclusion before these maneuvers began that the Canal defences would be found inadequate and that the country would be urged to increase its armaments.

The Negro Petty Bourgeoisie

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

Negro political leaders are not unaware of the fact that the economic foundation of their power is the ability to exploit the Negro masses. Hence the constant efforts to create Negro business enterprises, Negro banks, Negro stores, Negro factories, Negro real estate companies, etc. Hence the constant appeals to race pride, to race solidarity, to race loyalty, to race hatred. Hence the constant efforts to create a Negro "capitalist class" which will be able to exploit the Negro masses.
